At the prison here, Ernest Young, who last January came close to killing a convict by cutting his throat over a dice game, was stabbed to death in a gang fight. About 100 prisoners took part in the fight.

METROPOLITAN LOSES DIRECTOR

Herbert Witherspoon Dies of Heart Attack Few Weeks After Taking Control.

ERSKINE MAY SUCCEED.

NEW YORK, May 11.—(AP). — With the suden death of Herbert Witherspoon future direction of the Metropolitan Opera was once more the topic of dominant interest in music circles to-day.

Paul D. Cravath, chairman of the opera's board of directors, was expected within the next few days to call a meeting to consider a successor to Mr. Witherspoon who, but a few weeks ago, had succeeded Giulio Gatti-Casazza as general manager of the world-famous "Met."

Death, resulting almost instantaneously from a heart attack, came a few hours after the first 1935-36 posters bearing his name and title had been pasted up outside the historic opera building.

Until the selection of a successor, these plans will be carried on by the two assistant general managers, and Edward Johnson, Guelph, Ont. tenor and Edward Ziegler.

Johnson was in Detroit, singing in performances of Deems Taylor's "Peter Ibbetson," with Lucrezia Bori. It was understood he would return to New York as soon as possible.

Some persons close to the situation thought it likely John Erskine would be named as general manager of the "Met." If he refuses, the choice would probably fall between Ziegler, assistant under Gatti-Casazza for the last 20 years, and Johnson.

QUOTAS REDUCED IN ROAD CAMPS

government has to assume the brunt of the cost and they have a financial problem to face that is a direct concern to every citizen in the province. That, as I understand it, is the main reason why additional men have been let out.

At the same time the government had no intention of continuing the work into the farming season, and creating opposition to the farmers in securing sufficient men for work on the land. All the men from Ennismore, Douro and Smith have been let go because it was thought they were experienced farm helpers. North Monaghan and the other township groups have been greatly reduced.

Some of the men who were sent back to the camps at the end of April and later released may be displeased, but the financial situation is a serious one to the government, and there should be some seasonal work available for these men where they live."

Of the sixty men at each camp fifty are rotating workers and ten comprise the staff.

The settlers are also being given 200 man hours a month.

OKLAHOMA POSTIES GO ARMED TO GUARD GOLDEN CHAIN MAIL

Extra Belfast Police Out For Duke's Visit

BELFAST, Northern Ireland, May 11 (CP-Havas).—Police, determined to maintain order during the visit of the Duke of Gloucester who arrives to-day, redoubled their vigilance to frustrate any repetition of the rioting which resulted last night in serious injuries to one man and sent six to hospitals with lesser injuries.

The Duke of Gloucester, third son of the King is coming to represent his father in Silver Jubilee celebrations.

Three bombs exploded in the dock district last night as Unionists and Nationalists fought with cudgels, stones and pistols. Acting on an order by the Northern Ireland Ministry of Home Affairs, police patrolled the three square miles of wharf territory. The curfew, lifted at 5 a.m. will be maintained nightly until further notice.

ed spokesman, was knocked unconscious and taken to hospital.

The government did not meet the men but it was made known control of public works was to remain with the department.

Nine hundred rioters took part in the afternoon disorders and even more ran riot through the streets during the night. The later demonstrators were short-lived — they lasted less than an hour—but they were sharp.

As the police sped through Water street—the main thoroughfare—in motor lorries, jobless men lurking in darkened by-ways flung stones at them. Others smashed store windows and crawled in through the broken panes.

Using their sticks freely, the policemen followed them into the buildings and drove them out, and in little more than 45 minutes, the streets were clear again.

MUMPS APPEAR.

B. Rosen informed the Board of Education last night there was a possibility of an outbreak of mumps, even to epidemic proportions.

DEATH STEPS IN

CONCORD, Mass., May 11.—(CP)—In 20 minutes a whistle would have sounded the end of the day and Joseph P. Foucher, 26, highway worker, would have signed his name for his first full week's pay in two years, but someone else must collect Foucher's pay.

He was struck and killed by a truck employed on the highway project.

Fad Swamps City — Night Clubs, Offices Become "Passing Pits."

LINKS WIDEN FAST.

BY TOM YARBROUGH

OKLAHOMA CITY, May 11.—(AP)—If the gentleman who said the chain letter fad is dying should come here today he would find—

Postmen carrying guns.

Hundreds of wild-eyed gentlemen quick Wallingfords clustered about mushrooming chain-making establishments like bees about a sugar lump.

More traffic than at Christmas time.

The largest night club transformed into a five-buck passing pit.

More Protection

Policemen harried by requests for special protection to scores of chain money drives as a result of the fad's holdup.

A threat of action by H. C. Jones, collector of internal revenue, proved a small deterrent as money-hungry, pop-eyed citizens scurried to extend the links last night.

Jones was prepared to act on a law permitting his department to seize money and personal property of a person who might leave the district without settling his income tax, but that was for the wealthy followers on the trail of suckers.

Gunman Reaps $100

As a gunman depended upon a service where almost 100 persons were playing the chains, he took occasion to give them all a sound cursing for being "foolish enough to take part in the fad and then stamped up envelopes containing more than $100.

Chain letter fans, hoping to make a fortune out of an initial investment of a few dollars, flocked to exchanges, in a residential section, every store in one block was given over to chain promoters with their notaries and typists.

One promoter hired a taxi and with a case of liquor visited his friends, mellowed them and sold his letters.

"We are not delivering any of the special delivery letters containing $5 at night," said R. R. Griffith, postal inspector, who advised that clerks handling the registered mail has been armed to forestall robbery.

FARMER FINED CRUELTY COUNT

Alfred Shea Found Guilty of Ill-treating Number of Cattle.

T. R. Bright Also Assessed.

(Examiner Staff Correspondent)

CAMPBELLFORD, May 1.—District Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., presided at Campbellford Police Court on Friday afternoon and disposed of the following cases. Charges laid by Chief Constable George Hardy against two young men of Seymour township for not having drivers' licenses, contrary to the traffic laws—both offenders pleaded guilty and handed over $10 and costs in cash.

Worked Injured Horse

Thomas R. Bright of Percy township, charged by Inspector B. T. Watley of the Toronto Humane Society with working a horse which had suffered three broken ribs in an automobile accident. Mr. Bright did not deny the charge but claimed that the horse in question had been romping around the pasture field and appeared to be alright. The fine in this case was $17.25 and the Humane Society officer ordered the horse to be kept in the stable for five weeks and not to be driven until the advice of a veterinary was given.

Illtreated Cattle

Charged under section 542 subsection A of the criminal code "That in the township of Percy during the month of April and the first day of May he did cruelly illtreat a number of cattle and a pig" Alfred Shea pleaded not guilty. After hearing a number of witnesses which included Inspectors Wm. Weatherstone and B. T. Watley of the Humane Society who produced photographs of five dead cows which they claimed looked as if they had starved to death. The magistrate gave his decision as follows: "The facts speak too strongly to accept the evidence of the accused person and his witnesses. The fact of the cattle being in this condition was caused by starvation, that he did fail to supply food, water and shelter, and that there will be a conviction. You cannot make me believe that there is any need for cattle to be in that condition in this country and I am satisfied that you did not feed those cattle properly."

Shea was fined $10.00 and costs, amounting to $14.30, making a total of $24.30 payable within 10 days or in default of payment 10 days hard labour in the jail in the County of Northumberland.

Titus Case Adjourned

The case of Ralph Claud Titus of Murray township, also charged by the Humane Society with wanton cruelty to animals by failing to supply sufficient food and care, was adjourned until May 29. Alexander MacColl represented the S.P.C.A. of Toronto. The court room was jammed to the doors, many of the witnesses being called in from the street as their turn came.

WOMEN ABANDON PROTEST MARCH

Police Opposition Dampens Ardor—Objected to Extra Armaments.

HOPED TO SEE PRINCE.

CARDIFF, Wales, May 11 (A.P.).—A protest march of women from Glamorganshire who wanted to tell the Prince of Wales they don't like expenditure of large sums for armaments was abandoned to-day at Pontypridd after difficulties with the police.

Marchers from Monmouthshire were not sighted at Cardiff, but police blocked off the roads and said they would prevent any of them from entering the city if they arrive at the outskirts.

The Prince and David Lloyd-George, former Premier, both were asleep as their coach was shunted to a siding upon the train's arrival at dawn, but the Welshmen made ready early to give the visitors a rousing welcome.

The women marchers, about 500 of them, many carrying babies and knapsacks, had planned to protest armaments expenditures and to ask money collected for the King's Jubilee Fund be used to aid the unemployed and in maternity and child welfare work.

The police at Pontypridd detained two men accompanying the women and took the names of a number of the women marchers. The leaders then decided to abandon their efforts to reach Cardiff to present the petition.

Byrd Contemplating New Antarctic Trip

WASHINGTON May 11 (A.P.) — Plaudits of President Roosevelt and official Washington had not faded in the ears of Rear-Admiral Richard Evelyn Byrd to-day before he began contemplating still another venture into the Antarctic.

"Yes, naturally I'm thinking of going back."

For the next year, at least, he said, he will be busy writing a book and delivering lectures, all of which have been contracted for.

The Admiral told yesterday of the thing that impressed him most during the four months he spent alone in an Antarctic hut studying weather conditions.

"The silence was striking," he said. "In the woods a person thinks it is silent, but here there was no life of any kind. No noise.

"The snow? It was up to the top of my shack. I got my exercise by keeping it shovelled away."

Your Problems

Religious and Social Questions Answered By DR WYLIE CLARK

Are we doing what we might to meet and overthrow the forces of evil?—W. T. M.

We are not doing all we might, perhaps only a small percentage of what we should do; but all the same we are doing something. We have not given up nor said, "We quit." The forces for good are fairly active. At times they are more active than usual. There are strong attempts making headway to remove from the world deadly diseases and corrupting sins. We are calling for changes in our attitude of leaving things alone and are demanding that the wrong must be superseded by the right.

Dr. Wylie Clark

What to read in special moods?

A correspondent sends the following list:

If you have the "blues," read the 27th Psalm.

If your pocket-book is empty, read the 37th Psalm.

If people seem unkind, read the 15th chapter of John.

If you are discouraged about your work, read the 126th Psalm.

If you are all out of sorts, read the 12th chapter of Hebrews.

If you are losing confidence in men, read the 13th chapter of First Corinthians.

If you can't have your own way in everything, keep silent and read the 3rd chapter of James.

Ships sometimes sail under sealed orders. Is it not the same with individuals of the human race?—P. N. W.

That is one of the charms of life. We do not know what is ahead. Everyone who lives by faith moves on knowing that somewhere and sometime the orders will be opened and we shall understand. That knowledge that God is ordering our lives for the higher good should be the possession of every Christian soul, for in that possession we find happiness for ourselves and give efficient service for others.

Is it not true that nearly all prayer is only seeking to get benefits for ourselves?—T. L. S.

Too often that is true. We seek in prayer benefits in our own physical, material or spiritual condition instead of seeking gifts which will make us more useful to others. Happy and blessed are those who seek in order that they may have an abundance to give.

If you were going to reconstruct the social conditions of the world which of the following would you like to help you: Roosevelt, Huey Long, Father Coughlin, Ramsay McDonald, Hitler, Stalin, Mussolini, Bennett?—C. C. F.

If I could be chairman and keep order I would take the whole bunch. I am telling you that would be a great committee.

Cathedral Musings

CONTINUING our meditation of last week on prayer, we should strive to remember that not only must our motives be pure and unselfish, but that our hearts must be so likewise. It is an axiom of earthly law that we must come into court with clean hands; how much more so must our motives and thoughts be clean when we approach the Cosmic? How can we seek Love if we have hatred in ourselves? How can we ask for help if we deny help to others? For Light, if we have not light within ourselves? How can we approach the Heavenly Throne if we habour mean, unworthy, petty thoughts of others? The thing is simply impossible; every spiritual and occult law forbids, so we would do well to prepare our minds before we enter upon the holy communion of prayer, lest we be thrown back upon ourselves to our own confusion, and our prayers be no more than empty words.

There is an old Tibetan legend that is analogous in some respects. This old tradition states that when a man dies, he enters straightway into the blinding radiance of the Greater Light. If he is sufficiently pure that he is able to endure it, he remains in bliss forever, but that if by his earthly thoughts and actions he cannot abide he is hurled back to earth-life to make amends and learn how to do better. Whether this old legend be true or not is no matter; the lesson is, that nothing evil or impure can dwell in the presence of the Most High, and that we should purify our thoughts before we seek to commune with Him.

To those who seek to learn how to use the spiritual and occult powers of the soul, this is most applicable, for the higher forces are not given to be used unworthily, nor to be had for the mere asking; they have to be attained by a purity of thought and intention which, as the Master said, "Must exceed the righteousness of the Pharisees."—Prater IX., Rosicrucian Order, San Jose, Calif.

Wilfred Heighington Addresses Kinsmen Club

BRITISH NORTH AMERICA ACT WAS DESIGNED TO OVERCOME CONDITION PECULIAR TO CANADA

Campaign Carried On By Boards of Trade Severely Criticized.

NOT OVER-GOVERNED.

Act of Confederation Model Act and Has Worked Out Well.

"To ask a politician to refrain from discussing politics at such a meeting would be like asking a man to a cocktail party that was without gin," Wilfred Heighington, M. L.A., of Toronto stated at a local meeting last night in announcing that he intended to speak about the British North America Act. He accompanied his remarks with the reservation, however that "there is a big difference between politics and partisanship."

By a coincidence, Mr. Heighington who is spoken of as the next likely leader of the Conservative party in some circles, spoke before the Peterborough Kinsmen Club on the anniversary of the visit of the Honorable George S. Henry, who came here last year as Premier of Ontario, just prior to the provincial election.

Introduces Speaker

In introducing Mr. Heighington to the gathering, President J. K. Sheehy remarked, "he accepted an invitation to come here through the good offices of Art Costello, an old Peterborough boy now residing in Toronto."

Mayor Roland Denne, when called upon by the president extended an official welcome to the guest speaker. Other guests of the club who were present in honor of Mr. Heighington's visit were J. F. Strickland, K.C., Alderman Max Sloan, chairman of the Reception Committee of the City Council; E. L. Sackville, president of the Liberal Association; V. J. McElderry, K.C., and R. M. Glover and T. L. Ashton, both of The Examiner.

The speaker referred in his introductory remarks to the fact that he had sat with Mr. Strickland in the Provincial Legislature for a period of five years, previous to the June elections last year when the latter retired upon amalgamation of the two former local ridings.

"The Missing Chair"

Then addressing the Mayor with reference to an incident which featured in the days news said, "I came here Mr. Mayor to offer you my services in connection with the missing chair of yours. When I come here on the next occasion I shall hope to find you occupying the chair, and would not like to think that I might find instead a brass plate to your memory."

As a lawyer, Mr. Heighington said he wished to translate the British North America Act into the ordinary business man's language. It was an important question which he predicted the electors would have to consider at the forthcoming Federal election.

Criticising the campaign that is being conducted by Sir Henry Lumley Drayton and the Canadian Boards of Trade and Chamber of Commerce, against what they termed "over-government," Mr. Heighington maintained in his arguments that the British North America Act had been designed to overcome certain conditions peculiar to Canada, and that those conditions were as much alive to-day as ever they were despite any arguments to the contrary.

He agreed that it was easy for those who were opposed to the constitution, to show by a process of arithmetic that Canada was over-governed, but he argued no columns of figures or graphs could begin to analyze the real situation.

Reviews History

Giving his reasons why it was not possible to place Canada under a combined government, the speaker briefly reviewed the political history of Canada leading up to the B.N.A. Act in 1867.

From 1763 to 1791, he pointed out Canada had a military government. It was a very successful one man government with General Murray holding supreme command. He gave the French Canadians assurance that their rights would be preserved, but that British law would prevail. Later developments, he said, resulted in a clash between the British and French, as a result of which a representative system of government was established in Upper and Lower Canada and the Maritimes, under which each yielded common allegiance to the Crown.

From that time onward each of the colonies began to develop their own laws, and from the date of Confederation each province set up its own system of jurisprudence, language and religious education.

The Same Problems

Those were the very problems, he said, that brought about Confederation, and he maintained they were still problems upon which there would be a deadlock between the provinces every time.

"You must bear in mind the lessons of history," the speaker urged. "The Fathers of Confederation had to deal with the same human problems that exist to-day. If one parliament for Canada could be effected that would probably be a good thing, but any one who does suggest it under existing conditions should have his head read. While there have been many changes since Confederation they have not altered the French problem; they have not altered the religious problem; or have they erased the problems connected with matters of jurisprudence and local government.

Mr. Heighington further stressed that the same was true in principle of the other provinces of the Dominion. Eastern Canada had problems that were quite different from those which had to be faced by the prairie and Pacific provinces.

A Model Act

"I say to you the Act of Confederation is a model to the world. It is an Act which has given flexibility to the Federation through good times and bad. Let us not cast aside that which has proved to be workable for something merely idealistic and which remains to be proven."

The speaker further urged "Don't confuse over-government with extravagance. It must be considered that governments have been extravagant in the past in so much as they have gone beyond the limits to which they were justified in considering the population, but we justify the existence of the provincial governments if we have merely been able to preserve racial peace and unity. The system established at Confederation is worthwhile."

In offering a solution of the question, Mr. Heighington believed, "there is no reason why there should be a Federal and Provincial Board of Agriculture. We could unite such things as that. Also in the fields of labor and health there was no reason why the Federal and Provincial Departments could not also be united, as a measure of economy. Concessions might also be made by the provinces, he thought, on the matter of insurance and company law.

A Good System

He strongly maintained however, "that local legislation has been the system of happy development," and contended, "there is room in the world yet for the thought that provincial autonomy is worthwhile yet."

A vote of thanks was very ably proposed by R. H. P. Johnston, being extended to the speaker by the president of the club.

Cyril Rice led the gathering in the singing of songs and also accompanied Ronald Fleming who sang a vocal solo.

For the first time in recent years, The Examiner learns the winter has passed without there having been a single case of robbery from unoccupied summer cottages being reported at Chemong Park. Y. W. PAGEANT IS PRESENTED TO FULL HOUSE

Plenty of Color, Melody and Movement in Annual Presentation.

ROMANCE OF TOY SHOP.

Considered One of the Best Presentations in History of Y. W.

[By Jeanette]

Color, melody and movement made the Gymnasium Pageant presented last night at the Grand Opera House by members of the various classes of the Y.W.C.A., one of the most successful in the many beautiful annual pageants that have come to be looked forward to by friends and patrons of the 'Y'. This year's presentation was, in the opinion of many, the very best of the lot, and it owed much of its success to the fact that the story was outlined so fully and deftly. It gives a hint of just how extremely effective these affairs can be made by the inclusion of a well-defined theme.

The big theatre "sold right out" in a novel experience of its recent history, was packed to capacity, and the 'gods' had a couple of hundred patrons also and the boxes were filled, making a total attendance of nearly eleven hundred people for "The Romance of the Toy Shop" and the physical drills that rounded out a splendid program.

The Ven. Archdeacon Blagrave, formally opening the Pageant last night, and congratulating the 'Y' Physical Director, Caroline Littlefield, on the excellence of the grand Processional March which brought the massed classes, in a moving forest of legs and middies, to the 'Wedding of the painted Doll' music, on to the stage all at once, in well-ordered lines, would probably, at the conclusion, have redoubled his 'pi dudits for the effectiveness of her tuition, which is manifested in the military snap and discipline, the clock-like precision, the fine tempo and rhythm with which the girls do their stuff with a composure and ease that is allied with a very apparent enthusiasm and liking for their work.

The tall wooden soldiers that formed guards at their side of the big stage were the only creatures in the house that did not join in the enthusiastic applause for the many fine features on the entertaining program.

The music was especially attractive last night, played by an orchestra comprised of a trio of pianistes—Mrs. E. M. Foster, Mrs. D. Quinlan and Miss Muse Cox; two violinists—Stanley Northrop and George Gatfield; a 'cellist Tom Smith, and trap and drum, F. M. Beech.

Snappy Drills

The first part of the entertainment included dumbell exercises by a very businesslike, snappy group of Juniors; some graceful, intricate Senior club-swinging in fancy manoeuvres; a side-splitting contribution by the funny little Babies, doing their "daily dozen" and pounding with vim and vigor through their dumbell drill. They came in to some old favorite tunes of childhood: "Here We go Gathering Nuts in May" and "London Bridge", with a goose-step that brought down the house, and they sat down to wave their legs in the air to the strains of "Little Brown Jug".

Another much-applauded exercise was by Intermediate School Girls, in a double-skipping movement to pliable reeds, followed by wand drills to the "Isle of Capri" melody by a group of Elementary class pupils, trig in their dark shorts, white-braided at the sides, with large 'Y' symbols on their white jerseys. A pantomimic series of movements that pictured throwing and catching a ball was a novel close to this drill.

The German gymnastics and pyramids which ended this section of the program were a revelation as usual of perfect training and response on the part of the Seniors taking part. They were beautifully co-ordinated muscular movements aimed at mastery of control and poise, with difficult hand and shoulder stands and some very fine pyramid formation as a period to most interesting section.

But the big moment of the performance was the wonderfully-done extravaganza, "The Romance of the Toy Shop" which put in the shade similar offerings of other years. It was packed with gorgeous color, graceful movement and fantasy, and the dramatic element was not lacking in the dainty fashion in which the story was outlined. An effective addition to the scenic beauty was a large, gaily-colored modernistic screen against the back drop. And the dances presented by the differenc sections of the extravaganza were lovely in the extreme and received well-merited applause, his was most apparent for the extremely professional touch which animated the brilliant dance by the dolls' guard of honour.

At the opening, the old, black-clad shopkeeper (Miss Jessie Patterson) reproves her brightly-smocked assistants (the Misses Dolly Boyle and Gladys Watson), for laggard ways, so they set to work to dust all the animated dolls that form the stock-in-trade, arranged around the shop. A Mother and Child (Mrs. J. Forbes and Miss Marion Rutherford) prove captious customers. In turn they reject the many dolls that are brought forward and noisily wound up for inspection and stiffly-jointed dances.

"The Jumping Jack Jumped Into Town"

First come the unique Spinning Tops (the Misses Catherine Turner, Betty Boyle, and Betty, Jean and Ann Bell), that look just like their names; then the quaint little Victorian dollies (the Misses Margaret Loudon, Marjorie Boyle, Mary Strickland, Margaret Langley, Dorothy Ross, Ruth and David Bell) chinta-frocked and pantalleted, saying "Mama" and "Papa" in wee voices; the absurd Mickey (Miss Hazel Bradley) and Minnie Mouse; the tall Jumping Jack (Miss Alicia Langley) and the gay little Bouncing Ball (Iris Forbes), in their funny dancing steps; and finally, when the old Shopkeeper is all of a dither with anxiety over a lost sale, out come the Prince (Miss Mary McPherson) gorgeous in white suit and plumed hat and pink-lined cape, and the gauzy pink tulle and silver Princess (Miss Leone Comstock), to dance a stately measure in 'point' fashion.

But before the Prince and Princess are happy at the Grand Ball which forms the climax of the show, with their attendants, the airy pink-frocked Maids of Honour (the Misses Florence Trebilcock and Dolly Boyle), many lovely dancing numbers are seen, in new and outstanding outfits.

In this colorful "Party" section of the beautiful extravaganza, there are dances and costumes of many types: Juniors as Music Box Baby Dolls, in a marionette type of dance frocked in soft rainbow ribbongirdled frocks and bonnets; and dashing Piekanninies from the South, getting much applause for their gay little number led by a real old Mammy Chloe, to the tune of a jazzy version of "Old Black Joe" and the favorite "Golden Slippers". Wee coons with huge watermelon slices form a miniature chorus in a tap dancing interlude here.

Then there are dolls from the Emerald Isle, each colleen with her "broth of a boy", all in emerald green, dancing light-frotedly to "St. Patrick's Day" and the "Kerry Dances".

The soft, haunting strains of "La Paloma" form a fitting accompaniment for a slower Spanish dance with a castanet refrain, done in traditional costumes, the men in slashed trousers, wide sashes and flat-brimmed hats. And the "Good Ship Lollipop" ushers in the giddy "Lollipop" dolls, clad in candy colors of lemon, lime, chocolate, orange and strawberry and flourishing huge, harmonious lollipops for their zippy dance number.

Streamline Effects

The cunning little Teddy Bears, clad in appropriate little Teddy Bear suits, fur-pawed and furred, got a big hand, as did the dimpling little green and yellow Kewpies.

The Streamline dolls are just about as novel as anything seen here in a long time. They are quite unusual in every way with their stream lines of diagonal type imitating the lines of a motor car or 'plane, their stark colorings of black and white, and their Nordic helmets and shield-like tunic ornaments. They were striking and original, and their slow dance was in strict keeping with the tempo and rhythm of the ensemble.

Perhaps the gayest and most brilliant of dances and groups in a gay and brilliant entertainment was the Dolls' Guard of Honour—brisk, bright and peppy Senior tap dancers—doing their stuff to a medley of patriotic tunes and the enchanting music of "There is Something About a Soldier." They wore outfits that combined dizzily scarlet and blue, yellow and white, and they closed their zippy dance to the strains of "The Girl I Left Behind Me" and a salvo of applause that repeated itself for the pageant of the stage at the finale, with a maze of fluttering colors, light and movement in a last glimpse of a gorgeously-arrayed and superbly presented extravaganza.

During the progress of the entertainment, many very pretty gifts and lovely floral tributes were presented to the popular director, Miss Carline Littlefield, who came from directing affairs in the wings to accept them from numerous more or less flustered small lads and lasses.

Ushering was done by members of the Peter Robinson Chapter I.O.D.E., their white veils fluttering down the aisles as in earlier, palmier days of the old Grand that had a brilliant interval in its 'dark' progression of days and nights.

Special scenery for the presentation was by courtesy of C. H. Saunders of the Richard Hall Store, and makeup was by Madam Merriam.

Relief Situation As It Effects City Is Ably Discussed

Administration of Relief in Peterborough Subject of Address Given to Local Kiwanis Club at Friday Luncheon by James Dutton.

SPECIAL TRIBUTE IS PAID RELIEF OFFICER AS A CAPABLE AND EFFICIENT CIVIC OFFICIAL

Illuminating facts and figures bearing upon the problem of relief administration with particular reference to local conditions, were presented by James Dutton, chairman of the Relief Committee, as guest speaker at the Kiwanis Club luncheon yesterday noon.

Introduced by Dr. J. J. Craig who, as chairman of the Program Committee, assumed charge of the meeting upon the invitation of President Ivan T. Lillico, the guest speaker was accompanied by Art Metheral, city relief officer.

"A Capable Officer"

After expressing appreciation to the Kiwanis Club and to other service clubs and kindred organizations who had identified themselves with relief administration, Mr. Dutton stated, "I want to pay tribute to Mr. Metheral as a capable and efficient officer."

Remarking that in the handling of its relief problems the City of Peterborough had been virtually free of many of the unpleasant situations that had arisen elsewhere, Mr. Dutton believed the fact largely due to the common sense that had been shown by the Committee and also because, "such organizations as yours have been prepared to go the second mile."

Personnel of Committee

He spoke of the government regulations which restricted the flexibility of the local Relief Committee, and mentioned the personnel of the committe as being composed of men who had worked "quietly and arduously." R. C. Braund, representing the Central Charity Relief Board (of which organization he has been chairman for twenty-six years); James Abraham, the Canadian Legion; John Sullivan, the Workers; and R. M. Glover and Mr. Dutton, representing the citizens; besides five members of the City Council.

At the present time there are 593 families or 2,532 individuals on city relief, Mr. Dutton stated, and while that figure shows a decrease over the peak which was reached in March 1933, the per capita cost had increased.

"The highest number we ever had on relief was in March 1933," Mr. Dutton stated, "when the figure reached 3,618 individuals who were being helped out of public funds. Between May 1934 and May of this year there had been a decrease of 1086."

4.000 Per Cent. Increase

Mr. Dutton provided the following figures bearing upon the cost of relief administration in the city, showing that the percentage increase as between the high and low figures was over 4,000 per cent. 1929—$4,130.00; 1930—$5,147.00; 1931—$26,263.00; 1932—$60,968.00; 1933—$178,208.00; 1934—$156,595.00. Of these costs the city paid $51,865.00 as its third of the share, while the remaining two-thirds was paid by the Federal and Provincial governments.

The speaker said that the money was spent on the provision of provisions, milk, fuel, rent, clothing, doctors and medicine. One of the difficult problems was that of providing shelter.

Tribute to Landlords

Commenting on this phase of relief administration Mr. Dutton observed "I feel the present arrangement is unfair to the landlords. The City Council and the Relief Committee are agreed that the present arrangement does not give the house owner adequate return on his investment and we pay tribute to those men because they have been in a different position from the baker, grocer or those who provide clothing because they all receive 100 per cent., and the landlords do not. I want to pay tribute to the landlords. They have been kindly and considerate to the last degree."

Per Capita Costs Rise

While the number of relief recipients have decreased, Mr. Dutton explained that increased per capital costs were largely due to the fact that in December last the committee decided to increase the relief allowance to insure that no one should go short of food who was unemployed through no fault of their own.

He offered severe criticism of sons and daughters who would repudiate responsibility in respect to their parents and stated: "I cannot understand how in times like these any young man or woman would permit their parents to appeal for assistance from public funds when they are in the position to give financial aid themselves". He went into some detail of the work that was being done by the committee to cope with this aspect of the problem.

Speaking of the 200 garden lots provided by the city for relief recipients, Mr. Dutton termed them "a most successful experiment". It cost about an average of $2 to provide garden seeds, he remarked, and the average return in produce was valued at $20.

National Aspect

Touching upon some of the national aspects of the unemployment question Mr. Dutton exclaimed: "We are agreed that the burden of unemployment is the heaviest problem facing the nation to-day". During the last four years Canada had spent $418,000,211.00 on relief—the sum being divided between the federal, provincial and municipal governments.

Among one of the foremost principles to be recognised, the speaker believed was that all who were unemployed through no fault of their musg be fed and housed. "We cannot allow any man, woman or child to starve because of involuntary unemployment." Mr. Dutton stressed however that he believed the problem one that could be most adequately dealt with by local authorities who were familiar with local conditions, and warned against agitation that would have the government assume the whole burden. He urged the need of individual co-operation on the part of everyone in dealing with the problem and warned, "We need to take care we do not lose our virility; independence and initiative."

Vote of Thanks

John I. Allen in moving a vote of thanks to the speaker, referred in terms of high appreciation to what was being accomplished by the Relief Committee, particularly from the standpoint of his own position of a life underwriter. Mr. Allen remarked that while relief authorities in some cities had demanded that recipients of relief surrender their life insurance policies, Peterborough had protected people in this regard, thus assuring there would be some money coming to a family on relief in the event of death of an insured in that family.

Mr. Dutton remarking upon Peterborough's sound financial condition stated the city had issued no debentures in the past four years, but on the contrary had been retiring debentures at the rate of $250,000.00 a year. By the end of 1943, he expected, (provided no large unexpected expenditures arose) the bonded indebtedness of the city would be completely wiped out.

Community singing was led by Clifford Hall with Martin B. Chenhall, A.R.C.O., at the piano, while W. A. Richardson made some announcements regarding an interclub visit with Belleville Kiwanians on Tuesday evening next, and extended an invitation from the Toronto Kiwanis Club which is to be addressed by the Hon. Dr. J. A. Faulkner at Royal York Hotel on Wednesday of next week.

A Cure

BALTIMORE, May 11 (CP)—Contending there are "entirely too many non-support cases," the Baltimore city grand jury today suggested the use of the whipping post on habitual offenders.

"The ancient wife-beaters' whipping post might restore a sense of obligation and responsibility which such a habitual culprit no longer fears God or man," the jury reported.

● All the countless thousands who buy newspapers every day are potential customers of those who offer goods for sale to the consuming public.

Practically every merchant in Canada will lose customers in 1935—a law of business. This loss must be replaced or his business will die. The trader who loses customers, even to the danger point, can find them again and increase his turnover by good merchandising linked with advertising in the daily newspapers.

People are reading daily newspapers as never before, not from curiosity, but from need to know today the best things offered to supply their daily wants.

Lost markets, which are only other words for lost customers, are now being regained by you or acquired by others. You owe it to yourself and to your business to keep in touch through the newspapers every day with the Canadian buying public.

CAPTAIN BROWN FELL AT BATOCHE FIFTY YEARS AGO

Memorial Stands in Confederation Park Tribute to Douro Boy.

BOULTON'S SCOUTS

Body Buried on Banks of the Saskatchewan River Near Where He Fell.

At the northeast corner of Confederation Park stands a memorial which, though overshadowed by the Great War Memorial in the centre of the park, is not without a simple quiet dignity of its own.

If one troubles to examine it more carefully he will find two inscriptions thereon; the one upon its east side, as it now stand, reads as follows:

Pro Patria
Captain Edward T. Brown,
Fish Creek—1885—Batoche" and on its west side:—

"A tribute to Canadian volunteers and in memory of Captain Edward T. Brown, Boulton's Scouts, a native of this country who fell at Batoche, May 12, 1885."

On March 28, 1885, a despatch was received by Col. J. Z. Rogers of the 57th Regiment (the Peterborough Rangers) from Col. Williams at Ottawa, stating that he had been authorized to raise a regiment for service in the Northwest, and asking Col. Rogers to supply a company. Norwood, Keene and Hastings were at once advised, and ten times the number of men required, volunteered their services.

Time was evidently considered of great importance, as they were ordered to report in Kingston in two days; one of them a Sunday.

The selected men were quartered in hotels for the night and signed the roll of service.

Marched Away on April 1, 1885

At 7 a.m. on the 1st April, 1885, the company (thereafter known as Co. G, Midland Regt.), under the command of Capt. J. Burke, Norwood, marched amide cheering crowds, to entrain, being briefly addressed by the Mayor, George A. Cox, before starting their aduous journey.

While at Kingston the men received supplies of comfort, warm underclothing, etc., forwarded by a committee of local ladies.

From Kingston there were sent north on April 6, via the Kingston and Pembroke Railway, and reached Mattawa; they then marched across the ice of Lake Superior in a blinding snowstorm to cover a gap in the railway service and eventually reached Winnipeg on April 14, two weeks after leaving hime. Thence they were sent via Qu'Appelle and Swift Current to Clarke's Landing where they joined General Middleton's forces on May 5, and took part in the Battle of Batoche, May 11.

Capt. Brown Killed

During the operations, Captain Edward T. Brown, whose memory is kept green by the memorial in Confederation Park, was shot and killed. He was a son of Mr. E. Brown of Douro and had gone to the Northwest with a mining survey party in 1879. He was buried on the banks of the Saskatchewan River near to the spot where he met his death; his body was not brought home as his friends wished him to be buried where he fell. The 90th Foot, of Winnipeg, together with the Midland, provided the funeral cortege when he was buried with full military honors.

On July 23 at 5 p.m., Co. G, Midland Regiment reached Peterborough. Greeted by an immense and enthusiastic crowd they marched through the streets to the Drill Hall, here they were entertained to a sumptuous supper and speeches of welcome from Mayor George A. Cox and others. As a practical and pleasant form of appreciation each man was presented with a ten-dollar gold piece. It was estimated that they had travelled some 7,500 miles in this adventure.

Memorial Unveiled

To commemorate the expedition and to honor the memory of Capt Brown a subscription was taken up and the memorial erected.

On March 4, 1886, Gen. Sir F. Middleton and his staff visited Peterborough and publicly unveiled the "Captain Edward Brown Memorial Fountain," as it was then called. There were the usual ceremonial proceedings, with an address to Gen. Middleton, who, with his staff, was entertained at the inevitable banquet, at the Oriental Hotel given by the officers of the 57th Regiment. And that is briefly the story of the connection of this city with the Northwest Rebellion of 1885.

As a matter of record it may be well to give the composition of Co. G, Midland Regt.:—Capt. Thomas Burke, Lieut. F. H. Brennan, 2nd Lieut. Nelles; 3rd Lieut. Welan; Col. Sergeants P. Myles and Titler; Corporals S. Hendren, George K. Mark, and A. B. Rogers.

JOHNSON MOTORS EXPECT BIG YEAR

Company is Entering Upon Eighth Year of Manufacture in Canada.

Entering upon the eighth year of the manufacture in Canada of Johnson Sea-Horse Outboard Motors, Canadian Johnson Motor Company, Limited, do so with every indication of experiencing the biggest year on record.

New models, improvements, added features and new low prices, together with generally better business conditions, have brought an unprecedented response from dealers throughout Canada. Production schedules have necessarily been considerably enlarged over 1934, which in itself was much higher than any former year. Added to this is increased production of Johnson Sea-Worthy Boats.

Further indications of exceptional activity in boating circles is an influx of inquiries from sportsmen, cottagers and boating enthusiasts everywhere. This may be more or less prompted by the possibility of an early season but it certainly is evidence of growing interest in dependable and economical water transportation.

GOLDEN JUBILEE ST. PAUL'S CHURCH

Principal MacKenzie of Montreal Will be Special Preacher.

St. Paul's Presbyterian Church will on Sunday celebrate the 102nd anniversary of Presbyterianism in this city and the 50th anniversary of the present church building. The Rev. Principal P. LORNA COTTON IS NOMINATED tive and Liberal. I mean the economic pressure on our workers and the farmers, our primary producers. This pressure has become so great that unless something different is done we will not be able to go on. Both Mr. King and Mr. Bennett failed to bring about any adequate solution to these economic problems.

I shall have many opportunities of discussing these questions in the months aread, and I shall try to explain the principles for which the C.C.F. stands, and which offer the only solution to the economic problems that are more basic than any party difference that divides Liberal and Conservative."

Dr. Cotton paid a tribute to the enthusiastic support of the C.C.F. executive.

"This is not the fight of your executive, or of you candidate. I am not asking you simply to vote for me. God forbid. The day of that kind of nonsense must soon be over in Canada. This is your fight, and I am asking you to vote for yourselves."

Mr. Garland's Congratulation

Mr. Garland congratulated the Club in nominating Dr. Cotton who, he said, was the highest type of candidate that could be selected to represent the political ideals of the C.C.F.

"I haven't time to waste in condemning the Liberals and Conservatives. I know people in both parties who are actuated by as fine a crusading spirit as you are; but they can't do anything about it. When men of that kind are elected they become representatives of a party, and the party does what its masters dictate.

You elect one group to carry on the country's affairs, and the other group is the Opposition who try to stop them from doing anything. It is opposition for opposition's sake, and it doesn't matter whether it is by Grits or Tories. They never concede any credit to each other for any legislation however good it may be, or its intent may be."

Mr. Garland remarked that Premier Bennett's radio addresses last winter had given a certain respectability to the discussion of capitalism after the C.C.F. had directed the public mind to the failure of this system. The C.C.F. included some of the finest professional minds, and intelligent men were attracted to the movement.

No Liberty For Worker

"There is no liberty or freedom today, except the right to choose your masters, some times. The only right that counts is the right to earn your daily bread as equals, and that right is denied you under our system of today. You are not free unless you are economically free, and you can't be because of the very nature of the system. The worker is not free when he can't get a job, when the only right that is given him is to enter a relief camp or go on city relief. Is that the best which capitalism has to offer to single, unemployed young men? It is."

Mr. Garland suggested that the relief camps were not much better than the internment camps during the war.

"We have 21,000 of these young men in the camps without a chance under heaven, nothing to do, and nowhere to go. The old parties stand for that system."

Mr. Garland quoted a series of statistics and figures illustrating the vast displacement of workmen by the mass production of modern machinery.

He referred to Hon. Mr. Stevens as one of the cleverest speakers in the House and one of the hardest workers.

Mr. Stevens' Visit.

"I hope you will be able to hear him, and when he speaks of the evils of business and the exploitation of labor remember that all these things were known before, and they were spread across the pages of Hansard by members of the C.C.F. in the House before Mr. Stevens mentioned them. The question you have to ask yourselves is what is he going to do about them.

We did not know the facts about many of the high salaries, but we knew about sweat shops, unethical trade practices, exploitation of labor and the farmer, child labor. You will hear about combines and mergers and watered stock. It will be good and it will be true. But what are they going to do about all these evils that are inherent in the capitalistic system?

I was reading in the Financial Post the other day, and I found that the Dominion Coal and Steel Company, who had received the benefits of a protective traiff, in April this year doubled its preferred stock from three to six million dollars, all watered. The par value of the shares has been changed to $25, and for each $100 share that paid 7 per cent. the company issued eight shares at $25 carrying 6 per cent. dividend. Instead of getting a mere 7 per cent. if you hold any of that stock, you will now get 12 per cent. Why wasn't that stopped?

Read the Prince Spreads Committee report and you will find not one reference to the predatory individuals on whom the blame must be placed for the conditions that were brought out during the investigation. Like all reports of that kind it at least justifies its name, for it cost $200,000, and it is spread over six hundred pages, but there is not one word of censure of the Sir Joseph Flavelles and the Sir Charles Gordons and the McLeans and Stewarts.

The Stevens Committee report simply recommends the appointment of another commission for the purpose of regulating capitalism. They might as well try to regulate a mad dog; but there is only one way to regulate a mad dog, and that is to destroy it. They are very considerate of us. They have declared that labor has the right to strike, after the Government introduced and passed an unemployment insurance bill that destroys labor's right to strike. For, if the workman strikes and becomes unemployed he loses all right to the benefits of the insurance."

"Can't Regulate Capitalism"

Attempts to regulate the capitalistic system have been made in Italy, Germany and the United States, and have failed, Mr. Garland said.

In the United States there has been a steady decrease in the smaller incomes, a steady decrease in wages, relief bills have doubled in the last eighteen months, and there has been an increase of enormous proportions in the higher salaries.

The new deal balance sheet in 1937 will decrease the national debt of the United States at from 35 to 40 billions. And the only proposal in Canada is to follow the same course; borrow money to provide relief and relief work, paying interest to the lenders, while the country has the right to make money and use it for money.

Quotes Religious Leaders

As a Catholic member of Parliament, elected in a constituency in which Catholics were only a handful, Mr. Garland asserted that one of the "vilest types of calumny against the C.C.F. movement" came from some members of his own faith. They said the C.C.F. would destroy the right to private property and would establish the materialistic conception of society and life.

Mr. Garland said he had been a member of the C.C.F. since its inception. He knew the men and women who organized it, and if there were one or two who held doctrinaire views they had no effect or influence in the movement.

The speaker vigorously denied both these "calumnies" and supported his affirmations with quotations from the encyclical of Pope Pius XI, and stated that the same philosophy had been proclaimed by two successive conventions of the United Church of Canada. The principles of the C.C.F., Mr. Garland said, represented the philosophy of the Christian religion.

Our Common Birds

A Column Written for the Bird Lovers of Peterborough and District.

THE ROBIN

No bird holds so prominent a place in the minds of the people as the Robin. It is distinctively a friend of man, and wherever his hand has cleared the wilderness the Robin has followed. The Robin is to be found in North America, from Mexico to the Arctic regions.

Its cheery voice is the harbinger of spring. Its song is the first heard in the morning and the last at night. No bird that we have has so varied a repertoire as the Robin; few people can recognize him by everyone of his calls and songs. Indignation, fright, suspicion, hate, peace of mind, warning to take flight, and a host of other thoughts are expressed through his voice, which yields easily to persuasion.

Perhaps no one thing attracts more birds about the house than does a drinking dish—providing that it is well out of reach of a city—birds worst enemy—the cat. Nesting in readily accessible places, young Robins often leave the nest before they are able to care for themselves, and so fall prey to the household cat.

The Robin belongs to the Thrush family. The spotted breast of a young Robin indicates its descent from a spotted ancestor, and its relation to the Thrushes. In fact most of the young members of the Thrush family have spotted breasts.

The fondness of the Robin for fruit tends to lessen its usefulness in the mind of the average person (particularly farmers). Too much stress is laid upon the mischief done by the Robin in the cherry orchards, and berry patches, and too little upon the quantity of worms and insects it devours. The insects eaten by Robins include grasshoppers, bugs, beetles, beetle-larvae (wire-worms and others), caterpillars, including cutworms, as well as many others. Forty-two per cent of the Robin's food is animal matter, mostly insects, the remainder being composed largely of berries and other soft fruits of which little more than four per cent is cultivated fruit.

Toward the end of June one may see Robins flying in flocks, after sundown. Old males and young birds of the first brood scatter themselves over the country by day to pick up the best living they can, but at night they collect in large numbers at some favorite roosting place.

After family cares are over for the year, the Robins moult. During this period they hide, mope, and keep silent for a while. Then, in September, in a new coat of feathers they are cheerful and lively again.

It is a very dreary time when the last Robin leaves us, and we spend several months of winter, which are quite uneventful in the bird-world, until spring and the Robins return to us.—F.R.P.

Drop Theft Counts Port Hope Robbery

COBOURG, May 11 (C.P.).—Charges against James Semeryn, Toronto, of breaking into W. J. Christie's garage in Port Hope and stealing goods from the automobile of Robert Gale, were dismissed by Judge L. V. O'Connor in court here yesterday.

E. C. Haines of Toronto was defence counsel, and Colonel F. D. Boggs, K.C., acted for the Crown. Charges were laid after Detectives Robert McMaster and James Watson of Toronto discovered stolen goods in a garage rented by Semeryn in Toronto. Among these were articles reported stolen in Port Hope. The Crown was unable to prove that Semeryn had possession of the large quantity of missing goods or that he was implicated in the robbery.

Twelve charge of breaking and entering Port Hope garages on the night of January 7, held against Semeryn, were dropped. Seven other theft charges against the same man were previously dismissed in Toronto.

Even Rheumatic Pains Eased Fast Now!

BAD HEADACHES, NEURITIS PAINS OFTEN RELIEVED IN MINUTES THIS WAY

Remember the pictures below when you want fast relief from pain. Demand and get the method doctors prescribe—Aspirin.

Millions have found that Aspirin eases even a bad headache, neuritis or rheumatic pain often in a few minutes!

In the stomach as in the glass here, an Aspirin tablet starts to dissolve, or disintegrate, almost the instant it touches moisture. It begins "taking hold" of your pain practically as soon as you swallow it.

Equally important, Aspirin is safe. For scientific tests show this: Aspirin does not harm the heart.

Remember these two points: Aspirin Speed and Aspirin Safety. And, see that you get ASPIRIN. It is made in Canada, and all druggists have it. Look for the name Bayer in the form of a cross on every Aspirin tablet.

Get tin of 12 tablets or economical bottle of 24 or 100 at any druggist's.

Why Aspirin Works So Fast

Drop an Aspirin tablet in a glass of water. Note that BEFORE it touches the bottom, it is disintegrating.

IN 2 SECONDS BY STOP WATCH
An Aspirin tablet starts to disintegrate and go to work.

What happens in these glasses happens in your stomach—ASPIRIN tablets start "taking hold" of pain a few minutes after taking.

FISH and GAME COLUMN

Conducted by The EXAMINER for the Protection of one of Ontario's greatest Resources

A determined drive by Fred Marshall, county fish and game inspector, and a special overseer sent here by the Department in response to the plea for more protection expressed by the Peterborough Fish and Game Association, has done much to curb the extensive poaching that had been going on at the locks and further down the Otonabee.

Several men were apprehended allegedly in the act of poaching and will appear before Magistrate Langley.

MORE PICKEREL FRY

Four hundred thousand pickerel fry were placed in local waters on Thursday by employees of the Department of Game and Fisheries. The fry arrived in four large cans by truck from the Government hatchery down East. Most of the little fellows were placed in Little Lake and along the Otonabee River, but a fair percentage was conveyed to Chemong Lake.

Fish development is amazingly swift when conditions are right. In little more than two years the fry placed in the local waters this week will have grown to ten or twelve inches and in four years they will be what fishermen term a "nice-sized" fish. Given a few years longer and they will be "big ones."

However, only a small percentage of this fry will survive to gain any appreciable size. Most of them will fall prey to larger fish. If approximately ten per cent survive to worthwhile size, this bit of restocking will have proved most successful.

It could not be learned definitely whether or not pickerel fry has been placed in Chemong Lake before. Members of the Peterborough Fish and Game Association, who interest themselves in restocking operations, were divided on this point, but all were certain that they had never heard of anyone catching a pickerel from Chemong Lake. "If they were put there, they went to feed the other fish," one executive of the local association said. "That's what will happen to most of those put in this week, but something must be done to give fishermen here a chance of catching fish."

HEAD TROUT CATCHER

"So far as trout fishing is concerned, thus far Tennisee Guerin, C.P.R. employe, seems to have had most success locally. Mr. Guerin, who is known as "Buck" by his friends, has been wielding a mean rod to sure purpose in the Cavan stream. Using worms as bait, he ran up this batting average last week-end: Saturday 16, Sunday 14 and Monday 16.

"They are not taking flies," stated Mr. Guerin. "In more than 40 years of trout fishing, I can safely say I have never experienced such keen biting by trout so early in the season." All his trout were of nice size, the larger ones weighing around 1¾ pounds.

ONE MILLION LAST YEAR

The Cavan stream is well known to local trout fishermen. It is said to be the "best trout stream in the district" and the boys have been visiting it in large numbers for the past ten days. Last Sunday rodmen were thick along the stream, and all were getting a fair catch.

Last year the Department, at the request of the local Fish and Game Association, put approximately 1,-000,000 speckled trout fry in this stream. Similar to the case of the pickerel fry, but a small percentage of the trout survived, however the restocking will certainly improve the fishing.

DENIES CARP REPORT

A Penelon Falls fishing enthusiast has taken exception to the statement, allegedly made by a Lindsay deputy game warden and published in a Toronto paper, that carp were "gobbling up" all the wild duck food in Sturgeon Lake.

"Twaddle" is what the Penelon authority has to say about the deputy warden's supposed remarks. He termed that kind of publicity bad because tourists stay away from a carp-infested lake. He maintains that carp are minus quantities in Sturgeon.

The same sportsman said indications are that game fish will be more plentiful this season in the Kawarthas than for some time past. He attributes the increase in game fish to the education of the general public carried on by conservation clubs of the district and also to the protection given the fish by hard-working game overseers of the district.

LAKE TROUT BITING

The lake trout in Haliburton County are said to be biting well these days. A party secured their limit catch in Big Hawk and Little Hawk Lakes there this week. They used a copper line and a three-and-a-half inch silver wabbler as a lure. These two lakes are two miles above Hall's Lake Post Office on the Minden road.

A SPECKLED WINNER

Bruce and Grey Counties are reporting some great speckled trout fishing. A four-pound monster won first prize in the fourth annual May 1 contest for the biggest fish caught in that district. The big one measures 19¾ inches in length.

WHITEFISH IN SIMCOE

Going after whitefish is the big sport now around Lake Simcoe. With minnows as bait it is reported that big catches are being made in quick time. These fish run between 1½ to 2 pounds in weight. The best of this sport is obtained near Barrie.

SOCIETY HEARS MRS. J. GOFORTH

Returned Missionary Gives Intresting Address in St. Paul's Guild Room.

PROVINCIAL REPORT.

The Guild Room of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church was filled to capacity Friday afternoon in anticipation of hearing, once more, Mrs. Goforth who, with her husband, Jonathon Goforth, has devoted most of her life to missionary work in Manchuria.

The opening hymn was sung, a passage from the New Testament read, then all rose to their feet as Mrs. Goforth entered.

Miss E. Simpson offered up the opening prayer after which the president, Mrs. James Dutton, in a few words referred to the passing on, within the past three months, of several of the oldest members of the W.M.S. who have given years of faithful, consecrated service to the Missionary Society and the church.

"No Sorrow There", sung by Miss Simpson and Miss Olive Cullen, appropriately followed.

Mrs. Goforth then addressed the meeting, referring to her first visit to St. Paul's as a bride forty-eight years ago and each subsequent visit when on furlough, and always the same heart-felt welcome. The venerable missionary told of many experiences of prayers answered, and shut doors opened.

A report of the recent Provincial at Toronto was very ably given by Miss Cullen, giving the high lights of the days' meetings.

The children of the Mission Band marched in and Marjory Pearse gave a beautiful bouquet of flowers to Mrs. Goforth. Then they sang "Jesus Bids Us Shine."

The closing hymn and prayer followed, after which all stayed to enjoy a cup of tea and a short social time together.

Weddings

EVERETT—ARCHIBALD.

A very pretty house wedding took place to-day at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Archibald of Chamberlain Street, when their only daughter, Isabel Barrie became the bride of Mr. Ray Everett of Peterborough, son of Mr. and Mrs. O. Everett of Lakefield. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. W. MacDonald, pastor of Knox United Church, and took place at two o'clock this afternoon in the living-room, which, like the rest of the house, was decorated with a profusion of lovely spring flowers.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, came in to the strains of the wedding march, played by Miss Marion Ralston, who also sang "Beloved, It Is Morn" during the signing of the register.

The bride wore a beautiful frock of French chiffon in amulet blue, with blue slippers. She carried a bouquet of pink Ophelia roses, with a lucky sprig of white heather sent from Scotland.

The bridesmaid, Miss Mary Morton, was in daffodil yellow chiffon with brown slippers and bouquet of Talisman roses.

Mr. Donald McIntyre was best man.

After the ceremony, dainty buffet refreshments were served from a table done with flowers and the bride's cake. Hooper & Sons catered.

Mr. Everett and his bride left later in the afternoon by motor for Port Hope, to take train for Ottawa. On their return, they will live at 319 Margaret Avenue. The bride travelled in an ensemble of navy blue, with matching hat and accessories.

Miss Norma Dunbar of Aylmer street entertained a number of friends on Thursday evening at a jolly miscellaneous shower, held in honor of her cousin, Miss Marguerite Lang, a bride-elect of the month. The rooms were prettily decorated with white and yellow streamers. The evening was pleasantly spent in playing euchre, games and contests, prizes going to Mrs. Brioux for cards and to Miss M. O'Toole for games. During the evening Miss Norma Dunbar (as the bride) and Miss Ada Dunbar (as the bridegroom), presented Miss Lang with a heavily-laden basket of pretty gifts, while Miss Doris Inkpin read the accompanying address, as follows: are taking the opportunity to express our sincere regret that you are leaving this community, and to spend a social hour with you before your departure. The vacancy left in our midst will be one hard to fill. We hope that you will soon find as many warm friends and neighbors in the district to which you are going, as you are leaving here. As a small token of our regard and esteem, we ask you to accept these gifts with our good wishes for your happiness in your future home." The bride-elect made a suitable reply. Guests present included: Mr. and Mrs. N. Dunbar; Mesdames N. Gillies, W. Clifford, Reynolds, E. Martin, J. Huggins, C. Berwick, T. Bristow, H. Corrin, J. Peel, W. S. Howson, M. Drysdale, S. Tyler gave a most helpful and inspiring address, dealing with the various types of Christians. These she designated as the "row-boat" variety, the "sail-boat" and the "steam ship" types. The speaker briefly outlined the attributes of these different kinds of Christian workers and urged her audience to become "steamboat" Christians with sufficient power to carry them through to their purpose. Delightful musical selections were contributed by Mrs. P. Dallin in piano solos and Mrs. E. Rowe in vocal numbers, after which a sincere vote of appreciation was graciously tendered to Mrs. Tyler and to the musicians by Mrs. A. E. Moorhouse and Mrs. A. Wilson. SUNDAY IS MOTHER'S DAY.... To my mind come the lovely words of Kate Douglas Wiggin: "Most of all the beautiful things in life come by twos, and threes, by dozens and hundreds. Plenty of roses, sunsets, rainbows, brothers, sisters, aunts and cousins but only one Mother in the whole world."

• • • • • •

Wherever you are—whoever you are—don't forget Mother on Mother's Day. If you are one of the God-favored ones and your Mother is still with you, remember her on Mother's Day. It may be in a very humble way—just a card with a sweet little verse of love and remembering, but it will gladden her dear heart. Remember one of these days she will be gone to the lovely land forever and then only in thoughts can you do the things that will gladden her heart while she is still here.

THE SHRINE

There is a shrine whose golden gate
Was opened by the Hand of God;
It stands serene, inviolate,
Though millions have its pavement trod;
As fresh as when the first sunrise
Awoke the lark in Paradise.

'Tis compassed with the dust and toil
Of common days, yet should there fall
A single speck, a single soil
Upon the whiteness of its wall,
The angels' tears in tender rain
Would make the temple theirs again.

Without, the world is tired and old.
But, once within the enchanted door,
The mists of time are backward rolled,
And creeds and ages are no more;
But all the human-hearted meet
In one communion vast and sweet.

I enter—all is simply fair,
Nor incense-clouds, nor carven throne;
But in the fragrant morning air
A gentle lady sits alone;
My mother—oh! whom should I see
Within, save ever only thee?

FORCEFUL EVIDENCE

A player who has been taught that two and a half tricks are needed to open the auction also should be taught that two quick tricks are ample to make an opening bid with a good two-suiter. There are many exceptions to general rules. Note what happened on the following deal, which gave South two biddable five-card suits.

	♠ K J 8 5 4 ♥ None ♦ A 7 ♣ A 10 9 7 6 4
♠ 7 ♥ A K Q J 9 7 6 4 ♦ J 9 2 ♣ 8	N. W. E. S.	♠ 10 3 ♥ 10 5 3 2 ♦ K 8 6 ♣ Q J 3 2
	♠ A Q 9 6 2 ♥ 8 ♦ Q 10 5 4 3 ♣ K 5

Bidding went: South, pass, when he should have bid 1 spade, which his partner would have carried to 6-spades, over any jump and succeeding calls of opponents; West, 4-hearts, frightening off both North and South from any overcall.

West scored 100 for honors and went down only a single trick undoubled, thereby scoring 50 points, which was a dreadful loss to North and South.

Note what an opening bid of 1-spade might have accomplished. Suppose West jumps into 4-hearts, North may jump to 5-spades and South to 6-spades. Or North may make the more efficient overcall of 4-hearts, with 5-hearts, saying thereby: "Partner, I have unusual support for your spades, no losing hearts and a very powerful hand, probably worth at least a small slam." Knowing how weak his own hand is, South should show his second suit, by bidding 6-diamonds. Were that a bid of 6-clubs, North would be justified in bidding 7-spades, but the 6-diamonds will cause North to close bidding with 6-spades.

While it will make no difference in results what the opening lead is, we will suppose it to be the K of hearts, which dummy will ruff. The ace and K of spades will pick up all opposing trumps. The K and ace of clubs will take the next two tricks. South will ruff a third round of clubs. Dummy will be put in with a trump. The 7 of clubs will be ruffed, leaving two long clubs in dummy. The ninth trick will be won with dummy's ace of diamonds, and two club tricks will give the declarer two diamond discards. The twelfth trick will be taken with the last trump. Opponents will win the thirteenth trick with the K of diamonds.

	♠ 2 ♥ A K 7 4 3 2 ♦ K J 4 ♣ 10 8 6
♠ 5 3 ♥ Q J 10 9 ♦ Q 9 5 3 2 ♣ A Q	N. W. E. S.	♠ 10 9 7 4 ♥ 8 5 ♦ 7 6 ♣ J 9 5 4 3
	♠ A K Q J 8 6 ♥ 6 ♦ A 10 8 ♣ K 7 2

Spades are trumps. The contract is six. The opening lead is the 3 of diamonds. Before Monday see how many tricks you can win against any subsequent play of East and West.

ROBERTA'S CHAT

A column conducted by a reader of The Examiner for her other reader friends. Address all mail to Roberta in care of The Examiner.

"None so wise, but the advice of others may, at some time or other, be useful and necessary for him."
—Thomas A. Kempis.

Dear Friend:

Have you not at times, been so confused by the way things were going in your life, that you were sorely in need of advice? How thankful, then, you must be, if you have a tried and true friend, to whom you can turn. How helpless you must feel if there is none.

The old saying, "So close to the forest, you can't see the trees," applies very forcibly to us, when one event follows another closely in our lives, especially when they are not pleasant ones.

The person outside of these happenings, very often can see a solution to our troubles, which is so simple, that we wonder we did not see it ourselves.

But we have been living so closely to these things, and are mentally tired, whereas our friend can approach them with a clear mind, as they do not affect him, as they do us.

Young people are sometimes apt to scoff at advice, but so did we, when we were in our 'teens.

Business men, living under the strain of fluctuating markets and trying to keep their employees working are often thankful, for clear unprejudiced advice.

Of course, there is always the pest, who persists in going around giving unsolicited advice, and generally knowing little or nothing about it, at that.

Sometimes you hear a person, who is unsuccessful in their life-work say, that if only they had taken the advice of their parents, their lives would have been so different.

Then, again, there are others to whom advice seems an incentive to go ahead, and do exactly the opposite thing.

Age, alone, is not a criterion by which a person should feel that they are competent to give advice.

Anyone should consider twice, before they give advice, where husband and wife are having a dispute. They are liable to find themselves, like the cloth between a pair of scissors. Badly cut by both sides.

A person should be very chary about giving advice, unless asked for it, as it can become a very obnoxious habit.

There are some very competent people, who never need advice but they are rare. So treasure the friend whose advice has been of value to you.

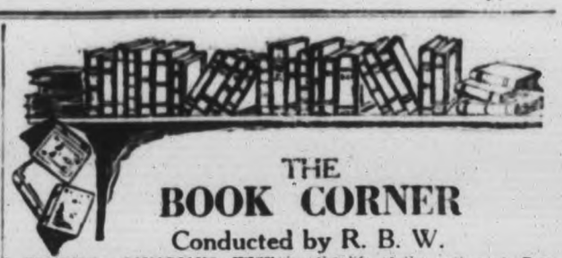
On the other hand, don't let yourself become so dependant on the advice of others, that you cannot make an important step without consulting someone.

Advice, when needed is good, but when overdone, can become a vice.

When we make a practice of meeting our problems, one at a time, and clearing them as we go, our lives become less cluttered, and we become more self-reliant, and need less advice.

So while appreciating advice from others, don't let yourself become so spineless, that you come to depend on it all the time. If you do, you will find, that someone else is really living your life for you, and that you are only going through the motions of real living. Try advising yourself and see how it works.

Your friend,
Roberta.



THE BOOK CORNER

Conducted by R. B. W.

BIGWIGS—CANADIANS WISE AND OTHERWISE — by R. T. L. (Charles Vining) with illustrations by Ivan Glasco (Macmillans, Toronto).

All Canadians interested in the great and near-great of their country should read this collection of biographical sketches. There are thirty-seven of them and each has a full-page caricature of the subject. These alone would assure the book a welcome. They are executed with an exaggeration which verges on the grotesque.

The sketches by A. T. L. are not the usual stereotyped kind that one encounters so frequently in magazines. Here are the personal characteristics and the important events in the lives of these persons laid out as under a microscope with a vividness that comes only from brevity and compactness of words. In one breath the author tells you that E. W. Beatty is president of the C.P.R. and that he wears his hat on one side of his head. They are written with an honest good humour that precludes any possibility of offence being taken.

OUR YOUNG BARBARIANS — Or Letters From Oxford — Barbara Silver (Macmillans, Toronto).

It is refreshing to read a modern book which is not a portrayal of the rushing tenseness of this modern life. Hts is an acount of the day to-day happenings of an Oxford undergraduate girl as shown by her letters to a friend. Here are all the little joys and sorrows, the play and the work, the romance and the disillusionments of Philippa through her years at Oxford.

There is a free and easy grace in her letters with frequent sparkles of humour and many references to and criticisms of literature. Through the use of letters rather than narrative there has been achieved a more real atmosphere of the students residences, and the social and academic life of the university.

There is a Canadian tutor among Philippa's friends and although the picture undoubtedly is prejudiced in his favor by the author yet it is interesting to read the English viewpoint of a Canadian.

A MAN CALLED CERVANTES— Bruno Frank (Macmillan, Toronto). There is but little known concerning the life of the author of "Don Quixote." To this little Bruno Frank has added a background of medieval Spain to make a vigorous story of the life of this most extraordinary person. The author has attempted to show how all the strange events of Cervantes' life with its loves and hates, cruelties and miseries combined to give him an experience which made possible the masterpiece he produced.

Cervantes was born in 1547 when the powerful Philip II was king of Spain. There is a close connection between their lives and Mr. Frank has included an interesting study of this king who ruled a rich empire and yet was himself poor and in constant need of funds. After a life of adventure Cervantes accepted a tax collector's position. As a result of errors he was thrown into a squalid jail. Here he wrote his "Don Quixote" and the author leaves him there reading extracts to his fellow prisoners who followed in their imagination the episodes of the incomparable Sancho Panza.

While still young and having already written stray bits, Cervantes went to Rome as a tutor in Spanish to a Cardinal. He took part in the battle of Lepanto and later was captured by Algerian pirates. Years later again he finally returned to his native land in a state of poverty from which he could not recover and which eventually leads him to prison.

There is a splendid account of the power and pomp of Rome, of the incredible pirate kingdom where he spent five years as a captive, and of the whole scheme of medieval life which from this distance of time causes it to appear as one of disorder and strange paradoxes.

Listaro Holds Post

Odds-on-Choice to Win Famous King's Plate for McLaughlin Barn.

Smallman Stable Returns.

ONE WEEK from today and the 1935 renewal of the famous King's Plate will be a matter of history. The horses are nearly all at the Woodbine now and the trainers are busy putting the finishing touches on their charges. It is the ambition of every Canadian owner and breeder to annex this coveted prize. W. H. Wright of Barrie is a fitting example of the 'die-hards' in this field. He has spent years and thousands of dollars trying to get a horse capable of winning this classic turf event. And this year he has one called Worthing and according to all counts he has a real chance, but up to the present time Listaro from the McLaughlin stable is the only one that has turned in a real trial over a distance.

The Motor magnate's entry has been the winter book favorite and is sure living up to expectations although Trainer Johnny Thorpe of the Seagram stable has not asked Gay Sympathy for anything more than a half-mile yet but will probably let him run a mile or more this week-end and then we will get a line on his chances. Ryland H. New's plate candidate Lipton has been going along in good style but in his last trial injured a foot and has been taking it easy the last few days. Jack Hutton, the trainer believes it is only a slight ailment and will not stop him from fulfilling his engagement on plate day.

THE HATCH pair, Donstick and Chickpea are still quartered at Long Branch and training more or less secretly. Mr. Hatch intimated recently that they may not start in the plate although he did not say definitely that would happen. All last year he would not let his horses run on the Canadian Association tracks but it is to be hoped that this condition is to be rectified this season. From this distance it looks as if the plate winner could come from any one of a half dozen stables, but in our opinion the winner's name has already been mentioned in this article, as we are almost sure the race will be between the ones we mentioned above.

The Smallman stable have arrived from Maryland and are all in grand shape. George Alexandra is giving them a few days rest after their successful winter campaign in the south. Jockey Bobby Watson who was somewhat of a sensation on our tracks last summer will do the riding for this establishment. They still have Quickly in their barn and we might mention that he is in tip top shape, and when this one is right it takes a mighty good sprinter to leave him behind. They also have the veteran distance campaigner Deedie and we hear he is just as sound as ever.

TWO CELEBRATED pieces of horseflesh are due to arrive at the Woodbine over the week-end when Eddie Seagram's Stand Pat and Dr. Mooney's Ted Clark are supposed to check in. The Woodbine management are endeavoring to fashion a race which will bring these two together with a few others and if they are successful it should be a natural. If Crout Au Pot comes up again this year he would fit in with them and old Khorasan would also hold his own.

Yankee to Race King's Historic Yacht, Brittania

May Lead To New America's Cup Challenge

By BILL BRAUCHER
Central Press Canadian Sports Writer

Passengers on a transatlantic liner must have rubbed their eyes the other days when two brave sailing vessels heaved across the horizon like ghost clipper ships of 100 years ago.

But it was not a dream. The ships were Yankee and Atlantic, gallant Boston yachts on their way to Great Britain where the Yankee will race the old Britannia, King George's historic windjammer.

Last Invasion 40 Years Ago

Not only will the Yankee sail against the royal sloop, but she has some 40 races ahead of her, with England's best, including Endeavour and Shamrock V, the last two challengers for the America's cup.

Gerard B Lambert is skipper of Yankee, and he knows that the gesture he is making against British sea-scooters is not likely to add greatly to the glory of American yachting. American sloops are supreme in home waters, but the last big American yacht to go over there was the Vigilant in 1894, and she was beaten by Britannia.

King George's venerable sloop never has been distanced by an American boat. The 42-year-old craft has been outfitted with a new mast and boom, and British sailors think she still can stand off the challenges of such as Yankee, Velsheda, Shamrock and Endeavour.

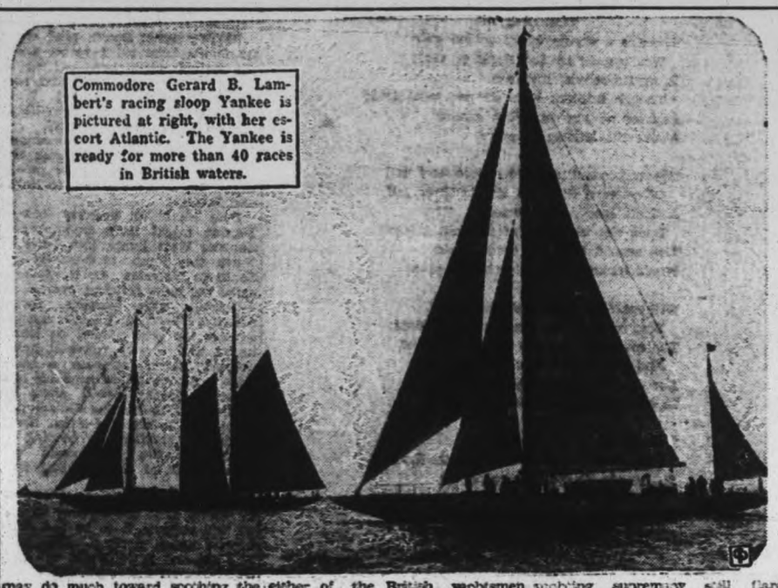
Commodore Lambert's invasion, even though he comes away with no cups, it is hoped in America, may do much toward soothing the ruffled feelings of British yachtsmen who still resent the protest decision against T. O. M. Sopwith in the America's cup races last year.

Another result of the international series may be selection of Lambert as skipper of a defender in a 1936 America's cup series, with a challenge likely from Sopwith or Charles Fairey, who is Sopwith's rival in aeroplane building. Lambert planned to sail Yankee in England, and build a new boat if either of the British yachtsmen challenges next year.

Atlantic went along to England mostly as ocean escort. She still holds the transatlantic record for sailing yachts, having made the voyage in 1905 in 12 days and four hours. One day Atlantic made 374 miles, a record for a sailing vessel.

Another possible result of the invasion is return to Boston of the ancient glory of seamanship. The old spirit of rivalry between Boston and New York for United States yachting supremacy still flares brilliantly.

Commoder Lambert's sloop is not regarded as a likely winner of many races, but at least she upholds the spirit of the America which went to Cowes in 1851 and raced a whole British fleet to win the cup that now bears her name and which has remained continuously in the United States despite the competition of Sir Thomas Lipton, Tom Sopwith and other British yachting leaders.



Commodore Gerard B. Lambert's racing sloop Yankee is pictured at right, with her escort Atlantic. The Yankee is ready for more than 40 races in British waters.

BABE BLAMES WEATHER FOR SHOWING

Fuchs Confident Ruth Will Regain Old Form With Advance Into Summer.

AFTER ADAMS' STOCK

BOSTON, May 11.—Statements from President Emil E. Fuchs of the Braves and Babe Ruth slugger-second vice president-assistant manager yesterday had struck back at reports of dissension between Fuchs Ruth and Manager Bill McKechnie.

Judge Fuchs explained he had entered into a private agreement to purchase all the Braves' stock now held by Charles F. Adams, first vice-president and Bruce Wetmore, and then decried the motives of any one trying to promote dissension between McKechnie and the Babe or between any other club officials.

He voiced the prediction that with the warm weather the Babe would disprove claims of some writers his ability and power in baseball were a thing of the past. Fuchs also revealed he had been offered a judgeship, but had turned it down to remain with the Braves in the hope of bringing them a pennant-winning team.

The Babe in a short statement, denied reports of dissension and blamed his poor showing on the weather and the bad cold he has been suffering and then predicted that when he recovered, "I will demonstrate that I am far from through in spite of some who have been impatient and unfair in their predictions."

Inside Sportin' Dope—By A. Wise Cracker

Mister Sporting Editor:

Well, Mac, the fans has had a chance of looking the 1935 edition of the Petes over with 2 games here on Jubilee Day with the Valley-views of Toronto, and the general verdict seems to be the lads oughta give all and sundry in the Central loop quite a tussle this season. The boys took the dairymen from the Queen City twice, winning a snappy A.M. game 7 to 3 and a loose p.m. affair 7 to 6. The real feature of the before luncheon argument, aside from de luxe fielding and some timely hitting by the home talent, was the pitching of Mister Spook Scriver, who tossed them in with rare abandon for the Lee entry, and for the most part had the visiting milkmen cutting holes in the chilly May breeze with their wagon-tongues. Our new recruits, Mister C. Kearns and E. Murphy, give a good account of themselves, and our Mister Cadd broke into the big time with a brace of slashing hits, both of which come with folks on the sacks, which, neighbors, is the time we always like to see the home boys pick to do their plucking.

With neither crew being in the best of shape, the p.m. struggle naturally tailed off into 1 of them picnic brand games, the fielding on both sides being spotty. However, the affair give the fans a chance to inspect most of this year's squad, and as the Petes finally grabbed the verdict, everybody went home pretty well satisfied, including the Valley-views, which managed to have themselves a very good time as guests of this hospitable berg. Mister Lee trotted out his newest gunner to finish the argument, and Mister Lepper, albeit a trifle wild, fogged in a southpaw fire-ball that promises to make things interesting for the Central League hitsmiths later on. 1 feature was a honest-to-goodness wallop by our Mister Kearns, who poled out 1 of the longest and highest slams yet recorded at the picturesque ball orchard on the other side of the million dollar bridge.

The Central season opens here May 24 with Oshawa providing the opposition, and what with new unies and some new players to fill them the 1935 campaign will get away with due eclat or something.

Meanwhile, Mac, the big leagues, in spite of a lot of wet, cold weather, has been developing some sensations. 1 of them is that Mister Jimmy Dykes has kidded the Chicago White Sox into thinking they're a real ball club and, gosh darnit, they been walloping everybody that comes along. Up to the time this here is being written the Sox has win 10 games in a row, and the 2 veterans, Mister Lyons and Sad Sam Jones, has took the Yanks in the last 2 fixtures, beating El Goofy Gomez and the hitherto successful Mister Johnny Broaca. The 2 leagues right now is as wide open as the Windsor beverage rooms, and both loops threaten to make a lot of money if this surprising season keeps on supplying surprises.

Well, old-timer, in spite of the fact the furnace is still a mighty important piece of household machinery, summer sports is really on the wing. Mushball starts next week, the lacrosse boys is already massaging their opponents, and while the swimming ain't been so hot up to now, a few hard folks has bust the ice, so it can't be long now.

And with that bright thought, I'll be leaving you.

Sportfully yours,

A. WISE CRACKER.

LEAFS' SIX-RUN ATTACK ROUTS BEARS AND TO RONTO WINS 7-2

Redwings Slip Into Third Place Ahead of Montreal By Dividing Twin.

ROYALS FALL TO ALBANY.

(By the Associated Press.)

A four game spurt in the last few days has put Toronto Maple Leafs, who previously had made surprisingly little fuss in the International League battle, up into the position of leading challenger for Newark's lead.

After touring the "southern half of the circuit with only fair success, the Leafs began to "click" when they returned to their home park and so far have won six out of eight games despite frequent displays of batting weakness. Their fourth triumph in a row, a 7-2 decision over Newark yesterday, put them into a virtual tie with the Bears, trailing by only a few percentage points.

Toronto's rise was the leading development of the day so far as the standings were concerned, although Rochester slipped into third place a few points ahead of Montreal by dividing a double-header with Syracuse while the Royals were losing a single game to Albany.

The Redwings easily belted out a 10-2 win in the opener, collecting 17 blows, including homers by Jake Flowers and Estel Crabtree, behind John Berly's four-hit flinging. Hy Vandenburg accounted for the Chiefs' 4-3 triumph, which gave Rochester its first home defeat of the season. He scattered seven hits well and drove in the winning run himself in the fifth inning.

The Royals spotted Albany a six-run lead on Harry Smythe's wildness and a couple of errors in the first, rallied to tie the count at 7-7 in the eighth and finally lost out 9-7 when the Senators nicked Lauri Myllykangas for a pair of runs in the ninth.

Despite Ollie Carnegie's hitting, Baltimore Orioles beat out Buffalo 6-5 to end a four-game losing streak. Carnegie accounted for all five Bison runs with a pair of homers but Vance Barton went him one better by smashing his 10th circuit blow of the year in the fifth for the deciding run.

OMAHA EVEN CHOICE FOR TURF EVENT

Nellie Flag Seeks to Avenge Kentucky Derby Defeat in Preakness.

POST TIME 5.45.

(By Orlo Robertson).

BALTIMORE, May 11 (A.P.). — Over the Oval where her mother raced to victory 11 years ago, Warren Wright's Nellie Flag, daughter of the famous Nellie Morse, to-day sought to avenge her defeat in the Kentucky Derby when she faced William Woodward's Omaha, victory at the Downs, and nine other three-year-old thoroughbreds in the 45th running of the $25,000 Preakness at Pimlico.

Beaten but not disgraced when she finished fourth in the Derby, Nellie Flag came up to to-day's race with both her owner and trainer, Burt Williams, confident she would stop short the parade of Woodward's big red horse to the championship of the division.

The glory that was hers prior to the running of the Derby went to Omaha, however, for it was the son of Gallant Fox that was made the 6 to 5 pre-race choice to duplicate the 1930 triumph of his gallant sire. Omaha was so well fancied by the advance delegations of the expected crowd of 40,000 he was expected to answer the call to boots and saddles at even money or less. Post time for the mile and three sixteenths jaunt was 5.45 p.m. (Eastern Standard Time).

Crews gave his age as 38. The record shows he was divorced from a former wife in 1932.

George St. Swamps St. John's Juniors

George St. swamped St. John's Juniors, 32 to 6, in their Church Softball League game last evening, showing advantage of much practise. ATHLETICS POUND BROWNS

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

Although much has been said pro and con about the great Athletics experiment of shifting Jimmie Foxx, an outstanding first baseman, behind the plate to become a catcher of still uncertain value, when it comes down to cold figures the change apparently hasn't affected Jimmie's value to the team.

The latest batting records show Foxx at the top of the American League in batting with an average of .403 and leading in home runs as well despite some stiff opposition from a couple of teammates. That seems to indicate it's no fault of Jimmie's the A's are seventh in the standing.

Foxx practically belted the A's into security from the danger of a drop into the cellar yesterday when he led the way to a 7-4 victory over the Browns that gave them a full game working margin over St. Louis. In four trips to the plate he smacked a double and homer No. eight.

Joe Sullivan, rookie left-hander, who has aided considerably in Detroit's "bounce" up from the cellar, turned in his third straight triumph by checking Washington 8-4 and kept the sixth-place Tigers well ahead of the A's. Sullivan also turned in a seven-hit game, drove in two runs with a pair of hits and scored once as the Tigers belted Bump Hadley out with a five-run rally in the seventh.

Completing the day's roundup for the portsiders, rookie Vito Tamulis of the Yankees proved effective in the pinches and the New Yorkers ended a four-game losing streak with a 6-3 triumph over the league leading Indians. A radically revised lineup, occasioned by Ben Chapman's return to action, started the Yanks off to a 4-0 lead off Oral Hildebrand in the first two innings. Chapman lasted less than two innings before his "charley horse" again became balky and he dropped out.

Chicago's White Sox, ousted from the lead Thursday, lost a chance to regain it when they took a second beating from Boston, 12-2. Rallies for four runs in the first and five in the sixth drove George Earnshaw out while Gordon (Dusty) Rhodes pitched almost perfectly until an error cost him a shutout after leading 11-0. Ellsworth (Babe) Dahlgren, rookie first baseman, smacked two homers, each with a man on base.

The entire National League program was rained out.

Canoe paddling and racing enthusiasts are invited to a meeting next Tuesday eve at 7.30 in the Y.M.C.A. There is a proposal to form a canoe-racing section of the Peterborough Sailing and Aquatic Club. They have the dough and will buy three racing canoes, or sheils, if there is enough interest shown. They want to develop racers who can compete in a few years in Canadian Canoe Association regattas. This is an excellent idea and no doubt quite a few addicts of the canoe will be interested. They should make it a point to attend this meeting Tuesday and get organized.

Six teams comprise the Lakeshore Junior Baseball League. They are: Peterborough, Oshawa, Colborne, Cobourg, Port Hope and Bowmanville. Some of their rules include: Birth certificates must accompany all playing certificates and the visiting team must supply the plate umpire; O.B.A.A. rules are in force except that no more than 15 players shall be in uniform for a team; all afternoon games shall be nine innings and all twilight games shall be seven innings; at least five innings must be played to declare a winner. This promises to be a mighty nifty loop, and we know Herb Ralph is going to have a strong squad in it.

"The other teams in the league," says the Kingston scribe, "have bolstered up considerably, but it is doubtful if they will get the fine all-around hurling the Ponies will get. Belleville had Jack Williams and little more last year, and this year Williams isn't any better while the others on the roster have to prove their worth. Peterborough have Spook Scriver back in form but the others aren't so hot while Oshawa will string along with the same crew of in-and-out twirlers.' Aside from Bud Clancy, if he plays, where does Kingston expect that "fine all-around hurling?" Surely not from Yammy Jamieson and Speedy St. Louis.

• • • • • •

Having as much enthusiasm for baseball arguments as a man beating his wife, we can't let this Kingston crack pass. He forgets that Oshawa has not only all last year's flingers but Lefty Innis beside—and he has a pretty fair sort of rep. Belleville has Art Calhoun, good Toronto chucker, along with Williams, Smith, Casey and possibly an intermediate and junior pitcher, if wanted. Along with Scriver, we have Russ Kitchen, who played only part-time last summer, Art Lepper—raised pretty nifty in Toronto—with Bill Calladine and Frank Whitehouse also available. Lefty Lesurf, good junior pitcher, may be used occasionally here, too. And so, taking a bird's eye view of the situation from our pent-house porch, we'd say that Kingston may find it necessary to dig up the ancient Lefty Gallagher ere cometh September. Absolutely, Mister Shean!

Kawartha Tennis League re-organized for the year at a meeting last eve in the "Y". Dr. J. C. Smith was re-elected president and should be as efficient and popular as ever. So far, it looks like nine teams in the league, two from the Peterborough Club, one from Kawartha, the Quaker Oats and Lakefield in the North Group; with a Peterborough Club, a Kawartha, a Lindsay and a Port Hope team in the South Group. Cobourg is out this year. They hope to get Campbellford in yet. Schedule will open June 8th. Matches this year will be: Ladies' singles, ladies' doubles, mixed doubles, men's singles and two men's doubles, with playoffs same as last year. Prospects are bright for another successful tennis season around the district.

Only four teams will make up the Men's City Softball League. At last night's meeting in Duffus', Pepe's Cleaners dropped out—seems they couldn't line up a strong enough squad—while Omemee, Hood and Cummings', Fashion-Crafts and Lillico Motors all entered. Prexy Fred Scates was given permission to manage Hood and Cummings, although he offered to resign his office. Bob Bailey was appointed official umpire-in-chief and will name his assistants. Basil Phelan is official scorer. When the schedule—which will be drawn up next week—opens, visiting teams at games will workout first and the home team will take the diamond at 5.45—five minutes before game time—and stay there till the game begins. The grounds are to be fixed up right away and a new screen supplied. Schedule commences May 17th.

St. John's Bantams Lose To George St.

Minus their regular pitcher, St. John's Bantams were outclassed and lost a 28-5 score to George St. in a Church Softball League game last evening. T. Clarke and Lewis of St. John's walked 16 which, with timely hitting by Parnell, Murphy, Weese and Smith, meant plenty of runs. Routley had the Anglicans popping out regularly. Lewis and Morley did most of St. John's hitting. Hamilton did some nice fielding. St. John's team did a lot of crabbing among themselves and their play showed it. The teams:

NEW YORK, May 11 (C.P.). — "Whitey," the Bronx Zoo's simmo porcupine brought a flurry of mail to the Botanical Gardens to-day when she presented the city at New York with a very black baby yesterday. Dr. W. Reid Blair, curator of the Zoo, said the father of the babe must still be roaming the main woods, for "Whitey" was captured there only last March.

TONY CANZONERI REGAINS TITLE

Veteran Scores Knockdowns in Third and 13th For Short Counts.

TAKES NINE ROUNDS.

(By Alan Gould Associated Press Sports Editor)

NEW YORK May 11 (AP)—It's an old ring axiom that they never come back, but black-haired Tony Canzoneri, dapper little fellow who looks like a miniature Babe Ruth and packs TNT in his right hand, to-day is the exception to prove the rule.

For all practical purposes, Canzoneri's decision victory over Lou Ambers last night in 15 rounds at Madison Square Garden returns him to the status of lightweight champion of the world, successor to Chicago's Barney Ross, who recently relinquished the title, and the first fighter in the history of the class to regain the crown. Tony lost the championship to Ross in 1933 after holding it for nearly three years.

In recapturing a title that has been held by some of the finest craftsmen in fighting annals, Canzoneri thrilled a crowd of 17,433 cash customers, nearly packing the Garden, with as fine an exhibition of boxing skill as New York has witnessed since the eminent Benny Leonard turned back the challenge of Lefty Lew Tendler at the Yankee Stadium a dozen years ago.

Knockdown in Third

Canzoneri floored the rugged, stout-hearted Ambers twice in the third round with vicious right-handers and again blew the "Herkimer Hurricane" down in the 15th round with a long belt to the chin as Lew was hustling to get out of the way. From start to finish, despite the rugged Upstate boy's most courageous and aggressive efforts to turn the tide, Canzoneri had the situation under almost complete control. Tony outsmarted, outboxed and outpunched Lou so convincingly through the first ten rounds, the unanimous decision of Referee Arthur Donovan and the two judges was a formality at the finish.

Takes Nine Rounds

On this observer's score-card, Canzoneri captured nine rounds, with five going to Ambers and one even. Lou rallied briskly in the last four rounds, but was abruptly halted when he failed to duck another dynamite-laden right, in the closing moments of the fight, and hit the floor, bouncing up without taking a count.

DR. J. C. SMITH IS RE-ELECTED

Kawartha Tennis League Again Divided Into Two Groups.

APPROVE 6 MATCHES.

Dr. J. C. Smith of Lakefield was re-elected president last night at the fourth annual meeting of the Kawartha Tennis League held in the Y.M.C.A. Stan Shields of the local Kawartha club was elected secretary-treasurer, and the executive committee for the coming year will consist of: W. Perks, J. Kirkwood and D. A. MacTavish of the Peterborough Club; W. White of Lindsay; R. Fitzsimmons of Port Hope; J. Langleyof Lakefield; E. W. Jones of the Quaker Oats Club; and C. Orough and D. Emery of the Kawartha Club.

The league will again be divided into the North and South Groups. Quaker Oats, Lakefield, Peterborough B and C. and Kawartha B will be the teams in the North Group. Peterborough A, Kawartha A, Lindsay and Port Hope are entered in the South Group. The executive will endeavor to get a tenth team and will have the power to re-arrange these groups if a tenth team enters. Efforts will be made to obtain Campbellford. The Cobourg Club has withdrawn for this season.

It was decided to run six matches during the schedule this year instead of five, adding that of ladies' singles. The six are: Ladies' singles, ladies' doubles, mixed doubles, men's singles and two men's doubles. A motion was passed that a scheduled date may be changed by a mutual agreement between teams with points divided should rain interfere with the games and provided the secretary is notified 48 hours in advance of the scheduled date or of the date of play if previous to the scheduled date. The same system of playoffs as last year was adopted again.

At least one umpire must be appointed for all league games by mutual agreement of the captains and a full set of umpires will be appointed for playoffs. The entry fee will be 50 cents a team to be paid by July 1st to qualify for playoffs. The treasurer's report showed a small balance on hand. The schedule will open the second Saturday in June and will be drawn up by the executive at an early meeting. The presidents will draw up a league constitution. Home clubs must notify the secretary of the result of their matches and the secretary will send the league standing to each club every two weeks. The meeting then adjourned.

GYPSY GIRL

THE STORY OF AN IMPASSIONED ROMANCE

McDONALD FEADER

PICTURE

CHAPTER 23

Backstage was waiting. The musicians were tuning up and idly strumming the piece they were to play for the gypsy. The lights were set, ready to be turned on. Down in the dark house were Goldberg and his staff. Blackmire had not yet arrived. Backstage there were curious members of the cast. Someone whispered that L'Ville was coming down to see the gypsy dance. Someone else said that L'Ville was furious because the gypsy had gotten so much publicity.

Hadley, the stage manager, was waiting for Dalstrom and the girl. Rehearsal was scheduled for 10 o'clock and it was well after that now and they had not come in. He ran through one of the numbers that was being changed. Still he waited. He was called down front and explained that the gypsy was not there yet.

Goldberg chewed the end of his cigar.

"If we got another late one in this show she'll go out quick as a wink and I don't care what Blackmore says, Lou"—he meant Louise L'Ville—"is enough to drive a man out of his noodle without another temperamental dancer on my show."

Doug was just in time to hear the end of the comment.

"She'll be here all right, Goldie."

"What do you know about this?"

"Nothing—nothing—at all—" And Doug walked around to backstage. He put in a call for Stewart and was informed that Blackmire had already left for the theater. He called Dalstrom and finally raised him at the hotel Doug listened to the story of the girl's disappearance, then casually suggested that the police station might be the logical place to look for her.

He waited backstage and stopped Stewart when he came in. He told him what he knew and advised him to go down and calm Goldie and fight for the rights of the little gypsy "gal." Doug waited and kidded the girls who were there and talked Hadley into trying out one of the ponies for her voice and succeeded in using up three-quarters of an hour.

He was trying to think of something else when Consuelo and Dalstrom walked in. The girl was taken by Hadley and the stage director and Doug crossed over to Dalstrom.

"Well, Jim, was I right?"

"Yes." Dalstrom tipped his hat on the back of his head and mopped his brow. "I'm plenty sick of being nursemaid to that hot-headed spitfire. Goldie or Blackmire can pay me back the $100 fine I paid this morning to get the hell-cat out of hock. They packed her up for telling fortunes in the park and for picking the flowers and trespassing over the trespassing signs." However, he grinned, "There's only one redeeming thing to it—the kid was surrounded with reporters. Gee, what breaks!" He sighed. "However, the judge raised the fine from $50 to a hundred bucks because he thought I'd put her up to it, another publicity gag. If she gets in again I'm all washed up and through. Somebody else with a different face will have to do his stuff to get her out."

"And the young lady, is she in a singing or a screaming mood?"

"Did you see her eyes? Well, then why ask me! I'm only a dumb publicity man. I ain't got good sense in the first place. I'm a nursemaid to a gypsy gal—"

Doug left him. He managed to get next to Consúelo and for a moment claim her attention. Jokingly he offered advice to the effect that she she had better behave herself. He reminded her of her promise and of the palace and the high hill.

"Oh, it is a lie, a dirty low lie! This place—" her glance swept the stage, "—is worse than a barn! It is ugly! Horrid! These fools sitting down there don't know how to play. How can I dance for them when they don't know a gypsy dance from—" Words failed her.

"Will you dance without music? They'll get your time then." She nodded gloomily. "Listen, baby, dance as you did that day for us. You said something about music inside of you—go ahead now and listen to it—"

"That, too, must have been a lie!" she returned sullenly. "These pigs—"

At last the music was played to suit her and she danced her gypsy dance but there was the fire lacking from her that always before had captured the imagination of her watchers. She finished, made her bow, and ran through the wings as she had been told.

She almost bumped into a woman who had been watching her. Disdainfully the woman moved back and looked at the gypsy. Languidly she raised a cigaret to her lips and blew the smoke out without changing her critical attitude. She turned to Hadley.

"She's not so hot. From all the press notices I expected to see someone who really could dance." She laughed, a high rippling laugh. "My lord, I thought Goldie had some sense! You'd think he'd made a real find when he gave her a contract so quick, but then I suppose a gypsy is something like a side show." She had not taken her eyes off Consuelo, but all the time she was talking, was coldly appraising the girl. "She may be pretty to some people but to me she's just a dirty, greasy gypsy and her dancing—well, it's rotten!"

Consuelo stared at her, mouth open.

"You dog! You son of a dog!" she cried and slapped the woman across the face.

Screaming with surprise and terror, the woman backed from the furious gypsy. She was against the wall and Consuelo was clutching her shoulders shaking her madly before anyone could stop the gypsy. Hadley and Doug held Consuelo off and half a dozen people surrounded the woman.

"She's got to get out of this show! I won't stand for it! I didn't know she could understand English! I've never been so insulted!" L'Ville was whimpering.

The woman continued her hysterics until the gypsy was out of the theater. Then she renewed the powder on the tip of her pretty nose and turned sorrowful blue eyes to the man who stood next to her.

"Stewart, my dead, I'm so upset and frightened. I'll never feel safe with that horrible creature in the show. I positively could have fainted when she came at me. You'll put her out of the show, won't you—for me?"

Consuelo was sent back to the hotel. Big Ann was given instructions not to let her out of her sight. The girl was in a blue sulk and it boded ill for a dancing career for her in the Follies.

At the end of three days Douglas was sent as envoy to the gypsy. He found her still furious.

"Why am I locked in here like a jail? Who is this woman who says I can't dance? Who is this pig who says I am a dirty gypsy?"

"Of course you wouldn't know, not that it would have made any difference anyway, I suppose. That woman, my dear, is Louise L'Ville, star of Goldberg's Follies, pet of the theater and one of the biggest salaries on Broadway," and he might have added, sweetheart of Stewart Blackmire, but did not.

Consuelo did not answer him. She stared down at her closed fists and listened to what he had to say.

They were willing to give her one chance but only on the promise that she would never so much as look at L'Ville, that in no manner was she to get in the star's way or to speak to her. She was booked to open in another week and they would give her a week's try. If, in that week, she had not made good she would be put out of the show and given no other opportunity with Goldberg.

"And what of my white friend, of Stewart?"

"It's his orders too, gypsy girl. He doesn't want anyone around that is going to raise as much trouble as you have. He's pretty disappointed in you. He's spent a lot of jack, of money—all of this he's paying for, and so far you've just been a pain in the neck—I mean you've just caused him a lot of worry. You didn't even dance well the other morning. We've boosted you to the skies with Goldberg and you get up there and dance like a third rater. Louise was right. You were rotten."

IDEA IS UNDER CONSIDERATION HEPBURN SAYS

Toronto Mayor Believes Provincial Tax Must Be on Higher Scale.

Cities Need Every Dollar.

TORONTO, May 11.—Premier Mitchell Hepburn's proposed Provincial income tax may lift the burden of unemployment relief entirely from the shoulders of Ontario municipalities, it was revealed last night.

St. Thomas Proposal.

The information came to light when City Treasurer W. C. Miller of St. Thomas yesterday advocated the use of Provincial income tax funds for this purpose, and Mr. Hepburn from his home in South Yarmouth admitted that the expenditure for relief purposes of the funds to be raised was contemplated by the Government.

Among several Ontario Mayors to give qualified approval to this proposal last night was James Simpson, Chief Magistrate of Toronto. Mr. Simpson said there would be little objection to the plan, provided the municipalities would be reimbursed for the loss of their local income tax revenue.

"A third income tax would be too much," said the Mayor. "Of course, the Provincial Government has the right under the British North America Act to levy a tax, and could enforce the tax if they wished."

Higher Scale.

The Mayor believed that the Provincial tax must be on a higher scale than the municipal tax if the Province is to reimburse municipalities. He claimed the city "needed every dollar," and required compensation if it lost its right to levy income tax.

Horace L. Brittain of the Better Business Bureau also said that he was in favor of the Provincial income tax if it included some return to municipalities.

Approving the principle of substitution of Provincial levy for municipal income tax, City Clerk H. J. B. Headley of Guelph said the whole matter of collection should be handled by the Dominion Government, "which has the machinery and should collect the whole thing and pay the municipalities."

Favor Scheme.

Civic authorities of St. Thomas are in favor of Premier Mitchell Hepburn's plan for a Provincial income tax to replace the municipal income tax.

One suggestion is that the Ontario Government should carry out the plan to the extent of putting Provincial income assessment, thus relieving municipalities of all employment relief costs. If this were done it would mean a taxation reduction in St. Thomas of approximately five mills.

TELLING ON CANADA

and the British Empire

By HARRIS-STAPLETON

Unique and uncanny in the history of prophecy are the manuscripts in the British Museum dealing with Mother Shipton, who foretold the automobile, radio, airships, submarines and many other realities of to-day. Of the woman herself, comparatively little is known, except that she was born in Yorkshire in 1488 and during the next 71 years in quaint language made her amazing predictions. Her grave at Clifton is marked by the appropriate epitaph:

Here lyes she who never ly'd,
Whose skill often has been try'd;
Her prophecies still shall survive,
And ever keep her name alive.

Mother Shipton predicted the automobile in these words: "Carriages without horses shall go, and accidents fill the world with woe." And perhaps she had a vision of our radio when she wrote: "Around the world thought shall fly in the twinkling of an eye." The submarine was prophesied in this way:

Under water men shall walk,
Shall ride, shall sleep, shall talk.

And surely it was airships of some description that she dreamed of when she penned these words:

In the air men shall be seen,
In white, in black and in green.

Cynics delight in certain phrases of her vision, such as:

Then love shall die, and marriage cease
And babes and sucklings so decrease
That wives shall fondle cats and dogs,
And men live much the same as hogs.

Mother Shipman's only serious "bloomer" occurred when she undertook to foretell the end of the world in 1881, but in this respect she has had many companions among the prophets in history.

What he describes as the longest and narrowest parish in the world is in charge of a young Canadian clergyman, Rev. Henry Moss, chaplain to the Iraq Petroleum Company. It is nothing more nor less than a strip of desert from Kirkuk in Iraq to Haifa in Palestine, and his parishioners are the company's employees along the petroleum pipeline.

Mr. Moss makes his headquarters at St. Luke's Church, Haifa, but regularly travels the 1,300 miles to the other end of his parish, ministering to the spiritual needs of the men who guard the line and keep the oil flowing to the Mediterranean port.

Britain's greatest entertainment industry reaches a climax each year with the association football cup final game at Wembley Stadium, where the turnstiles will click a merry melody of pounds, shillings and pence. When the season opened on Aug. 25 last, nearly a million fans paid something like $300,000 to see their favorite players in action.

Some idea of the magnitude of soccer as an industry is provided by the fact that over ten thousand persons are directly employed in it. Three thousand of these are professional players, whose weekly wages amount to something like $75,000. Statistical sharks have figured that the actual cost of every goal scored is about $2,500.

So instead of looking to hockey for a career, as more than a few Canadian boys do, young Britons take their soccer mighty seriously.

The stupendous cost of railway building pictured occurred during the construction of the C.P.R. line along the shores of Lake Superior, where extreme difficulties were encountered, but surmounted.

FANTASTIC INDUSTRIAL BOOM IS MARKING JEWS RESTORATION

Eyes of World on Mushroom Growth of Palestine Under Hebrews.

CAUSE OF CONCERN

By PIERRE VAN PAASSEN
Central Press Canadian Writer

TEL AVIV, May 11.—Tel Aviv, the only all-Jewish town in the world, might give you the impression of a medium-sized European city were it not for the fact that there is no medium-sized city in the whole Occident at present with such activity, bustle, rush and noise. On this city the eyes of the whole Jewish world are rivetted with ineluctible fascination.

Jews in Poland, in America, in Germany, in England, South Africa and Canada—and not only Jews—are wondering what will be the upshot of the amazing doings in Tel Aviv, which, without a grain of exaggeration, border on the fantastic.

In 1910 there were 200 inhabitants in Tel Aviv. To-day there are 160,000 if not 180,000 inhabitants. Ninety-two schools have gone up in that time and fourteen more are under construction at the present moment. This year's building program of Tel Aviv amounts to 400,000 pounds sterling, that is to say building permits to that amount have been granted by the municipality. When you take into consideration the additional fact that the turnover of Palestinian banks amounted in 1934 to 170 million pounds sterling and that the Palestinian government has a surplus—probably the only government in the world to be able to boast such a favorable position—a surplus of five million pounds, you may begin to gain something of an idea of what is going on here in Palestine.

May Be Drawback

But will it last? Is this a healthy development? Can the present tempo, which I call fantastic, be maintained? Is the whole phenomenon not something in the nature of a mushroom growth? These are the questions which are worrying the Jewish people all over the world. And this too: Is it possible, it is asked, that something like a national Jewish culture can develop in such an overheated atmosphere?

The whole Jewish world is watching, not without fear and trepidation and many misgivings. Speculation in land and real estate is reaching unprecedented proportions. Values double and treble overnight. Just to give you an instance. In 1929 when I was in Palestine, a citizen of Tel Aviv, who was temporarily embarrassed financially, offered me a piece of sandune way outside the city for 100 pounds. "Take it," he said, "it may be worth some money some day." I did not buy for the simple reason that I did not have the money.

To-day that same heap of red sand is part of Rotschildt Boulevard and is worth forty-five thousand pounds and the buildings on it are worth twenty-five thousand pounds. I can't tell you what it will be worth in a month's time, probably double the value. For prices are sky-rocketing and the boom goes on—for the time being at any rate.

Laborers Restricted

Immigrants pour into the country with every boat-load. Tel-Aviv is swamped with German Jewish refugees of the capitalist category. By capitalist I do not mean here anything in the nature of a ruling class as the term is made to imply in Socialist nomenclature, but an officially designated type of immigrants. There are two types of immigrants coming into Palestine: capitalists, that is to say, those possessing a sum of money in excess of 600 pounds, and others who possess nothing. Capitalists of that type may enter freely, the number admitted under the second category is determined by the Palestine government, which places from time to time a stated number of immigration certificates at the disposal of the Jewish Agency for Palestine, that is to say, the World Zionist Organization.

The number of labor certificates is based on what the Palestinian government considers the absorptive capacity of the country. On the subject of what constitutes the absorptive capacity of Palestine here rages a permanent dispute between the Palestine government and Jewish world opinion.

For the time being the number of "capitalists" coming into Palestine is largely superior to that of capital-less immigrants. This is chiefly due to events in Germany where, as everyone knows, the Nazi regime is constantly restricting the possibilities of life for Jewish citizens.

The German Jews are bringing wealth into the country. It is due to their influx that Palestine experiences its present boom. But it is quite another question whether this phenomenal prosperity constitutes a blessing. If the land of Israel is to be rebuilt and the Jews are to contribute once more in an independent way to the sum total of civilization, the purely materialistic development, which is now foremost, must take a secondary place. It must be in the background, not in the foreground.

Dominates Markets

Even so there is no reason to believe that the present remarkable activity will suddenly cease. A war in Europe, no doubt, would play havoc with Palestine's further development. But a war would not damage Palestine exclusively. A war would turn the whole world upside down.

Palestine is in the fortunate position of being the gateway to a vast unexploited market. The hinterland, Iraq, Transjordania, Arabia, Syria, Lebanon and even Persia constitutes one of the few unsatiated markets of the world. In this fact lies an element of reasonable certainty for the permanency of the prosperity of Palestine. Naturally some of the wildcat characteristics of the present boom will fall away and it is most desirable that they should fall away.

Without a European cataclysm one feels that Palestine is assured another quarter century of steady progress, of building cities and factories and an intensive agricultural development. This material well-being might gradually introduce the atmosphere in which a new Hebraic civilization becomes possible. That such a civilization should be re-born is the purpose of the New Palestine. Yet, even under the most favorable circumstances, and years of prosperity, the difficulty of co-ordinating the heterogeneous influences which the Jews have undergone in the lands of the Dispersion, influences which they have brought to Palestine from the four corners of the globe, into one cohesive Hebraic culture, are enormous. If it were not that the Jews have shown an amazing capacity for survival in the past, I would say it is almost impossible. But again, having regard to the historical continuity of Israel and the staggering obstacles overcome, the hope of seeing a restored Jewish nation in a restored Jewish land, runs higher than ever before in the last 2,000 years.

BOOKS AND ART SUBJECT OF TALKS

Misses Greta Giles and Amy Matthws Addresses Women's Club.

Extremely interesting talks on Books and Art were given at this week's meeting and Vocational Night of the Business and Professional Women's Club of Peterborough, held in the green room of the Y.W.C.A., with the president, Miss E. Warren Kee, in the chair, and an attendance of fifty-five of the members.

Miss Greta Giles spoke on Books, outlining the different sections into which reading matter is divided, mentioning many of the current novels of the day and referring to prize-winning books of the year.

Miss Amy Mathews, speaking on Art, described different types of prints: aquatints, etchings, and monotypes, and expressed some of the processes. Miss Mathews also pointed out what should be looked for in pictures.

Another member of the club, Agnes Logan Green, played very beautifully two piano solo numbers, a "Lullaby" and a "Jig."

A letter was received from Mrs. W. R. Morris, thanking the members for appointing her as Honorary President of the club.

It was decided to ask Miss Marion Jamieson, the treasurer, to represent the club at the convention of the Federated societies of Business and Professional Women's Clubs of Canada, in Calgary, in the summer, when Miss Jamieson will be at her home in the West on vocation.

At the close of the scheduled session, a pleasant social hour was spent, when refreshments were served by the Social convenor, Miss Anne Jamieson, and her committee.

WOMEN'S INSTITUTE WEEKLY COLUMN

A goodly thing it is to meet
In Friendship's circle bright
Where nothing mars the pleasure sweet
Or dims the radiant light
No unkind word our lips shall pass
No envy sour the mind;
But each shall cast the common dust—
The good of all mankind.

CAVAN

The communicable diseases against which all parents desire to protect their children are very often spread as a result of carelessness on the part of some person.

No one would deliberately hurt or injure a child. No one wants to cause a child suffering. Yet suffering, injury and sometimes death follow the careless or thoughtless actions which lead to the spread of disease.

One reason or explanation for this is that so many persons do not understand that the child who is not well should be isolated, kept away from other children. This may seem unreasonable and unnecessary because, in most cases, it will be found that there is nothing seriously wrong with the child and he could not have caused any harm to other children.

However, no one can say what is going to happen. The child who is not well to-day may be developing one of the communicable diseases. If so, then he will likely pass it on to those with whom he comes into contact. The only way to be sure that isolation is carried out when it is needed is to isolate every time the child is not well.

In the home where there are several children, the practical way to isolate the child who is not well is to put him to bed and keep the other children out of his bed room. The dishes of the sick child should be boiled.

Protection can be secured only if the necessary effort is made. In general, the communicable diseases are most infectious in their early days before the appearance of the rash or other typical symptoms. It follows that if the spread of these diseases is to be prevented, precautions must be taken from the first.

It is evident that the parents who wait until their child comes out with the rash of the disease or until the child is actually ill before separating him from other children has not given reasonable protection to the others.

The isolation of every child who is unwell until it is certain that he has not a communicable disease may be the means of preventing spread of disease, both in the home and outside. Indeed the precaution may save the lives of other children.

For his own sake the child who is not well should be in bed. For the protection of other children, he should be kept away from them until it is known what is wrong with him.

MILLBROOK

Recounting what they had done in the way of community service at a recent meeting, a western Ontario branch listed activities and as a program feature, the whole attendance was kept on the alert to add to the help given locally during the past nine months.

This plan was adopted instead of having the convenor of the Standing Committee on Community Activities cover, by means of a paper, what had been done and had the added advantage of making every member feel responsible along this particular line, and take a genuine pride in the service rendered the home town.

Among the things called out by the request from the chair for the list of 'help afforded' was the buying of skates for two small boys in a family otherwise unable to afford this healthful amusement for the lads in question; a field on one of the farms of the rural section that had a good-sized depression in its centre made an admirable open rink for the young folk, and the Institute members took turns in being on hand, sometimes with their husbands, or grown-up sons, to see that no disorderliness was allowed. The supervision, of course, was done quietly, and without seeming to lay any restrictions on the high-spirited lads and lassies who enjoyed to the full the skating, hockey, etc. that the rink afforded.

The section was without any kind of hall to be used for concerts and social gatherings, even the one small church lacking a basement; so the W.I. had accepted the offer of a retired farmer who still clung to residence in the countryside where he and his wife had been born, educated, married, and had brought up their family, of the use of a large barn no longer needed for its original purpose. The renovating had been a joy so many and willing had been the helpers 'without salary,' and by degrees and at no very great expense, the building had been moved nearer the roadway, made over inside first, and later, as means permitted, the outside had been painted and otherwise improved, and now the farm community boasts quite a respectable hall which was so much in use the expression was frequently heard, "However did we get along without it."

Social gatherings are an important feature of community life particularly for the young people, and the members of the branch found a real joy as they recalled the number, and kind, of these happy affairs they had arranged and sponsored during the fall and winter months especially. Thanksgiving, Armistice Day, a community event between Christmas and the New Year, with tree and concert, St. Valentine's Day, St. Patrick's, and a dance in April, were among the dates suitably remembered. The care taken in selecting guests, arranging programs, providing nice refreshments, and looking after all details, resulted in the satisfaction of knowing that practically nothing of an untoward nature had spoiled any social event of which the Institute had been the sponsor.

Some of the sick visiting, and the outcome of help given in several cases where medical attention had been required and the family had lacked the means for this and proper nursing; the purchase of school books, and the care of some children's health where the parents had been unable to give this service; assistance to families much in need but too proud to have their circumstances publicly known, the branch using wise tact in approaching such citizens; a "clean-up" campaign that had resulted in better looking yards, and out-buildings; a small horticultural society that had interested many of the senior girls in improving lawns with shrubbery and flower-beds; and help for the day and Sunday Schools with providing a fair-sized library; also the care of an elderly invalid who lived alone, in poor circumstances and without any near relative to come to her assistance, yet who shrank from going to the county home — these were among the activities recalled with pleasure as the members sat in the hall for a regular meeting, and talked over what they had done to improve things locally as an outcome of having a live Women's Institute carrying on in the community.

A National Message

By REV. W. PASCOE BOARD, LL.D., F.R.G.S., F.R.A.S.

THERE is great need for stabilization of thinking at this time as to the matter of forms of government. The nations are in turmoil on this question. But Israel-Britain is firmly established by Divine decree. In Europe the greatest turnover during all historic time has been in progress since A.D. 1918. All the experiments of history had culminated in centuries of Empire rule. The first of the series of directly successive empires was Babylon the Great, which reached its zenith under Nebuchadnezzar in 602 B.C. There followed a succession of individual empires, each holding the stage of history during its own period and each giving place to one successor. Thus Persia followed Babylon; Greece followed Persia; and Rome followed Greece. Then arose the two divisions of Imperial development, that of the East and that of the West. These were organized under the two great religious movements, the Muslim and the Papal organizations. Under each of these a cluster of kingdoms developed, and then of empires; until the eginning of this century saw the unique sight of five great empires existing side by side, and more or less supporting each other. They were China and Turkey in Asia; Russia straddling Asia and Europe; Austria and Germany in Europe.

This system began to crack and fall in the time of the French Revolution. The minds of men turned away from the empire ideal, and proceeded with the founding of the French Republic, the American Republic, and the many republics of South America. The existing empires finally fell in the period covered by 1912-1918. Within the short period of seven years and they were all gone. Now the question is being hotly debated, and nations are being shaken to their foundations by the question as to what type of government shall take the place of the empires which have gone. Imperialism is hated. Republicanism has not secured enthusiastic support. Democracy has very largely failed to function. Russia is being run as though it were a monstrous business machine. Masters and employees are there. But the masters have solved, for the present time as never before, the question of "Cheap Labor." The people have been dragooned into slavery, and have to yield their bodies, and their labor, to the driving power of the masters, who are entrenched in the military centre of the country, namely, the Kremlin.

Fascism in Italy, Nazism in Germany, and so on, are active experiments in the countries named. The Times published some months ago the list of ten dictators in Europe alone. All this is having its effect upon the thinking of the Celto-Saxon peoples. More than that, it is exciting to frenzy the strangers who are within our gates. These uninvited visitors are dreaming of changing the old and tried institutions of this, our country. There are those among us who have been born under our privileged state who are giving a more than ready ear to these strange voices. It is time to make the matter clear; and every exponent of the Word of God should do so, that the state now existent, is that which has been established by God, and which must stand to the end of time. This is the state which God has created for His purpose in the earth; He will not substitute any other. This is the standing of the matter as to the state.—Reprinted from the National Message.

Stomach-Lungs 'Mixup' Is Righted In Infant

PHILADELPHIA.—A mix-up between the stomach and lungs of 10-day old Donald Gottschall—all because his esophagus didn't get straightened out as it should—has been righted and doctors say his condition is "satisfactory" after the operation they performed. The infant is getting seven meals a day now — two ounces of milk for each meal—through an artificial "mouth" made by physicians by inserting a rubber tube in the wall of his stomach. This was one-half of the emergency operation they did to save the life of the baby, born 10 days ago at Freemont, Pa.

Europe Uneasy on Pilsudski Death

OFFICIALS LOOK FOR NEW POLISH FOREIGN POLICY

See Possible Fresh Friction With Germany Over Corridor.

Mme. PILSUDSKI ILL.

Berlin and Paris Vie in Sympathizing With Poland in Loss of Dictator.

LONDON, May 13 (A.P.).—Diplomatic circles were uneasy to-day over the death of Marshal Joseph Pilsudski, Polish Distator, seeing the possibility of new frontier difficultie between Poland and Germany with a resultant realignment of political relationships throughout Europe.

Some quarters believe Reichfuehrer Hitler may be less hesitant now in pushing the Pomorze (Polish Corridor) question than when the powerful Marshal was alive. Few diplomats believe Poland will be able to continue balancing the friendships of Germany and France. There is also a conviction internal political rivalries which the Dictator smothered may soon flare up.

French, Nazi Sympathy.

(By the Canadian Press.)

Berlin and Paris vied to-day in sympathising with Poland in the sudden death of her warrior-dictator, Marshal Joseph Pilsudski, while speculation buzzed as to the possible effect on Polish foreign policy.

In Berlin confidence was expressed the policy of rapprochement with Germany, initiated by Pilsudski, would not be altered. Hitler sent his condolences to the Polish people.

French Foreign Minister Pierre Laval coincidently was tendered an enthusiastic welcome when he reached Moscow to cement the

GROVER APPEAL IS DISMISSED

Sought Damages From Distillery Firm Befor Supreme Court of Canada.

DISMISSED WITH COSTS.

OTTAWA, May 13 (C.P.).—George A. Grover, Toronto barrister and distiller's agent lost his appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada in his action seeking damages against the Stirling Bonding Company for loss of the agency for a brand of Scotch whisky. The court to-day dismissed the appeal with costs.

Grover sued on a contract with the company under which he received a commission of five shillings per case of the particular brand of liquor sold by the Ontario Liquor Control Board. In the period from 1926 to 1931 this commission aggregated $38,999. In 1930 the Sterling Bonding Company sold out to Hiram Walker-Gooderham & Worts, Limited, which declined to pay Grover any further commissions.

At the trial of the case Mr. Justice McEvoy of the Supreme Court of Ontario awarded Grover $15,000 damages. The Ontario Court of Appeal upset this finding and held Grover was not entitled to damages. The Supreme Court of Canada took the same view.

Extra Grog

ABERDEEN, Scotland, May 13.— (CP). — Policemen and street cleaners of the city are having extra grog at this time of the year, having received their annual gratuity of $4 each from the estate of a man who died 37 years ago.

It was only an afterthought that caused George Russell, a wealthy sculptor, to establish the fund. When he was near death he conceived the idea of converting all of his possessions into cash, then he planned to sink it in the deep water of Aberdeen Bay.

He was persuaded at the last moment to abandon that idea.

COME TO CHURCH CHAIN LETTER BRINGS RESULTS

Kansas Pastor Increases Congregation 75 p.c.—Says St. Paul Wrote First One.

$100 ANTE IN OREGON IDEA.

KANSAS CITY, May 13 (A.P.).—The charge of the chain letter brigade brought more cries of "surrender" in the West to-day.

There were chain letters of all varieties to the right, the left and ahead. Church goers found ministers practicing the fad as well as preaching about it; babies in cradles had chain letters thrust at them; rich men and poor men found antes to fit their purses and Uncle Sam's postmen just carried on.

"The Apostle Paul wrote the first chain letter," the Rev. W. H. Allison, pastor of the Argentine Baptist Church in Kansas City, Kas., told a congregation that had increased 75 per cent. as the result of a go-to-church chain letter he sent out last week.

"To-day, this and every other church in the Christian world has it and still is passing it on," he said. "It is called the epistle to the Galatians."

Someone Slipped.

There were more than 300 persons in the church but the minister declared someone must have broken the chain, for the letters should have reached 900 persons.

At Texarkana, Tex., the Rev. Walter L. Cannan, pastor of the Harry Memorial Methodist Church, said he had outlined to his congregation a chain system that would "roll in" the cash to the church treasury. Six chains, representing various age groups, would give everybody from one year told to 100 a chance to chip in. The chain for tots calls for contributions of one penny each.

A "full-grown" chain system with an ante of $100 instead of the usual dime or dollar bill, was reported at Portland, Ore., where four promoting exchanges had a rushing business.

At Oklahoma City, six disillusioned traders who found themselves abrutly at the ends of the chain, filed a damage suit for $35,840 against seven men from whom they said the letters had been purchased.

"I'm in the same fix as the fellows who sued," declared Jerome Bernstein, one of the defendants. "I'm holding the sack too."

A letter to end all chain letters appeared under the heading of the "Good Riddance Club," at Augusta, Kas.

"When you receive this letter, buy yourself a gun and shoot the guy at the top of the list" it read. "Have the faith your friends haven't in you and this will be the best chain yet."

MOSCOW GIVES PIERRE LAVAL GREAT WELCOME

French Foreign Minister Drives Through Thousands of Cheering Reds.

ON PEACE MISSION.

Hopes to Broaden General Understanding Through Eastern Europe.

By JOHN LLOYD

MOSCOW, May 13. (AP).—Pierre Laval, French foreign minister, arriving here to-day to confer with Soviet leaders on the European situation, was greeted with one of the most enthusiastic receptions the Bolsheviks have ever accorded a foreign diplomat.

Crowds lined the streets for a mile leading to the station and applauded as the Frenchman was driven by.

Intended partly to signalise the conclusion of the Franco-Russian mutual assistance pact, Laval's visit was expected also to prove opportunity for the statesmen to discuss the possibilities of broadening the understanding to include other eastern European nations.

"So long as Germany and Poland object to collective security arrangements," a spokesman said, "the Franco-Soviet pact is the most effective security guarantee obtainable, but we would welcome an extension of the system to other nations."

Laval will have his only formal conference with Maxim Litvinoff, Commissar for Foreign Affairs, at the foreign office this afternoon. He will speak at the dinner Litvinoff is giving in his honor tonight and meet Joseph Stalin, Soviet dictator, at the Kremlin tomorrow.

Litvinoff personally welcomed Laval at the station, climbing into his railway coach to shake his hand before he descended. The station was decked with French and Soviet Flags and the platform lined with troops.

Litvinoff's daughter, Zynaida wearing cotton stockings, presented Laval's daughter, Jose, a bouquet of white roses.

Seizure Of Chairs Held To Be Illegal

The last word on the recent incident of the seizure of council chamber furniture was a statement at the City Hall this morning to the effect that the chairs occupied by the aldermen were purchased by the City Trust Commission, that they are actually the property of the Commission, and therefore could not be seized in an action against the city through its council.

Civic officials were content to forget about the bailiff's intrusion on an order obtained by G. N. Gordon, but they contended that the seizure could not have succeeded in law because the listed chattels, except probably the Mayor's chair are held in the name of the City Trust Com-

HON. H. H. STEVENS

INTEREST AGAIN BEGINS TURNING TOWARD OTTAWA

Many Members Expected on Hand for Preparations of Opening Monday.

BENNETT DUE SATURDAY.

Premier's Health and Plans For Election Stir Speculation.

OTTAWA, May 13. (CP).—With resumption of the parliamentary session in the air, this week will witness gradual return of members to Ottawa. The House of Commons is not scheduled to resume until next Monday, but many of the members will be here some days before that. Some of them, particularly from Western Canada, did not go home for the Easter recess.

Bennett's Plans

Political interest centres about the return of Prime Minister R. B. Bennett from the jubilee celebrations in London. What the London physicians whom he consulted said about his health, and, hinging on this, what he proposes to do in respect to the coming stirring election campaign, are points which political circles here look forward to clearing up. It is considered probable that Mr. Bennett will take his colleagues into his confidence shortly after he sets foot once again on Canadian shores.

The sessional program for the remainder of the time that Parliament will meet, may be fairly formidable. Based on the report of the Mass Buying Commission, certain bills are said to be almost ready now for submission when the curtain rises on Monday.

Mr. Bennett will probably look over them—he is expected on Saturday—and then they will be ready to go on with. Provided that his health will permit, it is anticipated that the Prime Minister will take over active leadership of the house.

Negotiations Progressing

Negotiations with the United States Government for a trade treaty are said to be progressing. Canada, it is stated, is asking free entry for her cattle and hogs, fish and lumber. Hon. W. D. Herridge, Canadian Minister to Washington, has been in Ottawa for some days discussing negotiations with external affairs' officials.

Conjecture as to the length of the remainder of the session is heard, but there is little on which to base a conclusion. With an election inevitable, however, it seems likely that there will not be much desire on the part of private members to remain in Ottawa longer than necessary.

NEVER PROMISED TO WED ACTRESS PEER TESTIFIES

Revelstoke Denies Proposal Made During Visit in Bedroom.

SUGGESTION FROM GIRL.

"Miss England" of 1930 Claims Banker Asked Her to Elope—She Was Willing.

LONDON, May 13 (A.P.). — Not only did he never promise to marry Angela Joyce, handsome young Lord Revelstoke testified to-day at the beauty contest winner's suit for breach of promise, but he told her he was not interested when she herself brought the matter up.

The "Miss England of 1930," who completed 90 minutes on the stand just before the defendant was called, asserted the young peer proposed matrimony to her, once while he was visiting in her bedroom. She said she accepted.

"Was the question of marriage discussed at any time between you and Miss Joyce?" Lord Revelstoke's attorney asked him.

"Once by her," he replied.

That was about three months after they met, the witness continued, and "I explained to her the question was one I could not contemplate, that it was impossible for me to think of marrying any one."

The discussion began, he said, when Miss Joyce remarked "people who are as fond of each other as we are at the moment generally think of getting married."

He also denied he lay on the actress' bed in her flat, as her testimony had indicated, and proposed to her.

"The question of marriage, love and affection never arose during our conversations on that occasion," he said.

Four-Pound Trout Caught in Cavan

Local anglers were frankly envious as they gazed at a four pound trout measuring 19½ inches on display to-day in the window of T. Anthony's fish shop on Charlotte street, under the market clock.

This speckled beauty was caught by Fred Pepe in a narrow stream of Cavan village.

"I didn't know what I had on the line at first," Mr. Pepe told The Examiner. "I caught fourteen the first day, but there was none of them that took the hook like this lad. I was behind some weeds and couldn't see him. He pulled like a bull dog as I gave him a little line, and before I got him to shore he broke my rod."

Mr. Pepe said he got a big thrill in landing this trout, which bit at a worm in about six feet of water.

"It looks like a Cavan veteran," Dr. Harold Long remarked this morning. "He probably escaped many a battle with hooks along that stream before Pepe got him."

Mr. Pepe intends to have his prize mounted.

Another speckled beauty, practically the twin to the Cavan fish was landed Saturday afternoon at the Mount Pleasant lower pond by J. Mitchell, a farmer of the district. This trout also weighed four pounds.

The princess told her story of the "extreme cruelty" allegedly inflicted upon her by her polo-playing prince

Stevens Addresses Big Mass Meeting In Collegiate Hall

Two Major Conditions in Canada Calling for Immediate Remedy Are Concentration of Wealth and Unfair Competition, Speaker Declares.

FIRST DUTY OF INTELLIGENT DEMOCRACY IS TO CONSIDER WELFARE OF THE OPPRESSED

Believes in Fighting for High Maintenance of Canadian Life—"We Have Slipped, But It Is Not Too Late to Overcome It," Ex-Minister Says.

"I say to you the future life of Canada depends on the people of Peterborough. It depends on how you fit into the picture and on how Canadians in other parts of the Dominion discharge their individual responsibilities as members of a democracy", stated the Honorable H. H. Stevens, former Minister of Trade and Commerce and former chairman of the Price Spread Commission of the House of Commons in addressing a local mass meeting in the Collegiate auditorium Saturday night.

Two major conditions which the Hon. Mr. Stevens said called for an immediate remedy was the concentration of wealth, and unfair competition in business and industry. There was, he stated no justification for any man or group of men acquiring fortune upon fortune at "the expense of the living, sustenance, and virtue of his fellow citizens", and, "unless those who control the wealth will willingly accept their responsibilities, the government must step in and enforce them to do so."

Primary Duty

Urging that the first duty of an intelligent democracy was to consider the welfare of the oppressed and suffering, he said there were those who were not getting fair return for their labor, and so long as such conditions did exist, it was the duty of everyone to be deeply concerned and agitated and to take steps to correct social and economic evils".

The Honorable Mr. Stevens who formerly resided in Peterborough in his youth received a welcome such as has been afforded to few other visitors. He spoke before a capacity audience of over a thousand people under the joint auspices of Peterborough Chamber of Commerce and Peterborough County Branch of the United Farmers of Ontario.

President of Chamber of Commerce

Fred J. Overend, president of Peterborough Chamber of Commerce presided and in his opening remarks stated, "we have been signally honored in having a speaker

Two other men, Richard Evans, 24, Windsor, driver of the truck, and Bert Schwartz a passenger in the truck, escaped unharmed.

The car, a light sedan, was reduced to debris while the truck toppled over on its side into the ditch. The force of the impact hurled Mr. Collins from the car and his body was picked up in the ditch some 15 feet distant from the vehicle.

Death was instantaneous. An examination of the body of Dr. Rosaire of Belle River indicated Mr. Collins had died of a fractured skull. The body was ordered removed to Tilbury by Dr. Stephen P. Millen, coroner of Woodslee, where an inquest will be held.

Mr. Collins caretaker in the Walkerville Post Office building, is survived by his widow and one son, Cecil, aged 15.

Exports of cheese to the United Kingdom totalled 2,800 boxes, with an additional 400 boxes being shipped to Newfoundland and the West Indies. Shipments for the 1935 season to date are now 8,110 boxes, compared with 4,915 boxes this time last year.

The butter market continued the seasonal downturn, No. 1 grade in carlots or less selling at 21c to 21¼c a pound, off about a cent from the previous week. Small lots to retailers brought 22¼c to 23c for solids and a cent more for prints. Receipts were 11,089 boxes, against 8,425 a week ago.

Cheese closed the week at 10c a pound for No. 1 Ontario current. Arrivals totalled 1,913 boxes, compared with 1,716 the previous week.

On the egg market graded shipments closed at 20c a dozen for A-large, 18c for A-medium; 17½c for B and 16½c for C. A total of 17,438 cases was offered for sale, close to 2,000 more than the preceding week.

Quebec potatoes in 80-lb. bags ended the week at 35c to 40c. New Brunswicks at 45c and Prince Edward Islands at 48c. New Floridas brought $3.50 for 100-lb. bags and Bermudas $2.25 to $2.50 for 50-lb. crates.

CHICAGO GRAIN

Heavy deliveries on Chicago May wheat contracts led to sharp downturns of prices Saturday in the wheat markets as a whole.

Forecasts of a general rain in the wheat belt over the week-end added to bearish sentiment. Only transient bullish effects resulted from the Washington official monthly crop report, showing a surprise reduction of the estimated domestic winter wheat yield.

Wheat closed weak ⅝c to 1¼c under Friday's finish; July 93⅞c to 94c; corn, ¾c to 1⅝c down, July, 60¼c to 60⅝c; oats ⅜c to 1c off, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 5c.

Liquidation of May wheat holdings broke out following announcement that the day's deliveries on May contracts here had reached a total of 1,067,000 bushels. May wheat quickly went to a wider discount as compared with July, and the market suffered an extreme drop of 2¼ cents from earlier top levels. Dearth of any adequate fresh speculative buying support was plainly evident, and numerous selling orders to stop losses were forced into execution by the fall of prices.

Corn and oats sympathised when wheat became weak.

Decided curtailment of lard production gave firmness to the provision market.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, May 13. — Wheat exports aggregating 400,000 bushels enabled futures on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange to hold steady against a weak Chicago market on Saturday. Prices closed only ¼c to ⅛c lower after a quiet session.

Net declines of 1⅛c at Chicago had little effect locally, and with operations at a minimum values fluctuated sluggishly within a narrow price range. May closed at 87⅛c and July at 88⅝c, fractionally above their low levels.

A ¼d advance at Liverpool followed a reported improved demand there for wheat, and a bullish construction placed on the United States Government winter wheat crop report on Friday. Buenos Aires was fractionally lower.

Atlantic and Pacific ports shared in Saturday's export business, some of which was low-grade wheat for Antwerp. Vancouver reports said vessels were approaching Victoria and Prince Rupert for full cargoes of wheat.

Further generous rains in Western Canada had little market effect here. Cash and coarse grains idled.

PEACE PREVAILS AT CROWLAND

Unemployed Accept 10 Per Cent Food Increase and Go Back to Jobs.

THANK HEPBURN.

WELLAND, Ont., May 13 (C.P.).—While peace was restored to-day between unemployed and welfare officials after nearly six weeks of intermittent strife, Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn was in receipt of a telegram giving evidence that his efforts as a mediator had not been in vain.

Saturday night when the unemployed of Crowland Township forsook the guidance of agitators, they decided at a general meeting to send a message to the Premier, expressing their attitude. The message follows:

"The unemployed of Crowland Township wish to express their appreciation of the generosity shown to them on May 9 in regard to their grievances; 95 per cent. of the strikers are satisfied and accept your decision; also to Provincial Police Inspector (Chris) Airey for the splendid discipline maintained throughout the situation."

The telegram was signed by eight members of the unemployed committee in behalf of the entire meeting.

The men decided definitely Saturday night to accept Premier Hepburn's offer of a 10 per cent. increase in food allowance and to go back to relief jobs when work was available.

PILSUDSKI DIES, POLAND LOSES GREAT DICTATOR

War Minister Stricken on Ninth Anniversary of His Coup d'Etat.

NATION MOURNS.

Death Gives Diplomats Cause For Fresh Concern Regarding Peace.

By Marylla Chrzamowska

WARSAW, May 13. —(AP)— The death of Marshal Joseph Pilsudski, Poland's dictator, gave diplomats fresh cause for concern today over the outlook for peace in Eastern Europe. Much may depend on who succeeds the iron-willed marshal. It may determine the future of the peace pact system which France is attempting to promote as well as Germany's future attitude toward France's program.

Which Way?

It may also decide whether Poland henceforth will cast her lot with France and Russia which have just concluded a mutual assistance agreement, or whether she will continue along the lines of German rapprochement which Pilsudski himself marked out.

Death came to the 67-year-old ruler of Poland's destinies last night after a three day's illness. His body will be buried among Poland's great in the cathedral of Wawel Castle at Krakow but his heart will rest in Wilno and his brain will be given to science.

These requests Pilsudski himself made of his friends after they prevailed on him to consent to burial at Krakow.

After the news was made in Warsaw the old soldier and statesman had succumbed to internal hemorrhage caused by cancer of the stomach and liver, crowds of bareheaded and weeping mourners gathered outside his home, Belevedere Palace.

Absolute Power

The only official position Pilsudski held was that of minister of war. Yet his power over Polish governmental affairs was virtually absolute.

Speculation over who may be his political heir named General Edward Rydz Smigly, his close friend and popular army leader, Dr. Joseph Beck, foreign minister, and General Kasimir Sosnowski.

Pilsudski's death occurred on the ninth anniversary of the 1926 coup which brought him the powers of a dictator.

CAMPBELLFORD

HEALTHY BALANCE INSTITUTE REPORT

Special Prize Donated for Rural School Fairs—Officers Elected.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 13.—(Examiner Correspondence).—The annual business meeting of the Seymour West W.I. was held at the home of Mrs. George Longmuir last week.

The secretary-treasurer's report was given, also the financial statement, showing a great amount of work done throughout the year and a healthy cash balance on hand. In the absence of Mrs. Charles Macoun, auditor, her report was given by the president, Miss Ruby Dunham, second auditor, adding a few words also.

The committee appointed to decide on what the special prize for the School Fair was to be given reported it is to be a "Milk" or "Dairy Products" poster, size about 18 by 24 inches, and prizes were set at $2, $1.50 and $1. This is open only to the four schools, namely, Connelley's, West's, Fleming's and Trent River.

Mrs. Robert McCulloch was voted to the chair to conduct the election of officers, Mrs. James Watters to act as secretary and Mrs. David Durrant and Mrs. Fred. Macoun as scrutineers. The following officers were elected by ballot: President, Mrs. Howard Clark; first vice, Mrs. Robert McCulloch; second vice, Mrs. Garnet Curle; third vice, Mrs. Gordon Johnston; secretary-treasurer, Miss Maggie Waddell; district director, Mrs. Garnet Curle; board of directors, Mrs. Henry McKelvie, Mrs. Allan Lewis, Mrs. Gordon Shearer, Mrs. Douglas Rutherford; auditors, Mrs. James Watters and Mrs. Garnet Curle; home and school committee, Mrs. George Nelson, Mrs. E. McConnell, Mrs. Gordon Shearer, Mrs. James Clark; district representatives to attend district annual to be held at Colborne on Thursday, June 6, Mrs. Howard Clark, Mrs. Garnet Curle, Mrs. Percy Wood, Mrs. Charles Craighead, Miss Maggie Waddell.

It was decided to take advantage of the offer made by Mr. A. H. Martin, agricultural representative, to give a half day during the summer in poultry promotion work, as Northumberland ranks about highest in the province of Ontario along this line. Fuller announcement will be made later as to date, place of gathering and so on. No further donation was made to the School Fair in general on account of the heavy responsibilities in other lines.

In future the program committee for each month will appoint someone to occupy the chair for the social part; also someone is to be appointed monthly to give two to five minutes on current events, Mrs. R. W. Free to act for June.

The June meeting will convene at Mrs. Gordon Johnston's on the third Thursday as usual. The contest for the past year on attendance, early joining, answering roll call, exhibiting and so on was closed, the prize, a very nice hand-made woollen over rayon hairpin work cushion, going to Mrs. Harold Shaw with 220 points, Mrs. Ernest Fairman was a close second with 185 points.

Everyone was urged to attend the musical festival to be held in the Campbellford High School auditorium on Friday evening, May 17, when several schools receiving special musical training will put on a delightful program. There is no set admission fee.

Miss Ruby Dunham took the chair for the remainder of the program. An instrumental duet by the Misses Brown, of Trent River, and a contest, jumbled names of Campbellford's street, were much enjoyed. The winning group in the contest consisted of Mrs. John Locke, Mrs. J. Mitchell, Mrs. Marshall Longmuir, Mrs. Free and the president.

How a Pale, Run-down Girl Became Positively PRETTY

In a Canadian city a certain girl consulted an authority who examined her, weighed her and tested a sample of her blood. The test showed the haemoglobin in her blood to be only 68% instead of the normal 90% to 95% for a woman. Her weight was 91½ pounds. With her blood testing only 68% haemoglobin, it was only natural for this young woman to be pale and colorless, and lacking in pep and energy, because haemoglobin is not only the coloring material in the blood, it is also the precious element that carries the vitalizing, energizing oxygen from the lungs to every organ and tissue of the body.

What Her Advisor Told Her To Do the authority instructed the girl to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills (called pink because they have a pink sugar coating) three times a day for a month and return for another blood test. He knew the formula for Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and recognized their value and safety.

One month later this patient's blood had been so greatly enriched that the haemoglobin had increased 20%. Her weight had increased to 100½ pounds—a nine-pound gain. In the words of her advisor, "She had a lot more color, her face had rounded out and she was positively pretty". Her complexion had the glow caused by rich, red, healthy blood. She was revitalized and strengthened with new stores of vigor and energy, and appeared just as fresh and attractive as the girl whose photo is shown above.

Try This Beauty and Health Treatment Yourself

If your face is thin and haggard, your complexion pale, sallow and old-looking, your body underweight, your digestion poor, your nerves bad, your blood thin, your energy below par, take the tried and proven blood builder, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. It's a genuine complexion beautifier and a builder of health and vigor. Your druggist has it—50c a package.

MAN SOJOURNER ON THIS EARTH

Rev. Dr. Scott MacKenzie Preaches at St. Paul's 102nd Anniversary.

ELOQUENT MESSAGES

Two eloquent gospel messages were delivered yesterday at St. Paul's Presbyterian Church by the Rev. Dr. Scott MacKenzie, principal of Montreal College of the Presbyterian Church in Canada. It was the 102nd anniversary of Presbyterianism in the city and the fiftieth of the opening of the present church building. Before a very large congregation in the morning Dr. MacKenzie took his text from Hebrews 11:13, "These all died in faith not having received the promises but having seen them afar off — and confessed that they were strangers and pilgrims on the earth.

The speaker in his opening remarks translated the word "pilgrim" as a sojourner or exile and he mentioned that such examples were not isolated in the Bible but many could be found. "It is often said of good men that they are not at home in this world but they are just passing their time of sojourn here, for they see life's relative values clearly and their whole life is set on things unseen."

Dr. MacKenzie gave as one of the main criticisms of the Christian faith to-day as being "too other worldly." A thing which cannot in the preacher's opinion be denied with accuracy. He said the proper and consistent attitude of all Christians towards the world in which they live should be as strangers. "Man is so constituted that even with all his riches he cannot regard this world as his home for he has a deeper desire that there is something that cannot give him and that desire is 'life.' Rich, fuller and more abundant life."

He put at the bottom of all man's social discontent to-day that desire for the thing that the world cannot give him. The speaker commended the social reform of the present as being justified but no matter even if a Utopia was created it still would not be home for man. He would continue to feel that he was a stranger and exile and the prospect of death would bring to a close his happiness. Man would still continue to seek for something essential and that which he knows to be good. This instinct the speaker maintained was a mark of man's divine origin.

"God's gift to us in Jesus was eternal life and this is the only gift that will satisfy our deepest needs and to reach this life Christ demands our best efforts to purge this world of things detestable."

Special music was sung by the choir at both services, while the altar was banked with more than a score of donations of beautiful flowers presented in the memory of many loved ones who had been great workers in the congregation in years gone by.

Weddings

KINGDON—ROBIDAS.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized at St. Peter's Cathedral on Saturday morning, May 11th, by the Rev. J. T. Finn, when Mereida Robidas, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Robidas of Sherbrooke Street, became the bride of Mr. Thomas Kingdon of Peterborough.

The bride, who was given in marriage by Mr. William Francis, wore a becoming ankle-length dress of blue crepe, and a shoulder bouquet of Premier roses.

Attendants were Miss Margaret Allen and Mr. James Allen.

After the ceremony, a dainty wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Samuel Clarke of Simcoe Street.

Mr. and Mrs. Kingdon left later for a short honeymoon trip to Toronto and Niagara Falls, the bride travelling in a navy blue suit with matching accessories. They will reside in Peterborough.

The bridegroom's gift to the bride was a pearl necklace, to the bridesmaid an amethyst necklace, and ring, and to the best man an encased razor.

So pussy was informed and next day hurried off by plane and is now an honored guest at the camp.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

The positioning of a bedstead is the most important matter when arranging furniture in a chamber. Once there was a superstition, or so considered, that the head of the bed should be toward the north because of the sleeper occupying it being in the most fortunate wave lengths of air currents for health. Today this it not considered seriously. Whether it should be or not, time and discoveries in the ether of the air alone can demonstrate. Meanwhile there seems to be no reason for believing in this old superstition. So whichever way the architectural structure of the chamber makes most suitable for the bedstead to be placed there it must be and the homemaker has no choice. There is but one correct place in the room if the chamber is to accommodate the other articles of bedroom furniture.

• • • • • •

When there is a choice of positions the comfort of the sleeper should be of paramount importance, with the best placing for good decoration being a close second. It frequently happens that a change of positions is desirable for winter and summer. In cold weather, the sleeper should avoid being in a draught if this can be managed, while in hot weather every breath of air is welcome and seldom is detrimental.

• • • • • • •

For ease in making a bed its position should permit the one making it to get either side conveniently, and preferably without moving the bedstead. To pull out a bedstead every day is hard on floors and carpets, to say nothing of the bother of it. Also when two occupy the same bed, each should be "on the outside," unless this is impossible to so arrange. When this is so, the next best thing is to pull the bedstead out a bit from the wall at night. It can remain so until the bed is made in the morning, for this eaves the floor from a second run of the casters.

• • • • • • •

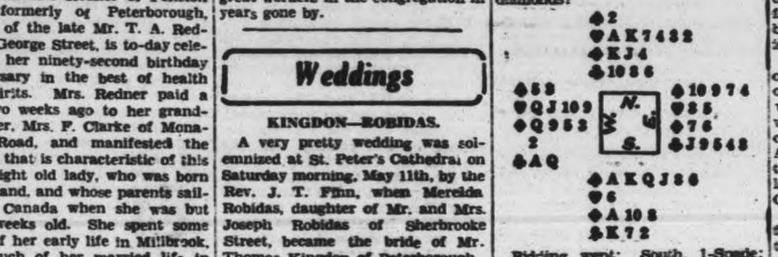
There are persons who find the light from a window disturbing when the bed faces a window. Position the bedstead if possible, to avoid such annoyance. If, however, it proves unavoidable, or the decoration is definitely spoiled by such a plan, let the bed stand where it looks best, and provide a screen to be positioned between bedstead and window at night. When considering light, do not omit to have a bedside light which can be within reach of switching off an on, and conveniently placed for reading in bed. This reading may be a bad habit, but it is one which is customary that a good light is essential to minimize the supposedly undesirable effects.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By E. V. Shepard

HOW MANY CAN SOUTH TAKE?

I recently saw the following instructive hand played. North's jump to a small slam in his partner's suit was hardly justified. He should have bid only 5-Spades, to see if South could afford to bid the small slam. How many can you make against an opening lead of the 3 of diamonds?



Bidding went: South, 1-Spade; North, 2-Hearts; South, 3-Spades, to force partner's further bidding; North, 4-Hearts; South, 4-Spades; North, 6-Spades, which held the call.

West wanted to take two, instead of perhaps only a singe defensive trick, so he did not lead his Ace of clubs, he led instead the 3 of diamonds, which the declarer allowed to run around to his hand. East played the 6, showing by the "rule of 11" that the two diamonds held by East higher than the 3 were the 6 and 7 and that he had played the lower of his "equals." Had East held the Q or 9 he would have played higher than he did. South's 8 won the trick. He took four rounds of winning trumps, discarding from dummy its three clubs. Then South led a heart and won two tricks. He ruffed a heart, but he found, as he should have expected, the six missing cards of that suit divided 4-2, and not 3-3. West's Q still blocked the suit. South was in a fix. His ace of diamonds blocked that suit. He led off the ace, then he led his 10 and took the trick in dummy. He led a low heart and on it discarded his lowest club. West was in with the Q of hearts. He led his Q of diamonds and the declarer ruffed, only to be forced to give West two clubs tricks and go down two tricks on his contract.

South should have played the hand as follows, and made a grand slam, no matter what opponents did. Win the diamond lead with the Ace of the suit. Take four rounds of trumps, throwing away dummy's three clubs. Sixth lead the lone 6 of hearts. Win with the K. Never mind whether or not you take the ace. That can wait. Ruff a heart with one of the two trumps still left the declarer. Lead the 10 of diamonds. Win with the K or J, the latter in case West plays low. Lead another low heart. Ruff with declarer's last spade. All but one heart is down and dummy holds the A-7-4. Lead declarer's last diamond. Overtake with dummy's last and top diamond. Lead the ace of hearts, followed by the three small hearts. These last three cards are good. On them let go declarer's three clubs, for a grand slam.

At the Theatres

AT THE CAPITOL

"LEST WE FORGET"
At The Capitol Today and Tomorrow. Historic Document

Now showing at the Capitol Theatre is the epic story of Canadian participation in the Great War. It is unfolded in the official release of the Canadian Government's war film, "Lest We Forget," exhibited under the auspices of the Canadian Legion, a release reproduced with "sound" and culled from hundreds of thousands of feet of film, "lost" for more than ten years in the basement of a government building in Ottawa.

An advisory committee composed of men identified with the war period portrayed assisted the technical workers in stringing together a vivid picture of the hostilities. The committee included Major-General A. G. MacNaughton, Col. A. Fortescue Duguid, Capt. William Douglas, Capt. F. C. Badgley and Dr. A. G. Doughty, Dominion archivist.

To the extent that these war films were photographed at the time and on the occasion of the event they portray, they are history—a record whose accuracy cannot be gainsaid. And the fascination of learning history by that medium lies in seeing the personalities, who made it, actually in their creative process on the screen.

Many of them have died since the close of the war, their names only a memory and their achievements scarcely even known by the new generation that has grown up. Their resurrection in this fashion reveals the motion-picture fulfilling a task, the value of which it is difficult to over-estimate.

New Modes Feature Leather Accessories

By RACHEL GAYMAN

(Copyright 1935 by the Havas News Agency.

PARIS, May 13.—(CP-Havas)—Importance of accessories in the smart woman's costume cannot be too often emphasized.

Leather as soft as silk, and as easily worked, after being tanned, softened, stretched and dyed in many colors, is being used to create ensembles of trimmings and accessories.

One of the most attractive examples of the new mode is the ensemble for an elegant purple-blue afternoon dress. A high white belt is perforated in a tiny charming design, and the gloves, shoes and purse of the same white leather repeat this cut-out design through which shows a background the same shade as the dress. A blue or white hat is trimmed with the same motif. A black dress is set off by a similar ensemble in white or a new beige-rose, very soft and becoming. For the evening the only change is that the leather is silver or gold kid.

THE C.C.F. CANDIDATE.

In selecting Dr. Lorna Cotton as their candidate in the federal campaign local C.C.F. adherents have not only chosen a standard-bearer who will do honor to their cause but they have made political history.

Dr. Cotton has the distinction of being the first woman candidate to face the electorate in this constituency either in a federal or in a provincial campaign—although it is not her initial appearance in the political arena, inasmuch as she was the unsuccessful C.C.F. nominee in the provincial election in Durham in June last.

Her sex will be no handicap to the C.C.F. candidate so far as eloquence and ability to discuss political and economic issues clearly and forcibly are concerned.

Dr. Cotton, who holds the degree of doctor of philosophy, is a pleasing speaker, and from the viewpoint of education and platform experience need ask no quarter from any other candidate who may happen to be in the field.

As a matter of fact, her acceptance of the nomination ensures for the C.C.F. cause the most favorable trial it could expect in this constituency, for while there seems little likelihood of the organization's policies being sufficiently endorsed to bring success at the polls, the candidature of Dr. Cotton gives assurance that those policies will be presented to the electorates most eloquently and forcibly by a candidate of pleasing personality and standing high in the esteem of all who have made her acquaintance, and if they are rejected, as The Examiner feels bound to predict that they will, it will be in spite of and not because of the choice made by the C.C.F. party on Friday night.

A WONDERFUL MOVEMENT.

Peterborough sent a notable quota of Girl Guides and Boy Scouts to Toronto on Saturday to take part in the "Jamboree" which welcomed General Sir Robert Baden-Powell, founder of the Scout movement.

The visit must have been an inspiration to every Guide and Scout in the vast throng gathered to do honor to a man whose services to the Empire in time of war, great as they were, have been far surpassed by his service to the whole world in the piping days of peace.

No one man has done so much for youth everywhere as has Baden-Powell in the wonderful organization he founded and which has spread all over the world.

The Scout movement and the Girl Guide work have been a contribution to good citizenship unmatched by that of any other agency; they have provided an outlet for the "gang" spirit among boys and girls, have substituted systematized recreation along useful lines for the unguided amusements of earlier times, imparted valuable training, and developed a sense of honor, responsibility and discipline among thousands of teen age boys and girls in many lands.

To Sir Robert and Lady Baden-Powell it must be a constant source of gratification as they travel around the world to gaze into the sea of bright youthful faces that greet them everywhere, and to realise that they have been privileged to launch a movement that has brought so much happiness to youth and that means so much to them in later years.

The best proof, of course, of the success of the Boy Scout-Girl Guide cause is that it is continually expanding and enlisting new recruits daily.

MR. STEVENS' PLACE.

That Hon. H. H. Stevens is bound to be an important factor in the approaching federal election no one who heard his eloquent and impressive address in the Collegiate auditorium on Saturday could doubt.

While the former Minister of Trade and Commerce did not cover any new ground and confined his remarks to a discussion of some of the revelations brought about by the mass buying and price spreads investigation, the representative audience that was present to hear him, the attention with which his address was followed, the frequent outbursts of applause, and above all, the fact that his hearers were impressed with the sincerity of the man, all combined to show that Mr. Stevens cannot fail to be a prominent figure in the political battle that is upon us.

Whether he will fight in that war as leader of the Government forces as a lieutenant of Mr. Bennett's or merely as a private member becomes a matter of great interest, and may eventually prove to be the issue upon which the result of the election will hinge.

The Premier is on the way home, and until he arrives Canada will be more or less at sea as to his intentions for the future.

Should, however, it prove that Mr. Bennett's decision will be to retire from the turmoil of political strife, it is to be imagined that the rank and file of the Conservative party throughout the country will demand that the leader's mantle shall be drooped over the shoulders of Mr. Stevens; on the other hand, if Mr. Bennett remains in command there will be an equally insistent call for the return of the former Minister to the Cabinet.

Mr. Stevens' address here and his reception from his local audience supply just another proof that his active participation in the counsels of the Government are essential to his party's success.

MAKING IT SAFER.

In vivid contrast to the suspended sentences handed out by Magistrate Gee in two recent local cases of drunken driving is the drastic treatment that is being accorded in Toronto courts to motorists who attempt to mix gasoline and alcohol.

Even although the charge in a number of instances was that of reckless driving rather than driving while drunk, the Queen City magistrates have been "cracking down" with a vengeance upon convicted offenders.

The favorite penalty is a fine of $50 a jail term of from seven to fourteen days and the suspension of driving licenses for six months, which may seem drastic punishment, but nevertheless is about the only effective way of convincing a certain class of motorist that to drive while his faculties are impaired by drinking is to be guilty of an offence that the authorities propose to tolerate no longer.

The fine and jail sentences, it is presumed, are intended as a warning to other motorists who may be in need of it, but in The Examiner's opinion the important part of the punishment is the cancellation of the right to drive.

That should act as a deterrent and cause other drivers to do some useful thinking, but even if it fails to bring about that result it keeps the most flagrant offenders off the highways for at least six months, and that surely is a consummation devoutly to be wished.

The Toronto courts have ordered at least a dozen drivers in the last few days to stay away from the wheel of their cars, and to that extent at least they have done a great deal to make conditions safer for the public.

THE UNITED STATES AND THE KING'S JUBILEE.

Not the least happy feature of the celebration of the King's silver jubilee is the informed and sympathetic interest evinced in it by the people of the United States. For days past the leading newspapers of the Republic have carried lengthy cable despatches and articles about the celebration, while editorial comment is couched in language of transparent friendship. A good example of this comment as a whole is the following from the New York Times:

"King George represents, in fact, the ingrained British idea of a 'good' monarch. This has no reference to his personal benevolence and charities, which have been sufficiently marked, but to his public behavior in the kingship. He has to be content to regard himself as little but a figurehead in the British Government. But what a figurehead that is! It means that British rule remains continuous and steady through all the changes of political circumstances. Parties may gain or lose office; prime ministers may come or go; laws may be repealed or made over; taxes may become increasingly burdensome; social conventions may be completely altered—yet all the while there is the person of the King at Windsor to assure the people that the British Constitution still stands, and that out of the party disputes and strife an orderly government will emerge again."

And the New York Times goes further, thus:

"Nor will the United States be lacking in official and unofficial messages of appreciation to the British King. He has always shown himself a good friend of America. The feeling that the United States and Great Britain ought to co-operate for common ends and world-purposes is perhaps stronger here to-day than at any time since the war. As King George is known to share this belief, it is not improper or immodest for America to claim the right to take part in his jubilee."

To the peoples of all the Empire, and to Canadians in particular, this must be most welcome. Great Britain and the United States have had, and have, their differences, but underlying everything there has been, after all, a great deal in common. It would be a wonderful thing if, at this time, when co-operation between the British Empire and the United States holds so much of hope for the world, the celebration of the King's jubilee helped to bring the two peoples together. It would add the last great touch of an event already historic.—Ottawa Journal.

MINING AS A SOLUTION.

Writing in the Mines and Oils Weekly, of Toronto, Mr. N. W. Kingsland contends that unemployment can be abolished in Canada through intense mining development. Mr. Kingsland claims that the "present so-called public works to help unemployment are just so much wallpaper and interior decoration compared to the genuine foundation-building program" that would take shape if our mining industry were given "parental and timely sponsorship."

The author offers a convincing argument in that, "for every man sent to work in a mine, some 25 people in various other lines of occupation step forward to their respective tasks to keep up, unbroken, the flow of goods and supplies which are necessary to sustain the one miner on duty."

He says further: "Canada's mining industry has reached the point where an effort, on the scale of a massed attack, should be made to bring before every man and woman of mature age the fact that every ounce of food they eat, every stitch of clothing they wear and the facilities for every pleasure in which they participate are directly or indirectly vitalized by this industry. Invest with the mines and they will return it in dividends and buy your products. There is plenty of money in Canada, money that is starved for work. Interest rates are bound to be low for some years to come all over the world. No one wants to eat up capital and this money must therefore work. The best managed and most useful industries are going to attract that capital, and this is where we should lay all stress upon advertising our mining industry and its advantages."

Mr. Kingsland has presented a case that deserves consideration. All of us would be pleased to see thousands of able-bodied men back in the labor market. The article is interesting and timely, when one recalls that Hon. W. A. Gordon, Dominion Minister of Mines, announced in the House on Wednesday, plans for a geological drive in eight provinces. This drive would employ 900 men during the summer.—Border Cities Star.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Save and be safe with life insurance, is the commendable slogan of Life Insurance Week. It is worth remembering.

Once again there are reports that the lignite fields in Northern Ontario are to be developed. Mr. Ferguson made a similar announcement some time ago, and it was subsequently decided by Mr. Hepburn. Now the story bobs up again, so there may be something in it after all.

The official chairs at the City Hall are out of the web of the law again, and the city's business can go on as usual. It probably would have in any case.

Chain letters have even invaded the territory of the Dionne quintuplets, but the harvest in that quarter will be exactly nothing as all the letters have gone into the fire.

What's in the Name of Canadian Cities and Towns?

by FRANK H. WILLIAMS

STRATHROY, ONTARIO

One hundred and three years ago John Stewart Buchanan gazed on this fertile valley one fine spring day, became imbued with its industrial possibilities of the location, and thus became the first citizen of the town, a man whose name will be revered so long as the town shall last.

Colonizing of the town was slow, but steady, with stores, mills and residences springing up as occasion warranted and growth demanded. Today the town numbers 3,000 souls and boasts of being one of the prettiest, cleanest and most prosperous towns in Canada.

The town takes its name from an obscure parish in Ireland, but the name of the one who chose the name has been lost in the mists of obscurity. The first syllable, Strath, means valley, while roy, the last syllable, means red. The literal translation is Red Valley.

Your Health

by DR. LOGAN CLENDENING

In the valuable summary of his long years of work in the field of nutrition, the book called "Food and Health," Dr. Henry C. Sherman points to six concepts as fundamental for the choice of our daily diet:

(1) The energy aspect.
(2) The proteins and their amino-acids.
(3) The mineral elements.
(4) The vitamins.
(5) The interelations among these various factors.
(6) The principle that our most significant concern is with the nutritional reactions of the living body as a whole—as a co-ordinated whole which (in some respects, at least) is more than a mere summation of its parts.

These principles are of importance for the housewife to keep in mind. Economic food is not necessarily cheap food. And expensive food is not necessarily nutritious food. Modern nutritional science has placed at the housewife's disposal facts which will enable her to plan well balanced and scientific food for her charges at nearly an economic level.

So far as the first—the energy aspect—of the dictary is concerned, experiments were made at the beginning of this century on the "man in the copper box", which showed exactly how much energy would be yielded to the "man in the street" from the various kinds of foodstuffs. In general, we know that starches, sugars, fats and proteins all yield energy.

Proteins Play Two Roles

Proteins, however, which, chemically, are made up of combinations of amino-acids, have essentially another role to play in nutrition. They are needed to build tissue. What is left over from our protein intake, not actually used to build tissue, will act as an energizer. Thus there is a considerable leeway on the question of HOW MUCH protein is required, and habit has much to do with it. The different kinds of amino-acids, however, have been found to vary in their value, and certain are necessary for buoyant health.

The importance of the mineral elements in diet has become increasingly emphasized as medical research has shown their action. To arrange a place for them in the diet is, in fact, more important for humans than for farm animals, on account of the tendency to refinement of food prepared for mankind. Iron, calcium, phosphorus, iodine and salt must all be part of a well-balanced diet.

Along with the emphasis on mineral products, has come that on the vitamins, those elusive elements in food which are so necessary for complete health.

But the mere fact that all these elements are present in the diet does not, by any means, exhaust the possibilities of the way in which they can act—their inter-relationships. Thus the energy balance of the body is speeded up by the action of the secretion of the thyroid gland, which depends for its full activity on a plentiful supply of the mineral, iodine. The proper use of the minerals, calcium and phosphorus, depends for their action on the presence of vitamin D.

ALL OF US

SHINNY ON YOUR OWN SIDE

You can go your way, follow your own nose.

Enjoy life as you wish; pick your own friends; take cold showers; and eat spinach.

Drive too fast on the highway; jam into some other fellow; bust up you car; and say it was the other fellow's fault.

Be old-fashioned and moan about any wild idea that's current today; be newer than next week's dew and howl about the stick-in-the-muds who hate any new idea just because it's new.

Be sensitive and complain about snubs; be tough and elbow people out of your way.

Keep a chip on your shoulder; plant thistles all around you; pick a bunch of poison ivy.

Get married and have a big family; or none at all; or stay single.

Keep your nose to the grindstone or flutter like a butterfly; be a busy ant or a Bengal tiger; scream like a parrot, or be mum as a giraffe.

Do anything but bother your head about ME!

Let me go MY way, too. I'll—

Go to any movie that I like, pick my own friends, too.

Risk my neck; read the funny papers; trust people who are no good; avoid very nice people who don't interest me at all.

Grouch and gloom and say things I don't mean; bite off my nose to spite my face; take salad instead of soup or soup instead of salad.

Put my feet on the desk; ask too many questions; curl up in my shell; be an idiot, a pessimist, a gullible ass.

You go your way. I'll go mine. I'll keep off your toes, you keep off mine. You be YOU, and let me be ME....You shinny on your own side and I'll keep our chickens out of your kitchen garden....I'll keep our boundary fences mended and we'll get along fine. You be a good neighbor, and I'll try it, too... Isn't that a good idea? ?

ON THIS DATE

A DAY IN CANADIAN HISTORY

By Fred Williams

VICTORY AT BATOCHE

On this date (May 13) in 1885 newspaper readers of Winnipeg and eastern Canada were told in a brief telegraphic despatch that there had been a severe battle at Batoche the previous day, that our militia had behaved in accordance with the best traditions of their forefathers in 1812-13, that the rebel citadel had been taken and that Riel and Dumont and those left of the half breeds were in flight. It was a couple of days before the details of the battle reached the east.

On the morning of May 12, General Middleton had given the order that Batoche must be taken that day. The troops took up their positions. A few shots were fired by the artillery; a man came out with a white flag. It was Astley, one of Riel's prisoners, with a letter from the rebel chief stating that if any of the women and children were "murdered", he would massacre the prisoners. Astley went back with a message that Riel must surrender at once or the fight would be on. The rebel delayed, meanwhile getting his position strengthened. It was mid afternoon. The attack began. All the forces did well, but it was the infantry who won the fight. General Middleton in his official report wrote: "The Midland and the Grenadiers, led by Lieut.-Colonels Williams and Grassett, dashed forward with a cheer and drove the enemy out of the pits and the ravine. They kept pushing on gallantly until they had the edge of the bluffs."

All commentators agree that it was this charge which won the fight. This can be said without any disparagement of the work of the artillery, the scouts and the 90th who all did their bit. When the village was reached it was found that Riel and Dumont had escaped. Fourteen rebel prisoners were taken. The Catholic priest told the general that as a result of the three days fighting the rebels had 51 killed and 173 wounded. The militia lost 8 killed and 47 wounded. And Middleton laid stress upon the fact that with a force of less than 400 he "drove with heavy loss over 600 halfbreeds and Indians." The Canadians killed in action were: Gunner Phillips, "A" Battery, Lieut. Fitch and Pte. Moor, 10th Grenadiers, Ptes. R. R. Hardisty and James Fraser, 90th; Capt. E. T. Brown, Boulton's Scouts; Captain John French; and Lieut. Kippen. "A" Battery had 4 wounded, the 10th Grenadiers 18, the 90th 11 and the Midland 7.

Market Closing On All Exchanges

WALL STREET

NEW YORK, May 13.—(AP)—After milling about irregularly in early dealings and absorbing considerable profit taking, the stock market rallied in the afternoon under the leadership of the motors and scattered industrial specialties. The activity broadened on the recovery.

American Crystal Sugar preferred was a star performer with a gain of some eight points. Cuban-American Sugar preferred was also up three. General Motors and Chrysler moved up fractionally to about a point on heavy buying. Air Reduction advanced five and improvement was shown by Anaconda, American Can, Santa Fe, Union Pacific and U. S. Steel. Consolidated Gas and American Telephone sagged. The late tone was rather firm. Transfers approximated 1,250,000 shares.

Six Nations Indians Send Loyal Message

BRANTFORD, Ont., May 13 (CP)—Giving fervent expression of their loyalty, the Six Nations Indian Council has forwarded a resolution of congratulation to Their Majesties King George and Queen Mary, on the attainment of the silver anniversary of their accession to the throne.

"We beg to confirm the continuance of our loyalty to Your Majesties and to the flag which our warriors have demonstrated in many wars fought side by side with Imperial troops since British and Indians first clasped the hand of friendship," said the resolution.

STRONG TREND IN INDUSTRIALS

Oils Touch New Tops But Part of Gains in Late Hour Selling.

LIQUOR STOCKS WEAK.

TORONTO, May 13 (C.P.) — Metals and steels swung in behind the oils to give the industrial board of the Toronto Exchange strong leadership on the upside to-day, the board showing a preponderance of gains to-day. The oils touched new tops, International Pete at 38½ and Imperial at 29, but profit-taking expanded in the last hour, and the tops were trimmed, leaving the leaders, however, with substantial net gains. The liquor stocks were weak.

International Petroleum touched 38½ before selling back close to 37 for a net gain of better than a point. Imperial finished the day with about a half point to the good. Supertest lost a fraction.

Nickel hit 29 and Smelters 164½, but they eased back to nose out with narrow gains. Brazilian gained more than a half point, and C.P.R. added a smaller fraction.

Losses up to a half point were registered for Walkers Common, Distillers Seagrams, and Industrial Alcohol "A".

Triplets Are Born Brockville Hospital

The Voelkischer Beobachter, personal organ of Chancellor Adolf Hitler, stated:

"Germany lowers her falgs over the tomb of this great statesman, who was the first to have the courage to collaborate openly and with confidence with Nazi Germany in the spirit of the new era."

It is believed the work of strengthening the friendship between the two countries will be carried on by the Marshal's successor.

COURT STUMPED

HULL, Que., May 13. (CP).—Court authorities here were placed in a quandary to-day when Michael Ryan, aged 70 of Old Chelsea, was arraigned before Judge A. Metayer on charges of being in possession of apparatus used in the illegal manufacture of alcohol.

Ryan is stone deaf and was unable to understand the charge against him. After repeated efforts of L. P. Mercier to explain the offence, Ryan shook his head sadly and said: "But I tell you I didn't steal anything."

The court then showed him the printed complaint but the accused was unable to read or write. A remand was ordered until to-morrow when Judge and R.C.M.P. officer, who laid the charge will confer on how to proceed.

NEVER PROMISED TO WED ACTRESS

with him "and I was perfectly willing."

The pretty actress, who said Revelstoke called her "teedies" and she called him "boodles" testified the young nobleman told her his father was opposed to their association and threatened to disinherit his son.

Miss Joyce said Lord Revelstoke never gave her any present and told her at one time they were being watched by private detectives. She told of a burglary in her flat in which papers, including some of the young lord's letter's were taken.

The reading of a telegram from Lord Revelstoke to Miss Joyce asking her to send him a kiss by wire gave a sensational sendoff to the resumption of the heart balm suit which the actress has brought against the nobleman. No specific sum has been mentioned.

A Kiss By Wire

"Send me a kiss by wire, Honey," said the telegram which Joyce's attorney introduced. "Hy heart's on fire. Every ounce of love. Signed Robin."

More letters filled with fervent expressions of love were also entered in the court record at the behest of the actress' counsel.

"Darling, I shall adore and love you forever and forever for paying me the greatest compliment of my life," one read. "Oh, I am flying so high—so high that every time that I see you I feel that I have reached the top.

"I am crying, praying and loving you every second of my life," read the postscript of another letter.

Neville Laski Miss Joyce's attorney, said after Lord Revelstoke's father found a photograph of the young woman in a letter from her he laid down the law to his son so vigorously the young nobleman "fainted with nervous excitement."

The lawyer then continued with his letter reading, presenting another missive, which said:

"I wish I could remember my dreams in the morning as I know they must be about you."

Another told "Darling Angela," that "there are no words that can possible express my love for you and it annoys me to think that I cannot do it."

Under cross-examination, Miss Joyce emphatically denied she brought the suit for publicity.

"I have brought it for damages, for reparations," she asserted.

Her Letters Equally Ardent

She said she answered all of Revelstoke's letters, declaring each one of hers was "every bit as ardent" as his.

Their acquaintanceship was temporarily broken off in 1931, Miss Joyce related, to be resumed in 1932.

She described how Lord Revelstoke, in her bedroom, where she said she had taken him clothes she was to wear in a play, "again asked me to marry him." She quoted him as saying:

"Let's get married, Angela. I can do what I like now."

No Publicity Stunt

Miss Joyce, who broke into tears at one point in her testimony, spent 90 minutes on the stand. She was most emphatic in her denial the suit was brought for publicity purposes.

Declaring she filed the action "for damages," the actress said, "I would have been Lady Revelstoke and I suffered mental torture them. I broke down and couldn't work."

The defence attorney asked her why she posed at Hollywood for a photograph showing her holding a picture of Lord Revelstoke.

"I wanted people to know he had promised to marry me," she replied, "that he had not kept his promise that he was to be mine."

Protest From Theatres Will Be Useless—Hepburn

TORONTO, May 13 (C.P.). — Theatre owners protesting the revised Ontario tax which goes into effect June 1 were wasting their efforts and there would be no change in the new tax schedule, Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn said to-day.

The feature of the new tax was an impost on tickets for 25 cents or less. Formerly these were tax-free. Tickets up to nine cents will have a one-cent tax, those 18 cents and under will bear a two-cent tax, while tickets 45 cents and under will carry a five-cent tax.

"The Act will be enforced rigidly," said Mr. Hepburn. "We need the money for relief purposes, and we are going to raise it from this source."

END OF THE ANCHOR LINE

LONDON, May 13 (CP Cable)—An order for the compulsory winding-up of the Anchor Line was made by Mr. Justice Grossman to-day on a petition of the Union Bank of Scotland, creditors for £1,132,000 (approximately $5,500,000).

PRICE CHANGES IN GOLD STOCKS

Few Base Metals Such as Noranda and Sherritt Move Into Higher Ground.

CLOSING TONE STRONG.

TORONTO, May 13.—(CP).— The Toronto mining market was active to-day with price adjustments mainly in the gold shares while awaiting the speech to-night by Secretary Morgenthau on the monetary policy of the United States. A few base metals such as Noranda and Sherritt essayed a bullish forecast of tthe Morgenthau statement by moving into higher ground on heavy trading but the general run of metals including the silvers were inclined to await definite information. The market closed steady to strong.

Hollinger and Siscoe were sold for substantial recessions part of which were made up later. Hollinger touched 15.66 but recovered to the $16 for a small net loss. Siscoe at 2.85 was off 18 but the close was around 2.90. San Antonio approached 3.70 and Little Long Lac, God's Lake, Coniarum and Pickle Crow closed firm to strong.

Sheritt Gordon was up about 8 cents. Noranda closed above $40 and small gains were registered for Base Metals Corporation, Hudson Bay and Mining Corporatinon.

Silver issues developed few price changes. Peterson-Cobalt sold off a fraction, Eldorado 7 and Castle 4.

COOL WEATHER

in Middlesex were developing unevenly.

Durham county reported the majority of fall wheat in the southern part of the county had been winter killed but farther north there are some good fields. Growth was reported slow in Ontario and Muskoka and Parry Sound. Reports from Hastings said considerable grain was coming up well. Cold weather in Peterborough retarded the growth of spring grains.

Frontenac noted improvement in the condtions of alfalfa and new seedings. Feed has been scarce in Grenville and while 50 per cent. of the young stock has been turned out to pasture the animals are in rather poor conditions. Meadows looked promising in Leeds but seeding has been delayed by cool weather.

More Barley Planted.

Reporting a decided increase in the demand for malting barley, Prescott and Russell expected a decided acreage increase over last year.

Weather during the past few few weeks was hard on over-winter crops in Temiskaming and in some cases farmers found it necessary to reseed part of their fields. Crops in Algoma made a satisfactroy growth during the week Seeding in Kenora and Rainy River was held up by rain.

Injunction Issued Against Beer Vote

(Examiner Correspondence)

LINDSAY, May 13.—R. I. Moore of Lindsay acting for certain ratepayers in the village of Coboconk has issued a writ against Mr. I. A. Humphries K.C. chief electoral officer for Ontario and against Chas. Callan, clerk of the township of Bexley against the holding of an election in Bexley Township, on Wednesday next on the question of continuance of the beverage room at Coboconk. It is understood that because of the lateness of the injunction that the election will be proceeded with as usual and the action will come later.

It is claimed that there are several irregularities in connection with the bylaw and election. The election date was first set for March when the temperance forces had the date postponed, the reason being the poor condition of the roads. Those issuing the injunction claim it was postponed because of the location of a road camp in the township. The injunction claims that not sufficient reason was given for postponing the election. It is also claimed that the township council was forced to pass the bylaw.

COMMITTEE WILL STUDY PROVINCIAL INCOME TAX

TORONTO, May 13 (C.P.).—While the Ontario Government plans to improve a Provincial income tax to replace present income taxes by municipalities, Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn said to-day details of the new taxation would not be known until a survey has been made by a committee headed by Chester S. Walters, controller of finance.

The Premier said it would be possible through the tax to raise $20,000,000, but it might not be necessary to obtain that amount.

Replying to protests Toronto would be paying the major share, Mr. Hepburn said the city could afford to pay more than other municipalities because the wealth of the province was centered in the capital although much of that money had been made by firms doing business with people all over Ontario.

LIFE INSURANCE IS EULOGIZED AT JOINT LUNCHEON

E. P. Higgins of Toronto Addresses Rotarians and Members of Life Underwriters' Association.

A GREAT INSTITUTION.

Enables Men to Project Their Dreams Far Beyond Scope of Lives Speaker Declares.

Life insurance was pictured by E. P Higgins of Toronto, addressing a joint luncheon of the Rotary Club and the local Life Underwriters' Association at the Empress Hotel to-day, as a system by which man's dreams were projected far beyond the scope of his life.

Mr Higgins, a son of General E. J. Higgins, former head of the Salvation Army, and himself a branch manager with the Sun Life Assurance Company of Toronto, proved himself a forcible and eloquent speaker whose tribute to the value and worth of life insurance was indeed memorable.

President J. Fred Reed of the Rotary Club presided, and the visitors were introduced by Rotarian Fred L. Roy. There was a large attendance both of Rotarians and of underwriters.

The speaker, introduced by M. F. Wootten, began his address with a glowing reference to the services rendered by life insurance, stressing the fact that such insurance made it possible to redeem the faith of children and to bring to fulfillment the hopes of parents. It dealt, he pointed out, with the sorrows of distressed widows, it meant food and shelter for children, it stood for the future welfare of boys and girls, and provided comfort for men and women in their old age.

Addressing the underwriters in particular, Mr. Higgins said that he wondered if they really appreciated the immensity of life insurance: if indeed they were not too close to the picture to get the real perspective.

Some striking figures were quoted to illustrate the growth of life insurance. While the national wealth of the continent had increased 150 per cent in the period between 1914 and 1920 and in 1932 showed a 28 per cent. increase, life insurance had registered an increase of 441 per cent. in 1930 and in 1932 of 376 per cent.

Similarly life insurance assets had increased faster than bank assets and even in the depression period an increase of 322 per cent. was reported.

Mr. Higgins reminded his hearers of the stability of life insurance and declared that in the last seventy-five years not a five-cent piece had been lost by a policy-holder in any Canadian life assurance company. The human kindliness of the institution was also stressed by the speaker in outlining the benefits it was able to accomplish.

To the life underwriters he pointed out that the responsibility of making this great institution of the utmost value to the public was an individual responsibility.

Rotarian W. R Morris expressed the pleasure of the Rotary Club at having the underwriters as its guests and its appreciation of the fine address of Mr. Higgins.

STEVENS ADDRESSES BIG MEETING IN THE COLLEGIATE AUDITORIUM

so well and favorably known throughout Canada. He is no stranger to us and in audience there are many warm and personal friends. He attended school and started his business career in this city, and out of hundreds of invitations he received, he only decided to accept five speaking engagements in Ontario, and this is one of them."

Informal Dinner

Upon his arrival the Hon. Mr. Stevens who was accompanied by Mrs. Stevens, was guest of the Chamber and the U.F.O., at an informal dinner held at Empress Hotel. Those present to greet him, and who also accompanied him on the platform, included: E. A. Peck, K.C., M.P., Mayor Roland Denne, Fred J. Overend, president Chamber of Commerce; E. F. Mason, G. Hanbidge and James Thorne, close personal friends of the distinguished visitor; D. G. Melton, T. P. Lancaster, M.L.A., W. C. Hughes, W. A. Richardson, J. J. Dorris, secretary Chamber of Commerce; George Hewitt, John R. Marshall, G. A. Gillespie, Charles Oummer, D. V. Barber, Hugh Given, E. Scott, R. E. Cutting, James Dutton, chairman Public Affairs Committee Chamber of Commerce; Lieut.-Colonel Charles Ackerman, Robert Abbott, H. B. Cowan, W. W. Dawson, president of the local branch of the U.F.O., and Alderman James Hamilton, former classmate of Mr. Stevens. T. H. Stinson, K.C., M.P., of Lindsay arrived just prior to the meeting and was also among those on the platform.

For an hour and twenty minutes, Mr. Stevens expounded his doctrine of social justice holding his large audience enthralled by his lucid, thoughtful, presentation of facts, and his masterful logic and argument.

After the spontaneous outburst of applause which greeted him had subsided, Mr. Stevens confined his introductory remarks to those of a personal and casual nature, bearing upon his old associations with Peterborough when as a boy he attended the old Central Collegiate under Principal Fessenden.

He spoke of the "intense pleasure" which the visit to Peterborough gave to him and expressed the hope that it would result in him adding to his list of Peterborough friends.

"It is about forty years since I left here and if the intelligent progress which I note here might be interpreted, it is just possible you would be justified in saying, 'it's a good job you did leave here.' Had the stormy petrel (as I am called), stayed here, it might have delayed your progress," Mr. Stevens humorously remarked.

A Proud Achievement

There were few communities in Canada, he believed, that were weathering the storm of depression as successfully as Peterborough. He made that statement advisedly being in the position of being able to make comparisons with other places throughout the Dominion.

"There is no corner of Canada that I am not more or less acquainted with, and what disturbs me is the almost absolute collapse of the social life of the smaller towns and cities. But Peterborough doesn't show evidence of that. From the standpoint of debt and overhead you are in an exceedingly happy position. Your public works are all practically paid for and when I gaze around this magnificent building, so different from the old Collegiate I attended when here, I am moved to express my admiration and feel that you people should be credited for it," he said.

Speaking of the gathering before him as a "great cross section of democracy," Mr. Stevens urged that democracy was a thing to be preserved. He added, "my heart is full to-night and I feel very touched by the sincerity of the welcome extended to myself and to Mrs. Stevens, by my many friends and by this great public demonstration."

Tribute to Mr. Peck

Making reference to E. A. Peck, K.C., M.P., who had previously introduced him to the gathering, Mr. Stevens commented, "I value and appreciate his acquaintance, not only of the old days when I lived here, but also in the House of Commons. It was Mr. Peck and other men like him of earlier generations and those contemporaneous with himself who laid the foundation which has enabled you to come through the crisis of depression so successfully. I feel honored therefore in paying this tribute to your honored citizen."

"Most of you, probably all of you have your own personal problems," the speaker remarked, "and I have no doubt that before me to-night are men and women who have suffered heartache and anxiety in common with others, of course. It may be that when I discuss questions of broader importance, as I intend to do, you might say, 'what has that to do with me; I have my own problems. Yet," Mr. Stevens warned, "I say to you the future life of Canada depends on the people of Peterborough. It depends on how you fit into the picture and how Canadians in all parts of the Dominion carry on their individual parts in their own affairs. That is of course, if we are to preserve democracy—we can have Fascism or Communism if we like; but so long as we have a democracy it is up to people like you and I to discharge our individual duties to that system to the full," he urged. It was from that angle that he wished to speak, he said, on the question, "The Changing Economic Life of Canada."

Canada Well Blessed

Canada possessed all the elements for a successful democracy. In the first place providence had peculiarly blessed Canada with an aoundance of natural resources, and Mr. Stevens expressed the opinion that Canadians did not fully appreciate their heritage of lakes and rivers.

For instance, he asked, what was Canada doing to replenish the watersheds of this country? It was a question in which people were not very interested or concerned. Yet he recalled that in the days of his youth around Peterborough, when lumbering was a booming industry, the country to the north was practically denuded of its trees. The same was true of other sections of Canada.

Speaking of the drought in Southern Saskatchewan and Alberta and the dust and wind storms in Kansas and Oklahoma, Mr. Stevens warned if man does not strive to overcome these difficulties such areas would eventually become a barren wilderness.

For years in the House of Commons, Mr. Stevens stated he had urged that Canada should undertake a program of reforestation, but there had been no response. But he remarked, "I would say without hesitation we could well afford to take ten or twenty thousand of our bright young men who plead in vain for the country to give them jobs, and put them into reforestation effort that would repay the country a hundred fold.

"Men and women do not look ahead as members of a democratic country. That is one of the crimes of democracy," he said.

Mr. Stevens stated that he mentioned such things in passing, having been urged to do so by the flood of memories that had been re-awakened by his visit to Peterborough, and which he apparently associated in his mind with the city's one time status as a lumbering centre.

Abundance of Food

Reiterating that Canada possessed all the elements of a successful democracy, Mr. Stevens referred to the abundance of foodstuffs and the 220 million bushels of grain that lay tied up in the elevators, on the one hand, and the wonderful industrial fabric that had been erected on the other hand. Yet with all that, he deplored the fact, that as a democratic people Canadians seemed incompetent to take their natural resources and other gifts and to bring them, and their own skill into contact on a basis that would permit men and women to live and work to obtain a fair return for their labor.

"For the last four years I have been trying to arouse in the public a method of thinking through their problems. Isn't it time we did a little thinking and sought a remedy for these problems?" he demanded.

Under the circumstances, Mr. Stevens thought that Canadians should be an extremely happy people, and generally speaking he thought, they were. He was impressed, he said, by the fine type of life and the high standard of living that had been developed in Canada, and he was extremely jealous of seeing that a high type of Canadian life was maintained.

But if the laws of supply and demand were to function as they are at present, Mr. Stevens warned, it would have the effect of ultimately reducing 90 per cent of Canadians to the level of the mid-European peasants.

The Fighting Spirit

"I believe in fighting for a high maintenance of Canadian life. We have slipped, but it is not too late to overcome it. The laws of supply and demand must be reshaped whereby all men can have a decent and equitable living. No man or woman should be asked in this country to work under conditions that are facing this country to-day. No man should be asked to work for eight or nine dollars a week, and I am not going to rest until I can see an improvement in that condition," Mr. Stevens promised.

Conditions could be remedied, he urged, by a reasonable and concerted effort on the part of every individual and by those who controlled business and industry, but, "if it is not done without force of law, legislation will have to be enacted to adjust these injustices."

"The first duty of an intelligent democracy is to consider the welfare and right of the oppressed and suffering, but there are those who seem to talk as if the only right was the right of the endless accumulation of wealth."

The 'Deadline"

Mr. Stevens said he was not out to argue against or to condemn any man who had accumulated wealth through genuine effort of his own, but he did claim that there was absolutely no justification for any man acquiring fortune upon fortune at the expense of "the living, sustenance, and virtue of his fellow citizens. That is where the deadline is," he said.

The real test of a democratic government depended upon whether or not the people got a fair return for their labor. Mr. Stevens analysed the problem of the farmers of Canada who constitute one half of the total population, and asked, "Are they getting a fair share of return for the labor they put into farm work?"

The farmers were not alone with their problems. Thousands of people could not get the opportunity to use their hands, and any economic structure that gave rise to such conditions, must demand careful scrutiny of the people. "Democracy," Mr. Stevens said, "depends on the thinking and the sharing of responsibility of every person, and so long as inequality and suffering exist we should be deeply concerned and agitated and should take steps to correct the evils."

Where Mr. Stevens Disagrees

"So I say, when men talk as if the only right was that of accumulated wealth, I disagree. The greater a man's control of wealth the greater should his responsibilities be. Wealth should not be a license or privilege to do something others can not do. And unless those who control the wealth will willingly accept their responsibilities, the government must step in and enforce them to do so. It is the duty of governments to stand between those who unduly exercise their power and the oppressed and to see that the balance is maintained justly."

He had referred to farmers and industrial workers. Mr. Stevens said, but what about the merchants. "We have 60,000 to 70,000 merchants in this country. Men of the same high type as E. F. Mason and his late father, with whom I was once employed. They are the men who have helped to build this country. They are the men who have served not only as merchants, but in their respective communities as members of the council and on charity boards and other public bodies. They are the men who have given themselves cheerfully and gladly to their communities."

Unfair Competition

"What has happened to them today? Through the unfair competition of huge monopolies they are being slowly and gradually forced out of business. They are being driven to the wall and are on the verge of bankruptcy. Is it healthy that we should permit merchants by the thousands to be crowded out of their businesses by unfair competition?"

Giving an instance of unfair competition, Mr. Stevens said it was a common thing for the large corporations to go to the manufacturers of foodstuffs, and dictate as to the prices they should pay. They also bought in huge quantities at low prices and are retailed through the chain stores at cut prices.

Giving the housewives a tip by means of which they might help to kill the racket of the big chain store corporations, Mr. Stevens urged them "whenever you see a leader advertised go and buy it, but don't buy a higher priced article with it."

All reports to the contrary, Mr. Stevens contended that the chain store operators were getting a wider margin of profit now than ever before. An analysis of the price structure would readily show, he said, that many of the chain stores were selling goods at "a mighty big profit."

Just One Instance

He related that a furniture manufacturer in a town north and west of Peterborough was approached by the buyer of a large monopolistic store organization. The buyer said he wanted 100 dining room suites. He gave the specifications to the manufacturer and intimated that his firm was not prepared to pay more than $110.00 for each suite. The manufacturer figured on the costs and decided he could not make the suites for the price suggested. He was going through a period of stress and he decided he could take the order if his workers would accept a 10 per cent cut in their wages. The workers agreed. The order was taken and completed and the firm by whom they were ordered retailed the suites at $200.00 each in Toronto. They sold like hot cakes at that price, so that a repeat order was given, but in that case the price agreed upon between the buyer and manufacturer was again cut, this time to $90.00 a suite. It meant a further 10 per cent cut for the workers, but nevertheless the suites were retailed in Toronto at $200.00 each.

"I could give you scores of such insances. Did you as a consumer get any benefit. No! The only thing was the partial destruction of the home life of a section of the workers. Price undercutting always results like that. If democracy is to take the responsibility and hold the balance of equity; democracy must wake up."

Other Parallel Cases

Mr. Stevens provided other parallel cases that affected thousands of workers in the needle and clothing trades. One "great" institution he recalled went to the manufacturer to buy 3,000 coats at a stipulated sum of $14 each. The manufacturers who figured on the contracts said we will make them at $14.50 each, but no $14 was the limit to which the buyer would go. The order was taken. The coats were manufactured at pitiful wages, and ultimately retailed at $27.50 each.

"That is a very fair profit for an institution to take that tells the women of the country it is there to serve them," Mr. Stevens ironically commented.

He spoke of a similar case where coats were manufactured at $13 each and retailed for $27.50 each.

"Equitable, fair, even and decent-handed treatment is all that I am demanding," Mr. Stevens exclaimed.

"Is it foolish," he said, "to suggest the law should step in and establish equitable relations between these various classes of customers? It was not, and he believed that given fair competition with the big institutions the independent merchants could hold their own and survive. Under existing conditions, he claimed, Canada was losing socially in the same ratio that the merchants were losing out economically. The country was being ruined by predatory and unfair practices, and it was to hold the balance of equity that the speaker said he was agitating for certain laws.

A Warning

"Let this country go on as it has for the last fifteen years with the wealth of the country in the hands of the few and I would not like to answer for what might happen in the near future. Such conditions need not go on; they should not go on; and they must not be permitted to go on," he warned.

Looking to the industrial situation, Mr. Stevens placed industry in two classes—national industries and ordinary local industries. As an example of what he meant by national industries he spoke of the Canadian General Electric Company and observed, "I have no quarrel with them at all."

He offered severe criticism of the unfair competition to be met with in the canning and packing trades, and decared that the farmers had been exploited unscrupulously.

Respectable Hogs

"Take hogs—the four-footed kind; the respectable type of hogs," Mr. Stevens remarked. He added that he possessed an interesting chart showing the prices of bacon in London and in Canada over a period of ten years. There was a spread in price there, Mr. Stevens stated, that was just double what the packer said was necessary for the operation of his business, and "then they say that I am an agitator and that they are the guardian angels of the people."

"I simply ask that the farmer be paid a decent return in order that he might meet his school taxes and clothe his children decently and live in a comfortable home and pay interest on his mortgage. It he getting it? No! The plight of the western farmer was particularly bad, largely due to the high pressure salesmen of the implements who unloaded high-priced machinery on the farmers when times were good. He was not reflecting so much on the two large implement companies, he said, as he was criticising the policy that had led them to be disregardful of their duty to the country. They had forgotten the duty they owed to the country and had been mindful only of the duty they owed to their shareholders, and had brought about a situation that had far-reaching effects.

"That may be good business, but is it just; is it fair?"

Reduce Interest Rates

Another condition that must be remedied, Mr. Stevens claimed was that pertaining to high interest rates. "Interest rates must come down, and it is the first duty of the Federal, Provincial and municipal governments to see that they do come down to benefit the farmer in the country and the householder in the city. High interest rates are one of the heaviest burdens on agriculture."

Speaking of the financial collapse that introduced the era of depression in 1929, the speaker believed, "one of the greatest things that could have happened in 1929 was for the government to close up stock exchanges for a two year holiday. He referred to the stock exchanges as "a dishonest barometer of trade," and said the only true indication was the price that the farmer was receiving for his produce. He labelled the stock exchange as being "a modern device for fleecing the innocent."

Touching upon the effects of the depression upon the professional classes in Canada, Mr. Stevens said there were thousands of brilliant young men being turned out of the universities each year who could not even get a job of any kind.

Tragic State of Affairs

He knew of one who had graduated with first class honors working as a janitor in a drug store, and spoke of another honors graduate who was working behind an ice-cream counter. They were not rare cases, he said. In the unemployment camps in British Columbia the qualifications required were that a man must be, destitute, homeless and healthy. "They might have added that the men should require to have a university education." Of the 16,000 men in the B.C. unemployment camps twenty per cent of them were graduates of Canadian universities.

"You will read in the press about trouble in the B.C. camps and will be told that the young men have been reprehensible in their conduct. Let us look at the situation. You and I are running the country. Here are thousands of young men working for five dollars a month away from home and friends and you ask them are they happy and content."

Amazed at Patience

"I am only amazed at the patience and forbearance of Canadians both young and old. It is a fine tribute to Canadians that they have borne such conditions with such fine spirit. In the main these young men are clean, ambitious and honest boys. The point is we have in Canada a need of housing—our housing program is behind by four years. There is the supply and there is the demand. Why cannot we get the two together? It is because the control of credit is in the hands of the few. And either those who control the credit of the nation must act voluntarily or the government must step in and act for them," Mr. Stevens earnestly stated.

"I firmly believe in the principle of democracy," Mr. Stevens affirmed. "But I also believe in the common principle of equality and decency. Democracy is not functioning at is should and now that we know equalities to exist we must not rest until the evils of the system are removed."

The Vote of Thanks

James Dutton in moving a vote of thanks to the speaker felt incompetent to adequately express the appreciation of the audience. "Throughout his address Mr. Stevens has struck a note that has touched all that is best in every man and woman who class themselves as Canadian citizens. He is a fine example of a public-spirited man of outstanding courage, and if the ideas he has propounded are to be acted upon it is up to every individual to face the problems of the day in the same spirit that has been characterized by Mr. Stevens over the past fourty years."

W. W. Dawson, president of Peterborough County Branch of the United Farmers of Ontario ably seconded the motion and the audience gave their endorsation to it in a most decided manner by long and sustained applause.

Miss Geraldine Collins presented two vocal numbers entitled "The Blind Ploughman" and "Happy Song" earlier in the program. She was accompanied at the piano by Miss Musa Cox.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN Brings Relief to Mrs. Maneely

Read the following unsolicited letter:

"Up to five years ago, I knew no end of suffering caused by constipation.* I used all kinds of laxatives but only found relief till I got used to them. My physician told me to get some Kellogg's ALL-BRAN, and instructed me how to use it.

"I did just as I was told by my doctor, and today I send my highest praise for what your ALL-BRAN has done for me."—Mrs. Jas. Maneely, Jr. Address upon request.

*Due to insufficient "bulk" in meals.

ALL-BRAN provides gentle "bulk" to help overcome common constipation. It is also a good source of vitamin B and iron.

The "bulk" of ALL-BRAN is often more effective than the "bulk" in fruits and vegetables, as it does not break down within the body. Two tablespoonfuls daily are usually sufficient. If not corrected this way, see your doctor.

What the IMPERIAL LIFE DOUBLE INCOME PLAN is doing for a widow and two young sons

IN APRIL, 1932, Imperial Life Policy No. 216893 was issued on the Double Income plan. Nine months later, at the age of 42, the assured died of pneumonia, leaving a widow and two boys.

Under the terms of the Policy, The Imperial Life is paying to the widow 12% of the face value of the policy, or $75 a month, until the younger boy becomes of age. Then the full value of the policy ($7,500) will become due and payable to her.

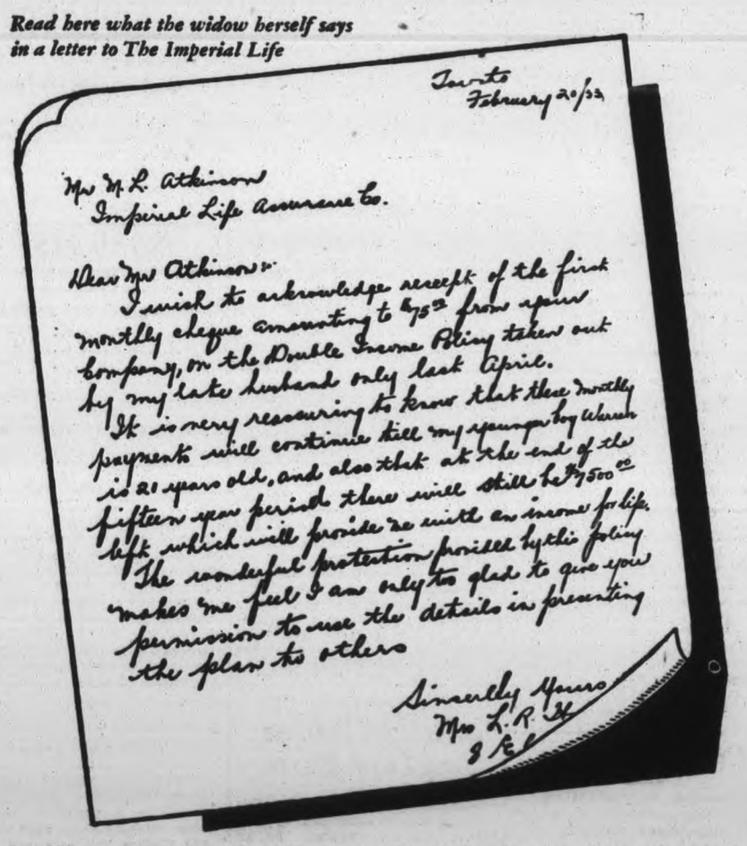
A total benefit of $20,250, therefore, is guaranteed, made up of:

(a) 170 monthly payments of $75 each	$12,750.00
(b) Cash payment in April, 1947	7,500.00
	$20,250.00

If the widow had received $7,500 and had had to invest it in the ordinary way, she would have received perhaps 3%, or a little more, with safety. But under the terms of the Imperial Double Income Policy she is receiving 12% per annum and will continue to receive 12% regardless of the ups and downs of business until the year 1947 when the younger of her two boys becomes of age.

That is what The Imperial Life policy guarantees. Actually the widow has received substantially more than the $75 a month guaranteed. Ten recent monthly cheques have averaged $99.34 each, the amount in excess of $75 representing a dividend surplus.

Read here what the widow herself says in a letter to The Imperial Life



Toronto February 20/35

Mr. M. L. Atkinson
Imperial Life Assurance Co.

Dear Mr Atkinson:
I wish to acknowledge receipt of the first monthly cheque amounting to $75 from your company, on the Double Income Policy taken out by my late husband only last April.
It is very reassuring to know that these monthly payments will continue till my youngest boy whom is 21 years old, and also that at the end of the fifteen year period there will still be $7500.00 left which will provide us with an income for life.
The wonderful protection provided by this policy makes me feel I am only too glad to give you permission to use the details in presenting the plan to others

Sincerely Yours

In addition to this policy which guarantees a monthly income while the children are growing up, the assured had arranged $2,000 other insurance to pay hospital and death expenses, and $8,000 to pay off his mortgage.

The family taken care of by a guaranteed income, all final expenses and outstanding bills paid, and his home cleared of debt, don't you think the protection made provides an object lesson that many of us might profitably copy?

The coupon will bring you full information about the Imperial Double Income Policy.

Magistrate's Court

A local young man, pleading guilty to a charge of consuming liquor in a place other than a residence was ordered by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., to pay a fine of $25 and $4.50 costs, with the option of 20 days in the County Gaol.

Highway Traffic Officer A. E. Horlick, upon whose information the charge was laid, told the bench that a motor car was involved; that the defendant had failed to halt at a stop sign on the Lindsay Highway, and that a more serious charge might well have been laid.

Another man appeared on a charge of intoxication, and promised the cadi that he would swear off the drink. Chief Constable Newhall said it was his first appearance in court in 10 years. The case was adjourned for one month without the defendant being asked to elect or plead to the charge. He left the court with profuse thanks to the Magistrate, but was warned, "you must stop drinking right now." "Yes I will, Your Honor," was the assurance.

LIFE INSURANCE IS A STABILIZER

Striking Example of Foresight and Thrift of Canadian People.

$500,000 A DAY.

In observing the ebb and flow of events during the last five years, I have been greatly impressed with what one of our greatest economic stabilizing forces has accomplished. I refer to Life Insurance. Each working day, on the average, there has been distributed throughout the Dominion by the Life Insurance Companies on behalf of those who, in better days, were wise enough to prepare for the future, more than half a million dollars.

It is a striking example of the foresight and thrift of our people and of what such wise qualities can do to ameliorate the effects of economic disturbances. Truly, Life Assurance is a great stabilizer.

As we contemplate its influence and value, there comes to our mind the principles of the gyroscope. This huge, rapidly revolving wheel, by its own momentum is able to maintain its position; and this principle has recently been applied to some of our larger ships, in which these immense wheels swiftly revolving in the ship's hull, stabilize the ship and keep it on even keel despite the fury of the sea.

Canada during the past five years has been tossed about, but is successfully outriding the storm. In this she has been assisted by a great internal gyroscope, a huge wheel of liquid credit, of cash, revolving at a rate of $500,000 a day, and still continuing to revolve with greatly increasing effect.

COURT'S ORDER TO FORCE HAND OF MAE WEST

Actor, Frank Wallace Asks Declaratory Judgment Stating He is Her Husband.

FEELS HUMILIATED.

NEW YORK, May 13 (C.P.)—Supreme Court Justice Ernest E. L. Hammer Saturday signed an order serving notice upon Mae West, film star, that Frank Wallace, vaudeville actor, had asked the court for a declaratory judgment announcing he is her husband.

Mae Sticks to Denial

Ever since a 1911 marriage license for Mae West and Frank Wallace was turned up in Malwaukee, April 20, Miss West has steadfastly denied she was the party mentioned. The parents mentioned by the applicant of the Milwaukee license were identical with those of the screen actress.

Miss West admitted, however, she knew a Frank Wallace whom she gave a job in her stage production of "Diamond Lil" in 1928. He died two years ago, according to other members of that company.

Justice Hammer ordered the notice of publication printed in the New York Law Journal and another publication.

Wallace, in an affidavit, describes the defendant as "Mae Wallace," and declares he married her April 11, 1911, in Milwaukee. They were partners in a vaudeville act at the time, he said, employed in a show owned by Jacob and Germon. Their marriage was secret, he continued, and she continued to live with her parents in Brooklyn, while he lived in Maspeth, Queens, N.Y.

Divorced in 1915?

Wallace insists he remained married to Miss West until 1915 when, James Timoney, an attorney now frequently described as the star's business manager, notified him he had been divorced. The divorce, he said he was advised, had been obtained in "Nassau County or some other county on Long Island," but records there, he added, failed to show entry of a decree.

Recent publicity on the marriage reports, and Miss West's denials, Wallace said, have humiliated him and made him appear an imposter. He gives the screen star's age as 42.

NAZI TO BUILD UNDER GROUND

New Government Offices to be Made Gas and Bomb Proof.

PREPARE FOR FUTURE.

BERLIN, May 13 (A.P.).—Orders were issued by the chief of police yesterday that before any new building can be erected or old one altered, the owner must consult the Air Protection League on the possibility of constructing a bomb and gas-proof cellar.

Ten years from now, the adjutant of one of Germany's leaders disclosed, it will be possible, if necessary, to conduct the entire machinery of government from subterranean bomb and gas-proof chancelleries and offices.

"The Kroll opera building, where parliament met while the Reichstag building was being reconstructed after the 1932 fire, will be razed to the ground," he said. "In its place there will be rearer a series of modern Government buildings, the salient feature of which will be that the rooms above the ground will practically be duplicated underground."

Prepared.

After enumerating the changes, the official said: "Then let the enemy come. The Government will merely go underground and continue to function as usual. We shall have perfectly equipped underground offices for every department of government in rooms that will be bombproof and poison gas proof.

"Not that we expect really to have to resort to underground government. We believe that our air defence force is already so adequate that enemy planes can be shot down before they ever reach Berlin. But we believe in preparedness, and hence have taken into account even the remote possibility that some stray bombing plane might reach the capital and try to destroy Government quarters.

"Naturally the subterranean Government offices we are about to build will be provisioned in every way, so that even a siege-like bombardment—if such a thing is thinkable—could not interrupt the functioning of government. But to construct what we have in mind we need time. Give us 10 years and our plans will have been realized in a manner that nobody today dreams of."

NO FOOLING WITH NAZIS

BERLIN, May 11 (CP-Havas).—The members of two Berlin cabaret floor shows were in concentration camps to-day for poking fun at the government in their programs.

"National Socialism cannot allow the state to be mocked before a house full of Jews," the official bulletin, announcing that the entertainers had been sent to the camps, explained.

FIFTH WOMAN IN BABY CONTEST

Mrs. J. Nagle Mother of Eight Since Millar's Death, Expects Another in July.

$500,000 PRIZE.

TORONTO, May 13. —(CP)— A new threat has entered the race among Toronto mothers to produce the most babies and claim the $500,000 prize provided for in the will of the late Charles Millar, eccentric lawyer who offered the reward with its accumulated interest to the woman who could produce the most children within 10 years of his death in 1936.

Mrs. John Nagle, from the bed where she is recovering from injuries suffered in a fall from a stepladder, revealed today she had given birth to eight babies since the death of the wealthy lawyer-sportsman and was expecting another in July.

This placed her in the running with Mrs. Matthew Kenny, Mrs. Grace Bagnato, Mrs. Ambrose Harrison and Mrs. Steffano Darrigo, all hoping to claim the prize offered to women in Toronto.

Mrs. Kenny has given birth to 11 children since 1926, four of them are alive, while Mrs. Bagnato has had 10 children since 1926 and 13 before; Mrs. Darrigo had seven while twins and another child were stillborn.

Probably not until October, 1936 when the time limit expires, will be determined whether stillborn children can be listed under the claims to the fortune.

Mrs. Nagle is 30 years of age, while her husband, unemployed, is 34.

Lieutenant-Governor Dr. Herbert A. Bruce Pays Tribute To Late Dr. Abraham Groves

TORONTO, May 13 (C.P.).—Hon. Dr. Herbert A. Bruce, Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario, to-day paid tribute to Dr. Abraham Groves, credited with having performed the first appendectomy in America, who died at his home in Fergus yesterday.

"He was an outstanding example of a general practitioner," said Dr. Bruce himself a noted surgeon, "who by the steady development of natural ability and despite the lack of the advantages of specialized surgical training, acquired very great skill as a surgeon. His service to the community in which he resided was quite unique not only in its kind but in its scope. To the last he carried on the fine traditions of general practice eschewing the narrower paths of specialization. To tens of thousands of citizens the name of Dr. Groves was and will remain a household word...."

REV. DR. MOORE AT ST. ANDREW'S

Preaches 102nd Anniversary Sermons of Local Congregation.

THE DEBT WE OWE.

One more year was added to the long history of the St. Andrew's United Church congregation as the 102nd anniversary of its organization was celebrated yesterday. Very Rev. T. Albert Moore, D.D., LL.D., Deputy Moderator of the United Church of Canada, was present on the signal occasion and spoke during the day.

Large gatherings including members and friends of the church from far and near, filled the nave of the church to near capacity at both morning and evening services. Rev. Dr. Charles V. McLean, pastor, presided. Special music was provided by soloists and choir under the direction of the choirmaster and organist, C. J. Rice.

Pioneer Founders

Dr. Moore devoted his sermon in the morning appropriately to the significance of the anniversary milestone. He took as his text the words of Jesus, "Other men have labored, and ye are entered into their labors."

"One cannot face a congregation like this without his mind going back to the people to whom we are indebted for this great heritage," Dr. Moore said. "One cannot help but realize the wonderful people they were in those days, facing such experiences one hundred and two years ago!"

Remarking that possibly some grandchildren of those who instituted the St. Andrew's congregation were in the gathering before him. He paid tribute to the pioneers for their hardiness and forbearance against great obstacles.

"They saw that if this land was to be a great country they must make a place for Jesus Christ in their lives here. While they built their homes and their schools and tilled their lands, they looked to the building of a great citizenship with the aid of Jesus. On an occasion such as this we look back on those hardy souls with pride and gratitude."

Great Debt.

"Those people! I think of their faith in Canada, their faith in putting together their dwelling, tilling their lands and buildings and building this country. I say as we stand to-day in celebration of the 102nd anniversary by this congregation, we owe an immeasurable debt to those people."

"Having received this heritage what manner of people are we to be?" he continued. "Are we living up to this heritage? We can, in 1935, live up to the heritage only by having that same personal fellowship in Jesus Christ that those men and women enjoyed."

Great Changes

Dr. Moore dwelt on the great changes in living habits and condition which have come about in the last century. He told of the early church-goers in Canada bringing their own candles to light the church nave, and of the other revolutionary changes which have taken place down through the years. But some things do not change, he declared. Christ is unchanged, he said. The same old faith in Jesus, he asserted, will bring the same blessings which it brought one hundred and two years ago. And the traits of character which make good citizenship never change, he said.

He urged the members of the congregation to justify their heritage by following the example of the pioneer founders in maintaining close personal contacts with God. He urged home reading of the Bible and recourse to the aid by God through private prayers at home.

Burnham Threatens To Stump Ontario

The one-man party candidate in Peterborough west, J. H. Burnham, asserts that Hon. H. H. Stevens in objecting to the accumulation of wealth in the hands of the few, in open, free competition, is laying down the doctrine of spoliation, and is inviting the "have-nots" to help themselves to the possessions of the "haves".

This, Mr. Burnham says, is the doctrine of the gangster, and represents red chaos in the future of the business world. No man can expect more than a fair show; if he is not then able to make it go he must depend upon the benevolence of the public. Mr. Burnham who stumped the province against the Bennett policy of Canada First in 1930 says he will start in another tour if Mr. Stevens continues to advocate spoliation, and leads a party. Mr. Stevens has become a subtle and dangerous propagandist, Mr. Burnham charges.

HAMBLETONIAN IS THE WORLD'S "BUGGY" DERBY

Horse Which Sold for $125 86 Years Ago Sire of Harness Greats.

HOMESPUN TRADITION

THERE IS no sports show in North America quite like that held in August in the little remote town of Goshen, N.Y., where crowds numbering as many as 30,000 gather for a trotting contest named for a horse that appeared only once on an American track. That horse was Hambletonian 10, which sold for $125 as a spindly-legged colt 86 years ago, and which became the lineal sire of 90 per cent. of the light harness horses in training in America today.

The Hambletonian stake for 3-year-old trotters is to the trotting world the Derby, world series and the Stanley Cup series. The event is pervaded by the spirit of the old-fashioned county fair and home-spun tradition of farmer-horsemen, and though the classic itself dates back only to 1926, it is a genuine exposition of rural sport. This year 33 candidates are being groomed for what is regarded as the top-ranking prize of harness horsedom, and all are lineal descendants of Hambletonian who lies buried on a grassy knoll at Chester, N.Y., overlooking the highway that leads to Goshen.

ALREADY harness horsemen have started making up their minds on the matter of this year's winner. Of those in training, Jim Hanes, a son of Athlone Guy, owned by R. J. (Dick) Reynolds of Winston-Salem, N.C., is foremost for consideration, not only for the Hamletonian but other 3-year-old stake races on the Grand Circuit. Training reports from Lexington are the subject of confident conversation.

As suggested above, the romance of the race lies with old Hambletonian himself, truly the father of a mighty race. The great sire was born in 1849 when William M. Ryndyk, of Chester, paid $125 for the colt, with the dam tossed in for good measure. There was nothing in Hambletonian's family tree to arouse suspicion of greatness. His owner resisted the temptation of the California gold fields, declaring his gold mine was the gangling Hambletonian. Rysdyk placed the colt in the stud at the age of two years. In 1852 three foals by Hambletonian were sold and they were the start of one of the mightiest lines of turf history. One was Abdallah, sire of Goldsmith Maid, trotting champion of the '70's and greatest money-winner of all time.

DURING Hambletonian's lifetime, 1,915 mares were bred to him, which produced 1,331 foals. He repaid his master's $125 investment with $200,000 in service fees. Nearly all the horses racing on the Grand Circuit this year are his descendants. Hambletonian's only race was a mile in 1852 on the old Union course in New York city. The colt stepped a mile in 2.48½, good time in those days, but not amazing.

Peden And Crossley Win Toronto Grind

TORONTO, May 13. — William "Torchy" Peden, the big, good-natured giant from Victoria, B.C., who brought to six-day bike racing competition more ability and color than any other rider in the past decade, marked up another triumph late Saturday night on the huge pine saucer at Maple Leaf Gardens.

Teamed with Al Crossley, the wiry New Yorker and one of the most capable speed merchants in the sport, Peden rode to his twenty-seventh triumph, closely followed by a really brilliant German team composed of Heinz Vopel and Gustav Kilian, winners of last week's grind in Montreal.

Rookie Sensation

Pittsburgh Pirates surprised the major leagues and probably themselves when they uncovered this pitching rookie to American League batters this season. It's Darrell Elijah Blanton—"Cy" to the world at large—and he's just about the best freshman pitcher to show in years. A one-hit effort was among his early season contributions, plus an ability to go the route every time—and win. Blanton has the experts talking with his work.

NINETEEN EVENTS IN WATER SPORTS

Hastings Committee to Interview Lindsay Band Regarding Reunion Music.

HASTINGS, May 13 (Examiner Correspondence). — A very enthusiastic meeting of the Old Boys' and Girls' Re-union Committee was held in the Council Chambers on Wednesday night, Reeve Dr. J. H. Hess acted as chairman.

T. A. Coughlan, chairman of the water sports, gave their program, which consisted of nineteen events to be run off on the Saturday.

The committee has been notified that the Salvation Army Band of Peterborough who were to furnish the music for the three days, will be unable to be present. A committee will meet the executive of Lindsay Boys' Band in Peterborough on Saturday night. Up to the present a wonderful response has been received from firms outside the village by way of prizes. Mr. W. A. Fraser has donated two handsome silver cups for running races.

It was decided to rent Lynch's Hall for the three days for registration and a dance on Saturday night. Programs of a suitable type will also be got out.

CRICKET CLUB TAKES VICTORY AT LAKEFIELD

Peterborough Cricketeers Get First Win of Season From Grove.

FINAL SCORE 96-48

The local club travelled to Lakefield on Saturday to play The Grove two men short, but the School courteously supplied substitutes. The weather was cold and unseasonable, but it was a pleasant and interesting game and provided the club with their first win of the season; the final score being P.C.C. 96, Grove School, 48. With the score at 13, Binks was run out, but Lawrence (12) and Gore (10), took it to 34, and then Worrall (16) and Rowe (24) added 30 for the 4th wicket. Small scores by the later batsmen and 15 extras took the total to 95. Worrall though greatly handicapped by a strain, played well including one big hit into the country for 6.

The School, although they batted in good style were kept continually on the defensive by the steady bowling of Rowe, Lawrence and Dyer. This is shown by the fact that of 36 overs sent down 19 were maidens and at one time Lawrence bowled 6 overs for 1 run.

Rowe followed up his excellent batting by taking 5 school wickets for 20. Of the batsmen, Hepburn played sound defensive cricket for 10, and though Strickland, Fletcher, Dunn and Dench all played well, they could not score from the accurate bowling, and the innings closed by 48, just half of the Club score.

Next Saturday, May 18, Peterborough play a return match with Whitaker's at the Oval.

FIRETHORN IS SECOND HORSE AT BALTIMORE

Omaha, Woodward Racer, Leads Firethorn to Wire by Six Lengths.

PSYCHIC BID THIRD.

By ORLO ROBERTSON
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

BALTIMORE, Md., May 13. (CP) William Woodward's Omaha Saturday ranked the best of the season's three-year-olds.

The chestnut son of Gallant Fox capped his easy Kentucky Derby victory with an even more decisive triumph Saturday as his flying hoofs left seven other three-year-olds far in the rear in the forty-fifth running of the Preakness at Pimlico.

Guided by the Western Canadian boy, Willie ("Smoky") Saunders, the speedster stepped through the stretch as if out for a morning breeze to finish the 1 3/16 miles six lengths clear of Walter M. Jefford's Firethorn, which was eating Omaha's dust for the first time this year. Still another six lengths to the rear trailed Mrs. Dodge Sloane's Psychic Bid.

Won in a Canter.

Omaha was clocked in 1.58 2/5, one fifth of a second slower than race record hung up by High Quest in 1934, but the time might have been shattered had Saunders so decided. Even at that it was more than two seconds faster than Gallant Fox made in taking the Preakness five years ago.

Favored by the record crowd of 40,000, Omaha never left the outcome in doubt once he swung into stride. His owner, New York banker and chairman of the Stewards of the Jockey Club, received $25,325. The victory boosted Omaha's total winnings for the year to $66,600 and for two years of racing to $70,450.

The disappointment of the race was Warren Wright's Nellie Flag, the beaten favorite in the Derby. She was fourth at the Downs, but Saturday, with no excuse of being bumped, could do no better than seventh in an attempt to duplicate the 1924 triumph of her mother, Nellie Morse. Only E. R. Bradley's Boxthorn was back of the Western filly.

GOLF FACTS NOT THEORIES!

By ALEX J. MORRISON

Number 608

Every error you make in your swing can be traced to faulty leg action. And faulty leg action is caused mainly by tight muscles and joints at the start of the swing.

The worst thing you can do is to stand over the ball with your legs rigid. Tension in your lower limbs forces you into the wrong body action. It makes you sway bac kand forth, bob up and down with the upper part of your body. It keeps your body from co-ordinating with your hands during the swing.

You can overcome most of this leg tension simply by standing with your weight on your left leg and your right foot rolled over toward the inside. Try this the next time you play.

LEAFS SPLIT SUNDAY TWIN AT SYRACUSE

Blunder By Mike Pasek Enables Stars to Score Winning Run in First Game.

NEWARK COPS DOUBLE.

(By the Associated Press)

The International League's first full Sunday doubleheader grind proved beneficial only to the pace-setting Newark Bears. While the other three twin-bills were ending in even splits, the Bears rolled past Rochester Red Wings twice, 5-4 and 4-0, to increase their lead over the second-place Toronto Maple Leafs to one full game.

The Bears had to fight hard for the first game for Rochester held a 4-2 lead after seven innings. In the eighth, however, Dick Ward suddenly weakened and Newark pushed over three runs, two of them riding home on Ernie Koy's home run. The second game provided the setting for a fine pitching performance by Cliff Melton who southpawed the Red Wings into submission all the way. He allowed only six hits and kept them widely spaced. Newark made only nine safeties off Johnny Mickaels but bunched them in two innings for all their runs. Koy, who had made three hits in the first game, came through with two more in the nightcap to take batting honors for the day.

The largest crowd—12,000—that ever watched an International League program at Syracuse saw the Chiefs whip Toronto Maple Leafs, 4-3 in the first game and then take a 3-1 beating in the nightcap. Syracuse won the opener with a two-run rally in the ninth but had to have assistance from Mike Pasek, Toronto catcher. With the score tied at 3-3 and the bases filled, Graham rolled to Shevlin who touched first and fired the ball home. Pasek, thinking it was a force play, merely touch home plate and Hy Vandenberg, Syracuse pitcher, scored the winning run. The putout at first, of course, had automatically eliminated the force play at home. Toronto won the second game by bunching three hits, a sacrifice, an base on balls and an error for three runs in the sixth.

Montreal's Royals remained in third place, a game behind Toronto, by splitting even with Albany before a crowd of 12,000, Ray Prim, making his last appearance for Albany before joining the Phillies, pitched the Senators to a 5-1 victory in the opener while the Royals reversed that score in the nightcap with Chad Kimsey giving Albany only five hits.

Fourth-place Baltimore Orioles collected 19 hits to down Buffalo 13-6 in the opener but the Bisons won the second game 3-2 behind Ken Ash's fine pitching. George Puccinelli's 12th homer was one of 12 hits off Ash but the Buffalo flinger was effective with men on base.

SOCCER TEAMS SPLIT POINTS LEAGUE MATCH

Scoring Aplenty by Dyer and Stan. Clark—Penalty Missed by McMaster.

BRINTON 3, C.C.F. 3

After battling for the full ninety minutes on Saturday afternoon, Brinton Athletic and C.C.F. split the soccer league points, on King Edward Park, before a good attendance by the score of three goals a-piece. The Carpet boys played without the full quota through players failing to turn up at the proper time.

E. J. Garland, M.P., Bow River, Alberta, and Dr. Lorna Cotton officially launched the C.C.F. into their football career in this city.

Brinton Opens Scoring

Captain Westwood selected the wind in his favour, on the choice of ends, and opened up a barrage of shots upon the C.C.F. goal. Fred Dyer travelled to the other end to be frustrated by Adkinson who left Clark in possession in front of his opponents' goal, as he evaded the fullbacks, to give Melrose no chance to save. Two minutes later, Adams at outside right sent a lightning drive across the C.C.F. where a scrimmage ensued until Jones accepted the opening to register second counter. Quickly McMaster broke away on the right to dribble his way toward Brinton goal until the fullbacks were drawn out of position and the inside man slipped a perfect pass to Dyer who beat Green all the way. On the next raid upon the Brinton goal Best picked the inside of the upright to even up the count.

Goalkeeper Retires

David Green, who was unfit to play, took up the goal-keeper's position until the last goal when Adams went in to keep his goal intact. To his surprise Referee Frick awarded a penalty kick against the Brinton through captain not notifying the official the change of goal keepers. Jack McMaster took the spot kick, to shy his shot over the bar. Just before the interval, C.C.F. right wing travelled down into the corner where McMaster slipped the ball over to Dyer who bulged the net away from the custodian. C.C.F. 3, Brinton 2.

On resuming, the Brinton had only eight men through Green being injured. Nevertheless, they battled against the C.C.F. full quota to make the tussle interesting, Westwood and Jones covering a lot of ground playing a three-man position while feeding the attack with splendid openings. Melrose was kept busy saving from Quinn and Clark at close range. Brinton had a great opportunity to even the count when McPhate manouvred his way along the line until near goal. He passed the ball over to his teammates but both players missed as O'Halloran jumped in between them to kick clear. The inexperienced half-back line did well to hold in check the fast travelling Brinton front line. Play continued on an even basis until five minutes from the finish when the C.C.F. endeavoured to increase their score. Jones saw the opening and sent a fast drive up the centre to Stan Clark who beat the C.C.F. full backs on the run to drive a rocket drive into the far corner of the net. Full time—C.C.F. 3, Brinton Athletic 3.

Goal scorers: C.C.F., Fred Dyer (2) and David Best; Brinton Athletic, Stan Clark (2) and Jones.

Referee: Albert Frick; linesmen, Tom Craig and Joe Bolton.

C.C.F.—L. Melrose, goal; J. Flynn and Art O'Halloran, fullbacks; G. Geordinio, J. Walsh and H. Latham, halves; R. Parry, J. McMaster, F. Dyer, D. Best and J. Mayette.

Brinton—D. Green, goal; J. Mitchell and E. Adkinson, full backs; T. Westwood and E. Jones, halves; D. Adams, J. Quinn, S. Clark and Thomas McPhate, forwards.

PARMELEE REGISTERS HIS 4TH VICTORY FOR TERRY'S GIANTS

New York Star Holds Pirates to Four Hits For 3-1 Win—Cubs, Cardinals and Brooklyn Dodgers Also Win in National.

BY HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

If New York Giants are sailing along at the top of the National League standing at an even better clip than they hit early last season, Roy 'Bud' Parmelee can furnish the explanation.

The right handed fireball thrower from Lambertville, Mich., couldn't keep pace with the rest of the 'Big Four' last season, winning only 10 games and losing six and hurling only seven complete games out of 22. This year he has made a great start to rise to the top of the new 'Big Five' which includes Young Clydell Castleman.

After failing to finish his first assignment, which ended in a tie, Parmelee has racked up four straight victories to move to the head of the National League pitching corps with a quartet of as fine performances as a pitcher could ask. In those four games he has allowed only six runs and 17 hits, turning in two three-hit games and one four-hitter.

Seven Shutout Innings

Only a streak of wildness—slight in comparison with some he used to have—marred yesterday's performance in which Roy set down the Pirates with four blows to win 3-1. He tossed seven shutout innings with only two hits, then forced in the only Pittsburgh run by passing Pinch Hitter Red Lucas after hits by the two Waners and a walk had crammed the corners.

In addition to his pitching, Parmelee scored the first Giant run after smacking a double in the fifth. The other two tallies came home in the next inning, aided by a pair of stolen bases.

Despite the victory, the Giants couldn't shake off their rivals from across the river. Brooklyn Dodgers, who clung to their place a game and a half behind by trimming the Reds 9-1 as Van Mungo chalked up his fifth mound victory. Sam Leslie provided some able backing for Mungo by smacking four straight hits which knocked in five runs.

Third-place Cubs also got the benefit of some good elbowing to whip Boston 4-1. Lon Warneke made himself almost the whole show by limiting the Braves to seven hits, fanning six, and smacking four singles for a perfect day at the plate.

The Cardinals completed the triumph of the first division over the second by belting out a 10-6 decision over the Phillies in a game which saw the teams divide 32 hits. Phil Collins, making his first Cardinal start, managed to beat his old mates although he didn't last the route while Curt Davis, back in action after nearly a month's layoff, was knocked out early.

Break Out of Cellar

St. Louis Browns finally climbed out of the American League cellar by beating out the Red Sox 3-2 while the other American League clubs were kept idle by rain. The victory, largely made possible by Manager Rogers Hornsby's pinch double in the seventh put the Browns a half game ahead of the Athletics.

HITS LONG BALL ON GOLF COURSE

Canadian Player, Edwin Innes, Returns on Team to Complete With Home Folk.

Following is the 11th of a Canadian Press series of 12 sketches on Canadian tennis and golf players who will compete in British and Scottish tournaments this season.

MONTREAL, May 11.—(CP).—When Edwin A. Innes, young Montreal golfer, sailed for the British Isles with the Royal Canadian Golf Association team, it was in the nature of a long desired trip home. The 28-year-old Scot came to Canada seven years ago from his native Dufftown, Scotland, where he was born March 8, 1907, and on this trip he will take time off to visit his folks in the north.

"I played golf before I came to Canada," said the fair-haired stocky little former amateur champion of Quebec, "but not seriously. I really learned my golf here and started playing in tournaments around Montreal."

Innes works in an office in downtown Montreal but finds enough time to keep his golf bright and keen. He cleaved his way through a formidable field to win the Quebec amateur title in 1931, his first major championship. In 1932 he won the spring amateur tournament of the Quebec Golf Association and in 1933 just fell short of capturing the Quebec amateur again, losing out in a semi-finals match to Jack Cameron, a fellow-Montrealer.

Last summer the slim little Scot did not do well in the provincial championship tournament won by his friend and team mate, Gordie Taylor, Montreal, but he led all amateurs in the provincial open tournament with a brilliant 71, just a couple of strokes behind Jules Huot, Quebec professional, who won the tournament.

Innes played good, steady golf all last summer. He set up a record-breaking 70 on the course at Grand Mere, Que., and went out another time to break the course record at St. Andrews East, Que., on the Ottawa River, with a mark of 74. He also holds the record at Lelemere, Que., near Montreal.

This cool young golfer, who will compete with other Canadians in the British amateur tournament at Royal Lytham and St. Anne's courses, both near Liverpool, plays and all-around game. He believes the strongest part of his game is his driving off the tee, hitting a long, clean ball with good control. His iron play is steady and his putting pretty reliable, though he himself claims it is just average.

The major United States tournaments have not had much attention from Innes, but he played in Boston with Canada's Leslie Cup team in 1930 and was still on the Canadian team when the Americans came to Montreal in a return match the following year.

Unemployment in Spain totals over 700,000 and is increasing.

Bears and wolves have been attacking villages near Kars, Turkey.

CANUCKS WILL STAY AT HOME

Eagles Likely to Operate in St. Louis Again For 1936-37 Schedules.

CALDER RE-ELECTED.

MONTREAL, May 13. (CP).—Montreal Canadiens, oldest club in the National Hockey League, Saturday went ahead with plans to strengthen their squad for next season, with Montreal definitely set as the scene of their operations for another four years.

Differences between Canadiens and the Montreal Forum were settled here Saturday just before the semi- annual meeting of the league, when the old contract, which still had a year to run, was scratched and a new agreement drawn up. Leon Dandurand, Managing Director of the club, and his partner, Joe Cattarinich, had threatened to move the Canucks to Cleveland or Boston or disband for a year unless new arrangements could be made.

Governors of the league also decided to extend the powers of the league President, and re-elected Frank Calder, who has been at the helm since the loop's inaugural, for another year. No announcement as to what extent Calder's powers would be stretched was made at the meeting.

The new contract between Canadiens and the Forum is believed to call for the rink getting a division of 32½ per cent. of the gate receipts and the club the remainder.

No announcement was made on the question of St. Louis Eagles operating next year, but indication was given after informal discussion, that the Eagles would again have St. Louis as their home city.

As an initial step in their reconstruction plans, it was believed Canadiens would sign Billy Boucher, a veteran of the team a decade ago, as coach. Boucher has been acting as scout for the Flying Frenchmen for the past few weeks.

Several other clubs announced plans for rebuilding next season. So anxious was Jack Adams, rotund manager of Detroit Red Wings, to get Wilf Cude and Roger Jenkins from Canadiens, he said he was willing to part with his star centre and defenseman, Ebbie Goodfellow for the pair.

Major Frederic McLaughlin, owner of Chicago Black Hawks, put Lolo Couture, French-Canadian winger, on the auction block and announced he had signed Lorne Chabot to block the net for another season.

Argument between Boston Bruins and St. Louis Eagles over possession of Frank Jerwa and Jerry Shannon was settled when President Calder ruled Shannon was the property of Bruins and Jerwa of Eagles.

Three clubs have drafted players from minor leagues. Boston has taken R. ("Lefty") Bauer, 18-year-old youngster, who signed with Syracuse Stars of the International League at the end of the 1934-35 season.

New York Rangers have drafted Bob Kirk of Vancouver Lions. Billy Taugher, goalkeeper with Buffalo Bisons of the International League, will fight it out for the net-minding position on St. Louis Eagles with Billy Beveridge.

C.G.E. ENTERS SOCCER LEAGUE

H. A. Cranfield President — Make Application to Association.

GOOD TURNOUT.

As intimated in The Examiner last week that the C.G.E. soccer team would not run a team this year, a special meeting of the Athletic Association in the plant resulted in real activity amongst the soccer fans and players. Discussion relative to the soccer team terminated in a strong executive being appointed as follows: President, H. A. Cranfield; secretary, R. Clyde, executive, Alex. McKinley, E. G. Hardie, and Thomas Stewart (who is acting as trainer this season).

Last Friday evening a re-organizing meeting of players and executive took place on King Edward Park. Over twenty players were present at the practice. President Ben McMaster of the P. and D.F.A. was requested to call a special meeting this evening in the Chamber of Commerce at 8 to consider the application of the Canadian General soccer team and review the players' question to the satisfaction of all the teams. They intend to build a team of local youths around a few experienced players.

Last two years the Electrics won the league championship, but lost the district championship to Trenton.

SPORTS DAY BY DAY

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two.

In sportswriting even as in every other racket in this world of work and pleasure, annual vacations roll around and although this is rather early in the season even to be thinking of those lazy days, C.J.P., the writer of this column as a regular pastime has hiked himself away to parts unknown and for the next week we ask the patience of managers, coaches, athletes and sports readers until the return of the prodigal son.

• • • • • •

Dissension in the ranks threatened the well-being of the C.G.E. Soccer Club last week but through a special meeting of the Athletic Association of the plant held on Friday night, peace once more reigns over the camp of these battle-scarred veterans and last year's champions of the city and district league. A special meeting of the local association is being held this evening in the Chamber of Commerce this evening to consider the application of this team. Many complicated rumors are current that has no semblance of authority in regard to players associated with other teams but it is evident from the sportsmanship of the C.G.E. executive that they will develop their own players and are out to encourage the scientific code in the city.

Although a stiff breeze romped in from the river that made the boys think of corn skin coats and ear muffs, Knotty Lee put the sixteen or more aspirants for the senior ball club through a rather stiff workout on Saturday afternoon at James Stevenson park. During the practise scrimmage, Ash held down the initial sack for the regulars, Konopka was back at his old place on second while Murphy covered a lot of ground during his roamings in the short stop berth. Bill Calladine who was one of the Petes' best on the mound last season is showing great promise at the 'hot corner.'

• • • • • •

Knotty has every confidence in this year's outer gardeners with Burton and Foley back in their old ranges and Kearns, newcomer to the team in right field. The former pair have only to keep up their hitting of last year to be an asset to any ball club while Kearns is slated as no mean wielder of the willow. Cadd is filling in nicely as a utility fielder. To add a bit of experience and perhaps a bit more zest to the workout on Saturday, Lorne and Abby Rose, two of the former greats during Jake Solomon's Central Ontario League days and believe you us they sure showed the boys a few pointers on how to pick 'em up fast.

Down in Kingston, the Limestone city sports commentator does not think much of the chances of the three remaining C.O.B.L. clubs outside the borders of his own village. He readily admits St. Louis, Jamieson and Bud Clancy are undoubtedly the best hurling trio in the loop, but as for Peterborough, Belleville and Oshawa, it reads as though there isn't much chance for the remaining clubs, though the fact says "there isn't a decent pitcher in the lot." Verbal brickbats should fly around plenty between the clubs at this crack for apparently the Kingston scribe seems to forget some of setbacks the 'down-under' team received here, Belleville and Oshawa during the 1934 playing season.

According to a recent report received from Belleville lacrosse in that district got the proverbial 'kick in the slats' insofar as playing in an organized group is concerned. Fred Waghorne, head of the Ontario Association conferred with a few of the Quinte moguls and after talking matters over with him for the matter of a few minutes all tangles pertaining to lacrosse activities in that section were clearly outlined. First and foremost Prexy Waghorne said there was no chance of the Aajmaa team crashing into the outlaw 'Tri-County' league of that is in sway in this district. The only alternative left for the Belleville is to affiliate with the provincial body and procure a bye into the intermediate playdowns. And in the meantime, the Aajmaa club will be open for all engagements for as many exhibition games as possible.

As we like it: With pleasure we heard on Saturday night of the brilliant Omaha's victory in the $25,000 Preakness classic (right down our alley). Pire thorny was second while Psychi Bid ran third. Nellie Flag gave a disappointing display . . . . Hood and Cumming practise tonight at Central Park at 6 o'clock—Fashion Craft at Central School grounds at 6, also tonight . . . . Naborhood Colts, a new entry in the bantam section of the city league this year will play an exhibition game with King Edward school team tonight at 6.15 in Exhibition Grounds, all Naborhood players are requested to be on time—Contradiction is made of the rumors that are prevalent in minor circles, that all positions on some of these teams are already filled, this is not so and any player who wishes to gain o place has only to turnout for practise in order to get a fair show . . . . Dinty's Inn lacrosse squad will practise on Tuesday night at 6.30 in the Exhibition Park.

GOMEZ BEMOANS EXCESS WEIGHT

New York Yankee Flinger Fails to See Benefit of More Poundage.

EAT AND GROW FAT.

DETROIT, May 13.—(CP).— For years, Vernon "Lefty" Gomez's weight was a problem to his owners, the New York Yankees. Known at one time as the "skinny senor," the Mexican was perhaps the thinnest pitcher in the big leagues, and his bosses sat up nights trying to figure ways and means of adding flesh to his angular frame.

Now things are reversed and Gomez is bemoaning his excess weight. The southpaw, here with his team for a series with Detroit Tigers, admits he is 22 pounds heavier than he was at this time last year. But as far as benefitting from it this is what he has to say.

"Help me? Huh! This time last year I had won four games and lost non. My record now is two victories and three defeats."

The senor was asked how, after all his year of trying, he finally managed to add to his weight.

"You'd be surprised," he answered. "Eating, eating, and drinking a little beer now and then on my trip around the world last winter. You'd be surprised what eating will do for a sick guy."

C W DAY ELECTED CAGE PRESIDENT

Officers Re-elected at Annual Ontario Basketball Meeting.

SUPPORT SCHOOL MOVE.

ST. CATHARINES, May 13.—The annual meeting of the Ontario Amateur Basketball Association was held here Saturday. Reports of the secretary recommended to the Ontario body and parent Canadian organization that a visiting referee work in future national championship series, in view of the recent happenings in Victoria, B.C., when an Ontario cage quint contested the Dominion senior men's title.

In his financial report Laurie Irwin reported 275 teams and total registration of 2,977 players, of whom 1,192 were affiliated as church leaguers, exclusive of the C.O.S.S.A. and W.O.S.S.A. Associations. The year's financial report showed a slight deficit owing to increased expenditure.

Ontario basketballers swept the interprovincial series of Eastern Canada competition. In juvenile, Simpson Avenue of Toronto defeated Montreal in that city; in junior, Hamilton Kellys captured the class championship from Montreal C.P.R.'s; in intermediate Toronto Broadview L.'s swept undefeated to the title at St. John, N.B.; in senior, Assumption College of Sandwich defeated all opposition to travel west to Victoria, B.C., and in Interscholastic, Humberside C.I. of Toronto retained the title through the default of Montreal and St. John.

The O.A.A. went on record as supporting the ruling for all secondary schools of "one player one certificate." A heated discussion ended with the appointment of Samuel Rogers, Clarence Johnston and M. F. Kelly being named a committee to support this recommendation through the parent amateur body.

The election of officers resulted in the return to office of Hon. President, Samuel Rogers, Toronto; Hon. Vice-President, Thomas Armour, Kitchener; President, Charles W. Day, Windsor; First Vice-President, Alan Jeffries, Hamilton. Second Vice-President, Harold G. Woods, St. Catharines.

Lawn Bowling
BY Herb Martin

At a Meeting of our Membership Committee last Friday night they decided on thirty-nine rinks for the schedule for this coming season. This committee has functioned well and has been successful in bringing several new bowlers to our clubs—but their work is not over yet. We have still a few vacant places and we are anxious to have them filled.

—o—

The Games Committee

will meet on Tuesday night to put the finishing touches to the schedule before it is handed to the printer some time this week.

—o—

The Ladies' Section

under the leadership of J. Sedgewick have their rinks all ready and also have their schedule completed.

—o—

And, While We Are

at it, we just want to pass out that our greens were never in better shape than they are right now—and we believe that by May 24th, they will be all ready for the big crowd on the opening day. And speaking about the 24th, it will be a great big open tournament—mixed, prizes, fee, etc., etc., but we will have more to say about it later. All we ask is for the bowlers to keep the day open and our club will supply the fun.

WHITAKER'S COP CRICKET VICTORY

Local Woollens Importers Score 59-43 Win Over Oshawa.

Whitaker's played Oshawa at the Oval on Saturday, May 11th, and defeated them by a score of 59 to 43. The visitors last season were winners in their section of the Toronto and District League and this year have been promoted to a higher division, so the win is creditable and encouraging.

The home team are mainly indebted to Hamilton who gave a fine all-round display, scoring 36 runs out of a total of 59, and taking 4 wickets for 27; J. Wild had 3 for 4.

HOLDING OLD-TIME RECORDS "CY" YOUNG PITCHES AGAIN

Big Hurler Won Most Games With Cleveland

With an announcement recently that old Denton T. "Cy" Young would again don a baseball uniform and pitch for a team of old-timers this summer, one of the games greatest all-time pitchers—called by many the greatest—steps back into the game. If only for a fleeting period, Young will draw considerable attention from those who followed his hurling career when he was monarch of the mound, or have hunted up his record in the musty files of baseball.

Back in the early days of baseball, late in the eighties, Cleveland was a member of the old National league. With this team developed a young pitcher who was to become one of the greatest moundsmen, if not the greatest, of all time. He was Denton T. (Cy) Young, a big, strapping fellow, who had difficulty in finding uniforms to fit him. "Cy" Young broke into big league baseball in 1890 and for 22 years he was at the top of the heap of major league pitchers. During his big league career he won 508 games, the only pitcher in baseball history to amass more than 500 victories. "Cy" was the twirling end of the famous battery of Young and Zimmer, which is often regarded as the greatest battery in baseball annals.

GYPSY GIRL

by McDONALD FEADER

CHAPTER 24

Still Consuelo did not look up, but sat tense in the chair.

"It will be different," she said.

"Well, it'd better be," said Doug. "Gosh, kid, when you danced beside the train I'd never seen anyone so good. Why didn't you dance like that when you were on the stage?"

"I have no spirit in me when I am there. It's cold and black and ugly and nowhere can I see that it might be a marble palace—"

"I know, kid, you're getting a tough break. Forget all this and imagine the crowds out front. Gee, kid, when you dance and know that there are thousands of people out there in front watching every move you make, why, it makes all the difference in the world. I'd like to take you and let you see it alive but," he grinned, "they won't let you go backstage till it's necessary, little hell-cat. You know New York has been reading a lot about you. We haven't a ticket left to sell." He was coaxing the light back into her eyes. "Baby, you've got a chance to go over like a million dollars. Why Louise was jealous of you or she wouldn't have said the things she did. She's afraid of you already. She's afraid you'll take her place and become the star of the show. I'll let you in on a secret, Goldberg doesn't like her or he'd never in the world let you have a chance after the way you acted the other day."

For a long time he talked to her and when he had her promise that she would be good he got up to go.

"Stewart hasn't forgotten you either." He took a small case out of his pocket. "He said to tell you that if you'll be a good girl and not cause him or us any more trouble he'll get you something more beautiful than this even." He handed the case to the girl. "It's from him."

Consuelo opened the black box. Inside lay a necklace with four square-cut rubies. She gasped and held it out, devouring its beauty.

"Rubies, rubies for a gypsy!" She looked at it long and lovingly and the light of happiness came back into her eyes. "Tell him that the rubies are no redder than my lips which are waiting for him." She put the necklace on and bent her head and pressed the stones against her cheek. "Tell him I will be good. Tell him I will not spit on this white woman. Tell him I will dance for him and forget that ugly stage. Tell Mr. Goldberg, who is fat and looks like a frog, that I will make money for him. Tell him I will give him all of the silver dollars that roll to my feet." She paused. "Tell my white man that I am lonesome—"

Long into the hours of the night the girl sat and stared into the darkness. Dogs, all of them, she thought. This white woman, ah, how I hate her! I looked at her and thought she was beautiful but my eyes lied to me. My white man sends me a necklace that is more costly than any I have ever owned and yet he does not come to me. A piece of glass was worth more than that to Marcu. Marcu—

She thought of the gypsy camp. She went into the bedroom, took the shawl from the drawer and wrapped it around her shoulders. She saw the Dummy, his dark eyes upon her, loving her, his lips so speechless. She saw him and Marcu fighting and the dust that stirred about their feet. She saw Girtza and her heart became more lonely than it had ever been.

Walls about her, holding her in, crushing her. Big Ann, a giantess. No trees, no laughing brooks, no man to hold her in his arms. No man to whisper words of love—or to beat her. Marcu, tall and straight, flinging her to the ground and laughing. Marcu who had said, gypsy women lie, and had put the ring on his finger before he had taken her in his arms. Did he not know the ring was unnecessary? If only then he had said to Girtza, I offer you three horses and my purse of gold. A ruby necklace? Was it, too, maybe a "hunk of glass"?

There is a high hill and I shall dance there—irony of words, irony of dreams! There is no high hill. There is no palace, but on that ugly stage stands a woman with golden hair.

In the darkness of the night the gypsy flung back her head and clenched her fists and pounded against the arms of the chair.

I will show this white dog who says I cannot dance. Ah—I will show her! I will make her take back her lying words! I will make her cry out that she is a liar! I will make this Goldberg, this fat toad, get on his knees and beg me to stay before I am through with this New York. They will not conquer me! I will make this white man, this Stewart, love me. He who thinks he is too good for a gypsy, who sends gifts and is fool enough not to accept reward. I will make him love me until he is mad with passion and then I will laugh in his face. Oh, God, how I will laugh!

Her hands beat harder against the chair. There were tears streaming down her face.

I am going mad in this jail—but I have work to do. They, all of them, have spit upon me and I, Gypsy Consuelo, swear vengeance!

. . . If there are thousands there as he said, I will be rich—rich—

She leaned back in the chair.

Money flowing in a golden stream and it was music to her. And she began to picture how she would dance to make them throw their dollars with reckless abandon.

I will not think of that bare place, but of brooks and of trees and through the trees I will remember that the white woman is watching me.

Her eyes closed. Her body relaxed.

Music began to throb through her and she saw herself dancing. As she danced the stage became the high hill and the palace of marble and she wondered at the import of the thing she saw. Was it possible? The dance ended. To her ears came the sound of clapping like thunder and the people were not on the high hill, but before her sitting row after row in the black theatre. Ah, it was good to dream thus! If only the Dummy might come to her now and watch her and tell her with his eyes that she was the most wonderful dancer in the world—he who knew her dream.

Drug Clerk Keeps Fit

Uses Dodd's To Prevent Illness

"I have been 10 years in the pharmacy business, in leading drug stores in Montreal," writes Arthur Mullin, Verdun, Que. "I have recommended Dodd's Kidney Pills and Diamond Dinner Pills hundreds of times, and sold thousands of boxes of them. I advised my customers that Dodd's Kidney Pills are a truly safe preventative for infections of the Kidneys, and Diamond Dinner Pills an excellent laxative. I have personally used them both for many years. I never wait to be sick. I take Dodd's Kidney Pills every two weeks for a few days at a time, and in this manner keep in perfect health." D2

THE STARS SAY . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Tuesday, May 14

A very lively day is presaged from the predominant lunar and mutual aspects. But this liveliness is likely to be characterized by excitement, commotion, upheaval and possible indiscretions through impetuous acts. The mind and energies will be found to be under high stimuli. With firm control and discretion many benefits are seen.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may look for a year of much activity, commotion, excitement and possibly turbulence, with many opportunities for constructive work and solid benefits. But there are strong tendencies to rash, impetuous and wayward indulgences of a nullifying nature.

A child born on this day will be lively, active, energetic, but impulsive, reckless and self-indulgent. With proper personal discipline in both business and private affairs it should flourish.

MRS. G. K. TYLER GUEST SPEAKER

Women's Mission Circle of Lakefield Baptist Church Holds Open Meeting.

TWO DIALOGUES

LAKEFIELD, May 13.—(Examiner Correspondence). — Mrs. G. K. Tyler, of Peterborough, was the guest speaker at an open meeting of the Women's Mission Circle of the Baptist Church, and delivered an earnest address on the kind of Christians we meet. There are the rowboat Christians, who need to be shoved along; the sailboat Christians, who go "with the wind"; and the steamboat Christians, who have an idea that there is something to do and go straight for it.

Mrs. J. C. Harvey, the president of the circle, expressed the appreciation of the audience to Mrs. Tyler, who has so many times lent her aid and encouragement to the Lakefield circle.

Two dialogues were given, one "Aunt Jolly Joins the Missionary Society," which had a very obvious moral. The parts were as follows: Aunt Jolly, Miss Chrissy Ramsay; Miss Timpkins, Miss Bea Charlton; Mrs. Jones, Miss Margaret Rosebrough; Mrs. Smith, Miss Edith Nicholls; Mary Golder, Miss Ruth Grotefend.

The other dialogue represented a day in a hospital in India, with the following taking part: Margaret Carter, Phyllis Webdale, Vivalene Bullock and a small boy.

Musical numbers included a solo by Mrs. Tyler, "Will There Be Any Stars in My Crown"; guitar and autoharp selections, by Walter Walker and Lorne Morrison; a song by Margaret Davis and Cora Webdale, and a reading by Mrs. Walker, entitled "Prayer Time in India" with the prayer read by Miss Myrtle Armstrong.

On motion of Mrs. Walker and Mrs. B. Nicholls, a hearty vote of thanks was extended to Mrs. Tyler and all who helped make the program a success.

VETO EXPECTED ON BONUS BILL

Democrats Predict Roosevelt May Include Stand Against Inflation.

DECISION TUESDAY.

WASHINGTON May 13 (A.P.). — With the bonus issue heading toward a showdown, some leading United States Democrats predicted to-day President Roosevelt, in vetoing the Patman bill, would include a stand against inflation among his arguments. Congressional leaders were unchanged in their opinion he would veto the bill expected to go to him from the Senate to-morrow.

Conferees forecast the President would contend while the bonus might be paid in new money without actual damage, the experience of history was initial steps toward outright inflations always have led to disaster.

The chamber in which post-veto interest would centre is the Senate. Roosevelt leaders there are saying they can count on 35 votes—three more than they require to stop a move to upset a veto. As for the House, leaders conceded more than the necessary two-thirds of legislators there would vote to override the veto.

Father Charles E. Coughlin, in an address last night, appealed to the President to sign the bill.

Attacking the bond issue method of financing as against the Patman new currency method, he said:

"I cannot believe you would demand the taxpayers pay $1,900,000,000 bonus to the bankers simply because the soldier is entitled to be paid $2,400,000,000. I cannot believe that you will prevent the soldier from receiving his just dollar of dues simply because the banker is not to receive his unjust 81 cents of the bonus."

EPICURUS TURNS IN GOOD PLATE TRIAL

Wearing Blinkers He Steps Plate Distance in 1.56 3-5 —Other Trials.

TORONTO, May 13.—With one of the largest Sunday morning crowds in the history of the track, Woodbine Park on Sunday morning looked more like races were in actual competition instead of a week away. The outstanding workout was done by the Parkwood Stable Epicurus and Eileen D. Breaking from the five-eighths-pole, they went to the quarter in :24 1-5, :48 4-5, 1.15 2-5, 1.42 4-5 and the full Plate distance in 1.56 3-5. It was noticed in this workout that Epicurus for the first time ran in blinkers.

Vingt Cinq and Listaro, who will also sport the silks of the Parkwood Stable in the Plate, worked the full Plate distance. Breaking from the same spot, they went in the following fractions: :24 4-5, :50 1-5, 1.16, 1.42 2-5 and the mile and one-eighth in 1.57 3-5.

The first Plate candidates to work during the morning were Gay Sympathy, Sally Fuller and Langstaff, who will flaunt the yellow and black silks of Mr. E. F. Seagram. Breaking in perfect alignment from the eighth-pole, the watches clicked the quarters off as follows: :24 4-5, :52 2-5, 1.19, and the mile in 1.46 4-5. They finished with Gay Sympathy beating her stable-mates by a length or two.

The next candidate to perform over the strip was Stanley Crawford's Goggles. In company with Bubbling Out, Powder Monkey and Flying Heels II., the Crawford colorbearer worked the full Plate distance. Breaking from the eighth-pole and holding the rail position all during the workout, the times recorded were as follows: :24 2-5, :50, 1.17, 1.44 2-5, and the Plate distance in :58. The Crawford entrant in this year's Guineas was fighting for his head all the way.

Each member of the winning team was also presented with a suitably engraved silver medal. Members of the winning team are: G. M. Tittensorr (captain), H. Blevins, George Bradley, N. H. Lysons, J. C. Motorists' And Cyclists' Attention Called To Amendments In Highways Traffic Act

Inspector James Reid of the City Police Department calls attention to cyclists, motorists and others to certain recent amendments to the Highways Traffic Act.

It is now incumbent on cyclists whenever on the highway after dusk or before dawn to carry on the front of their machines a white or amber lighted lamp, or reflector approved by the Department, and on the back of the cycle a red lighted lamp or red reflector, as well as a white surface not less than ten inches in length and two inches in width.

No persons are permitted to store or deal in motor vehicles, or to conduct a garage business, parking station, parking lot or used car lot, without license from the Department.

Police officers are given authority to enter any place where motor vehicles are stored, or otherwise handled, to make inspection or investigation. If a motor vehicle shows evidence of having been involved in a serious accident or having been struck by a bullet, garage or parking stations operators are now required by law to report the fact to the nearest provincial or municipal police officer.

It is further forbidden for motorists to leave a standing vehicle whether attended or unattended upon any travelled portion of the highway, unless a clear view of such vehicle may be obtained by approaching traffic from a distance of at least 200 feet.

COMPLETE REVISION VOTERS' LIST JULY 1

Little Attention is Being Given to Revision of Voters' List.

Revision of the list of voters for the federal riding of Peterborough west will terminate on July 1. This foreword of the elections that will be held this year is mentioned today for the reason that local political interests are apparently giving little attention to the government's plans for voters' list revision. It has been pointed out that since the enumeration of the electors last October quite a number of young citizens have become eligible to vote, and unless their names are added to the lists before the end of June they will not be enfranchised.

The time for appealing against names already on the list has expired, and from now on the only amendments can be in the adding names that are not yet included.

The local registrar of electors will receive applications for the listing of rural electors adjacent to the city on May 16 to 20th inclusive at 163½ Hunter Street from 9 a.m. until 4 p.m. daily. This group of polling subdivisions follows: 61 and 62 Smith; 68, 69, 70, 71, 72, 73, 74, all of North Monaghan; 81 in Douro; 86, 88 and 89 Otonabee.

In other words the time for revising the voters' lists in the above polling subdivisions begins on Wednesday May 16 and ends on Monday, May 20.

The registrar of electors will hold a court of revision at the Lawless Hotel, Lakefield on May 27 and 28 for the polling subdivisions 65, 66, 67 in Smith; 75, 76 and 77 in Lakefield; and 78 Douro.

On May 29 Mr. Eastwood will be at Rockcroft for polling subdivisions 55 in Galway and Cavendish and 56 Harvey. And on May 30 he will be at Shearer's Shop, Hall's Bridge for the polling subdivisions 56 and 57 of Harvey.

Other dates will be announced later.

DROWNING VICTIM.

SHELBURNE, N.S., May 13 (CP). — A fishing expedition ended in tragedy on Lake George, near here, yesterday, when William Williams, 18, lost his grasp on an overturned canoe and drowned a few yards from the safety of the shores of an island.

GIVEN ONE MONTH FOR OBSTRUCTING

Tony Minicola Pleads Guilty to Obstructing Inspector Marshall.

For obstructing Inspector Fred Marshall in the execution of his duties as Game and Fisheries Officer, Tony Minicola, 29, of 189 Stewart street, was to-day fined $100 and $4.00 costs or in default one month's imprisonment, when he pleaded "guilty" to the charge before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C. On a lesser charge of "unlawfully angling with unbaited hooks," he defendant was further ordered to pay $10 and $2.50 costs, or in default one day imprisonment.

The defendant who intimated to the bench that he would be unable to pay the fine imposed, urged: "I didn't strike the officer. We had a sort of a tussle and we both fell down." He added that he had only been fishing for suckers.

The Inspector told the court that when he caught the defendant using unbaiting hooks for snagging at the Locks on Saturday, Minicola ran away and otherwise sought to obstruct him in his action.

Pointing out to The Examiner that the Magistrate had merely imposed the minimum penalty on the first charge, the Inspector stated, that the maximum penalty was $500 or three months' imprisonment. The section under which the charge was laid, he said, was very broad in its scope, and included not merely violence in resisting arrest, but also the giving of false information, or or warning offenders against the approach of a game warden, or in any other way hindering the work of the officers who were empowered to enforce the Game and Fisheries Act.

SCOUT NEWS

The day that thousands of Ontario Scouts and Guides waited for has come and gone, and they are satisfied, and glad in their hearts, because "We saw and heard the Chief." The rally in Toronto on Saturday was a great success. Some 25,000 Guides and Scouts from all over Ontario gathered together to honor "B.P." The Chief looks better than ever—in fine and healthy condition.

At the rally, a beautiful and well-prepared Scout display was put on by Toronto Cubs and Scouts. For weeks they had been rehearsing it to make it a success. It included: a grand howl by 500 Cubs and a display of bridge building, fire lighting, tent pitching, etc. All were put on in the most orderly manner.

Both Lord and Lady Baden-Powell spoke to the gathering, expressing appreciation of the service Canadian Scouts are rendering to their country. The rally was an event that Scouts will not forget; it supplied the biggest thrills some of them ever had, and we feel that it has created an interest in the public in Scouting, and that it left behind an impression on the boys, which will encourage them in their work, and that it has strengthened Scouting in Canada.

The Chief Scout will go from Toronto to London, Ont., where, on Tuesday, he will attended another rally for Western Ontario Scouts. On Thursday evening the annual meeting of the Canadian Boy Scouts' Association will take place in Toronto, in a form of a banquet in honor of the Chief Scout. Several local Scouters are planning to attend.

Last Wednesday evening Michael D. Crough and Wilfred Lee were invested as Rover Scouts. For the past four or five months they have served their probation time as Squires. The investiture was the first carried out by the Rovers without outside help. In a short address Rover Scout John Langley told about Rover Scouting in Hungary. During the past few years some 5,000 trees were planted by Canadian Scouts and Rovers, and services in other forms are carried out.

The local jamboree, to be held on May 24, at Nassau is already promising to be a great success. Troops from the district have already sent in their intentions of coming and we expect around 400 or over to be in Peterborough for the occasion.

Rover Scouts of Ontario formed a guard of honor when the Chief Scout entered the Coliseum in Toronto last Saturday, and some of the Peterborough Rovers were among them. As the order to stand a guard of honor came rather suddenly it did not reach all the Rovers, and therefore some of the local Rovers could not be present in line.

Hetherington Jersey Awarded Gold Medal

TORONTO, May 13. — The Jersey cow Roxie's Patricola, bred by Isaac Hetherington, Peterborough, and owned and tested by Silver Creek Farms, Limited, Caledon, has been awarded gold and medal of merit certificates by the Canadian Jersey Cattle Club.

Patricola went on test at 10 years of age and in 305 days produced 15,494 pounds of milk containing 918 pounds of fat, with an average test of 5.92 per cent. She is the oldest cow by two years to ever win a medal of merit in Canada. This is the highest record made in Canada during the past 12 months by a Jersey cow and is the first cow to be awarded the medal of merit certificate since 1933, when a British Columbia cow was awarded the highest honor that a Jersey can win. The recent winner is a consistent producer.

SUMMER WORK.

HALIFAX, May 13 (C.P.).—Plans are being made to have unemployed camps remain open throughout the summer months, Hon. Grote Stirling, Minister of National Defence, said upon his arrival here last night.

W. A. SPONSORS CHURCH SUPPER

125 Covers Laid at Annual Mothers' and Daughters' Banquet.

IN ST. JAMES' HALL.

A delightful affair of Friday night in the Sunday school hall of St. James' United Church was the annual banquet for the mothers and daughters of the church. The banquet was sponsored by the Woman's Missionary Auxiliary and the X.L. Mission Circle and about one hundred and twenty-five covers were laid. The hall was gally decorated with flags and streamers, while the tables carried out the Silver Jubilee colors: red, white and blue.

Mrs. A. E. Moorhourse, president of the Auxiliary, presided as chairman of the banquet and in gracious words welcomed the guests in the name of her own group and for the Circle girls.

Toasts are the essential feature of a banquet and the usual honoring of the King was endorsed by the singing of the National Anthem.

One of the banquet guests Mr. A. E. Prest, in proposing the toast to The Church, spoke of the vital place it holds in our lives and of the pride we should feel in being identified with it. In response, Rev. Mr. Moorhouse, the pastor, emphasized the joy of service to the church.

"To Our Mothers." Mrs. Robert Kitchen paid tribute in loving words, urging that our appreciation be shown throughout the year and not just on this occasion.

On behalf of the mothers, Mrs. Beavis replied to the toast, expressing their happiness in the fact that their daughters were preparing to fill their ranks in church life.

A message of affection and love was brought to "Our Daughters," in a toast by Mrs. G. Rowe, to which Miss Alberta Frost made fitting reply. She hoped the girls would prove worthy of the trust in which their own mothers as well as the church mothers held them.

Following the toasts, earnest prayer was offered for missionary endeavor by Mrs. W. H. Buckler. A delightful trio, "Tarry With Me," by Mesdames Monk, McKinstry and Kitney, was a pleasing interlude in the program.

Pleasing Readings

Contributions to the evening's entertainment were made by members of both Mission Band and Circle, in readings in honoring "Mothers" by Arelene Morrison and Miss Gladys Langton respectively.

An artistically rendered solo, "When Mother Prays," by Miss Jennie Smart, was accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Cecil Searles, who also played for the period of community singing which opened the program.

The special speaker of the evening was Miss Dorothy Worbody, who illustrated her very interesting address by means of pictures of her work in Western Canada under the direction of the "Anglican Sunday School by Post."

Miss Worboy's charming manner in presenting her story, made it a real inspiration, especially to the girls who heard her.

She emphasized the fact that their great aim is to bring people to Jesus, no matter what their race or denomination. This work was begun many years ago with only seven members, while to-day there are thousand of workers. Of these only two are paid, the others all giving voluntary service.

The girls travel in two's in large vans full equipped with provision for two weeks and other essentials to last the season from May to October. The audience was taken over the route covered by one of these vans through the slides illustrating it. This proved to be a march of adventuring in these missionaries' lives which required both courage and sacrifice.

The sincere thanks of the audience was voiced to the speaker, and to all who contributed to the success of the evening, by Miss Jean Hammond and endorsed by all; after which Rev. Mr. Moorhouse closed this successful annual event with prayer.

Cricket Results

LONDON, May 13 (C.P. Cable).—Middlesex won its second straight victory of the county cricket season to-day, defeating Worcestershire by four wickets at Lord's. The visitors scored 114 and 146, Middlesex replying with 161 and 100 for six wickets.

Leicestershire sprang a surprise by winning from Sussex by an innings and 50 runs. Sussex were dismissed for 66 and 74, While Leicestershire compiled 190. Geary and Smith were mainly responsible for Leicestershire's victory. In the two innings Geary captured 11 wickets for 40 runs, Smith taking eight for 83.

MILLBROOK W. I. HAS BUSY MEET

Ladies, Guests of Mrs. I. W. Larmer, Plan Garden Party For June 21.

TEA IS SERVED.

MILLBROOK, May 12—(Examiner Correspondence.)—The Women's League of Grace Presbyterian church was entertained on Wednesday, at 3 p.m., for its May meeting, at the home of Mrs. L. W. Larmer, Seventh Line, Cavan, the hostess being assisted by her daughter, Mrs. Melville Hall, and Miss Audrey Larmer, in receiving the fifty or more guests who were in attendance.

The president, Mrs. Chas. Thorndyke, took the chair, and Mrs. P. J. McKnight supplied in place of the regular secretary, Miss Ethel McKnight, who was unavoidably absent. Mrs. F. J. Deyell, treasurer, reported that Mrs. Harry Ball's group had realized fourteen dollars from the baking sale it held at F. C. Scott's store the previous week.

After discussion it was decided to ask Mrs. A. Coyle's group to continue to supply the church with flowers through June, as well as May, and Mrs. T. C. Ingram invited the society to hold its June gathering at the home of Mrs. Suttle Pritchard, Fourth Line, Cavan, the date set being June 12. Mrs. Pritchard sent the invitation through Mrs. Ingram, to whose group she belongs; it was accepted with thanks.

Garden Party June 21.

The matter of the annual garden party came up for consideration, June 21 being the date decided on, and the event to be held either at the home of Mrs. Thorndyke, or Mrs. J. D. Eakin's. A letter of thanks from Miss Eileen Hunter was read by the secretary, for the lovely plant sent while she was a patient in the local hospital, and also for the members' visits during her convalescence. Following the Mizpah benediction, the group in charge served a delicious tea, the menu being quite a substantial one, and many of the men coming in to enjoy this part of the gathering by invitation from the hostess, and the group hostesses, Mrs. J. H. Paul, and her helpers.

Mrs. Paul and Mrs. Jas. Kennedy sponsored the hearty vote of thanks to Mr. and Mrs. Larmer for the hospitality of their home, and the former replied, mentioning that it was the first occasion when the Women's League had met at their homestead, and hoping it would by no means be the last.

FAMILY SPATS OVERRATED AS CAUSE OF INSANITY

(By Howard W. Blakeslee, Associated Press Science Editor.)

WASHINGTON, May 13 (AP)—A notable gathering of psychiatrists heard to-day that quarreling with the wife or bumps on the head are overrated as causes of insanity.

Abraham Myerson, M.D., of Boston, told the American Psychiatric Association to-day even "great strife" in the family circle brings on insanity only to a person predisposed.

To-day's meeting opened a five-day session of about 1,500 physicians to consider the increase of mental disorders. One person in every 22 in this country, it was stated, will find himself at some time a patient in a mental hospital.

Hon. Harry Stevens Would Not Accept Tory Nomination In Peterborough West

All rumors to the contrary, the Hon. H. H. Stevens, former Dominion Minister of Trade and Commerce and chairman of the Price-probe Committee of the House of Commons, will not contest this Riding at the forthcoming Federal election.

"It is not that I would not dearly like to consider such a proposal," Mr. Stevens told The Examiner, "but it is impossible for me to desert British Columbia, which I have represented in the House of Commons for almost a quarter century."

When a reporter approached Mr. Stevens with the object of obtaining either confirmation or denial of the rumors which had gained impetus with news of his proposed visit to the city in which he spent his youth, he affably, remarked, "It is a very great compliment for you to even suggest that I might contest this Riding, but you need attach no importance to the rumor."

"Would you accept the Conservative nomination if it was offered to you?" he was pressed.

"No. That would be impossible, much as I would like to. I have been asked this question by several of my friends here, but I could not consider it. I could not desert my old constituency in British Columbia."

cisions dropped greatly as a consequence.

Founded Hospital.

The Groves Memorial Hospital in this town was founded by Dr. Groves, and is now carried on by his son, Dr. W. A. Groves, serving a wide area in this section of the Province.

Starting his practice here following his graduation, and before there was a hospital nearer than Toronto, Dr. Groves's early operative work was done under very primitive conditions. The operating room was generally the kitchen, with a couple of boards each on trestles or the kitchen table used as an operating table. Milk cans were used as basins, sea sponges for wiping. If the operation had to be done at night, a coal oil lamp supplied the light. Chloroform was the one anaesthetic.

First Appendix Operation.

On May 10, 1883, Dr. Groves performed the first appendectomy in medical history. In 1879, on a kitchen table in the old Bullfrog Tavern in Guelph, this daring young doctor successfully operated on a man and removed six stones from the bladder through the abdominal route, the first time such an operation had been undertaken on this continent.

In 1874 he had the foresight to boil everything that was to be used in an operation. He scrubbed his own hands and arms for twenty minutes with soap and boiled water, and from the very outset of his practice demonstrated that peritonitis and infections could be avoided by this method. Many years before surgical gloves were invented, he boiled ordinary rubber driving gloves for surgical procedures, and was convinced they prevented infection.

He was often spoken of by great surgeons as being twenty years ahead of his time. He was formerly medical superintendent of the Royal Alexandra Hospital, now renamed the Groves Memorial Hospital in his honor. He built this institution in 1902, and in 1932 deeded it as a gift to the Village of Fergus.

Author of Book.

Not only was Dr. Groves a surgical genius, but also a philosopher as displayed in a book, "All in the Day's Work," written by him shortly before his death. Few have done more for Fergus than Dr. Groves, who served on practically every municipal board. In his early days he operated a flour mill, later adding an electric light plant to supply power, not only for his own mill, but for the villages of both Fergus and Elora. This was later purchased by the Ontario Hydro-Electric Commission.

One of the greatest disappointments in the grand old doctor's life was the removal of the training school three years ago from the hospital he had founded and in which institution 147 nurses were graduated, many of whom occupy prominent positions to-day.

Dr. Groves was born near Peterborough, coming with his parents to West Garafraxa when four years of age. He attended school in Fergus. In 1874 he was married to Jennie Gibbons, who died 12 years later. In 1911 he married Ethel Burke, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. S. Burke, by whom he is survived. He was a life member of the Order of Foresters, Independent Order of Oddfellows, and of the Masonic Order, and was a member of St. James' Anglican Church. For 53 years he was physician at the Wellington County Old People's Home.

Besides his wife, he is survived by one son, Dr. William A. Groves of Fergus, and a daughter, Mrs. R. A. Hills of Toronto; three sisters, Mrs. John Nesbitt, Fergus, Mrs. Thomas Nesbitt, Lachine, Quebec, Mrs. R. W. Bright, Wiarton, and one brother, Gibson Groves of Parry Sound.

The funeral will be held from St. James' Church, Fergus, on Wednesday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock (daylight saving time).

ries of strategy tactics ever played by such a force.

The powerful undersea force, submarine division 12, which trailed the fleet across the Pacific but could not deliver an "attack" came in hours after the other warships yesterday.

Admiral Reeves revealed a few details in the mass flight of 43 naval seaplanes which took off from here last Thursday, supposedly for Midway Island, 1,323 miles northwestward.

While not revealing the whereabouts or destination of the planes, the commander-in-chief said the flight involved one landing en route.

Admiral Reeves emphasized secrecy was vital in this great over-water mass flight because it was such an important phase of the manoeuvres.

MOTHER'S DAY

MARMORA, May 13 (Examiner Correspondence). — Mother's Day was observed at St. Andrew's United Church with appropriate services morning and evening. In the morning a mothers' choir led the singing of the hymns and the pastor, Rev. C. W. Hollingsworth, preached an excellent sermon on "Mother."

In the evening the special subject was "Mothers and Fathers." Large congregations marked the services and the pulpit was tastefully adorned with flowers. At the Sunday school session, the service appointed for Mother's Day was followed, with Mr. Allan Smith of Marmora High School staff giving the address to the scholars.

At St. Paul's Anglican Church good congregations listened to sermons by Rural Dean A. B. Caldwell on "The Great Woman of Shunam" and "Hannah," and at Evensong Mesdames P. Gray and L. R. Rundle rendered as a duet, "Mother's Bible."

Mrs. Holland Reads Auxiliary Topic

NORWOOD, May 13.—(Examiner Correspondence.)—On Thursday evening, May 9 the Young Women's Auxiliary of the Presbyterian church held their May meeting at the home of Mrs. G. MacMillan, Queen street. The meeting opened with the president, Mrs J. Rogers, in the chair, with twelve members present. Following the opening hymn the Lord's Prayer was repeated in unison.

Miss Florence Burgess then gave a reading, followed by several taking part in the circle of prayer. Mrs. Holland gave a very interesting topic from Chapter V of the study book. Each member answered the roll call with a verse of Scripture, followed by the discussion of several business items. The meeting closed with hymn 387 and repeating the Mizpah benediction.

The hostess then served a dainty lunch and a social half hour was spent, followed by a vote of thanks to Mrs. MacMillan for opening her home for the meeting.

On Wednesday evening, May 8, the Evening Auxiliary of the United church held their monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. Russel Gardner, Peterborough street.

Mrs. Renaud's group took charge of the meeting, with the leader in the chair. Miss Thelma Cleland gave a very interesting talk on the author of the hymn, "Greenland's Icy Mountains."

BREAK FORESEEN AS RAINY SEASON COMES TO CLOSE

Italy Mobilizes 200,000 More Troops—950,000 Under Colors By Friday.

SHIES AT PEACE MOVES.

Ethiopian Emperor Expected to Summon Council All Tribal Chiefs.

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia, May 14.—(AP)—Fears hostilities between Ethiopia and Italy would begin in September when the rainy season ends were expressed in government circles today as word was received of Italy's action in mobilizing 200,000 more troops.

A government spokesman said Emperor Haile Selassie probably would return to the capital at once from a provincial inspection tour to summon a council of tribal chiefs.

Ra Mulugeta, minister of war, said the massing of Italian troops in East Africa" has all but shattered hopes of a peaceful settlement.

The ministry of foreign affairs termed "Italian propaganda" reports that Ethiopia was seeking military support from Turkey and other near Eastern powers.

Ready For Anything.

ROME, May 14 (A.P.).—Premier Benito Mussolini, in an unexpected speech before the Senate on the Ethiopian crisis this afternoon, declared Italy was "ready for any eventuality."

Great Britain and France, Italy's good friends, need have no fear lest the steady stream of troops pouring into Africa weakens the country, he said, since "with three classes under arms and a fourth in readiness, Italy is ready for any eventuality."

950,000 Italians Armed

BY STEWART FRENCH

ROME, May 14.—(AP)—Italy may have 950,000 troops mobilized by Friday, it was indicated today, as her relations with Ethiopia wavered between conciliation and increased belligerency.

A government spokesman, announcing members of the class of 1912 had received mobilization orders, referred to Ethiopia's "evidence attitude of hostility."

He added while Italy is prepared to name conciliators to attempt to promote a peaceful settlement of the East African dispute under the Arbitration Treaty of 1928, she would not do so until assurance of like intention had been received from Emperor Haile Selassie.

It was learned British efforts to secure conciliation and prevent the issue from embarrassing the League of Nations council was far from pleasing to Premier Mussolini but he finally acceded to the conciliа-

QUINTS' ESTATE IS NOW WORTH $175,000 CASH

Built Up From $27,000 By Gov't Named Guardians in Last 3 Months.

NEW CONTRACTS COMING.

TORONTO, May 14. (CP).—Assets of the Donne quintuplets are six times as great to-day as when the Ontario Legislature passed a bill making them special wards of His Majesty the King, represented by Minister of Welfare David Croll, according to figures released to-day by the minister.

When the Government took over the babies they had about $27,000, said Mr. Croll, but in the last three months the guardians have managed to build up an estate worth $175,000. The $27,000 included $5,000 in cash and there were contracts pending for $22,000, Mr. Croll added.

"In the last three months we've managed to build up an estate worth $175,000," said Mr. Croll. "The quintuplet's assets have sextupled and we've effected with negligible expenditure — nothing paid out for agents or managers. And we've other contracts in sight which should swell the fund still further."

Exploitation Plot

Comparing the present situation with that prevailing when the Government undertook "to defeat the promoters" Mr. Croll said when the guardianship legislation passed through the Legislature last March "there was a plot to snatch the babies out of Canada and exploit them in the States."

The minister added there was also a subsisting contract whereby 40 per cent of all takings went "to the promoter."

Mr. Croll estimated if the Dionnes had managed to enter such advantageous contracts as the government had arranged the babies assets would be $165,000 instead of $175,000 because Dionne's manager, Leo Kervin of Callander would have 40 per cent or $70,000.

"Mr. Kervin doesn't approve of our methods and is doing everything in his power to embarrass us by using the parents for his purposes," the minister charged. "Can you blame him? In the circumstances, who wouldn't be mad? The Callander bonanza didn't materialize for him—but I think the general public will be glad that not he but the babies struck gold."

The minister said the parents received $100 a month as living expenses and he regarded this as "adequate for all their needs."

Refuse New Home

"And we've offered to build them a new home," he went on. "On the advice of their manager-promoter they turned it down. We hope they may reconsider this decision."

The Dionnes were being offered the best available education for the elder children and Mr. Croll said

Motion By Alderman Cotton and Sloan is Unopposed in City Council.

PETITION PRESENTED.

Insurance Company Expresses Regret at Unfortunate Incident.

In response to a petition signed by more than 2,300 citizens, the council last night unanimously adopted Daylight Saving Time for the period from midnight Saturday, June 8 to midnight September 2 (Labor Day).

The motion by Alderman Cotton was seconded by Alderman Sloan, and, as no dissenting hand was raised around the aldermanic board, Mayor Denne remarked: "Nobody can get any votes on the Daylight Saving question."

The petition's bulky sheaf of pages, bearing marks of systematic circulation, was not even perused by any member of the council. Its signatories were chiefly employees of factories and stores with others who desired that Peterborough should take advantage of summer time's longer days. The petition was presented by a group of merchants and factory employees with Verne Selkirk, proprietor of the Selkirk Men's Shop, briefly explaining their mission.

Mr. Selkirk especially pointed out that Peterborough is an industrial city, and that as some of them have their head offices in Toronto, whose clock's have been advanced, the local factories have been forced by business circumstances to operate on so-called daylight saving time. This had resulted in considerable local confusion in the community.

Mayor Denne said that a number of women had asked him whether the council could advance the clocks because they were getting breakfasts at nearly all hours from

CIVIL SERVICE CHANGES COMING

Hepburn to Place Many Temporary Employees on Permanent Roll.

NO NEW APPOINTMENTS.

TORONTO, May 14 (C.P.) — Future policy of the Ontario Government with respect to the Civil Service was enunciated to-day by Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn in forecasting reorganization of the Audit and Treasury departments.

Key points in the plan will be placing on the permanent roll of the service persons who have been listed as temporary employees. This will make it possible for them to pay into the superannuation fund.

Mr. Hepburn said the government had records of some employees being listed as members of the temporary staff for as long as twelve years.

"It was a method of beclouding facts as to cost of administration," said Mr. Hepburn. "We have records of years showing many on the temporary staff were paid out of the Contingency Fund."

The Premier said he would submit recommendations to cabinet tomorrow regarding reorganization of the Treasury and Audit Departments. There will be no reduction of salaries but reorganization will consist of slight reduction of staff and certain transfers.

Many Near Age Limit.

Mr. Hepburn stated the Government required an additional staff in the corporation tax branch. Further reduction would result from a number of employees being eligible for superannuation.

The Premier said the Government had no intention of replacing J. T. White, Deputy Provincial Treasurer or Provincial Auditor Gordon Brown.

The Government is making no

PLAYGROUND IS OFFERED CITY

R. C. Braund Offers to Give City Three Lots on Chamberlain Street.

RELIEF RENT SCHEDULE.

In a letter to the council last night R. C. Braund offered the city a gift of three lots on the south side of Chamberlain street to be used as a playground for the children in that part of the city.

The property is 190 feet by 257 feet, and if it is accepted by the council Mr. Braund has requested that it be called Braund Playground. His interest in child welfare and a realization that the lack of park or playground in the Albert and Chamberlain Streets vicinity forced the children to play in the streets, actuated Mr. Braund's community contribution. His letter was referred to the Property Committee.

Relief Rent

A resolution by Alderman Tuggey, seconded by Alderman Stocker, instructed the Central Relief Board to put into effect the new provincial regulation which provides that relief rent may be increased to twice the taxes on a tenanted property, instead of 150 per cent as in the past. The maximum allowance for rent, water and light for a family of five persons or more is limited to $31 a month, and the maximum for smaller families is $15 a month.

As this new provision works out, if a house tenanted by a family on relief is taxed for $60 a year the relief allowance for the year is now $120 instead of $90 at present. The owner of this house would receive $10 a month instead of $7.50.

Means $5,000 To Owners

It has been estimated that the new schedule of relief rent would mean an increase of about $5,000 in Peterborough.

Tenders for the purchase of three motor trucks, two for the Board of Works and one for the Parks Committee, were opened by the Board of Works last night, and were referred to a special committee composed of Aldermen Hamilton, Stocker and Wilson and City Engineer Parsons.

TWO NAZI FINED OVER PROTOCOLS

Convicted of Distributing Immoral Literature on Charges of Slandering Jewry.

THREE ACQUITTED.

BERNE Switzerland May 14 (AP) —A court trying five Swiss Nazis on charges of slandering Jewry through circulating the "Protocols of Zion" to-day convicted and fined two of them for distributing "immoral literature" thus in effect ruling the notorius documents forgeries.

The court expressly forbade circulations in Switzerland of the protocols which purport to reveal Jewry's plans for world hegemony through domination of all governments.

It declared them "false and obvious plagiarism" "immoral because they propagated hate against part of the population and are thus of such nature to cause agitation and disturb public peace."

Confiscation of the protocols was not ordered the court said because that would "have no practical result for they have been sold for the past 20 years."

Theodore Fischer leader of Swiss Nazis and his co-defendant Schneider were fined 50 and 20 Swiss francs respectively and ordered to pay the costs. Three other defendants were acquitted and declare entitled to reimbursement for expenses of the trial.

DARDANELLES CAST SHADOW OVER EUROPE

Turkish Demands For Forts Both Sides of Straits Cooly Received in Britain.

PARIS LITTLE CONCERNED.

Greece, Rumania, Yugoslavia Back Turks in Call for War Treaty Revision.

(By George Hambleton, Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

LONDON, May 14 (C.P. Cable).—The Dardanelles now threaten to cast their shadow over the international scene.

British official circles give a cold welcome to the most recent addition to rearmament schemes, Turkey's demand for permission to fortify the Dardanelles, echoed often in late weeks and reportedly revived at the Balkan Conference in Bucharest yesterday.

Demilitarized Zone.

As a result of the Treaty of Lausanne—the Peace Treaty with Turkey—a strip along both sides of the Dardanelles, gateway between Europe and Asia, was demilitarized as was a wider strip along both sides of the frontier between Turkey and Bulgaria. If Bulgaria is to be permitted to re-arm, Turkey claims, then she should be permitted to close the straits to foreign warships.

The Daily Herald said Turkey would demand the right to fortify the straits if the Allies grant concessions to any of the former Central Powers as is expected to occur at the forthcoming Danubian Conference in Rome.

Backing Turkey.

BUCHAREST, May 14.— (CP-Havas). — Greece, Rumania and Yugoslavia have decided to support their fellow Balkan entente member, Turkey, in her demand any revision of war treaties should entail abolition of the clauses demilitarizing the Dardanelles diplomatic quarters believed to-day.

Not France's Worry.

PARIS, May 14.—(AP).—France, while she has not been officially notified of Turkey's desire to refortify the Dardanelles, considers the matter primarily one for Great Britain and Russia to decide, it was indicated to-day.

Officials said France's only concern as to the status of the Straits would be in the event she some day wished to see Russian troops transported from the Black Sea.

REGINALD WINCH TO STAND TRIAL

Note Asked For By Defence Cannot Be Found Crown Reports.

SECOND CHARGE LAID.

Following an adjourned preliminary hearing Reginald "Buck" Winch was to-day committed for trial on a charge of having unlawful possession of an automatic pistol.

He was further charged under Section 216 of the Criminal Code of procuring women for an immoral purpose. Through his counsel the Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C., the accused declined to elect or plead to the second charge, and on application of the Crown was remanded until Tuesday next.

Counsel told Magistrate O. A. Langley K.C., he had no objection to a remand so long as it did not interfere with an application for bail which, he said, he proposed to make in reference to the first charge against the accused.

"Buck" Winch, who is alleged to have been mixed up in an extortion plot to force E. A. Peck, K.C., M.P., to 'O.K." a forged cheque for $5,000.00, at the point of a pistol, displayed the usual appearance of indifference to the proceedings to-day.

He strolled nonchanantly out of court at the conclusion of the brief proceedings, under custody, and with a copy of a Toronto morning paper

FIGHT FOR HEART BALM IS LOST BY ALICE JOYCE

British Judge Finds No Evidence Lord Revelstoke Proposed Marriage.

ACTRESS TO PAY COSTS.

LONDON, Eng., May 14. (AP).—Miss Angele Joyce, the "Miss England of 1930" to-day lost her breach of promise suit against Lord Revelstoke, wealthy young banker.

A jury in the Old Bailey, which included three women, required only half an hour to reach a verdict for the defendant.

Costs of the action were assessed against Miss Joyce.

The beauty contest winner, who changed her name from Ivy Dawkins when she went on the stage, testified Lord Revelstoke, Rupert Baring before his succession to the peerage, proposed to her several times while he was in school at Cambridge. Once he popped the question in her bedroom, she asserted.

This Lord Revelstoke flatly denied, telling the court the question of marriage only came up between them when Miss Joyce herself raised it. He told her he was not interested, he testified.

All a Lie.

In closing the young Peer's attorney gave the lie direct to the actress.

A "patent lie" was the way he characterized her contention. Lord Revelstoke resumed their association after seven months of separation while he called a "transparent lie" her assertion he had written her letters after the "Cambridge period."

Justice Swift, in charging the jury, said:

"A man doesn't promise to marry a woman by saying 'You're the sweetest girl I've ever met'."

To win her case, he said, Miss

Official Censorship Clamped on Accident—Nemesis to Turks in War.

WOOL, Dorsetshire, May 14 (A.P.). — Major-General J. W. West, honorary surgeon to the King, was called into consultation late this afternoon at the bedside of the famed "Lawrence of Arabia," still unconscious as a result of last night's motorcycle accident in which he was seriously injured.

Lawrence's brother, who was abroad, started to fly home as the soldier-author's condition continued critical.

"It has now been ascertained that Shaw has a fractured skull," an attache at the hospital said. "His condition is very serious.

Flung 130 Feet.

While censorship was clamped down since the accident occurred on War Office property, it was understood Lawrence was flung 130 feet from his motorcycle by the force of the impact. He was found lying with his left shoulder embedded in the ground.

It was understood not only have members of the Tank Corps been instructed not to discuss the incident, but their wives have received similar instructions.

The staff captain at Bovington Camp near the hospital said the picturesque figure in the Arabian campaign was "in a critical condition and suffering from concussion."

He said he may also have received a fracture of the skull.

United States Ready To Stabilize Says H. Morganthau

CLAIMS DOLLAR IS ABSOLUTELY ON SOUND BASIS

Credits Roosevelt's Monetary Policy With Saving Nation From Disaster.

NO DEVALUATION RACE.

States Waiting For Other Powers to Take Lead in International Stabilization.

WASHINGTON, May 14—(AP)—The speech of Henry Morgenthau declaring the United States dollar is "absolutely sound" and the United States is "not unwilling to stabilize" under certain conditions was widely regarded today as an official new deal reply to critics who assert an end to monetary uncertainty is needed to restore confidence.

In Wall street, as here, a principle question talked over today was the probable effect of the treasury head's speech on the much-discussed restoration of assurances as to the future of the dollar.

Morgenthau's speech was taken as a sign the United States does not intend to act singly for international stabilization.

"The world should know," he said last night, "that when it is ready to seek foreign exchange stabilization, Washington will not be an obstacle. Our position was that of an innocent bystander who suffered untold loss in a fight that we did not start and from which we could not escape.

"We are not unwilling to stabilize. However, if the great trading nations elect to continue under the present absence of rules we are no longer at a disadvantage. We have remained our currency no more than was necessary and we can go either way, our hands are untied.

The U. S. Offer.

"So far from engaging in a competitive devaluation race with other nations," he said at another point, "we hold out to them a currency of such steadiness that the normal tendency may very well be for the rest of the world to move gradually toward practical exchange stabilization. If that can be achieved, the final step should come easily and almost of its own accord. Unless

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, May 14. — Copious timely rains highly beneficial for wheat crops tumbled wheat down an extreme of 2 cents a bushel yesterday to nearly the season record low levels.

The new setbacks of prices took the wheat market to 11c under a high point reached on April 22 and were despite the fact that the United States wheat visible supply yesterday was the smallest since August, 1927. Favorable crop comments regarding wheat, especially in Central Kansas and in spring wheat regions north-west, acted as much more than an offset for inflation talk.

Wheat closed weak 1⅝c-1¾c under Saturday's finish. July 92¼c-92½c; corn ¾c off to ⅝c up, July 80¼c-80¾c; oats ½c-⅝c down; and provisions varying from 5c decline to a rise of 2c.

Contributions to weakness of wheat values were indications of further generous moisture in domestic wheat territory south-west. Heavier world shipments of wheat together with larger supplies on ocean passage to importing countries, were also given attention. Furthermore, yesterday's deliveries of wheat on Chicago May contracts were again liberal, 748,000 bushels.

Notwithstanding reports of delays to corn planting, both corn and oats prices averaged lower with wheat. All deliveries of rye plunged to new lows for the season.

Strength of hog values upheld the provision market.

STOCK SHIPPING HEADS CLEARED

Judge Wearing Rules No Conspiracy to Defraud Shown in Richelieu Case.

FARMERS LOST $40,000.

LONDON, Ont., May 14. (CP).—Samuel Richardson and James MacDonnell of Montreal, officers of the bankrupt Richelieu Corporation, were free to-day of charges of having conspired to defraud farmers of Western Ontario in cattle export transactions.

Although farmers were said to have lost $40,000 as a result of the operations of the company which exported cattle to England, Judge Joseph Wearing late yesterday, after a trial which lasted three and a half days, dismissed charges of fraud and conspiracy against the pair.

Richardson and MacDonnell were president and vice-president respectively of the corporation.

The Crown also had charged J. Stanley Clay Sheddon, a director, but he appeared yesterday as a Crown witness.

No Conspiracy Shown

Judge Wearing made his decision after the Crown's case was complete and without waiting to hear the defence evidence. He ruled no conspiracy had been shown in the case of Clay and MacDonnell and Richardson were much in the same position. Unless conspiracy could be shown, he stated, the prosecution could not stand.

The corporation, with Federal Government subsidies, shipped cattle to the British market and paid dividends fairly steady until one of its ships was stranded in the St. Lawrence River. Later shipping charges multiplied and the treasury funds were wiped out.

Maclean Clan Chief Will Be 100 Sunday

LONDON, May 14 (C.P.).—When Colonel Sir Fitzroy Maclean, one of the survivors of the Crimean War, celebrates his 100th birthday at his ancestral home, Duart Castle, Isle of Mull, May 18, he will be the recipient of a signal tribute of affection from members of the clan of which he is the 26th hereditary chief.

Macleans in all parts of the world have contributed to a bound volume containing their signatures, and this will be handed to Sir Fitzroy as an expression of the fidelity of the great family over which he traditionally presides.

Sir Fitzroy who possesses many relics of ancient Scottish days and wars, as a youth joined the 13th Hussars. Nearly 20 years later he commanded the regiment. He is one of the last surviving living links with the Duke of Wellington, from whom he received his commission in 1852.

Jersey Cow Wins Medal of Merit

The Jersey cow Roxie's Patricola, bred by Isaac Hetherington, Peterborough, Ontario, and owned and tested by Silver Creek Farms Limited, Caledon, Ontario, has recently been awarded gold and medal of merit certificates by The Canadian Jersey Cattle Club.

Patricola went on test at 10 years of age and in 365 days produced 15,494 lbs. of milk containing 918 lbs. of fat, with an average test of 5.92%. She is the oldest cow by 2 years to ever win a medal of merit in Canada. This is the highest record made in Canada during the past 12 months by a Jersey cow and is the first cow to be awarded the medal of merit certificate since 1933, when a British Columbia cow was awarded the highest honor that a Jersey cow can win. The recent winner is a very consistent producer as evidenced by her monthly production sheet.

CANADA MAKING A SERIOUS BID FOR U. S. TOURIST

Tiresome Customs Routine Now Eliminated By New Regulations.

Watchword—"Courtesy."

OTTAWA, May 14 (C.P.).—Canada is making a serious bid for the United States tourist, and, in co-operation with the Dominion bureau whose business it is to boost this country's attractions, immigration and Customs restrictions have been considerably slackened. Canada wants the tourist and is prepared to go a long way to induce him to come here.

Routine Simplified.

Tiresome Customs routine which not infrequently deterred the foreign sportsman from visiting the country has been eliminated. Motorists coming here equipped with fishing-rods, guns, golf clubs, camping materia' and such like were obliged formerly to declare these on varied and various governmental forms. Now an omnibus permit replaces the pro-forma and provides for declaration of all items in the visitor's outfit.

One more annoyance in the abolition of the guarantee bond required from a tourist desirous of spending more than 90 days in Canada has been removed. Neither bond nor deposit will now be sought, up to a period of six months.

Thus, if a visitor finds the country sufficiently attractive to stop over his initial permit period, he may do so without being required to find someone to stand surety for his good faith.

No Permits For 2 Days.

Permits are no longer required for those who wish to visit Canada for two days. This is a 24-hour extension on the former practice.

Without at all impairing the treasury of the country, Canada has re-

Hundreds of Voters Line Up to Cast Votes for Their Favorites.

SECOND WEEK NOW ON

The first period of the Travel Club contest is over. Yes, it is over and everyone heaved a sigh of relief when the final ballots were cast on Saturday night. From early in the day a continuous stream of voters poured into the Travel Club headquarters to cast their votes for their favorite ladies of the club. So great was the crowd that voters were kept waiting their turn to get to the ballot box. Never has such a popular competition been carried on in this section of the province. It is evident that The Examiner was most fortunate in securing such a popular selection of club ladies. It is utterly impossible for the Travel Club staff to even estimate the millions of votes that were cast in the ballot box and issued for subscription payments during the closing hours of the first stage of the campaign that will send ten of the members on holidays to New York, and Bermuda. It will be days before all the votes will be counted. Every effort is being made to check the newspaper coupons that crammed the ballot box. In fact, the ballot box had to be unlocked and cleared many times during the day.

As soon as the task of checking these votes is completed a standing of the different candidates will be published. This standing will also be chalked up on the bulletin board at the Travel Club headquarters and the many friends of the representatives will be eager to follow the

Musical Fight

LOS ANGELES, May 14 (C.P.). — The bulls will have to face the music after all.

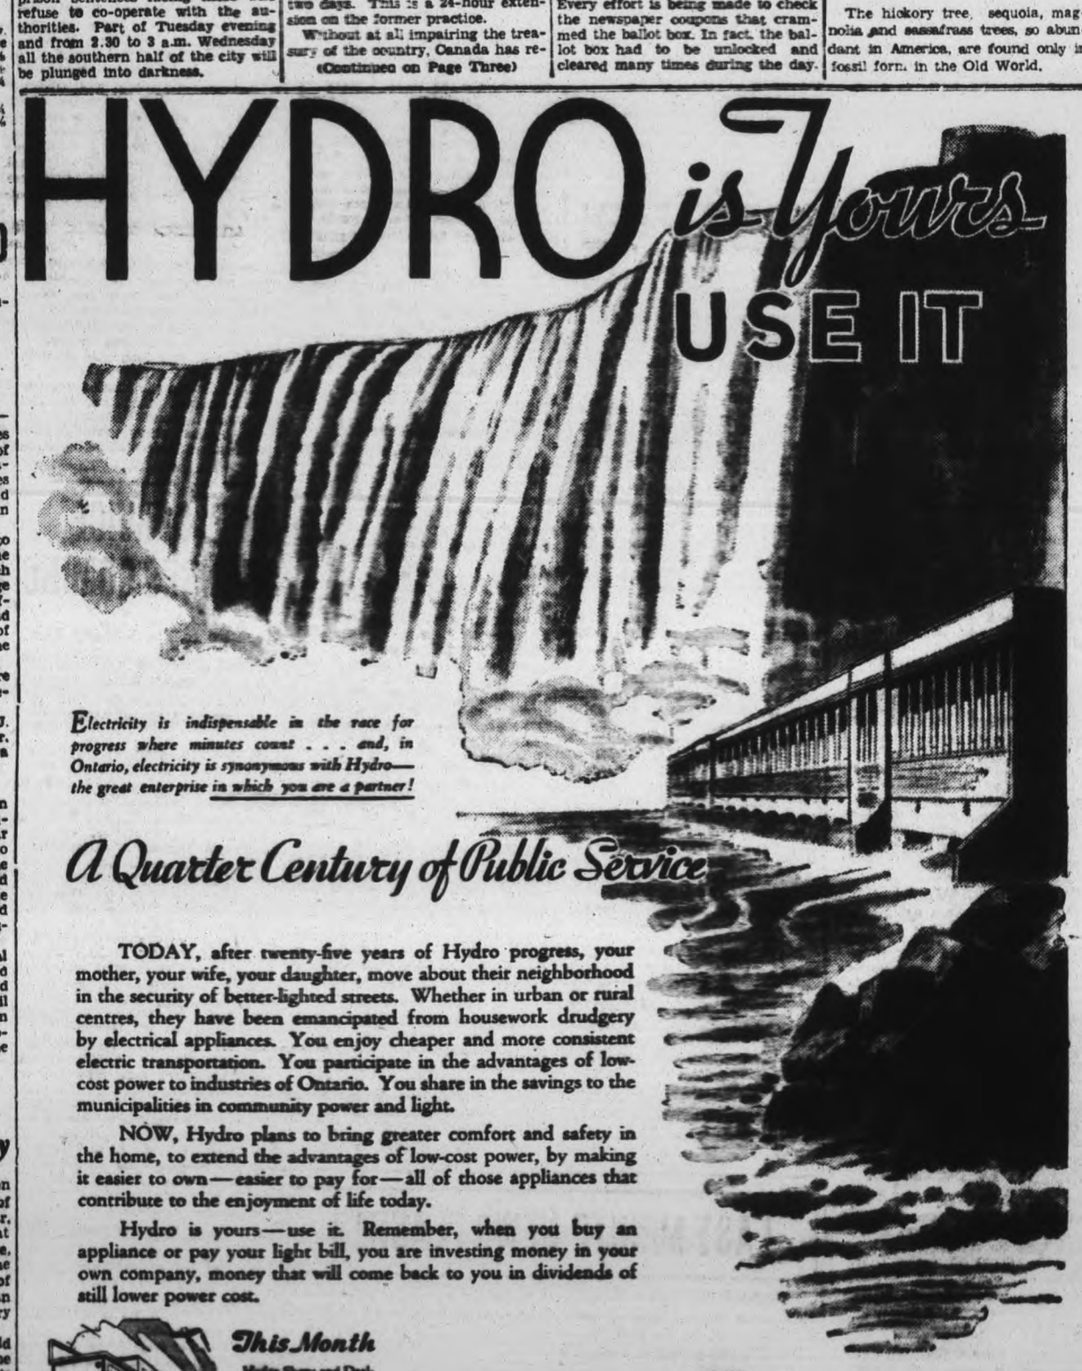
Bearing the somewhat reluctant sanction of humane officers the delayed Premier of Luis Solana's musical bull fight will be presented on Saturday.

Toreadors, picadors, mayadors, and other necessary participants will become troubadors in the comic bull-fighting presentation in which 40 Spanish bulls will take prominent roles. The company of 31 troupers will play music to tease the animals.

The hickory tree, sequoia, magnolia and sassafrass trees, so abundant in America, are found only in fossil form in the Old World.



FORWARD STEP HYDRO SERVICE

Ontario Hydro is Marking Its Twenty-Fifth Anniversary.

"HYDRO IS YOURS, USE IT"

Citizens of Peterborough are partners in the Hydro-Electric Power System and as such will be interested in the progressive step being taken by the Ontario Commission to make the public more conscious of the advantages offered by the use of electricity. This forward step in extending the service of Hydro finds expression in to-day's opening advertisment of a series to appear in The Examiner.

It appropriately records the fact that 1935 marks the 25th anniversary of the turning on of Hydro and refers to the progress made in bringing to more and more people the advantages of cheap power.

Through co-operative effort the municipalities have been able to provide the conveniences of electricity at a minimum of cost. So popular has this movement proved that today the Ontario Hydro-Electric System stands as Canada's third largest industry. As partners in such an enterprise the citizens of Hydro municipalities will read with pride the various advertisements that will comprise this interesting campaign.

It is confidently anticipated that there will be the widest response to he new slogan: "Hydro is yours—use it!"

COL. LAWRENCE OF ARABIA FAME

history was injured occurred last night at Cloud's Hill near Lawrence's lonely cottage at the north end of Moreton.

Crash with Bicycle

His motorcycle crashed into a bicycle ridden by a boy and both riders were thrown to the ground. "So far as we can learn, nobody actually saw the accident," the Camp Bovington army captain said, "but he was riding a motorcycle at the time. The youth who was riding the bicycle, Albert Hargreaves, also is in the camp hospital suffering from concussion."

In response to a flood of inquiries, the hospital issued the following statement:

"He is in the hospital with severe head injuries, and his condition is serious."

Earlier hospital attaches denied Lawrence's condition was critical. They refused to comment on report he had suffered a fracture of the skull.

Lawrence was listed on the hospital records under his adopted name of T. E. Shaw, which he assumed to avoid publicity after his Arabian exploits had brought him world-wide attention. Only a few weeks ago Lawrence, now 47 years old, retired to his cottage in Dorsetshire seeking seclusion.

His ten-year term of enlistment in the Royal Air Force expired last March.

Familiar Figure.

Reports of the mishap which had befallen Lawrence created great excitement in this vicinity where the organizer of the Arabian revolt was a familiar figure as he dashed about the countryside on his motorcycle.

Only recently publication of a book written by Ernest Main reflecting upon Lawrence's Arabian activities brought him new publicity.

Main's book, called "Iraq," asserted Lawrence had "raised problems infinitely more difficult" in Iraq than those he solved.

Ardent Rider.

"Lawrence of Arabia," who emerged from the Great War as one of its most picturesque figures, found one of his principal diversions in driving his motorcycle about the countryside at high speeds. In pursuit of this recreation he operated a machine of special racing design.

Sent to Arabia during the war as a member of the military intelligence section of the war office, Lawrence inspired the Arab revolt against Turkish rule. After waging a spectacular campaign against the Central Powers' forces in the desert area, he returned to take part in the Paris peace conference. There he met bitter disappointment in not winning for his Arab comrades the concessions he had hoped to give in return for their activities against the Turks.

The story of his experiences was related in "The Seven Pillars of Wisdom" published in a limited edition and made available to the public later in a much abridged form under the title "Revolt in the Desert."

Lawrence refused decorations for his Great War work and after the war was in and out of the Air Force, once going back to Arabia and then on to Afghanistan to halt Amanullah's alleged moves against Great Britain.

Any Post Open.

Later he went to India to work against the Reds. In the Air Force he was a mechanic—a good one—although at the time of his virtual retirement it was reported he could have had almost any post Britain had to offer in the Near East.

Although Lawrence's own story of his desert campaigns against the Turks in Arabia has become an epic of the Great War, Lawrence himself has always hated publicity and turned down all honors.

Friends of Lawrence recently waxed indignant over publication of an alleged confession that his work, "Revolt in The Desert," was a "dishonest thing."

If he actually wrote the letter, made public by the Hoover Memorial Library at Stanford, Calif., they said it merely meant he considered "Revolt in the Desert" incomplete and therefore a dishonest literary work compared to his complete story, "Seven Pillars of Wisdom."

The letter, standing alone, they said, placed wrong interpretation on the work and motives of a man who one said is "absolutely above and beyond money."

Lawrence completed last March a 10-year-term of enlistment in the Royal Air Force and retired to his Dorsetshire cottage.

COULD NOT SEW A BUTTON ON

Her Hands Were Helpless with Rheumatism

At one time she thought she would lose the use of her right hand. But "a blessing" — in the form of Kruschen Salts — put her right again.

"I was sure in a bad state," she writes. "In fact, I could not do my housework, I was so bad with rheumatism in my arms and hands. I could not sleep at night, and I thought I would lose the use of my right hand. I could not hold anything, nor could I sew a button on. My arm would go dead. I was advised to try Kruschen, and inside of three weeks I found such a change I have kept on taking it, and now I sleep all night—thanks to Kruschen's help and relief."—(Mrs.) J. H.

Two of the ingredients of Kruschen Salts have the power of dissolving uric acid crystals, which are responsible for rheumatic agony. Other ingredients of these salts assist Nature to expel these dissolved crystals through the natural channel.

SAINTS SCORE 9 TO 4 VICTORY

Campbellford Softball League Draws Big Crowd at Opening Game.

CARR ON THE MOUND.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 14 (Examiner Staff Correspondent).—With all due ceremony, and before a large crowd of excited fans, Les. Stover's St. John's scored a 9-4 victory over Buster Whitton's St. Andrew's at the official opening of the Town League series at the school grounds on Monday evening. Harold N. Carr, M.P.P. for Northumberland, took up his stand in the pitchers' box and nearly walked Mayor Frank Long, who was not accustomed to those Trent Valley curves, but the Mayor finally landed a terrific drive —smacked the ball to infield—and the game was on Tom Smith, a new addition to St. John's, replaced Lionel Holmes on the mound, and gave a sparkling performance for the winners. Young Holmes had his right arm badly injured when struck with a bat in a recent workout, and will be out of the games for a few weeks. Fielding features were provided by Harold Lloyd, who made a spectacular catch in the outfield, which drew loud cheers from the crowd. Jack Smith also came in for honors, making a neat catch in the outfield.

Art Lambert, on second for St. Andrew's, made the sensational catch of the evening when he jumped about two feet in the air for a ball that was headed for the outfield, and managed to hold it. The only Babe Ruth was made by Don Owens in the first innings with one on. Both teams put up a good game, St. Andrew's being somewhat handicapped by the absence of Buster Whitton.

The line-up:

St. John's—Ernie Wilks c, Tom Smith p, Doug. Mayhee 1b, Charlie Couch 2b, Tam Flint 3b, Don Owens ss, Harold Lloyd rf, Jack Smith lf, Ed. Grills cf.

St. Andrew's—Heck McArthur c, Dan Flint p, Owen Hendy 1b, Arthur Lambert 2b, Bob Upton 3b, Lester Henson ss, Frank Taylor rf, Alex. Little lf, Morley Feeling c.

Umpires—Plate, Jim Scanlon; 1st base, George Free; 3rd base, Bill Sarginson.

The next twilight fixture is slated for Thursday, May 16th, when St. Mary's and the "Mill" team will meet on the same grounds at 6.30 p.m. sharp.

tion proposals when France backed them.

The British were said to have made it clear every possible move should be made to avert an open clash at Geneva or any action in Africa which might lead to hostilities.

Asks League Aid

Immediate action by the League was demanded in a new note which Ethiopia sent to Geneva, charging again Italy's military activities in Africa "endanger international peace." The note urged the League to deal with the issue at the assembly session opening May 20 and demanded immediate arbitration of the controversy.

Reports from Ankara that Ethiopia might seek Turkey's support in the event of hostilities with Italy elicited the comment Italy would resent any such alliance.

somebody rocks the boat that would be the natural course."

Another theme running through the Secretary's speech was his contention the Roosevelt monetary policies saved the United States from disaster.

He indicated the Government, in the absence of Internattional action would decline to declare the present gold content of the dollar shall remain fixed. There is a school of thought which urges such pegging strongly. For instance, only yesterday Prof. Edwin W. Kemmerer, Princeton University economist, told a Senate banking sub-committee:

"If the President would make a declaration there is going to be no further reduction of the gold content of the dollar, if Congress would fix the value of the dollar at 59 cents, if Congress would say that all influences of the Goernment would be used to keep the gold standard, if the Government practices economy and sets up a balanced budget, you would see such a revival of confidence as we have never seen before."

DAYLIGHT TIME

before 6 a.m. until nearly 9 o'clock.

Alderman McIntyre announced that he would support the bylaw, although he realized that some people were opposed to it. He believed that the local factory conditions should be taken into consideration, and that daylight saving time would be in many ways a benefit to a large number of the people.

"I could name at least forty or more women who were against the daylight saving bylaw," Alderman Fitzpatrick said, "but as conditions are now they said they were getting meals at all hours. Many of the morning orders were specified for 11 o'clock dinner delivery. These women told me they were sick of the way things were working out at present, and if they had the chance they would vote for the change. And that is from only one store."

Aldermen Sloan, Tuggey and Macdonald reported somewhat similar experiences, and, when Mayor Denne called for the vote, Alderman Cotton's motion was unopposed.

The preamble to the petition was as follows: "Due to the majority of the industrial plants adopting summer time in some form or other, we the undersigned citizens of Peterborough respectfully request the city council to seriously consider summer time with approximate dates from June 15 to September 1."

Norwood's Gratitude

Norwood's appreciation of Peterborough's neighborly help in sending a detachment of the Fire Department under Chief Gimblett with the motor pumper to fight the recent service station fire that destroyed property to the amount of $15,000 was conveyed to the council last night by Reeve Robert Tedford who was accompanied by Councillors Chas. C. Brown, Perrin Bork, Leonard Sedgwick and J. Russell Thompson.

"We are here to show our appreciation of the quick response your Department made to our appeal," Reeve Tedford said. "We received a bill from the Chief, and it frightened us a little."

"We're used to getting marked cheques," Mayor Denne interrupted.

Reeve Tedford said Norwood was grateful for Peterborough's assistance, and Mayor Denne intimated that the account would be considered by the Fire, Water and Light Committee.

Echo of Bailiff Case

Representing the company with whom the city is insured for accident liability, Herbert Bradburn expressed the company's regrets for the "unfortunate incident of last Friday," when some of the council furniture was seized by the bailiff on an order obtained by G. N. Gordon, K.C.

"I am glad to see that you all have your chairs this evening," Mr. Bradburn continued. "The judgment against the city was given on April 11, and it was not until April 26 that Mr. Gordon filed his affidavit of costs. On April 29 Mr. Corkery advised the company of the amount to be paid Mr. Gordon. Through an error in the company's office the cheque did not go through although the requisition did. I wrote the company on Friday and received a reply today explaining that there had been an unfortunate clerical error, and that there was no reason why the cheque had not been promptly delivered. I can assure the council that this was not our usual kind of service."

J. R. Corkery, city solicitor, told the council that although there had been a delay of a few days, there was not such a delay as might be understood from the newspaper report.

"If Mr. Gordon was correctly reported, he was away off the mark", Mr. Corkery said.

"The judgment was given on April 13, and Mr. Gordon waited two weeks and one day, until April 26, before filing his affidavit of costs. I then wrote the company, and followed up with another letter ten days later. If Mr. Gordon had come to me Friday morning and told me what he intended to do, I could have telephoned them, and would have learned that the letter with the cheque was in the mails. I understand that the bailiff was instructed to come directly here without giving me any warning of his action."

Mayor Denne — You can assure the company we don't think they were hot at all. If Mr. Gordon needed the money very badly it could have been arranged for him. However, the city is richer today than if this thing hadn't happened.

Trent River

TRENT RIVER, May 14.—(Examiner Correspondence). — Mother's Day was appropriately observed on Sunday at the afternoon service of the United Church. Beautiful potted plants and cut flowers adorned the chancel rail and minister's desk. Special printed order of service was followed, with R. W. Umphrey, Sunday School superintendent, in charge. The junior classes of the Sunday School occupied the seats in the choir loft, with Mrs. V. C. Chaplin playing the piano. Special numbers were: Hymn, "Can a Little Child Like Me?" given by the classes of Mrs. Harold Wood and George Armstrong; Bernard Wannamaker, the Scripture, Luke 11: 11-13; Miss Genevieve Milne gave a reading; Miss Irene Wood gave a recitation, "Hint to the Family"; Rev. S. A. Kemp delivered an excellent and most inspiring address on "Mother," taking his text from Proverbs, 23: 22, "Despise not your mother."

The offering will be presented to the Ontario Religious Education Council to help with its work in the Sunday Schools of the province. The Council is the agency through which all denominations share in the religious educatiin of youth. Since it is largely dependent upon the Mother's Day offering for its maintenance, a generous giving was asked for.

GET ON THE LISTS.

It should be the duty of every citizen to make sure that his or her name appears on the federal voters' list in this constituency, and in the event that it has been omitted to take advantage of the revision now under way to have it added.

After the first of July it will be impossible to include any more names, and as many young people have come of age since the enumeration was completed last October and are now eligible to vote, they should not fail to look after this important matter before the time for action has passed.

This is a responsibility that should not be left to the political organizations to discharge; rather every individual voter should check over the lists and satisfy himself that when the time comes to exercise his franchise he will be entitled to vote.

The coming federal election promises to be one of the most interesting in the history of Canada, in view of the magnitude of the issues involved and the fact that the supremacy of the two old parties will for the first time be threatened by a well organized socialist party with candidates in every province of the Dominion.

When election day comes those who find themselves unable to vote will undoubtedly protest most vigorously at the injustice of the thing; now when there is still ample time to make sure that their names are on the list is the logical time to attend to this all-important duty, and if they neglect it they will certainly not be entitled to a great deal of sympathy next September.

IT GOES TOO FAR DOWN THE SCALE.

Premier Hepburn has intimated that there will be nothing gained by the moving picture business protesting against the extension of the amusement tax announced a few days ago.

The Government has made up its mind, and the new taxes which are to be used for relief purposes will stand, declares the Premier.

While The Examiner approves of the Government's decision to pay for relief out of current revenues and recognizes that additional taxation will be needed to make that course possible, and while we also endorse Mr. Hepburn's argument that those who can afford to pay for luxuries can afford to be taxed for relief, we are still of the opinion that a mistake is being made in extending the amusement tax so that a child's matinee ticket will be taxed two cents and patrons who pay 25 cents admission will be taxed five cents.

This, we submit, is pressing down too hard upon those who can least afford to pay, and it should be possible to obtain the revenue aimed at without having to take coppers away from children.

Why could it not have been possible to ask those who can afford to buy expensive imported liquors and wines to pay a special tax for relief; instead the prices of these commodities have been lowered so that drinking becomes a cheaper amusement, while at the same time a tax is clapped upon the cheaper forms of entertainment.

Surely imported liquors and wines are luxuries, and those who have the money to buy such beverages could not complain if they were called upon to make a special payment for relief purposes.

SOMETHING NEW.

A C.C.F. adherent was heard to say as he left the Collegiate auditorium after the Stevens address on Saturday that there was nothing new in the remarks of the former Minister of Trade and Commerce; that the conditions complained of had been exposed years ago by Mr. Woodsworth and other C.C.F. leaders.

That is a half truth.

Undoubtedly Mr. Woodsworth and some of his lieutenants have referred to some of the conditions uncovered by Mr. Stevens, but it must be remembered that much of what they said was in the nature of pure surmise; Saturday night's speaker was dealing with facts revealed by an exhaustive probe after hundreds of witnesses had given their sworn testimony, and while many of these facts corroborated what C.C.F. speakers had previously said, they are much more impressive now because they are based upon concrete evidence.

And then, of course, there was something distinctly new in Mr. Stevens' address because he not only revealed the weaknesses that existed, but laid down the principle that it was the duty of government, in the failure of business and industry to clean their own house, to step in and correct these evils, to prevent the exploitation of the worker and the farmer, and to put an end to unethical competition.

No previous government in Canada has ever felt it necessary or desirable to interfere with business to this extent, and while the legislation that is to be brought down may fail to accomplish what is expected of it, as the C.C.F. leaders claim it is bound to fail, the very attempt is certainly something new.

THOSE JUBILEE MEDALS.

From Ottawa comes the story that members of the Federal Government are still receiving protests from Canadians who did not receive a Jubilee Medal and who feel that they were entitled to such an honor.

No wonder some of the ministers are beginning to feel that Canada's alleged opposition to titles is far from being genuine; the heart-burnings that have been occasioned over the allocation of the Jubilee Medals would certainly justify such a conclusion.

It would perhaps allay some of the complaints to set forth the fact that in most cases the award of a Jubilee Medal was not in any sense a personal honor.

His Majesty the King, desiring to pay tribute to organizations and individuals who had contributed to the general welfare in their own communities, himself named the categories that were to be honored, and the names were either automatically chosen by virtue of offices held by the recipients or were selected by the bodies chosen for recognition.

His Majesty made it clear that there was no intention of giving Jubilee Medals for war service, but that he wished ex-service men who had distinguished themselves in rehabilitation efforts to be designated for medals. Similarly members of Parliament and the Legislature, church heads, leaders in Boy Scout work, Red Cross Society, hospital workers, the mayors of all cities and towns above 5,000 population, and the chief constables in such towns, veteran educationists, civil servants of 30 years' service, and other categories were set forth, and the list was compiled accordingly.

There were 10,000 medals for Canada—all purchased by the King out of his own funds—and the classes to be honored were rigidly outlined by His Majesty.

VENIZELOS' DEATH SENTENCE.

Former Premier Eleuthenos Venizelos, one of the leaders in the recent abortive Greek revolt, has been sentenced to death by a military court-martial. Of course, Venizelos will not die unless he should return to Greece. The sentence was passed in absentia, he having fled from Grecian soil when the revolt was collapsing. Many of his co-rebels, however, were not so fortunate, and have either been executed or given long prison terms.

Venizelos would have stood higher in the estimation of the world had he decided to remain and face the music. It was hardly playing the game to turn tail and scamper away when he knew that all the other ringleaders would not be able to do the same. Since his leadership and imagination were undoubtedly primarily responsible for the revolt, common fairness required that he should be prepared as leader to take the same medicine that was given to his followers.

Leaders of revolt, before determining on a bloody gesture, should be completely satisfied in their own minds that rebellion is the only method by which they can attain the desired results. They should also be satisfied that the objectives sought are in the interests of the people and essential to their progress. Should they decide that a revolt is absolutely necessary to secure needed reforms, they should, before declaring war, make sure, from a careful study of the situation, that they have an excellent chance of succeeding. Unsuccessful revolts often turn back the clock of progress for years and inflict great suffering on thousands of people. Should rebellion come after these considerations, then the leaders should be prepared to abide by the results. If the rebellion failed, they should not desert in order to save their skins, leaving their less fortunate rebel associates to accept punishment for deeds that they conceived.

There is no doubt that many rebellions are inspired by men seeking personal power and glory rather than the good of the people. How much Venizelos was inspired by these considerations it is impossible to say. It is quite possile, however, that this venerable exponent of Grecian liberty really believed that a revolt would improve the lot of the common people, but he apparently overlooked the fact that with his leadership and influence more could be accomplished by co-operation with the powers that be and via the constitutional route. Perhaps he has tried to do this but without apparent success. He should, however, have kept on trying. With a price upon his head, his days of usefulness to his people now seem ended.—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

WELL! WELL! A TAFFY PULL!

Looking at the Sault Ste. Marie Star we saw correspondence published from Hearst in which it was recorded that:

"Dr. and Mrs. W. Arkinstall entertained on Thursday evening at a taffy pull in honor of Miss Florence Nancekivell, of Matheson, who spent a few days in town the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Casper Holler. Games and music were enjoyed."

A real old-time taffy pull in the year 1935! Yes, sir, right in the year when some people are fond of telling us that all good old things, manners, customs, habits and beliefs are being loosened from their moorings and turned adrift on the rough water of doubt and uncertainty.

The taffy pull, we believe, originated on the tenth concession where men grew whiskers and paid their bills and where the young ladies were winsome, demure and rather bashful. The equipment always seemed to be right in the house, a bag of brown sugar, a little vanilla and perhaps a slight touch of vinegar, a kettle and a fire in the kitchen stove. And after it was demonstrated that the stuff was sufficiently boiled so it would string and hang from the end of a spoon it was poured out to cool off a bit. Then the folk were all asked out and were served with a little butter to put on their hands so the taffy would not stick. No person seemed to think there might be germs romping around waiting to get a foot-hold in the taffy. Not a bit of it; the more it was pulled the better it seemed to get. And just about the time it wouldn't pull any more they used the scissors or the carving knife and lopped it off into sections of goodly proportions. Get one of those in your mouth and you'd know something was there.

At Matheson it is recorded they played other games as well, and likewise had some music. One thing certain they would have to wash their hands before they started doing anything else. Always was there quite a rush for the warm water which rested in the small tank at the back of the kitchen range, and come to think of it, four or five people would probably wash their hands in the dish before it was considered proper to open the kitchen door and fling the water out to the great world beyond. But a good time was always had by all at such events. It does not say in the Sault Star that such was the case at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Arkinsall, but we take it for granted that it was because it always turned out that way on the tenth concession. — Stratford Beacon-Herald.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Common sense has prevailed in Crowland where the unemployed have decided to ignore the advice of their leaders and to accept the Premier's terms. Mr. Hepburn's firmness has beaten the strike.

Parliament reopens at Ottawa next Monday, and the legislation to be introduced as a result of the Royal Commission's recommendations will be awaited with deep interest, not only by members of the House, but by the whole country.

This is Life Insurance Week, and the campaign will serve to call attention to the part this agency has played in bringing Canada safely through the depression years.

Jack Miner reports that South-western Ontario has the greatest prospect of a record crop in fifty years. With a continuation even of the present prices that means greatly increased spending power among the farmers of that section of Ontario.

THE CHAIR EPISODE

The Editor of The Examiner,

Dear Sir,—The usual peaceful equilibrium of the thought life of this city was somewhat disturbed when the most unexpected occurrence took place in the seizure of the chairs in the City Hall where the Mayor of many years and his consulting staff of aldermen have reclined while deliberating on many city problems. This announcement caused many humorous expressions and also severe criticism on the part of many citizens.

While not questioning the cause of this action whether it was unnecessary or warranted Peterborough received very cheap publicity in connection with it. The natural spirit of retaliation was aroused to prolong this unpleasant situation but Mayor Denne is to be complimented on taking the peaceful path of sanity and quickly adjusting this case so that this small stuff may be buried in the sea of oolivion.

IN SUPPORT OF DR. COTTON

Peterborough Examiner,

Dear Sir,—Having been associated with Dr. Lorna Cotton, as a member of the C.C.F. movement here in the city, I would like to voice my opinion with regard to her selection as standard bearer of the C.C.F. in the coming election. This charming lady was unanimously chosen as nominee through pure ability, courage, steadfastness of purpose, and that quality of personality so necessary to accomplish results. To my mind there is not a person in Peterborough County better fitted through university training and honor graduation in sociology, and psychology at the University of Toronto, and post-graduate work in the United States, than Dr. Cotton. She has spent much of her time since leaving university, in tireless effort to aid and further the cause of the underprivileged people of Ontario—both farmers and city workers, and she has the courage and fidelity of purpose of one of the early Christian martyrs. As a proof of this beautiful and fine spirit of courage I might cite the fact that "Our Lorna" entered the provincial election last year, urged by a small group of C.C.F. supporters in Durham County, knowing full well that the outcome would be defeat—but the spirit of sacrifice for a noble cause, coupled with her dynamic energy won her many friends and many more adherents to the C.C.F.

I am glad to be associated with the C.C.F. movement and I am extremely pleased that this worthy lady secured the nomination, for she has shown that quality of courage to be able to "Take it on the chin" and come up smiling, and to my thinking—that is the kind of person who will see that Peterborough is properly represented at Ottawa this fall.

George K. Goodwin.

Your Health

By DR LOGAN CLENDENING

The menu arranged for Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt by the department of agriculture is a valuable economic and nutritional lesson. It attempts to include foods which will fulfill the six concepts of nutrition which we discussed yesterday, at a cost which will come within the range of any average American family. Those who are interested may obtain from the U.S. department of agriculture, Circular No. 396, in which Stiebeling and Ward have worked out, with great care, diets at four levels of nutritive content and cost.

Looking over the various kinds of food products from the standpoint of the housewife, we must agree that the grain products should be given first consideration. "The cereal grains are the backbone of the nutrition of most of the races of the earth," according to the Journal of the American Medical Association. "They are also the cheapest source of food fuel; so that corn, wheat, rice, rye, barley and oat kernels are to be found constituting a third, or often much more, of the calory intake."

Milk, cream and cheese have acquired an increased importance in dietary planning in the last few years. "The dietary should be built around bread and milk," is the motto of the newest and most scientific nutritional experts. "Bread," of course, stands for any of the grain products. Milk contains all the known vitamins. It plays a more important part than any other article of food in giving the American dietary a well-balanced mineral content.

Eggs Resemble Meat

Eggs resemble meat in their protein content, but in their mineral content and vitamin values they are a better balanced food than muscle meats and, in some respects, than liver. They are more than a meat substitute. They are rather a supplement to milk than a substitue for it. According to Professor Sherman, it is in the interests of good nutrition to consume at least four eggs per week, unless there are reasons to the contrary.

Meats, poultry and fish are important for their protein content and also for their fat. "It is not a simple matter," according to Professor Sherman, "to arrive at a soundly scientific opinion on the place of meats, fish and poultry in the diet." They are quickly cooked and, in general, readily digested. Their flavor is well liked by most people. They are undoubtedly the most expensive source of the dietary essentials, though they contain these essentials in relative abundance. A study of the uninfluenced record of food purchased shows that the rivals of meat for the consumer's food money are not high protein foods, but butter and fruit, indicating that, whether consciously or not, what is paid for meat is largely for fat and for flavor.

Fruits and vegetables vary greatly in their protein and energy values, but they are very important as sources of minerals and vitamins.

Butter and other fats—these are the most concentrated form of body fuel and, therefore, should be used by those whose energy requirement is high. Butter is the principal source of Vitamin A in the dietary.

Sugars and other sweets make their only contribution to the diet in the form of energy available material.

CHICOUTIMI, QUEBEC

The city of Chicoutimi, situated on the bank of the Saguenay river, is the most important industrial and commercial centre in the Saguenay district. Two mammoth paper mills contribute to the industrial success of the place, while power plants on the Chicoutimi river develop 20,500 h.p., all of which is used locally.

Chicoutimi was founded only in 1845, although there had been, for a great many years, on that site an Indian mission conducted by the Jesuit missionaries of Tadoussac.

The name Chicoutimi comes from an old Indian word, signifying "as far as it is deep." And, as a matter of fact, the mouth of the Chicoutimi river marks the end of the navigable portions of the Saguenay river.

A Thought

SCHOOL DAYS

I will not write a sad song.
This heartache will not show;
These tears, they cannot last long,
I would not have her know.

She was so very happy,
Hand resting in my own;
With smile and glad, gay chatter
We started out from home.

Five years I had her with me
To teach the Golden Rule.
May God and teacher guide her.
My baby's gone to school.

THE CAPTURE OF LOUIS RIEL

On this date (May 14) Louis Riel, the leader of two rebellions in Western Canada, was captured and he was soon on his way to Regina where on November 16 following he paid the penalty of his treason with his life. The news of his capture created great excitement and much enthusiasm in Ontario, which had never forgotten the murder of Thomas Scott at Fort Garry in 1870. When a telegram was read from General Middleton "Riel is my prisoner" the members of the House of Common cheered. The story of the capture is worth telling:

Immediately after the victory at Batoche, General Middleton left for Prince Albert. Before going he sent a letter to Riel telling him that if he would surrender he would give him protection until he was handed over to the civil authorities. Boulton and his scouts set out in pursuit of Riel. Some of them caught sight of a mounted man to whom they gave chase but his horse was too speedy and he got away. This was later found to have been Dumont. Soon after came word that Riel had surrendered to three scouts, Hourie, Deal and Armstrong. When he gave up, Riel had Middleton's letter in his hand. Dreading the approach of the troops he asked the scouts to take him out of their way and they made a detour, actually passing through some of Boulton's men who did not know Riel and Hourie was eager to keep his secret. He took Riel into camp and delivered him to the general before it was known he was captured. The General put Riel in a tent near his own in charge of Captain Young of the Winnipeg Field Battery who kept guard on him until he handed him over to the Mounted Police at Regina. Captain Young died at Kenora only a few months ago and there were people who denied his claim that he had been handcuffed to Riel during the journey to Regina, but that is confirmed in the general's official report when he said "He slept in the tent with him" and carried him bound to himself to Regina." Dumont made a rapid ride to the border and was there arrested by U.S. troops but as no demand for him was made he was released.

The backbone of the rebellion was broken; it was not ended until the capture of Poundmaker and Big Bear, but most of the trouble was over by early July and the militia came home, leaving the permanent units in the West for a year or so.

ALL OF US

(By Marshall Maslin.)

MOODS ARE LIKE TIDES

Donald Laird, who teaches psychology at Colgate university, is a wise man. Such a clever fellow, such a shrewd observed.

How do I know? Well, I have just read some of his opinion, and they are just what I've thought for a long time....Of course he arrived at his conclusions scientifically, by general observation, and I didn't—but what difference does THAT make?

He spent two years studying the daily lives, moods, emotions and conduct of men and women of all ages and all degrees of intelligence in a factory....And I spent my time studying just one human being during a considerable number of years....A man who used to be a small boy and then became a man of forty years. A boy who went to school and then to war and then got married and became a father and who earns a living punching out words on a typewriter....I mean ME.

And what interests me is that the man who punches a typewriter hasn't any more temperament than the man who punches holes in a steel plate. He may think he has, but he's kidding himself.

It's like this, according to Dr. Laird....Every individual has periods of gloom and despair, joy and confidence. These periods follow each other at regular intervals. The cycle may be several months or it may be only a week or ten days....And a man's moods don't come from without, from his encounters with other human beings, from little accidents in the day's living.

They come from within. He cannot prevent them any more than he can stop the rise and fall of the tides of the ocean....But as long as he knows that they are coming, he can watch them, know when they are present and adjust his life to them.

He will not make a decision when he is in a black mood, and when he is depressed he will not decide that this sadness it to last forever. He will know that by Next Thursday at 2 o'clock he will probably be happy again. When he is in the dumps he will know that he is moving towards the heights; and when he is on the mountain peaks, he will not despair when life goes wrong again.

Thank you so much, Dr. Laird, for telling me what I have always hoped was true.

progress of their work from time to time. Even districts are "keyed" up over the Travel Club and are pulling for their members to win the coveted tours. In many instances people called at the club office to seek the names of their representatives and they subscribed to The Examiner so that they may be able to follow closely the efforts of their members. It certainly looked like big time election "pep" to see the crowds both inside and outside of the Travel Club Office.

Moving Pictures Interesting

Many who called to cast their votes were invited to remain for the showing of a moving picture of New York, Bermuda and ocean life on board the great "Queen" and "Monarch" of Bermuda. The picture shows a journey to the beautiful Bermuda Islands from the dock at New York, to the harbor of Hamilton, Bermuda. "The Blue Peter" is lowered and the "Queen" of the fleet points her prow toward the blue Atlantic, on out past the Statue of Liberty to the open sea. As she proudly sails out of the great harbor of New York the impressive skyline of this great metropolis gradually recedes and as the sun casts its last rays upon the silver waters of the Atlantic, the passengers prepare themselves for an evening's entertainment on board this mighty liner. Talkies, stage plays, dancing, swimming and every known sport can be found on the "Queen" and "Monarch" of Bermuda. After two golden days and nights the crystal clear waters of Hamilton Harbor and the harbor flag is again hoisted to signify a slumber of several days for the giant ship. Next, we are taken on journeys through the Island and here is where we draw the line. Ask your Travel Club members how you can witness the next showing on Saturday of this unusual motion picture.

Second Week Now On

The second week of the Travel Club is getting under way and there is no doubt much interest will again be taken by the hundreds of supporters who so generously rallied to the side of their favorites and also the hundreds who have promised their support for this second period. Extra prizes are offered for the best work. See announcement elsewhere in The Examiner and learn how you can help your club member win a special prize as well as a free tour to the "land of the lily and the rose." On account of no coupon appearing in Monday's paper there are two in to-day's issue.

Officer Interrupts Brawl On Highway

LINDSAY, May 14.—(Examiner Correspondence).—The aftermath of a bloody encounter by a number of young men on the Lindsay-Peterborough Highway near Fowler's Corners a few days ago was aired in the police court yesterday before Magistrate Gee. Traffic Officer Massingham, who laid the information, told the court that he had received information that a fight was in progress, and on hurrying to the scene found the party in a melee on the highway. The men had been drinking, and blood had been flowing freely. A bottle containing rye whiskey was found in the car and another bottle discovered in the ditch. One of the party named Blair resisted the officer, who finally handcuffed him to the fence until he made further investigation. One of the accused named H. Blair, was fined $100.00 and costs or three months in jail on the charge of having liquor in an illegal place. On a similar charge another member of the party was given two years' suspended sentence on payment of court costs.

Market Closing On All Exchanges

WALL STREET

NEW YORK, May 14. (AP). — Oils, metals, rails and scattered specials displayed further improvement in to-day's stock market. The utilities, however, were soft.

The Morgenthau money speech did not prove an exceptional market influence although it may have, indirectly, aided some of the mining issues.

Gainers of fractions to around a point or so included Seaboard Oil, Standard Oils of California and New Jersey, Barnsdall, U.S. Smelting, Cerro de Pasco, Howe Sound, Santa Fe, Union Pacific, General Motors, Chrysler, U S. Gypsum, General Electric and Electric Auto-Lite. The late tone was steady. Transfers approximated 1,150,000 shares.

EXCHANGE RATES

Exchange rates at 3 p.m. E.D.T. today were: Pound sterling in Montreal 4.87⅛; U.S dollar in Montreal 1.00 1-16; Pound sterling in New York 4.87⅛; Canadian dollar in New York 99 15-16.

Burgoo is an oatmeal pudding or thick gruel served to seamen on shipboard.

STEADY CLOSE MINING MARKET

God's Lake, Central Patricia and Little Long Lac Active in Seconds.

SILVERS FEATURE.

TORONTO, May 14. — (CP) — Generally firm without any show of buoyancy in any group, the Toronto mining market had a day of average volume with a steady close. Silvers again held first position for turnover with the base metals showing good action in spots and the gold except for a few issues of the secondary group, including God's Lake, Central Patricia and Little Long Lac.

Despite the sizeable advance in the silver price, the white metal stocks settled down at a level around the previous close. Cobalt Contact and Peterson-Cobalt and Bear were higher. Sherritt Gordon closed slightly higher with the day's top at 77. Hudson Bay, Sudbury Basin, Base Metals Corporation and Mining Corporation were stronger.

Central Patricia, McKenzie and God's Lake closed higher while Little Long Lac weakened about 10 cents. Pickle Crow 10 and Macassa closed on the down side.

LIQUOR STOCKS CLOSE STRONGER

Oils and Metals Also Industrial Advance Into Higher Ground.

UTILITIES LOWER.

TORONTO, May 14 (C.P.).—Industrial stocks acted in a manner satisfactory to the bulls to-day on the Toronto Exchange, holding their ground, and even marking up scattered net gains despite forecast of adjustments under profit-taking, following several days of advancing prices. The oils, metals and liquors closed higher and lower prices were general in the utilities, steels and banks. At the close narrow recessions had a slight edge on net gains.

Oils continued to pace the list. International Petroleum added more than a half point and Imperial and British American small fractions. Consolidated Smelters, Nickel and Walkers Common and Distillers Seagrams had gains ranging up to a half point. Industrial Alcohol 'A' finished slightly lower.

Consumers Gas sagged three points and the Quebec Power issues ⅛ to ⅛ each. Bell Telephone closed with a slightly better tone. Brazilian, C.P.C. and Ford 'A' lost ground narrowly. Lower prices ruled for Dominion Steel, Dominion Bridge and General Electric Pfd.

Coldest Woman

Elissa Landi

ELISSA LANDI

Testifying she had been called "the coldest woman in Hollywood" because of faithfulness to her marriage vows, Elissa Landi, above, film actress and intellectual, was granted a divorce in Hollywood from John Cecil Lawrence, who assertedly was making love to other women in London while Elissa lived the life of "a recluse" in Hollywood. Meanwhile Lawrence has filed divorce action in London, naming Abram Chasins, Philadelphia musician, as co-respondent.

Unable to Get Document

At the preliminary hearing, heard in magistrate's court on Thursday afternoon last, Mr. Gordon demanded production of a document referred to by Ozias de Laplante in the course of evidence, and objected strenuously when Mr. McElderry sought to close the case for the Crown.

Proceedings were adjourned, Mr. McElderry giving the undertaking to produce the document, stated to be in possession of Toronto City Police, if it was at all possible.

To-day, when the adjourned proceedings were resumed, Mr. McElderry intimated that following a thorough search, including a trip to Toronto undertaken by Chief Constable Samuel Newhall, the document was not available.

Mr. Gordon again offered objection, maintaining that the case could not be closed by the Crown unless the document could be produced or evidence given as to the reasons why the documents could not be produced.

"I cannot stop the Crown from closing its case," the Magistrate said, in calling upon Mr. Gordon to open the defence.

No Offence Argued

Mr. Gordon declining at that stage to offer any evidence, argued there was no offence in law before the court and that a committment of his client could not therefore be made.

"I think the Crown has shown sufficient evidence that the accused was party to some unlawful enterprise which he proposed to carry out and that at the time he had possession of an offensive weapon," the Bench remarked. "I feel that my duty is to send the case to a higher court and accordingly commit the accused for trial."

The second charge relating to alleged "white slavery" was then read over to the accused, in which was mentioned the names of two local girls, whom he is alleged to have procured for immoral purposes, during April last.

Winch was then remanded for a week on that charge; no evidence being offered by the Crown at this stage of the proceedings.

QUINTS' ESTATE

the authorities would be well satisfied if they accepted.

"Never can it be said that we've been forgetful of the parents and the quintuplets' brothers and sisters," he continued. "We are eager to help them and I think that changed conditions at Callander may shortly make it possible for us to do so."

Mr. Croll said under the contracts entered into last May the parents would have received 'scant' return for the risks undergone by the babies. Seventy per cent of all proceeds—nearly $125,000 up to now—would have gone to the promoter, said the minister and 30 per cent, about $50,000 to the parents. "But not a nickel," he said, "would have gone to the childrens' fund."

"Compare this with what we've accomplished," continued the minister. "As it stands now the babies are healthy and sturdy, still living at Callander, with the door of their hospital open to the parents at any time. Physically and financially the quintuplets are doing very well under the new guardianship."

GRANADA

Sinking of a new three compartment shaft to a depth of 500 feet from which three levels will be opened up is under way on the Rouyn property of Granada Gold Mines, according to R. C. Gamble, president. The shaft which is being put down is located about 5,000 feet north of the present main workings and is in a shear zone where surface work and diamond drilling indicated several hundred feet of ore having a value of around $10 gold per ton.

Meanwhile milling operations are continuing smoothly with the plant now handling 180 tons of ore per day, although the mill is gradually being increased and the full capacity of 200 tons should be reached shortly. Originally the milling unit consisted of 100 tons, but last year a 100 ton Hadsell mill was installed and according to Mr. Gamble this latter plant has proved successful resulting in cheaper milling. Ore is taken directly from the shaft right to the mill and does away with the various methods of ore treatment in the other section of the mill. A second Hadsell mill is to be installed which will give the plant a daily capacity of from 300 to 350 tons. During April the mill handled a total of 5,000 tons of ore, although production figures are not available as yet. The annual report is now being prepared and will be forwarded to shareholders in the very near future. Development work is being confined to the upper levels in the main workings where widths of from 10 to 12 feet are being mined and in one section a 45 foot width is being developed.

ADANAC GOLD

Adanac Gold Mines has interested the Joyce vein on the 125 foot level at their property in Rouyn Township, Quebec, with the vein showing a width of 9 feet with the face still in ore, according to official advices. One surface, this vein was traced for a length of 3,600 feet and showed a width of from 8 to 30 feet with values varying from $10 to $16.30 per ton, calculated on the old statutory price of gold.

WELLS LONG LAC

Drill hole No. 31 on the Wells Long Lac Mines property in the Little Long Lac area which was put down west of No. 13 hole in the centre of the property, has intersected a mineralized width of 15 feet 6 inches with values of $7.02 per ton, according to official word. Of this width a section 9 feet 4 inches in width averaged $10.90 per ton, whie a 2 foot sample assayed $34.65 gold per ton. Details as to the depth obtained in the hole are not availabe, but further information will be forwarded later. Two diamond drill outfits are now engaged on the property, endeavoring to delineate the zone of commercial ore.

PAYMASTER

Paymaster Cons. Mines, located in the Porcupine area, reports production for the first ten days in May of approximately $17,500. This is an increase of $1,920 over $15,580 representing output for the 10 days ending April 30th. The north cross cut on the 300 foot level of the West Dome shaft has cut the No. 307 vein which assays $8 over a width of 54 inches.

MACASSA MINES

Production at Macassa for the month of April is officially reported at $66,200 from the milling of 5,260 tons of ore, indicating mill heads of $16.30 a ton. This compares with $90,200 for the preceding month when 5,700 tons of ore milled or an average grade of $15.82 per ton. The lower tonnage treated during April was due to a minor recurrence of sliming trouble.

OKLEND GOLD

Satisfactory progress is being made in the program of development on the Little Long Lac property of Oklend Gold Mines where diamond drilling has been going on for some time throught the ice with encouraging results, according to Joseph Errington, company president. Owing to the large terrtiory to cover in the exploration work, Mr. Errington states that a considerable period must elapse before conclusive results can be obtained, and at the present time it is not in the best interest of the company to make any definite statements.

RED LAKE GOLD

With drifting going forward on both levels at the Red Lake Gold Shore Mine property in the Red Lake district, W. P. Mackie, engineer in charge, in a wire to local interests states that another vein has been encountered on the first level at a depth of 182 feet. The vein is six feet wide and shows free gold. Details as to the value and location of the vein are not available at the moment. In earlier work on the 162 foot horizon drifting on the main vein disclosed ore with an average value of 1.63 oz. gold per ton of $57.05 at $35 gold for a length of 72 feet across a width of 5.2 feet.

Brantford price was up 10 cents and was unchanged at Kitchener, Stratford and Chatham. Barrie reported the price down five cents and Peterborough dropped 10 cents. To-day's prices:

FIGHT FOR HEART BALM IS LOST

Joyce had to prove without question Revelstoke had contracted to marry her.

Counsel for Lord Revelstoke told the court the action "not merely is a cruel case but the essence of its cruelty is that it is false."

"This case was brought for money and where that is done a case can be bought off," the attorney declared in his final address to the jury. "It is to Lord Revelstoke's honor he has contested the matter to the last."

Boyish Infatuation.

The defendant's counsel commended him for "confessing to a boyish infatuation" for the comely actress and enduring the humiliation of having his letters to her read in open court.

Lord Revelstoke, in his final appearance on the witness stand, testified under cross-examination he had neither proposed to Miss Joyce nor written her any letters since he concluded his studies at Cambridge.

new appointments except in certain cases where experts are required in a department. As an example Mr. Hepburn mentioned the possibility of doctors or nurses being hired if they were required for types of work in which they were specialists.

Ordinarily, 700 employees leave the service each year through superannuation, marriage or death. By making no new appointments, the Government expects to have the service down to normal strength inside of a year.

Finally, Mr. Hepburn reiterated his previous announcements the Government planned to establish an eligibility list of returned soldiers. When positions are vacant they will be filled by these men, "no matter what their politics are," said the Premier.

FEDERAL BOND ISSUE IS READY

$60,000,000 in Two Series 3 and 20 Years to be Used For General Purposes.

HIGHEST RATE 3.10 P.C.

OTTAWA, May 14 (CP)—Public offering of a new issue of $60,000,000 Dominion of Canada bonds will be made tomorrow, Finance Minister E. N. Rhodes announced to-day. The issue, proceeds of which will be used for general purposes, will be in two series, eight and twenty years, and will bear coupons at the rate of 2½ and 3 per cent. respectively.

The eight year bonds will mature June 1, 1943, and will sell at 99.50 giving a yield of 2.57 per cent; the 20-year series will mature June 1, 1955, and will sell at 98.50, yielding 3.10 per cent. The shorter term issue will be non-callable, but the 20-year maturities will be calabe at par on June 1, 1950, or on any interest payment date thereafter. The 20-year bonds will be in denominations of $500 and $1,000, and the eight-year issue in denomination of $1,000 only.

Any Bank Branch

Public subscriptions may be made through any branch in Canada of any chartered bank or through recognized bond dealers. The distribution of the bonds will be made through the Bank of Canada acting as fiscal agents of the Dominion. Payment will be made in full against delivery of interim certificates on or about June 1st.

The proceeds of the issue will be used for general purposes of the Government of Canada. The last flotation of Dominion securities was made in October, 1934, when the issue was mainly for refunding purposes. The present issued will provide funds for current purposes including probably some reduction of Treasury bill indebtedness.

In recent weeks the market for Dominion securities has been active and strong the Minister said and it was anticipated the present offering, providing a yield of over 3 per cent for the long term and over 2½ per cent for the shorter term bonds, would meet with a ready response from Canadian investors.

ADVERTISE IN THE DAILY EXAMINER

LOWER RATES POLICY LOANS ARE OPPOSED

Reductions Injurious to Policyholders, Insurance Companies Say.

LOAN IS DIFFERENT

Reduction of the rate of interest on loans to policyholders is being strongly opposed by the life insurance companies as injurious to policyholders themselves. Summarised, the official position of the companies is that:—

"The limitation by legislative enactment of the maximum rate of interest chargeable on loans on life insurance policies to any figure lower than 6 per cent would adversely affect the companies and would be against the interests of policyholders.

"In considering the effect of the proposal it is essential that the relationship of policyholders to the companies should be kept in mind. Except for the relatively negligible interest of shareholders, the life insurance companies are composed of their members, who are the policyholders. The funds administered by the companies originate with the policyholders in the form of premiums, and are in reality the totals of their individual equities. Any legislation which adversely affects these funds, therefore, adversely affects the individual equities of policyholders. Moreover the earnings on the invested funds are a primary factor in the determination of premium rates, policy guarantees and privileges, and dividends; reductions in earning power must inevitably be reflected in upward adjustments of rates, reductions in dividends, or modification of guarantees or privileges, or all of these. The question of earnings is closely interwoven with policy values and cost of insurance.

"There seems to be no justification for any legislative action intended to benefit policyholders who borrow when such borrowing is certain to increase the cost of insurance to all policyholders including those who do not borrow. Such discrimination in favor of a particular group would be unfair.

"A policy loan is entirely different from any other type of loan. The policy gives the policyholders the contractual right to borrow upon demand the maximum loan guaranteed in the policy, usually without notice, and to repay the loan in whole or in part at any time and without notice. The life insurance company is not a banker, nor in the ordinary sense a lender of money. Unlike the banker or lender it is not in a position to refuse the policy loan in its discretion, but must make any loan up to the maximum guarantee upon request. It is consequently important that the interest charged on policy loans shall be such as will discourage borrowing, and encourage repayment of loans made.

"Life insurance companies were oragnized for the major purposes of providing financial aid to the family of a breadwinner removed by premature death, and to provide funds for the sustenance of the insured himself should he survive to old age. Cash surrender and loan privileges guaranteed in policies are consequently secondary and incidental provisions, and should not be encouraged to the prejudice of the primary purpose of the insurance. A low rate of interest on loans, which would encourage policyholders to borrow, would have the effect of impairing needed family provision, since loans are in effect a borrowing from beneficiaries. Borrowing moreover, conduces to voluntary or involuntary terminations of policies, the surrender experience on policies that have been borrowed upon being several times as great as it is upon policies as a whole. This is an effect of serious social import. The life insurance companies, therefore, while recognizing that the loan privilege may at times be a great convenience to a policyholdrer, endeavor to educate their policyholders, first, as to the undesirability, except as a last resort, of borrowing on their policies, and, second, as to the desirability of repaying any policy loan as soon as possible, for which repayment the companies always offset special facilities, such as the repayment at any time, without notice, of any amount."

Fifty In Attendance Mother's Day Service

SPRINGVILLE, May 14 (Examiner Correspondence) — The May meeting and Mother's Day service of the Springville W.M.S. was held on Wednesday, May 8 at the home of Mrs. Albert Hunter with a splendid attendance of about forty.

The devotional period was in charge of Mrs. Bothwell (Sr.) who is the Auxiliaries' oldest mother, read the Scripture lesson from Proverbs and gave a beautiful talk in keeping with the day while the opening prayer was led by Mrs. Bothwell.

The June meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Wm. Whitfield—lunch committee to be appointed at a later date.

It was also decided to have a play of home talent for the garden party.

The program consisted of an address on India by Mrs. Beatty, president of the Y.P.S. of George Street United Church, Peterborough; a solo by Mrs. V. Whittington, also of Peterborough and readings by Mrs. Douglas, Mrs. Wm. Whitfield and Mrs. Hunter. This was followed by an appropriate reading by Mrs. Bothwell on "What We Owe Mother."

Business included the appointing of a committee consisting of Mrs. Hunter, Mrs. Douglas and Mrs. Johnston to prepare a program for the Fairmount meeting in June.

Miss E. Johnston (Mother Almanac) and Mrs. S. S. Staples (Edison, and his Mother). A beautiful Mother's Day poem was read by Mrs. William Whitfield.

During the service Mrs. Bothwell (Sr.) was presented with a flowering plant by little Eleanor Bowles on behalf of the ladies of the society.

Lunch was served with all the grandmothers seated at the table of honor. Ice cream was served in addition to the usual lunch, this being Mr. A. Hunter's treat in honor of his mother.

Mrs. H. R. Wood, Mr. and Mrs. Harold B. Wood, Miss Irene and Miss Genevieve Milne spent Saturday in Peterborough.

Mrs. Ernest Hawley was a visitor Friday with Mrs. H. R. Wood and family.

The long looked for day has arrived and departed, leaving thrilling and happy memories in the minds of all Girl Guides and Boy Scouts who attended the rally on Saturday, May 11 in Toronto. Lord and Lady Baden Powell were both present at the huge rally held in the afternoon, at which 25,000 Guides and Scouts were present.

After parading down to the C.N.R. special at nine in the morning, the Guides and Scouts of Peterborough left for a train trip through Lindsay to Toronto. Many new friendships were formed, games were played and hearty sing songs enjoyed on the way.

When they arrived in Toronto, lunch was eaten on the train, after which the Guides paraded to the Coliseum where their rally was held. It was a beautiful and stirring sight to see walls of smiling young girls in blue uniforms on all sides, and bright faced little Brownies in the ring.

As Lord and Lady Baden Powell entered to the music of the 48th Highlanders Band, the Guides all rose to their feet, cherring and waving their many colored streamers.

An Indian Tableau, very picturesque and well costumed, and a rollicking country dance were then carried out by about 700 girls.

Lord and Lady Baden Powell, the Chief Scout and the Chief Guide, each spoke a few inspiring words to the Guides, who broke into a rousing cheer at the finish of each speech.

"I have lost my heart to you Brownies," Lord Baden Powell told the rush of small girls who ran up to hear him speak. "I feel like a preacher in a pulpit up here on the platform. I'd rather come done and play games with you."

"I have found that in Canada you do not drop your h's," he continued, "but I want you to think about three of them. I want you to be first happy, then healthy and lastly, you must be helpful to others at all times."

Lady Baden Powell told the thousands of Guides and Brownies that she had been given a new name in Canada.

"Everywhere they have called me the Mother Guide," she said, "and a mother doesn't make speeches to her children does she? This is the largest gathering we have seen on our tour and I want to thank you for the magnificent reception you have given us."

The Chief Guide read a message from the Princess Royal, congratulating the Canadian Guides on their interests and achievements.

HOURS OF RUBBING AND SCRUBBING? I SHOULD SAY NOT!

Actual tests by housewives have proved that Pearl White Naptha Soap makes quicker, richer suds—suds that last longer—suds so brisk and active that they draw out even the most obstinate grease and grime without hard rubbing and scrubbing. Clothes are definitely whiter and smell sweeter when washed with Pearl. It is a more economical soap, too, for Pearl lessens work and saves time on washday.

"Mine is a large family and I used to dread the weekly wash. Then I discovered Pearl White Naptha. No more 'blue' Mondays! Pearl does the work for me and I don't feel a bit tired."

"My! how white Mother's linen is! I'm going to use Pearl when I'm married. I don't want to wear out my new linens with hard rubbing —I want them to last."

"I'm out working all day. I haven't much time for washing clothes and I don't want extra work at the end of a hard day. I use Pearl because it does my laundry more easily and quickly."

PEARL SUDS COAX THE DIRT LOOSE?

I'LL SAY THEY DO!

You will prefer Pearl White Naptha for more reasons than one. Buy a bar—it costs so little. Compare it with any other laundry soap. Its pure whiteness and clean, fresh smell will delight you. There's nothing like it to ensure a cleaner, sweeter wash in such a short time.

MRS. W. L. SMYTH ELECTED HEAD OF CONFERENCE

Encouraging Reports Read at 10th Anniversary Meeting of Quinte W.M.S.

HELD AT BELLEVILLE

The tenth anniversary since Union, of the Women's Missionary Society of the Bay of Quinte Conference Branch was celebrated at their biennial meeting last week in Bridge Street United Church, Belleville.

Presiding over the meeting throughout, excepting for the election of officers, was the branch president Mrs. W. L. Smyth of Pembroke.

The object of these meets is for counsel and a thorough examination of conditions to be met in the future, with plans for successfully meeting all contingencies as nearly as possible. To do this, 'reports' hold a prominent place on the program. First and perhaps the most important of these, was that of the retiring corresponding secretary, Mrs. J. Sills, who, in her "Story of the Year" gave some startling facts and figures of just what has been accomplished in the several departments of W.M.S. undertakings in the branch.

18,869 Membership

She reported a total of 894 organizations with a membership of 18,869. In a brief resume, as this must be, it is impossible to touch upon details however interesting, but the departments included Mission Circles, Mission Bands and Baby Bands. C.G.I.T. were specially privileged in having a whole evening's program devoted to their work. Supply, Associate Helpers, Literature, and Circulating Library, Temperance, Strangers', Peace and Press departments were all dealt with most capably by Mrs. Sills.

At the supper hour on Tuesday, a delightful banquet was spread and the head table was centred by the birthday cake upon which glowed ten candles, lighted by Mrs. J. T. Daley, Port Hope, the first president of the branch, who also cut the cake. The guests present who brought greetings from the sister churches, were introduced by the president, Mrs. W. L. Smyth. These included representatives from Baptist, Anglican and Standard Churches and the Salvation Army. Upon adjournment to the auditorium of the church, the program was given over to the C.G.I.T., and Miss C. Mitten told what these mystic letters mean to the 'teen age girl. Mrs. Gordon Lapp, of the Girls' Work Board, Toronto, gave the address of the evening, her subject being "The Girl and Missions."

In a very suggestive dramatization, the Belleville C.G.I.T. groups presented "Scum of the Earth."

"Joy" was the subject of this evening's worship period and was taken by Mesdames Finlay and Farnsworth of Bellville Presbyterial.

Wednesday morning the appointment of committees was in order and many memorias and resolutions were received to be dealt with later.

Miss H. Chown of Kingston led the devotions with "Peace" as her theme. In a very inspirational message, Mrs. Smyth addressed the convention taking "Your life and mine" as a subject with many possibilities.

Mesdames Calder and McKenzie of Lindsay Presbyterial opened the Wednesday afternoon session in worship and spoke on "Longsuffering, gentleness and goodness," praying for this spirit to obtain among our members.

The meeting was honored with the presence of Mrs. A. N. Burns, of the W.M.S. Dominion Board, Toronto. Mrs. Burns outlined the objectives for "Our Tenth Anniversary" in her very fine address. Following along in this line the seven Presbyterial presidents Mesdames Callan, Scott, White, MacCrimmon, Seymour, Terrill and Haggerty, each gave a two-minute talk on "How we plan to promote this and our school for leaders.

Interesting Feature

Group conferences were an interesting feature of the convention. These were led by the secretary of each department under discussion. An open forum brought to light the findings of the various conferences, in which many knotty problems were solved.

Led by Miss Lillith Gandier, Napanee, there was a most impressive memorial service held for the members of the Bay of Quinte Branch who have passed to their reward during the past two years. A pink rose to the memory of each, was placed in a basket as her name was called.

The Sacrament of the Lord's Supper was conducted by Dr. James Semple, pastor of the convention church and the Rev. E. W. Rowland of Stirling, closed the Wednesday afternoon session in a fitting way.

At the supper hour, "Our Work in West China" was presented in a very realistic manner through moving pictures which accompanied an extremely interesting address by Dr. Ian . Revele, of Lachow, China.

Mesdames C. R. Carscallen and P. L. Juil of Oshawa Presbyterial, in the service of worship, took "Faith" as their theme, enlarging upon it with scripture and prayer.

Representing the Bay of Quinte Conference, Rev. L. S. Wight, of Kingston, brought greetings. He commended the great work for which the W.M.S. stands and which is being accomplished through their officers, members and missionaries.

Another phase of the work in West China was given by Mrs. Homer G. Brown, who is on furlough from Chengtu. Mrs. Brown brought a challenge to her hearers for this work that will not soon be forgotten. A thankoffering message for boys and girls was presented by the Mission Band members of Halloway Church led by Mrs. C. Homes, and was greatly enjoyed.

Officers Elected

The following officers were installed by Mrs. A. N. Burns, and the very inspiring convention brought at a successful conclusion with the Benediction by Rev. Robert Hall, B.A.:—

Past President, Mrs. J. T. Daley Port Hope; President, Mrs. W. L. Smyth, Pembroke; 1st Vice-president, Mrs. R. O. Jolliffe, Kingston; 2nd Vice-president, Mrs. H. T. AUTO INDUSTRY FORGING AHEAD

Studebaker Corporation of Canada Looking Forward to Biggest Year in its History.

WALKERVILLE, Ont., May 14.—Further proof that the automobile industry is forging ahead to one of its biggest years in history is found in a report issued by M. S. Brooks, Vice-President and General Manager of The Studebaker Corporation of Canada, Limited.

"Though the 1935 Studebaker trucks were announced only six weeks ago," said Mr. Brooks, "our sales have already smashed records existing for several years. The total of trucks shipped from the factory in April was exactly 300 per cent greater than the same month of last year. Orders now on hand already equal the total number of trucks shipped during last May—and the bank of orders is mounting daily.

"The instantaneous acceptance of these new Studebaker trucks has been most gratifying," concluded Mr. Brooks. "Spencer's Department Store in Victoria has just ordered twelve of the new 1½ ton units and several others are ordering fleets of varying size. The heavy trades, too, are showing a much greater interest in our commercial equipment and, all in all, we are anticipating an unusually excellent business in the next few months."

BODY POISONS SLOW YOU UP

EVEN slight cases of constipation set up poisons in the body. Are you going through each day half-well . . . half the man you might be? Follow this simple suggestion: start eating Post's Bran Flakes With Other Parts of Wheat, a mild laxative. It may make a big difference in the way you feel—and look. Many call it the most delicious cereal they know. Constipation due to insufficient roughage in the diet should yield to Post's Bran Flakes eaten regularly. A competent physician should be consulted for more stubborn cases.

T. C. Elliot Dies Of Sudden Heart Attack

Suffering a heart attack while in a Toronto department store yesterday, Thomas C. Elliot, aged 71, of 80 Bowie Avenue, died on admittance to Toronto General Hospital.

Although the late Mr. Elliot had been in an indifferent state of health in recent months, news of his sudden passing was received in the nature of a distinct shock to his many friends not only in this city, but in Port Hope where the family originated.

He is survived by one son Vega Elliot and a daughter, Mrs. Kenneth Siddall, both of Toronto.

Interment is to be made at Port Hope Union Cemetery.

CRICKET

LONDON, May 4 (C.P. Cable).—Failure of Hampshire batsmen in their second innings gave Kent a seven wickets victory in the county cricket championship match at Portsmouth to-day.

After scoring 434 in the opening innings, the southern county had compiled 82 runs for three wickets when stumps were drawn last night, but on resuming to-day the remaining wickets fell cheaply, the side being dismissed for 154. Kent made 479 and 100 for three wickets.

Freeman for Kent bagged five wickets for 60 runs in the Hampshire second innings.

Derbyshire gained a first innings win over Yorkshire at Chesterfield. Derbyshire scored 382 and 211 for six declared, while their opponents knocked out 338 and 103 for four. Alderman made an even century for Derbyshire.

Too good for the Varsity team, Lancashire defeated Oxford University by an innings and 30 runs. The champion county declared at 466 for seven wickets, Oxford replying with 239 and 229. Walford scored 75 for Oxford to-day.

Northamptonshire defeated Somerset by 48 runs after a close struggle at Taunton. The victors hit up 171 and 297 but the cider county after scoring 286 in its first innings, collapsed and was dismissed in the second for 75. Timms for Northamptonshire was high scorer with 131. Clark took five Somerset wickets for 38 and Mathews a similar number for 31.

Gloucestershire won from Nottinghamshire on the first innings at Nottingham. The scores were: Nottinghamshire, 250 and 270; Gloucestershire, 288 and 13 for no wickets. In the home team's second innings, Staples scored 91 and Lilley 57 not out.

The South Africans recorded their fourth straight victory, defeating Surrey by 190 runs. The tourists scored 387 and 280 for two wickets, declared, Surrey replying with 266 and 191. Further Consideration is Promised By Premier Before Closing Camps

A rumor at noon yesterday that the road camps in the northern townships of the county were to be closed by the Government started J. J. Duffus immediately for Toronto. In an interview with Premier Hepburn and Hon. Peter Heenan, of the Department of Northern Development, Mr. Duffus was assured that no action would be taken pending a further conference in regard to the financing of the present road construction operations.

"Wires were to the road foreman to release men from outside Peterboro county who are engaged on the two roads," Mr. Duffus reported to-day, "and the contemplated order generally referring to the suspension of work will be further considered. It is entirely a question of financing the work. Personally I was not opposed to the Government's desire to reduce the number of men employed, especially those who would become available for engagement with farmers, but I was anxious that consideration be given for city men and settlers who still find it difficult to secure employment.

Mr. Heenan said he could provide plenty of work if Mr. Hepburn, who is provincial treasurer, could find the money for it. "And that simply means that the money has to be provided in some way by the people of Ontario. Everybody realizes the two sides to the problem, and the financial side is a very serious one just now."

Fun in Seattle

SEATTLE, May 14 (C.P.) — Mayor Charles L. Smith of Seattle yesterday prepared for his "put out the cat derby." In announcing the "derby" the mayor said "a little foolishness is a delightful thing, for citizens." The show will be staged at Woodland Park.

"Fifty gentlemen, attired in nightshirts, will spring from bed and run 70 yards, each carrying a cat. The cat will be heaved out of the park.

"The rolling pin relay will follow. Fifty comely housewives, clad in pajamas, will race with rolling pins.

"Finally, we have the iceman's gallop. The icemen will canter along, carrying 50 pound blocks of ice, the winner to be rewarded by a kiss from an attractive housewife."

The date of the "derby" will be May 19.

City Council To Pave Part Of Louis Street

By the Council's decision last night Louis street will be paved with concrete a distance 182 feet south of Charlotte street, and the rest of the street to King street will probably be gravelled and surfaced with Retread.

W. H. Bradburn reminded the council that five years ago Bradburns Limited had made an offer to give the city five feet off their property along a frontage of 192 feet providing the Chamberlen Estate agreed to extend the five foot strip to King street. It was then understood that the city would pave Louis street, but the agreement had not been completed and the deed of the five foot frontage off the Bradburn property had not been registered by the city.

Mr. Bradburn said that he would be satisfied if the street was paved to the end of their property which would bear the cost of the work.

Greer and Mrs. A. Moir, at a table prettily arranged with a lace cloth, candles and a centerpiece of pink tulips and delphinium.

LEAGUE HEARS V. J. McINTYRE

"The Origin of the Units of Measurement" is Subject of Address to C.W.L.

DELIGHTFUL PROGRAM.

"The Origin of the Units of Measurement" was the title of an unusual and very interesting address given by V. J. McIntyre of the staff of the Normal School, at the meeting in St. Alphonsus Lyceum last evening of the Catholic Women's League.

The president, Miss Lillian Hurley, was in the chair for a meeting which was largely attended, and opened with the usual prayer.

The program which was in charge of the second vice-president, Miss Mamie L. McCarthy, included also brief but extremely instructive addresses given by the Rev. P. Costello, rector of St. Peter's Cathedral, speaking on the work of the Catholic Women's League, and by Mrs. J. H. Bell, who outlined some of the endeavors of the Girl Guides.

The business session was taken up by the reports of the secretary, Mrs. V. S. Rutherford, and the treasurer, Mrs. R. McGrath.

A pleasant interlude was provided in beautifully-rendered music. Miss Helen Ross sang "Just a Wearyin' for You," and "Drink to Me Only With Thine Eyes," accompanied by Miss Marion Best; Miss Alma Duffy played a piano solo, Chopin's Valse Brillante (Opus 34), and George Daly sang "In the Garden of Your Heart," and "Come Sing to Me," with accompaniments by Mrs. V. J. McIntyre.

Mr. McIntyre's talk on "The Origin of the Units of Measurement" threw a good deal of light on a subject that is of interest to everyone. Seldom is much thought given to the origin of the manner in which things are measured. According to Mr. McIntyre, who interspersed his address with pleasing little humorous anecdotes, the beginnings of measurment were of old and homely origin.

The human foot, for instance, afforded the measure which is now recognized as authoritative. An old farmer coming into town one day, observing excitement round about, asked "What's a-foot?" and had the answer: "Twelve inches." And the ancient origin of the measure arose from the action of an early king of England, one of the Edwards, who had his own foot measured and decreed that twelve inches it should be thenceforth.

Measurement by rule of thumb was first employed and the human form provided means of judging distances. A span was the distance from the outstretched thumb to the little finger, meaning the span of the hand; the distance from the elbow to the end of the fingers was reckoned as eighteen inches; the yard, which was the merchants' standard, was from the nose end to the end of the outspread fingers and the fathom was the reach of the stretched-out arm.

The origin of the acre measure of land came from the reckoning of the farmer of the space of earth which he could plow comfortably in a day's time, using a team of oxen.

From such haphazard beginnings came the measurement systems in use to-day.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

One of the cheapest and most useful things we use is salt and the following are a few of its most effective uses.

• • • • • • •

SALT AND EGGS

To keep eggs fresh, pack them small ends down, in salt, making sure that they do not touch each other. In poaching eggs, a pinch of salt in the water makes the whites set. Eggs will beat more quickly with a touch of salt speeding the process.

• • • • • • •

LONGER LIVES FOR FLOWERS

Freshly cut flowers brighten up a room and to keep them longer, try adding a touch of salt to the water in which they are standing. Most flowers live several days longer when the water is treated that way.

• • • • • • •

KEEPING GREEN VEGETABLES GREEN

When preparing green vegetables, the housewife will find a little salt preserves the fresh green color and naturally improves their flavor. Bring the water to a boil, add one and a half teaspoonfuls of salt per quart and then put in the vegetables. When preparing thick soups and sauces it is well to add the salt very early in the cooking, as it takes a long time to get a through blend. Meat should also be salted at the beginning of the cooking period. It penetrates better then than later and will give a more even flavor.

• • • • • • •

ELIMINATING ONION ODOR

The housewife spending all morning baking and cooking naturally finds that her hands reveal the work she has been doing. The odor of onions may be quickly and easily removed by rubbing the hands with salt and washing in cold water. To remove vegetable stains from the hands, rub them with salt moistened with lemon juice and rinse in warm water.

ROBERTA'S CHAT

A column conducted by a reader of The Examiner for her other reader friends. Address all mail to Roberta in care of The Examiner.

"Dost thou love life?
Then do not squander time,
For that is the stuff life is made of."
—B. Franklin.

Dear Friend:

Time! So precious, yet so little understood. There are so many things we find we haven't time for. No time to visit the sick friend, say the kind word, or go to church.

No time for the beauty in life, or the unpleasant duty. Yet, time can be so long.

When we are waiting for better things to come, or straining with agony at the bedside of a loved one, time seems to stand still.

When we were young the hours in school were so long, and the hours of play sped on so swiftly.

Yet when we have a lot to do there doesn't seem enough hours in the day.

An old lady of 92, said to me, when she lay dying, "There are so many things I've not had time to do." Yet she had lived a hard arduous life. To me, her life seemed to have been filled to the brim, and here she was wishing for more time.

Wherever we can, we should strive for more time, to do the things we want to do, as we go on.

If we put off doing this, and think that "some day we shall have time for these things," we find that the years have robbed us of the desire, or life has crowded us so much, that we have less time than ever.

Personally, I can not take pleasure in something that can only take place in the future. Time, for me, is now!

Am I impatient? Maybe.

Yet I've been told many times, that I am a most patient person. I want my good times before I get too old to enjoy them. Besides I might not be here, but may have journeyed on.

I would not want to be bound by time. I'd want it to be elastic so that I could stretch it out here, or tighten it up there, as I try to do now.

In business, again, it is imperative that things be done on time, and anyone who is careless with their employers time, is just as much a thief, as if they had put their hand in the till.

Employers, also, should not expect the worker to give more time than they are paid for.

The employer may reason it out, that part of the day the worker is not busy, especially in some stores. Nevertheless the worker has to stay right there. She can not go away, as she could, in her own leisure time.

If meals are late, the one responsible robs husbands or children, of precious minutes, in the time allotted them.

Visitors to a business man's office, should realize the importance of time, and should state their errand briefly, and not linger. After office hours is the time for friendly conversation.

The procastinaton who keeps putting everything off until to-morrow, plies up a tremendous amount of trouble for himself, and everyone who has any dealings with him.

So, if we are wise, we learn to use time to the best advantage. Not frittering it away in useless things, but doing our work expeditiously, and using our leisure time, for the things we want to do.

The springtime of life is nice, but we are learning then. Middle-life-time, should have shown us how to get the best out of life, and twilight time in our lives—ah then, the worst is over, and we can use the time that is left, to see the glories of the world we have been privileged to live in.

Your friend,
Roberta.

Be Beautiful

By GLADYS GLAD

As a rule, most girls have the idea that yeast is just something that ma drops into her bread dough to make it rise, and pa drops into his home brew, in order to give it a good, potent kick. But to the little lass who knows her beauty tricks, yeast is a good deal more than just that. For when it is properly used, this preparation can also prove an excellent complexion beautifier. Gracie Barrie, torch songstress, is one girl who realizes the beautifying values of yeast. Gracie generally gives herself a yeast facial every other week. And she believes that this helps greatly in keeping her skin clear, smooth and fine-textured.

Makes Face Mask

Yeast really can be made into an excellent face mask. Fortunately, this mask is simple to prepare and administer. One cake of yeast should be placed into a receptacle and creamed. Then one tablespoon of sweet milk should be added and combined with yeast. Yeast has an unpleasant odor, but to offset this, 10 drops of oil of lavender or oil of lilac should be added to the mixture. This will give a pleasing fragrance to the pack. If the mixture, when finally blended, is too thick to spread easily, a little more milk should be added until the right consistency has been achieved.

Before the yeast facial is applied to the face, the skin should be thoroughly cleansed with a bland soap and tepid water, and then with a good, liquefying cleansing cream. After the cleansing cream has been removed, a bit of nourishing cream should be smoothed generously over the skin. This face mask should be permitted to remain on for about half an hour, and it is wise to lie down and relax during this period of time, if possible. Then the pack should be removed with tepid water and a soft cloth. And as the final step, a good astringent or skin tonic should be applied to close the pores and tone up the skin. If this pack proves too drying, a bit of cold cream or nourishing cream should be applied after its removal, in order to counteract any drying effects and to keep the skin soft, smooth and supple.

EDITOR'S NOTE: To obtain Miss Glad's pamphlets on "The New Figure" and "Beauty Culture" write, care of this paper, enclosing a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, and ten cents in coin for each, to cover cost of printing and handling.

I'm a different looking woman
I'VE LEARNED WHAT IT MEANS TO HAVE A Schoolgirl Complexion

I've discovered why my beauty expert—and 20,000 others—recommend Palmolive. It's made my skin so smooth... so youthful. I've paid more for soaps that haven't done my complexion half as much good.

I'm sure it's Palmolive's secret, scientific blend of olive and palm oils that makes it such a wonderful beauty treatment. And, too, it's such a relief to know that your soap is pure and safe.

Twice daily I work its rich lather into the skin of my face and shoulders. Then I rinse with warm water, then cold. In my bath, too, Palmolive keeps all my skin smooth and lovely.

Ham Roll — Baked Potatoes
Dandelion or Other Greens
Pineapple Salad
Inexpensive Sponge Cake With Lemon Frosting
Tea or Coffee

If you can possibly use a large piece it is best not to buy ham by the slice. It is expensive. Buy a good sized end and have the butcher cut one or two slices off for you. Make a roll of one. Serve another fried with eggs or broiled, or cut into small pieces and cooked with scalloped potatoes. Boil or bake the remainder and serve hot then in sandwiches, and finally the left-overs in omelettes or in various other tasty ways.

Today's Recipes

Ham Roll—Have a large slice of ham cut half an inch thick. Combine one cup bread crumbs, one tablespoon chopped onion, one teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, two tablespoons melted butter or shortening and just enough milk to moisten. Cover the ham with this dressing, roll up like a jelly roll and tie in shape. Sear in a hot oven, and one cup tomato juice and bake covered at 350 degrees, basting frequently. Uncover during the last 20 minutes.

Inexpensive Sponge Cake.—Three eggs, one cup sugar, one cup cake flour, one teaspoon baking powder, salt, one-fourth cup cold water. Break the eggs into a bowl, add the sugar and beat together 10 minutes. Add the dry ingredients, which have been sifted together, alternately with the water. Bake in a cake pan in slow oven, 325 degrees Fahrenheit, for about one hour.

Lemon Frosting—Three tablespoons grated orange rind, two tablespoons butter, salt, one cup confectioner's sugar, two tablespoons lemon juice, one tablespoon water, two cups confectioner's sugar. Cream orange rind and butter and add gradually the salt and one cup of confectioner's sugar which has been sifted. Add lemon juice and water and remaining confectioner's sugar.

Wes Ferrell Is Hard Toiler

Star Twirler With the Boston Red Sox Always in Action.

PLEASES CRONIN

SPEAKING of Ferrell who spells his Christian name with a W. which means Wesley but which might mean work, since in all the league which this stout-hearted Boston Red Sox right-hander graces there is none who toils harder than this man. Of his performance this season, Ferrell seems to have regained all the effectivness that was his during the stretch of four seasons 1929-32, when he won 91 games for the Cleveland Indians.

Then his arm went bad, and so, Clevelanders claim, did his disposition, though there is no longer any evidence of flare-ups on the pitcher's part, and he is characterized by his manager, Joe Cronin, as a splendid type to have around a ball club. When the arm went bad, Ferrell went to work on that, just as tirelessly as he does about everything else in which he is interested. He tried everything. Doctors, masseurs, electric treatments, steam baths, sunshine . . . he even turned to the stars for help, 'tis said. And at last, a neighbor who had some home grown liniment got him to try that. Maybe it was the liniment. Maybe it was merely because the arm had grown tired of being bad and wanted to do good from then on. At all events its effectiveness was restored and Ferrell, now with the Red Sox, became himself again. He is a stickler for condition.

DURING THE Spring training trip his manager, Cronin, noticed that Ferrell was getting bumped in the first inning, right along. He suggested to Ferrell that maybe he wasn't warming up properly, and that, in striving for control, he really wasn't getting his arm loosened up sufficiently.

"Maybe that's it," said Ferrell, "I'll try that. Come to think of it, I'll go further. I'll run around the park before I start warming up."

As the Red Sox came north, they were scheduled to play an exhibition game, and it was Ferrell's turn to pitch. Cronin told him he could go seven innings, and if he felt all right, he might go the route.

It developed that the day was raw and cold, and there had been some days off just previous to that. So Cronin switched plans, and decided to use his pitchers three innings apiece. When Ferrell completed his three, he wanted to go on, but Cronin wouldn't let him. So the pitcher retired to deep outfield and spent the rest of the game running back and forth along the field, getting in his conditioning work that way. Besides being a top notch pitcher, Ferrell is probably the best hitter among all the hurlers in the league, though a dissenting opinion might advance the name of 'Red' Ruffing, of the Yankees.

AND BESIDES a ball player, Ferrell is a golfer of parts. It is said that he uses all his pitching talents when things are going badly with his golf game, and can throw clubs farther than Bobby Jones ever did in his childhood, when, golf history relates, the Atlanta prodigy threw more clubs than Jim Londos does wrestlers.

ROWE OUTHURLS VETERAN GOMEZ AT NAVIN FIELD

Brilliant Performance in 3-0 Victory Reminds Fans of Last Season.

FERRELL HOLDS BROWNS.

By HERBERT W. BARKER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Lynwood (Schoolboy) Rowe's pet stooges, it appears, still are the New York Yankees.

The schoolboy hasnt been getting along so well this season but Mickey Cochrane, manager of the champion Detroit Tigers, tossed him in there yesterday against the invading Yankees and Rowe responded with a brilliant performance that reminded Tiger fans of his sensational pitching of last year.

Arranged against Vernon Gomez, star of the Yankee staff, Rowe held the New Yorkers to four singles and shut them out 3-0. Rowe, who won 24 games for the Tigers a year ago, beating the Yankees five times in a row, has had all kinds of trouble getting tarted thi campaign. He had won only one game, that in a relief role, and lost three, pitching only one complete game up until the Yankees came to town.

Against hist pet "cousins," however, Rowe was invincible. Red Rolfe beat out a bunt in the sixth and got to third on Lou Gehrig's single but Tony Lazzeri hit into a double play to snoil the only chance the Yankees had to score. The Tigers got to Gomez for one run in the first on a walk, Gerald Walker's single and Charley Gehringer's long fly. They picked up another on Walker's home run in the sixth and scored one off pat alone in the eighth on a double by Gehringer and a single by Hank Greenberg.

In the only other American League game of the day, Wes Ferrell held St. Louis Browns to five hits and walloped a home run in the seventh to account for the Boston Red Sox's 2-1 triumph.

Umps Erred

Washington players still insist Umpire George Moriarty made a mistake last week when he chased Freddie Sington from the Nat dugout.

Their version of the affair is that Red Kress, and NOT Sington, was Moriarty's tormentor.

Red, in Patsy O'Toole parlance, kept yodeling from the bench: "You're a great guy, Moriarty . . . you're the best, Moriarty . . . you're a great guy, George . . . "

And finally George excused big Freddie, who is known as one of the quietest men on the Washington team.

July 23—North Douro at Elmwoods.
July 26—Elmwoods at Warsaw.
July 30—Warsaw at North Douro.

Aged Woman, 74, Swims Way To Health Now Paddles In Water Without Stop

After the three score mark in life has been passed a person is wont to seek the peaceful rut of quiet comfort in a chair by the window or on the porch. The active period of existence is supposedly passed. Days can be spent in leisure, enjoying reveries and dreaming of yesteryear.

But not so with Mrs. Mary Carson.

When Mrs. Carson reached 69 she weighed close to 200 pounds. Her blood pressure was high. Physically, she was ready for apoplexy. The doctor gave her a year to live. She differed with the medico. She said she would change her sedentary habits and get a new grip on life.

She decided then to take up, of all things, swimming. She was determined to learn. She did. That was six years ago. Today Mrs. Carson weighs 135 pounds, her heart is in good condition. She is free from high blood pressure. Close to 75 now, she can swim a mile without stopping. She has the appearance of a woman of 50 and her active interest in life is even younger.

WESTERN CLUBS SCORE CLEAN SWEEP IN THE NATIONAL LOOP

Leo Durocher's 10th Inning Homer Gives Cards 3-2 Victory Over Giants.

CUBS ALSO WIN 3-2.

A full schedule in the National League saw the four Western clubs, now invading the east, score a clean sweep. Leo Durocher's 10th inning home run broke up a great pitching duel at New York between Carl Hubbell of the Giants and Bill Walker of St. Louis Cardinals, and gave the Cards a 3-2 victory. Walker allowed only six hits and might have had a shutout had he been able to take care of Joe Moore, who clouted two home runs to keep the Giants in the game

The seven-hit pitching of young Bill Lee plus a brilliant defence carried Chicago Cubs to a 3-2 triumph over Brooklyn Dodgers. The Dodgers, in second place, a game and a half behind the Giants, found their lead over the Cubs cut to four percentage points. Doubles by Hartnett, Lee and Galan gave the Cubs two runs and the ball game in the seventh.

Cy Blanton stopped the Phillies with four hits for his fifth victory in six starts as Pittsburgh Pirates punched out a 10-1 victory. Si Johnson held Boston Braves to five hits and Cincinnati won 3-1.

Remember When—

Four years ago today at Geneva the Olympic council turned down Canada's invitation and awarded the 1936 Olympic Games to Germany. The chief reason for refusing Canada was that the 1932 games were scheduled to be held on this continent, at Los Angeles.

CHICAGO SOX SURPRISE TEAM AMERICAN LOOP

U. S. Sports Writers Predict Wide-Open Race in Junior Contest This Season.

INDIANS GOING STRONG

The first milstone in the American League's 1935 race will be passed this week. If the first month's play can be taken as any indication of what will transpire during the sweltry Summer months just ahead then truly this is to be the most wide open race the junior circuit has known in years.

Through Friday's games, Detroit's champion Tigers, resting in sixth place, were only four games back of first place Cleveland Indians.

Only two clubs seem definitely out of the running, St. Louis and Philadelphia, and there is a chance even the Athletics will cause a lot of trouble now that Pinkie Higgins, star third baseman, is back in the lineup to share the hitting burden with such renowned swatsmen as Jimmie Fox and Bob Johnson.

Chisox Surprise

The biggest surprise team of the first month has been the Chicago White Sox. The club finished a poor eighth in 1934, but its staggering splurge this season definitely stamps it as at least a first division contender.

Jimmy Dykes' team has been getting brilliant pitching and consistent hitting. All of his rookies have been performing sensationally. Just how Chicago is to fare for the remainder of the Summer depends entirely on whether these freshmen recruits can continue at such a dizzy clip.

John Whitehead, right-hand rookie hurler, became the first pitcher in the league to win four games. Rip Radcliff and Vernon (George) Washington have been going great guns in the outfield.

Add to this the fact Sad Sam Jones and Ted Lyons once again have bathed in the Fountain of Youth and you have the answer to Chicago's drive.

Plenty of Power

Cleveland was the "Winter favorite." As yet the Indians have not thrown down their backers. Walter Johnston has one of the best pitching staffs in the league and plenty of power with Averill, Trosky and Vosmik leading the anvil chorus of base hits.

The Indians presented probably the most effective pitching the league has ever known for the first two weeks of the season. Their mounds men were going 14, 13 and 12 innings with startling ease.

Boston, with the $250,000 Cronin at shortstop, starter off at top speed, slumped for a spell, but at this writing seems to have regained its best form.

Detroit's start was just as dismal as Chicago's was sensational. The Tigers won only two of first eight games played, but along came a new rookie gem in the person of Joe Sullivan to put them on a winning streak. Through Friday they had lost only one of the last seven games played and looked every inch of the team which won the pennant last season.

The Yanks have contented themselves with keeping in the first division from the start. But here, in the opinion of Cochrane and most of the other Tiger players, is the team Detroit must beat if the Tigers are to repeat.

Washington does not seem to rate on a par with either Cleveland New York, Detroit or Chicago. There is a suspicion lurking in some corner Philadelphia in time will move ahead of Washington and join the scramble for the pennant, leaving the Senators and Browns faltering in the rear.

Richards Out

NEW YORK, May 14 (A.P.).—Vincent Richards' tennis-playing days are over.

The former United States Davis Cup player, a professional since 1926, suffered injuries in an automobile crash last week that spell the end of tournament competition from him.

Still in a hospital at Brantville, Richards philosophically accepted the situation.

"As a matter of fact, I was thinking about cutting down on my tennis. It was taking too much time from my business, which is too important to be neglected. It has been fun and I have no regrets."

Richards, 32, has been a top-flight performer for nearly 20 years. At 15, he won the United States doubles championship with Big Bill Tilden.

BOOST SOCCER MEETING HELD

Large Gathering Present When C.G.E. Admitted to Association.

EDUCATIONAL TALK.

The best meeting in soccer annals of the Peterborough and District Football Association took place last evening in the Chamber of Commerce Rooms, with President Ben McMaster in the chair.

A communication was received from the Canadian General soccer team desiring to be admitted to the association. Carried unanimously. Alex. McKinley was the official appointed by the afore-named club to take care of the C.G.E. affairs. He was placed on the board of directors.

It was agreed that the suspension of players that took place last season be lifted.

The Canada Packers, C.C.F., and Canadian General clubs were officially notified to have the goal-posts fixed before the next game. The cross-bar at the east-end is reported as dangerous to players.

Executive Augmented.

The following are the association officebearers, augmented:

Past president, William Anderson; president, Ben McMaster; first vice-president, V. Stewart; second vice-president, George Parrance; secretary, Art. Siddall; treasurer, Stanley Gillespie.

Executive — Stanley Ivison, R. Whitehead, Wilfred Jones, Ben Bolam and Charles Lambert. Alex. McKinley, Canadian General; J. Isle, C.C.F.; Lawrence O'Toole, Canada Packers; and Art. Thomas, Brinton Athletic.

Saturday — Canada Packers meet C.C.F. in a league match. Referee, J. Morgan.

Open Discussion.

One of the most constructive talks of many seasons took place after the routine business had been transacted.

The question of the C.G.E. policy in regard to players associated with the Brinton club was debated, from every angle. It brought forth the explicit answer from the C.G.E. representative that the executive had no intention of approaching any Brinton player. "The players know the procedure of transfers as well as any person here," stated the C.G.E. man. The C.G.E. committee intend building their team from men in the plant who have not signed for any other club. If the departure of any man from the Brinton club was going to keep them out of the game, it was against their principle. The C.G.E. objective was to encourage sport, and they trusted that only true British sportsmanship would always be shown by the respective clubs.

Wilfred Jones expressed his viewpoint in an amiable manner, but contended that there were many players in the city who desired to play the soccer code. He requested the complete co-operation of all clubs to foster the scientific code. "Why shouldn't we have a Woollens team or a Quaker Oats eleven? Surely we have plenty of talent in these plants to represent them." The Brintons are anxious to introduce boys into the code, and will give a hearty welcome to any person desiring a try-out. "Don't forget, gentlemen," continued Mr. Jones, "that sport is well commercialised, and the Brinton desire the fullest co-operation under the present conditions, wishing that the present players signed will stay with us. If not, we will have to sign up other players and carry on. We are having a practice game on Brinton Ground to-morrow night; so send down all you may know who want to play the game."

Must Start on Time.

Clubs were again instructed that all games must start at the scheduled hour. Also that all players enter the field of play in the orthodox manner. All spectators must keep off the field of play or any approach to the goals.

TORONTO COPS GIFT VICTORY FROM ORIOLES

Davis Credited With Second Straight Win—Final Score 4-3.

MONTREAL WINS 5-3.

(By the Associated Press)

As the result of their ability to win at home, Toronto Maple Leafs, winners of the play-offs in the International League last year, today were virtually tied for first place with Newark Bears, who led the circuit through the regular season in 1934.

Since opening their home stand against the 'southern' clubs, the Leafs have chalked up nine victories in 13 games to climb from fourth place to within 10 points of the Bears. In contrast Newark has won only four of its last nine contests. As the result the standings today read: Newark, won 15, lost 9, pct. .625; Toronto, won 16, lost 10, pct. .615.

The Leafs won their ninth game since returning home yesterday by turning back Baltimore Orioles 4-3. However, the victory was something of a gift. The two teams went into the ninth deadlocked at three all. With two out and runners on first and second, Eddie Miller sent a high fly to short left. Both George Puccinelli and Bob Gibson went after it but then pulled an Alphonse and Gaston act with the result the ball dropped safely, Smith, who had batted for Pitcher Davis, ran home with the deciding tally.

Montreal Royals, themselves a pretty good home team with seven victories in 12 games, helped the cause of the Leafs by trouncing the Bears 5-3. Pete Appleton was largely responsible for the Bears' defeat. In winning his fourth straight game as against one defeat this season, he let the league-leaders down with five hits and one run in eight innings but was touched for two more runs on four singles after two were out in the ninth.

Ward Cross held Albany Senators to four hits while Rochester Red Wings snapped out of their four-game losing streak with a 4-0 victory. Gross also drove in the first two runs with a single in the second. The others came as the result of Gene Moore's home run with Crabtree on base in the eighth.

Ollie Carnegie's long single in the 10th drove in the run that gave the Buffalo Bisons a 4-3 victory over the Syracuse Chiefs.

LAZZERI CROSSES EXPERTS; REFUSES TO BE COUNTED OUT

New York Yankee Believes He is Due for One of Best Years of His Career.

WANTS TO STAY PUT.

DETROIT, May 14 (AP)—It's a tough job to keep "Poosh 'Em Up" Tony down, and you can take Signor Anthony Lazzeri's word for that.

In other words, Tony Lazzeri, starting his tenth season with New York Yankees, believes he is going to have one of the best years of his brilliant career. And from the way he's going—he hit two homers Saturday against Cleveland to drive in five runs—it isn't hard to believe the Yankee second baseman is going somewhere on the comback trail.

For it is a comeback to Tony, whom the experts have counted out of the major leagues many times during the past few years.

In 1927 Tony was considered one of the greatest keystones the game ever produced. A brainy player, with so much pep that he took over the field leadership of the Yanks almost as soon as he broke into the line-up. He could hit, run bases and do everything the late Miller Huggins, then Yankee manager, could ask.

Then in 1930 they started to count "ten" over Tony. He was slowing down, and his health wasn't so good. With young infielders like Frank Crosetti and Jack Saltzgaver ready, it didn't look as though "Poosh 'Em Up" could last much longer, and trade rumors were rife.

But Saltzager wasn't hitting, and Tony got his old job back. The Yanks won the pennant and the World's Series, with Tony hitting at a .300 clip, and fighting for everything he could get in the old "Poosh 'Em Up" manner. He went home overweight before the season closed last year, and rumor again had it that Tony was through.

"It means a lot to me," he repeated. "I'll be only 32 this fall, and I want to stay in a while longer. When you hit 'em, they'll travel, and I'll be hitting 'em this year."

Soccer Notes

Jack McMaster, who played at inside right for the C.C.F. last Saturday, resumed playing after being off the field of play for two years. His injured knee stood the test very good and his individual play was worth watching. He acted as C.G.E. trainer for two years when they won the championship.

The Brinton are giving away four carpets as prizes in their campaign for finances to run the club. They were specialy made at the plant and they are worth winning.

It is rumoured Ben McMaster will return to the game at an early date as a Canadian General player. They will have to elect a new president.

The question of an "Athletic Association" in the Canada Packers has been given serious consideration. It is the intention to encourage all kinds of sport. The C. P.C. are holding a dance next Tuesday night in the Paragon Hall.

No official communication has been received from Deloro intimating their actions for the coming season. There are four teams in the city and one will always be able to travel on a Saturday. The executive are leaving the league open until they hear definite word from the Smelters.

To-night at six o'clock, the Brinton will hold a practice game on the Brinton Ground. All prospective players are invited.

There will be no Lindsay team this year. The Lindsay players will sign up with local clubs.

Knox Bantams Take 18-15 Decision From Battling St. John's Crew.

IN CHURCH SOFTBALL.

Three games were played last night in the church Softball League. Knox Seniors beat St. Paul's 17-4 at King Edward Park; All Saints' Juveniles defeated Trinity 18-15 in 8 innings at Queen Mary School, with Knox Bantams beating St. John's by the same score at the same grounds but in 7 innings.

Knox Seniors 17, St. Paul's 4

What looked like a real pitching battle was broken up in the 6th when Knox fell upon McIntyre and his successors, Broadley and Marsh, for 9 runs. McIntyre had held Knox to 6 runs in the first 5 innings. Wedlock pitched one of his best games with only 1 bad inning. In the last 4 frames only one St. Paul player got on base.

Archibald got four hits including two homers. Smythe, McDonald and Smythe also batted well. Marsh was the best Presbyterian batter.

Picking up 13 runs in the last two innings Knox won their first game in 3 starts, at the expense of Jack Chamberlain's St. John's team.

Crowter and Smythe were the heavers, with the latter being hit the hardest but having better support. Crowter walked 8 to keep himself in trouble. Both pitchers did some nice batting, Smythe being particularly good with the willow. Land and Lomac also hit well. T. Clarke and Doughty fielded well.

GOLF FACTS NOT THEORIES!
By ALEX J. MORRISON

NUMBER 610.

A club that has been added to the bag recently is the approach cleek. In the old days the iron for distance was the cleek. It was an iron head with a rather narrow blade.

From this club came the famous jigger. The narrow blade was utilized in an iron club with the loft of a mashie. Another iron club of the cleek family was the old putting cleek. A putter with a certain amount of loft that was supposed to be of help in making long approach putts.

Now we have a narrow blade iron head with the loft of a No 4 or 5 iron. A clubhead with an upright lie like a putter and shaft slightly longer.

This club is proving mighty popular with the pros. Ask your pro to demonstrate one for you. It will save you many strokes around the green.

TRACK RECORDS SET AT WINDSOR

John Loaring and Harold Kennedy Outstanding in Windsor Meet.

SECONDARY SCHOOLS.

WINDSOR, Ont., May 14 (CP) — Ten meet records toppled at Kennedy Stadium here yesterday as the Border Cities Secondary Schools' Association offered its sixteenth annual track and field championships.

Outstanding among the individual performers were John Loaring of Kennedy Collegiate, one of the Canadian schoolboys to tour Australia and New Zealand during the winter; Harold Jackson of Assumption High School; Joe Krol of Kennedy Collegiate, and Pearl Barton of Sandwich Collegiate.

Loaring won the Senior boys' championship when he started in six events and won all of them, setting a new mark in his specialty, the 120-yard high hurdles. Jackson was runner-up for Senior honors and broke running high jumping and running broad jump records, his winning mark in the high jump being six feet, one inch.

Lawson was beaten only once in the six events in which he took part and finished second on that lone occasion. He easily won Junior honors. Krol topped the Intermediates, and set a new standard for the running high and running broad jumps.

Pearl Barton, Sandwich lassie, was credited with the almost unbelievable record of five feet in the Junior girls' high jump. She won Junior girls' honors.

MURRAY ST. GAME ORDERED REPLAY

League Protests Dealt With By Church Softball Executive.

The Church Softball League executive met last night at the Y. M.C.A. with the chairman, Len Agnew, Whitty Thirnbeck, Harry Marsh, Don. Lewis, and the secretary, Don Charlton, present.

Two protests were dealt with. A protest from Murray Street Seniors re Mark Street using two of last years City League players in their game on May 8th was upheld. Mark Street's claim that they did not know of this rule that was passed at the last meeting of the executive on April 29th, was surprising as it was published along with the schedule. As the team had not been directly notified, a benefit of doubt was given Mark Street, and the game ordered replayed by the executive.

Knox Seniors' protest of their game with George Street at Nicholls Oval, May 9th, was thrown out quite emphatically. The fact that Knox had been quite agreeable to the umpires and grounds, at the start of the game left no other action for the executive. Any further protest with as little justification as this one and the league may be obliged to have protecting teams furnish a bond with their protest.

Numerous players' transfers and ages were discussed with a list of ages to be investigated drawn up. The following transfers were approved: A Mowry, All Saints' to St. John's; E. Partington, Murray Street to St. Luke's; C. Dundas, St. Paul's to George Street; while R. Hendren's change from St. Andrew's to George Street is to be looked into.

For their games on May 2, Murray Street and George Street Juveniles will each receive one point. In the Juniors and Juveniles playoffs the same system as last year will be followed. In the senior and bantam sections the second and third teams will play a sudden death game, the winner to meet the first team in a two-out-of-three series.

Knox Juveniles' failure to show up for their game with St. James May 9th, will mean a default. This game was given to St. James' Three minor corrections were made in the schedule. St. Luke's and Murray Street Juvenile game of May 16 will be at Nicholls Oval, St. John's and St. James' Bantams will play the 15th instead of the 16th at King Edward Park. Knox and George Street Bantams play May 17th at Queen Mary School.

BALL PRACTICE.

St. Peter's Juveniles at the Exhibition Grounds for Tuesday at 5.30 p.m. The following players are requested to attend: Vitorelli, Webb Tully, Connolly, McClelland, Kelly, O'Toole, Ash, Thornton, Curry, Curtain, Creighton, Phelan, McIlmoyle, Lucano, Fleming, Condon, Leonard, Prete, and all others will be welcome.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

The lid is pried off the Men's City Softball league this coming Friday evening, May 17th, at the Central School grounds when George Dormer's Fashion-Craft outfit tangles with Lilloo Motor Sales in the first set-to of the season. The usual appropriate opening ceremonies will take place, the full dope on which hasn't been released yet but we will give you the lowdown on Wednesday. With just four squads in this season, there is no reason why the softball at Central should not be plenty fast.

* * * * * * *

With the opening date, just a few 'wet' days ahead, we think a resume of the different clubs' rosters and prospective line-ups would not go astray. In the Fashion-Craft camp, handled by George Dormer, former manager of the now disbanded Sugar Bowl champs, titleholders for Eastern Ontario division of Ontario Softball Association a few years back, we find Collison, Butcher and Bill Abbott trying out for the mound duties, while a tight infields is in the making with Lefty Smith at first, McCarroll and Stanger trying hard for the keystone sack position, Gainey rambling around the shortstop and Harold Dormer holding down third. Ab Delahaye and Pat Calladine will look after the catching duties. Tom Montgomery, Ross Currie and Jack Playford look safe to cop the regular positions in the outer garden and pitching of the first mentioned pair, Dormer has five slingers all told on his line-up. (Looks like team to beat for city honors).

* * * * * * *

Herbie Payne has lined up a tidy outfit under the banner of the Lilloo Motor Sales with Elliott and Jimmy Price as pitchers, Webb Starr behind the plate, Jimmy Ellis at first, another Jimmy fastened to the handle of Newson at third, while still a third James holds down second base, in the person of Jimmy Willshaw, which in all should make it a Jim-Dandy' circuit line of the bases (don't throw that brick mister, remember the cheaters), Jack Gardner and Crazy are battling hard for the shortstop berth. Archie Weir and several others are trying out for the outfield positions.

* * * * * * *

The second of the motor-sponsored teams in the league this season comes in under the banner of Hood and Cumming' Ford V-8's. Piloted by Fred Scates, Magee, a newcomer to softball in this city but nevertheless a lad of vast playing experience in other centres, seems certain to get the backstop position with Lazure and Walsh also in line. This trio should make this team one of the strongest in the league behind the plate. Cavanaugh and Ted Naish are trying out for mound berths with Max Board and Charley Clarke candidates for the initial sack, Murray Hartley, Red Creighton and Vitarelli after second, Walt Crary and Shocky Mein looking for the shortstop berth, and Dorrington at third. Heavy hitters in the form of Gillespie, Goodson, Wiley, Caccavelli, O'Leary and Coughlin (kind of an international mixture) trying for garden positions.

* * * * * * *

Three of the niftiest twirlers in the league are lined up with Omemee in the two Parsons brothers and Frank Shine and it is quite safe to say the balance of the village entry will correspond in strength both offensively and defensively. Doc McPhee is managing this outfit.

* * * * * * *

Ike Boone has his Toronto Maple Leafs hustling again this season and right now they are in the thick of an interesting fight with Newark Bears and Montreal for first position in International league race. The return of Joe Morrissey at second base and addition of Pitcher Ray 'Peaches' Davis has helped considerable along with the unexpected hitting ability of the younger members. All Ontario will have a chance to view the Maple Leafs in action on Victoria Day, which is Friday, May 24th, this year. General Manager Arthur H. Leman has set aside this day as the only morning and afternoon holiday program in answer to many requests from baseball fans throughout the province. Buffalo Bisons with their greatly improved club will be the Leafs opponents in both games.

* * * * * * *

Apparently this column in recent date handed out a jab regarding Kingston 'imports' for here is what the Limestone City commentator has to say: "The Peterborough Examiner is starting to wonder about when players took up residence in other cities and ask the question when Bud Clancy took up residence in Kingston. He came here about the time that the string of imports arrived in Peterborough, to spend, like former Second-Baseman Murray, a year in the porridge town and then flit to green fields.

* * * * * * *

Still harping from Kingston: "As yet the schedule from the C.O.B.L. has failed to put in its appearance and doubtless it will be a case of waiting until the secretary is ready to draw it up. Seems strange that the representatives of four teams aren't able to draw up their schedules as other organizations do, instead of leaving the matter to the discretion of the secretary and then have to wait a couple of weeks before they know what it's like. Surely if the representatives can deal with more important things they ought to be able to draw up their own schedule and do it in a very short time at that.

* * * * * * *

Here and There: Church softball (weather permitting) Mark St. vs. Trinity Seniors at King Edward Park, umpires from Knox and St. Paul's. St. James' vs. George St. juniors at Nicholls' Oval, umpires from St. John's and All Saints. St. Paul's vs. Murray St. Juveniles at Queen Mary school, umpires from George St. and St. Luke's. Park St. vs. George St. bantams at Queen Mary school . . . . Lilloo softball team will practise tonight at Central school grounds, 6 p.m. Hood and Cummings hold workout at Central Park, also at same time. Nationals and All Saints will clash Wednesday evening at 6 in Exhibition Grounds (Southend league) . . . . Auburn's lacrossers will hold a practise on Wednesday evening at 6 in factory field . . . . A meeting of interest to canoe paddlers will be held at Y.M.C.A. this evening.

No Boost In Price Orpen Race Tracks

In keeping with his policy always to consider the individual of modest means, A. M. Orpen, head of the organization controlling Long Branch and Dufferin Park, in Toronto, Kenilworth Park, in Windsor, and Queens Park, in London, has decided on a twenty-five cents admission charge for the last named-meeting. The London seven-day session will be inaugurated Saturday, July 20th.

At first it had been intended to charge fifty cents, this covering the price of admission and the proportional amusement tax, the latter amounting to ten cents which would have left a net of forty cents to the London Turf Club. When the Ontario Government imposed the twenty-five cents tax on all persons entering race tracks, irrespective of the price of admission, in order to secure money for relief purposes, it was thought the Orpen interests would boost the original admission charge to permit of the same net.

However, this is not the Orpen way of doing things. Admitting he did not like increased taxes but realizing the necessity levying them in this instance because of the relief situation, the "Grand Old Man of Canadian Racing" decided the track and not the public would suffer. The total admission fee, including the twenty-five cent tax, will stay at fifty cents, as at first planned, but half of each admission fee will go towards the Government's tax relief cost's, instead of the racing association.

Thus once again will racing help to lighten the taxpayers' burden in the Province of Ontario. Already millions have been contributed by the sport in the shape of amusement taxes and percentage of the wagering. With such a bright outlook for racing this year, the Government coffers are expected to benefit considerably.

DROWNS NIGHT FISHING.

MONTREAL, May 14 (C.P.) — Joseph Arthur Cayer, 57, was drowned early yesterday in the Mille Iles river near Ste. Rose, Que., when he and a friend, Fernand Letourneau, were laying a night fishing line and their canoe tipped. Letourneau reached shore safely.

GYPSY GIRL

THE STORY OF AN IMPASSIONED ROMANCE

McDONALD FEADER

Sullen days were lightened by companionship with Doug. Jim Dalstrom was taken off the job and Doug was given the position of "nurse maid" to the gypsy. Because he sensed the oneliness of the girl, he took her on long drives out into the country and let her lie upon the grass and feast her hungry eyes upon the trees. He got some horses on Long Island and together they rode over the countryside, and it was all Doug could do to keep up with her, for Consuelo was a wild one astride a horse.

Gay times they had and Doug did not care how much attention they attracted. She was not a "dirty gypsy" to him, but someone who was different, and he seemed to delight in showing her off. He took her to dinners and night clubs and theaters and, outside of keeping her from dancing or telling fortunes, let her flirt and have her fun and took her away when the fun threatened to become too boisterous.

There was no love between the two, but the growth of a fine companionship. Doug understood the gypsy girl to a greater degree than anyone else had, with the possible exception of the Dummy, but, unlike the Dummy, he was able to bring her out of her sullen moods and now, because she was so gay and happy with him, he had no conception of the vengeful hours she endured when alone. He thought he had made her forget the episode in the theater. The rehearsals in the mornings had gone smoothly — too smoothly if he had only known.

It was one of these mornings that Stewart Blackmire was presented to the gypsy and he saw to it that there were others around who could say if asked, "Why, Blackmire only met her on such and such a day!"

That night Doug brought her a fur coat of mink and fox as a gift from Stewart.

A puzzled frown crossed the girl's face.

"I do not understand this. Why does he send me such lovely things and yet not come near me? I am not good enough, eh?"

"Good enough for me, precious." She sighed.

"You are not my white friend who is a king of the theatrical world."

"Take your time, baby, and you'll get what you want."

She picked up the coat and did not answer him, but to herself she thought, you are right. I will get what I want in full measure or — I shall take it! She ran her fingers through the soft fur and skipped into the bedroom.

When she came out the coat was wrapped tightly about her slim body. There were high-heeled slippers on her feet and the sheerest of stockings on her legs. The mass of her hair was brushed back from her face and coiled at the nape of her neck and her lips were rouged.

"Hot mama!" Doug whistled through his teeth.

She paraded up and down the room and her walk on the high heels was graceful now.

"Golly, but you look slick. What magic is this, dear lady, that turns you from a gypsy into a New Yorker with allure in your eyes?"

"Oh, Dougalas, do you really think I look nice?" She was like an eager child. She curled up in the chair beside him. "Dougalas, my precious darling one," her voice was wheedling, "I am tired of just my things. Please will you take me and let me buy some pretty clothes like the New York gorgios wear? Then perhaps my white friend will come and see me and not leave me alone."

"When you look like that no man could resist you." He kissed her cheek playfully. "Well, kitten, I'll see what can be done."

"You are my darling one now for a certain. To-morrow we will go to the stores, eh? It is the night after next that I dance before New York. will you let me buy a dress—a night dress—to wear after the show?"

"Evening dress, darling, evening dress." Doug was immersed in thought. He jumped to his feet. "Baby, th eres a surprise for you after your opening night. Well, what say we work it double and surprise them?" He was pacing up and down thinking fast. "Yes, sir, baby, we'll pull a coop on them!"

Consuelo didn't understand the slang phrases, but she knew she'd get her wish.

The next day was a busy one. There was morning rehearsal in costume, not that the costume was much different than the clothes she wore all the time, but there was makeup. There was a makeup man who showed her how to do her face, but it was Douglas who convinced her that it was necessary to smear herself up with all of that "stuff."

The rehearsal went off without a hitch. But not yet had the girl danced half as well as she had that day beside the train.

Stewart shook his head after watching one of the rehearsals.

"Guess I was wrong," he remarked to Doug. "She's not such a knockout after all. We must have been affected with the heat that day we watched her. We'll give her two or three weeks and she'll be about washed up by that time. A shame, too, when she's had enough publicity to keep her a drawing card for months."

"A fat break you've given the kid," Doug returned. "She'd die of lonesomeness before you'd so much as say hello to her. What's the matter with you, Don Juan?"

"Oh, nothing. Louise is in a bad enough temper these days with the gypsy remaining in the show and getting so much publicity."

"Oh, so it's Louise, is it? Nurts, man, you can't kid me! You're ashamed to be seen with her. You like 'em all cut by the same pattern. You've got a funny complex—somebody else has to want something before you want it. Right, eh? Wait until this gypsy gets going and people start fighting over her and then you'll step in and with a swish of your rotten gold, slay them all and carry the pretty maiden off. A gypsy will be good enough for you then."

"Falling in love with her?"

"You bet I am!"

"Little boys with no money shouldn't burn their fingers!"

"You and your money! You're too conceited for any use. You graciously drop largess around in the form of checks and fur coats and expect the world to grovel at your feet for so doing. Nurts, man, nurts!" And Doug walked off and left him.

At the first moment they could get away Consuelo and Douglas left the theater. They made a pretense for eluding any of the staff and headed for Madame Yvonne's on Fifth avenue.

Madame Yvonne's prices were not the only thing that made her famous, for it was said that she could take a woman and make her into a sparkling dream of beauty; that the most dowdy debutante came from Madame's and immediately afterwards was offered marriage, and that when a chic person went to Madame's—well, words would fail to describe the result!

Madame greeted Douglas affectionately in voluble French and met the gypsy with unconcealed interest. She listened to Doug and before he had finished she was appraising the gypsy and mentally draping materials upon the slim form. When he had finished talking, she took Consuelo and they both disappeared into those mysterious labyrinths of a fashion establishment that a mere customer seldom enters.

Women Over Forty

Need have no fear

The much talked of change
Which occurs at about this time of life
Is too greatly emphasized as a danger period.
True there is for a time a strain on the nervous system.
There may be high nervous tension
And a disposition to be irritable and moody.
It is a time to avoid excesses
And too much excitement and over fatigue.
It is essential that the blood be kept rich
And the nervous system fully nourished.
For this reason Dr. Chase's Nerve Food
Is of almost priceless value at this time.
You need have no fear for the future,
For to the great majority of women
The later years are the happiest of their lives.
It is surprising the number of women
Who attribute the safe passing of this period
And the good health and happiness
Of succeeding years to the use of this nerve food.

CONSTIPATION STOPPED!

Woman Tells in Legal Statement How Fruit - a - tives Brought Quick Relief

Mrs. A. Delamarre, Montreal, was ill for a long time with constipation and stomach trouble. She tells how she regained good health, in an affidavit made before a lawyer to prove its truth. Mrs. Delamarre says,—"For a long time I suffered from constipation and stomach trouble. I read of Fruit-a-tives and started to use them. Almost immediately my constipation and stomach trouble ceased. Now I always feel in the best of health. Many of my friends, troubled as I once was, followed my advice and tried Fruit-a-tives. Now they all recommend them."

Science works with nature in an unique way to produce Fruit-a-tives. They are the discovery of a prominent Canadian physician, who combined extracts of apples, figs, prunes and oranges with certain herbs in such a way as to give unusual benefits. That is why Fruit-a-tives are really different. Why, for a quarter century they have brought lasting relief to thousands who suffered as Mrs. Delamarre once did. Why Fruit-a-tives is the largest selling remedy of its kind in Canada.

Copy of Mrs. Delamarre's complete legal statement will be sent on request. Write Fruitatives Limited, Ottawa, Canada.

PLAINVILLE PLAY WELL PRESENTED

Large Crowd Attends "The Road Back" Staged by the Young People's Society.

PLAINVILLE May 13 (Examiner Correspondence). — The Plainville Young People presented their three-act play, "The Road Back" in the church on Friday evening to a good-sized audience.

The action of the play took place in the living-room of the "Powler" home in Peterborough. Although the plot of the play was of rather a sad nature, the whole family, excepting the elder daughter, who maintained the home, going downhill. "Poor Sick" Ma kept the audience greatly amused with her "rheumatz," bad heart and weak ankles and her whining, shallow nature. The elder daughter, Jenny, was a quick, forceful girl, a distinct contrast to her parents. The younger daughter, Millie, was a loud, slangy girl who had decided opinions and considered herself quite a capable young woman. Each character handled his or her part very capably and their costumes were equally as good. Messrs. Mellon and Gerald Lander directed the play. The cast was as follows: "Ma" Fowler," Ada Lander; "Pa" Fowler, Allen Dines; Jenny Fowler, Beulah Brisbin; Minnie Fowler, Floris Buttars; George Fowler (son and scapegrace), Harold Hargreaves; Mrs. Blunders (gossipy neighbor), Muree Cole; Arthur McLeod (friend of Jenny), Malcolm Buttar; Blake Chester (in love with Milly), Ralph Benson; Mr. Harrison (Jenny's employer), Glen Cole; Ben Fowler (Pa's brother from Alberta), Clayton Buttars; Mrs. Chester (Blake's mother), Mildred Dines.

Mr. Douglas filled in between acts playing a guitar and singing cowboys' songs. His numbers were greatly enjoyed and brought much applause.

THE STARS SAY . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

FOR WEDNESDAY, MAY 15

THE PLANETARY configurations dominating the affairs of this day may be read as rather neutral in influence. While there is sign of delay, trivial setbacks and impediments, there also is promise of the intervention of those in places of power and prestige on meritorious propositions. These good offices may be most successfully enlisted by methods of tact, diplomacy or by silent agreements.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may find it a year in which much depends on individual initiative, determination and tact in swerving affairs from difficult and thwarting situations. Secret pacts and agreements, especially with those in place and power, may be counted on to put over ambitious projects.

A child born on this day may be industrious and fairly ambitious but prone to attain its purposes by subtle and clever means rather than direct action.

MARMORA.

Miss Dorothy Merritt of Oshawa is spending a few days with Mrs. J. Dale.

Mrs. Barney Derry of Westboro is visiting Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Derry, owing to the death of Mr. T. H. Derry.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Young and Miss Mary Jones of Peterborough visited Mr. and Mrs. James Jones over the week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Derry and family of Madoc visited the former's parents, Mr and Mrs. W. H. Derry, on Sunday.

Mrs. Hugh Jones is confined to her home through illness.

Mr. John Reid is undergoing medical treatment in Toronto.

4,000 ON LISTS OF CIVIC YOUTH JOBLESS GROUP

Prospects For Jobs in City Very Slim Says John De Gruchy.

NOTED BOYS' LEADER.

TORONTO, May 14.—Farm work is the only hope for most of the 4,000 jobless Toronto boys who have registered with the Civic Youth Unemployment Committee, according to the chairman of that body, John DeGruchy, well-known leader in boys' work.

Concentrate on Farms

Speaking to a subcommittee which met in the City Hall yesterday, Mr. DeGruchy advised the members to concentrate on farm jobs as prospects for the lads.

"The prospect of placing boys in the city is slim," said Mr. DeGruchy. "We must pay particular attention to placing the boys on farms. If we are to do this we must secure assistance from the Government. We can insist on fair wages being paid by the farmers. The university will soon be releasing a large number in search of work. This will be a handicap to the boys who have been unemployed for months."

J. G. Clark, secretary of the committee in charge of registration, suggested that parents keep their children at school until jobs could be found for them; that a farm training course be established because farmers objected to employing inexperienced boys; that feature writers be engaged to depict the problem of youth, and finally that employers be urged to employ boys, particularly where trades could be learned, even though wages were small, provided the wages did not interfere with apprentice rates and create lower living conditions and unemployment.

Long Hours Alleged

A proposal from P. M. Kirsner, C.C.F. delegate, that the committee establish a Vigilance Committee for the purpose of scrutinising wages paid by employers and conditions of employment, was frowned on by the committee, Mr. Clark stating that it might be detrimental to the work undertaken. Kirsner alleged there were employers working their labor sixteen hours a day and cited chain stores.

"I doubt if there are a dozen employers in the city who have the opportunity to work their employees sixteen hours a day," said Mr. DeGruchy. "Why, many employers have their staffs on half and three-quarter time. Those who can give their employees a full-time job considered themselves fortunate."

H. C. Hudson of the Provincial Labor Department, stated he knew of no violation of the Minimum Wage Laws, and what often might seem to be a violation did not develop as such when the act was studied by officials.

Home and School Association News

CENTRAL SCHOOL.

The regular monthly meeting of Central Home and School Association was held last evening in the kindergarten room of the school. Mrs. C. H. McWilliams, president, presided over a good attendance for the short business session which preceded the social entertainment which followed.

The financial report as given by Mrs. J. Smith was very encouraging. In the absence of the regular secretary, the minutes were read by Mrs. W. Flannery. Convenors of the various committees gave short accounts.

Mrs. N. Stanger was appointed convenor for the Home and School Review from Central School.

Mrs. McWilliams, who represented Central as delegate at the recent convention in Toronto, brought a clear and concise report of the meeting at which she was present. All present enjoyed the reading of this report, which was so splendidly composed that one had no trouble in imagining being present at the real meeting. Mrs. McWilliams was shown much appreciation by the hearty and enthusiastic handclap of all present.

The attendance picture again went to Mr. Munro's room.

A social entertainment of games and music organized by Mrs. J. Kingsbury, convenor of recreation, followed the business. Mrs. R. Bugg, in her inimitable manner, presided at the piano for the community singing.

J. C. McClenaghan of the Y.M.C.A. directed the games, which caused great merriment among the members. Everyone present had a happy and enjoyable evening.

The meeting ended with a service of refreshments, prepared and served by Mrs. Delahaye and the refreshment committee.

SOCIAL GATHERING ST. PAUL'S CHURCH

Golden Jubilee of Present Building is Celebrated by Congregation.

The celebration of the Golden Jubilee of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, with special services on Sunday, was brought to a successful conclusion last night with a largely-attended social gathering. The fifty years of worship in the church and staunch support given by many of those early pioneers who have now passed on to higher service, was given suitable reference by Rev. Dr. A. T. Barr, as chairman, following the opening devotions.

In the auditorium a program of music and lantern slides was provided, the initial pictures being two short humorous comedies for the younger members of the audience. Miss Jessie Pattison sang two numbers, "Morning" and "Just a-Wearyin' for You," with fine effect. Robert Burns' "The Cottar's Saturday Night" was depicted on the screen to the accompanying reading of Miss Margaret Wyllie. An instrumental quartette — David Wilson, (cornet), William Moorehead (first violin), Noel Barr (second violin), and Ferguson Barr ('cello), with Martin B. Chenhall, A.R.C.O., at the organ—gave a spirited renderings of "The Lost Chord" and "The Hungarian Dance," to merit hearty applause.

The birthday cake was illuminated at the touch of Miss Lena Eakins, fifty candles giving the age of the church building; and Miss Lillian Hall graciously cut the cake, which later was served to the audience. Both ladies received mementoes of the occasion from the hands of two C.G.I.T. girls; the congregation meantime singing "Blest be the tie."

Dr. Barr, with the aid of many beautiful views of the Isle of Man, conducted a travelogue over this enchanting isle in the Irish Sea. The "Scenes in the Isle of Man" were greatly enjoyed, along with the vivid description of the many places of historic interest.

Votes of thanks to the assisting artists, Mr. Chenhall, Hurrell Dodds at the lantern, and Dr. Barr, were accorded on the motion of Mr. James Dutton, the entertainment concluding with the National Anthem.

The Sunday School Hall was arranged by the Ladies' Aid Society, so that refreshments and a social hour was greatly enjoyed by the large number of members and friends.

SCHOOL BOARD OF LAKEFIELD HEARS REPORT

W.M.S. of United Church Holds a Most Successful Meeting.

REEVE IS BEREAVED

Miss Lillian Esplen to Give Her Address in United Church.

LAKEFIELD, May 14 (Examiner Correspondence). — The Public Schoo Board met on Friday evening in the Council Chamber, with Trustee H. R. Wagar in the chair and present: Trustees F. L. Erskine, Miss B. Graham and C. J. Lake.

The property committee reported the removal of the small toboggan slide and the building of a bicycle rack, the whitewashing of the basement and the widening of the blackboard ledge in Mr. Chaplin's room. These are improvements discussed at the last meeting and arrangements made to have the work done early.

As soon as the grounds are in proper condition they will be rolled.

To Give Address.

Miss Lillian Esplen of the public school teaching staff of Peterborough will give a talk on the Passion Play at Oberammergau in the schoolroom of the Lakefield United Church, Lakefield, on Thursday evening, May 16th, at 8 o'clock. Miss Esplen witnessed this famous spectacle last summer during a visit to Germany, and has delighted her audiences in Peterborough with her description of this world's oldest and most renowned play. The public are cordially invited. A silver collection will be taken.

W.M.S. Meeting.

The regular meeting of the W.M.S. of the United Church was held on Tuesday afternoon in the schoolroom of the church, with the president, Mrs. W. W. Leonard, in charge.

Mrs. W. J. Charlton conducted the devotional exercises, using the Kingdom of God movement study book, in a manner helpful to all present.

The treasurer's report was very encouraging, showing that the Easter thankoffering reached the high mark of $36. Mrs. John A. Murphy gave a very inspiring reading, "Our Stewardship of Personality," which was most arresting in thought; we are so apt to think of stewardship as referring to temporal belongings such as stocks, bonds and money, while the personal application is forgotten or ignored, but in the mind of God, man is infinitely more valuable than his money and personality eternally greater than possessions. We are responsible for, and must account for every power, every talent and attain merit with which we are entrusted.

Mrs. Burrows gave a beautiful message in song, "He Lifted me."

A chapter of the Alexander Duff study book on India was ably taken by Mrs. Stanley Richardson.

The meeting closed with singing "Home Sweet Home" and the benediction.

Reeve's Uncle Passes.

Reeve A. B. Burrows received the news this week of the death of his uncle, W. H. Burrows, in Poulton, West Lancaster, England, in his sixty-first year.

The late Mr. Burrows was for years a member of the municipal council of Poulton, and was a public spirited and energetic citizen. He was a keen archaeologist, an ardent cyclist and a member of the Royal Automobile Association.

FASCISTS ARE WAGING STRUGGLE FOR CONTROL OF THE HOLY LAND

Palestine Brownshirts Counter Ruling Socialist Policy With Rabid Nationalism.

WANT JEWISH STATE

By PIERRE VAN PAASSEN
Central Press Canadian Writer

TEL AVIV, May 14.—Bitterly antagnostic Jewish forces are disputing each other the direction of the upbuilding of a Jewish commonwealth in Palestine. For the time being the direction of things, in so far as the Jews are concerned, is in the hands of the Histadruth, the Palestine Socialist-Labor party, which is waging a determined fight against speculation in land and real estate, an evil which has reached staggering proportions. On the other hand the Histadruth seeks to give the phenomenal development in the new-born Holy Land a distinctly socialistic cachet.

The opposition to this tendency comes in the first place from the wealthier Jews who are not so much concerned with the idealistic aspects of the national regeneration of Israel, of which Palestine is the basis, but who look for direct and immediate personal profits. The militant opposition to the socialistic program of the Histadruth is led by an organization known as Birth Trumpeldor, which is a semi-Fascist society, chiefly composed of young men and women.

Would Oust Arabs

It was a most painful experience to me personally to encounter on the streets of the cities in the Land of Israel, member of this Trumpeldor society dressed in brown shirts, Sam Brown belts, Nazi-like jackboots and giving each other the Roman salute in the most approved "Heil Hitler" style. The swaggering he-man Jew, with a nationalist-chauvinist ideology and militaristic behavior is a phenomenon so utterly at variance with Hebraic traditions that he filled me with consternation.

The fascistic Jew, however, is somebody to be reckoned with in the New Palestine. He, as much as the socialist Jews, is a product of historical circumstances. He embodies the reaction in the modern Jewish youth to centuries of oppression and discrimination. The ways of the fathers, in resisting oppression, having proved ineffectual, the young nationalists have now adopted the mode of thought and the tactics of the barbarians. Humility and submission to a dolorous fate having brought no alleviation, the Jewish Fascists are having recourse to another method.

They talk of a Jewish military force, of a Jewish state, and their leader, the brilliant Vladimir Jabotinsky, even goes so far as to speak of a Jewish imperium on the shores of the Mediterranean. They want a clear definition from Great Britain as to the shape and composition of the future political structure of the Holy Land. The term "Jewish national home in Palestine" is too vague for them. They want Palestine turned into a modern, nationalist Jewish state and are willing to sacrifice their lives to this end. Their attitude toward the Arabic population of Palestine differs also strangely from that of other Jewish parties. The Trupeidor men would not hesitate, they aver, to impose a form of domination over the Arabs, by force if necessary and eventually push the Arab out of Palestine.

Seek Labor Union

The socialists of the Histadruth, on the other hand, seek a reconciliation and a harmonious collaboration with the Arab masses on the basis of the class-struggle. That is to say the socialists, who, it should be said at once, have far more influence, the dominant influence in fact, try to convince the destitute and miserable Arabic peasants, who are but little above the rank of chattel-slaves in the hands of the wealthy Arabic effendis (possessors of large landed estates), the socialists, I say, seek to build up a united labor-front of Jewish and Arabic workers against exploitation, whether Jewish or Arabic or both.

It must be clear at once that the attitude of the fascistic Jews of the Trumpeldor organisaion vis a vis of the Arabs is a highly dangerous one to the peace of Palestine, being detrimental to Judeo-Arabic relations, because it looks upon the Arab not as a co-equal in rights and duties, but as an inferior being, who must eventually accept Jewish overlordship. That attitude strengthens the opposition of the Arabic effendis to Jewish colonisation in the country by furnishing them with the weapon of an avowed Jewish hostility to Arabic rights in Palestine.

For years also there has been a determined and powerful opposition among the permanent officials of the British colonial office to the whole scheme of building a Jewish national home in Palestine. These men, whose opposition rests upon the conviction that the Balfour Declaration (a foreign office document) was a mistake and that Palestine should have been included in a federation of Arabic states under the aegis of Great Britain, have pushed through measures from time to time, such as restriction of Jewish immigration, which have greatly retarded the tempo of Palestine's reconstruction.

Might Cause Upheaval

When a small but vociferous party in Jewish life, such as the fascistic Brith Trumpeldor organisation, comes out with an openly hostile policy to the Arabs, it is naturally grist in the mill of the oppositionists to a Jewish Palestine in the British colonial service. So that it may be said, paradoxical though this may sound, that Mr. Vladimir Jabotinsky, the leader of the Jewish fascist elements, who has the reputation of being a fierce foe of Britain and a great twister of the lion's tail, is in reality playing into the hands of the exponents of that school of British imperialism which is opposed to building a Jewish national home in Palestine.

Peaceful and friendly relations between Jews and Arabs in Palestine such as are now visibly coming about under the beneficient direction of the Palestinian Socialist-Labor party, must eventually refute the theories of the elements in the British colonial bureaucracy who are hostile to the Jewish national experiment in the country. Enmity, riots, massacres and upheavals, such as have occurred in the country on two occasions since Great Britain received the mandate over Palestine from the League of Nations, would only substantiate the theories of the British opposition.

That is why the efforts of the Jewish socialists to establish a permanent basis of peace between Jews and Arabs are looked upon with much disfavor in those particular milieus in the colonial service who are a priori against a Jewish Palestine.

Have Wide Sympathy

The Jewish fascists who have not contributed anything of creative value toward the upbuilding of a Jewish national home in Palestine, are therefore defeating their own ends with their clamor against Britain and the Arabs. As a matter of fact they play into the hands of the opponents of the Jewish national enterprise both among the Arabic landlords and the British colonial service.

For an understanding of the mighty gestative process now going on in the Holy Land, in which not only every Jew in the world is vitally interested, but which lies close to the heart of millions of liberal non-Jews, the above short explanation of the conflict in Palestinian Jewish life, seemed necessary. An objective reporter cannot consider his task fulfilled when he merely deals with the "nice" aspects of a given subject. So much saccharine sweetness and sentimentality is being said and written about Palestine these days that it threatens to obscure the taking which cannot succeed without reality of a very worth-while underdog struggle and suffering and even without tears at times.

Nice Enemies

LONDON, Eng., May 13. (CP) Sir Alfred Pickford, deputy chief of England's Boy Scouts, tells this one:

"During the war with the Maoris, Australian aborigines, the Maori chief noticed that the fire of the English troops was slackening.

"He sent out a flag of truce and asked why. He was told that the British ammunition was running short.

"The Maoris promptly offered to supply the British with more ammunition, so that they could fight on level terms."

NAVIGATOR HERO OF TRIP.

Fixes Balky Second Motor From Wing of Ship Over Stormy Tasman Wastes.

SYDNEY, Australia, May 15.—(C.P. Cable via Reuters)—Air Commodore Sir Charles Kingsford-Smith won a thrilling duel with death today in his airplane, the Southern Cross, over the stormy Tasman Sea.

The dauntless 38-year-old Australian aviator, who has flown the Atlantic and the Pacific Oceans, and twice held the record for the England-Australia flight, faced disaster on the comparatively short 1,300 mile hop from Sydney to Wellington, N.Z.

A series of terse wireless messages sputtering out of the air, told how he struggled to safety with his crippled plane after losing the starboard propeller. Capt. P. C. Taylor, navigator aboard the Southern Cross, played a hero's role in the thrilling air duel.

As the Southern Cross limped back towards Sydney with only two of her three motors functioning, the port motor began to falter. Taylor crept out along the wing and made emergency adjustments.

JAIL POPULATION LOWEST DURING LAST 8 YEARS

Number Sentenced in 1934 Totals 13,500—Only 11,371 in 1926.

PRESENT LIST DOWN.

Deputy Secretary States Depression Taught People More Serious Thinking.

TORONTO, May 15. — (CP) — Number of persons sentenced in the tario jails and reformatories in the year ending Oct. 31, 1934, was the lowest since 1926, it was learned today at the office of C. F. Neelands, deputy provincial secretary. The total in 1934 was 13,500 compared with 11,371 in 1925.

This Year Still Lower

Even if the number of inmates recently released through the jubilee amnesty is taken into account, present population of the province's reformatories and industrial farms is below last year, said Mr. Neelands. Latest reports showed the Ontario Reformatory at Guelph has a population of 553 compared with 621 last year, Burwash, 363 compared with 501 last year, Mimico, 124 as against 163 in 1934, Toronto jail farm 114 in 1935 and 186 last year, Mercer Reformatory 109 at present and 142 last year and Fort William Industrial Farm 34 at present and 81 last year.

Jump In Prosperity Years

While number of persons sentenced jumped sharply in the prosperity years between 1924 and 1930 there has been a steady decrease since then. During boom years, Mr. Neelands said young people had too much money and less home train-

ANGLICAN SYNOD AGAINST CHANGE IN SCHOOL TAXES

Sees Imminent Danger of Creation of Bitter and Sectarian Feelings.

TORONTO SESSION.

Committee Takes Stand R. C. Privileges Ought Not be Increased.

TORONTO, May 15 (C.P.) — Granting requests of Catholic taxpayers that a share of corporation school taxes be devoted to the support of Separate Schools will bring "imminent danger of the creation of bitter and sectarian feelings," Toronto Synod of the Anglican Church was told to-day by the subcommittee of the executive appointed to consider the question. The report says: "The institution of Public Schools was accompanied with very great difficulties. Finally the different religious communions came generally to the support of the Public School system which does not provide specific religious education.

"The Roman Catholic ecclesiastical authorities continued to insist upon having Separate Schools supported by the school rates of those members of the Roman Catholic faith that desire to support Separate Schools, under their control and management in the education of the Roman Catholic children. . . .

"As a result to-day our Roman Catholic citizens have the right to direct that the school taxes they pay shall go to the support of Separate Schools and these schools also obtain their share of pecuniary support from the revenues of the province.

Further Privilege

In addition to this, incorporated companies have the right to direct that school taxes paid by such companies shall be paid to Separate Schools in the proportion that the amount of shares held by Roman Catholics bears to the amount of stock issued.

ONTARIO LIKELY DEVELOP LIGNITE

Hepburn Hints Province May Handle Beds in Preference to Private Interests.

BEFORE CABINET TO-DAY.

TORONTO, May 15.—(CP)—Possibility the Ontario government would develop the province's lignite beds in the north rather than allow the work to be done by private interests was hinted today by Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn.

The premier said the cabinet at its meeting today would deal with the problem and Col. Malcolm Lang, chairman of the Temiskaming and Northern Railway Commission, would join the ministers in the discussion.

Before the last session of the legislature prorogued, Mr. Hepburn said the government had before it proposals from a private concern for development of the lignite deposits but no concession would be given any private concern without the matter being submitted to the legislature.

Mr. Hepburn said today the cabinet wished to investigate all possible angles of the situation.

"Is there a possibility it will be handled by the government?" he was asked.

"There is, yes," he replied.

WOMAN'S MIND MUCH IMPROVED BY REMOVAL OF THINKING PORTION

Now Able to Work With Less Fatigue, Concentration Improves, Memory Remarkable.

TUMOR FORCES OPERATION.

By HOWARD W. BAKESLEE
(Associated Press Science Editor)

WASHINGTON, May 15. (AP).—A woman whose mind was improved by an operation that removed nearly the entire "thinking" portion of her brain was described to the American Psychiatric Association today.

The report reads like a fairy tale of medicine—for her personality changed—was lifted to better levels.

The operation removed the entire right prefrontal lobe and most of the left lobe. These lobes are the grey matter credited with being the seat of reason, logic and, intelligence.

That they also strongly affect personality was not so widely believed.

Operation 2 Years Ago

The report was made by Spafford Ackerly, M.D., associate professor of psychiatry of the University of Louisville School of Medicine. The operation was done two years ago, he said, by Glen Spurling, professor of neuro-surgery at the same school.

The woman is an Austro-Hungarian is married, and was 35 when a tumor necessitated the removal of so much of her brain.

For the first year afterward she was extraordinarily gay and happy, almost childishly so. With the second year came the mature changes now reported. Intelligence tests rate her as well as the average adult.

But her power of concentration

COL. LAWRENCE HANGS BETWEEN LIFE AND DEATH

Desert Hero's Condition Too Critical to Permit Operation on Skull.

STRENGTH IS MAINTAINED.

WOOL, Dorsetshire, May 15 (C.P.)—Col. T. E. Lawrence was still unconscious at 6 p.m., 54 hours after he crashed his motorcycle at high speed near here Monday in an effort to avoid hitting a cyclist, but attendants said hopes for his recovery were slightly improved.

Surgeons at the Military Hospital said early the famous desert warrior had "a fighting chance" for recovery.

WOOL, Dorsetshire, Eng., May 15.—(AP)—Col. T. E. Lawrence's condition was reported at the Camp Bovington Military hospital to be still extremely critical today although his strength was being maintained.

A bulletin issued at 8 a.m., 44 hours after the cycle accident in which he received a fractured skull, said his condition was "about the same."

This information was given out soon after an examination lasting more than one half hour was made by Dr. H. W. B. Cairns, London Hospital brain specialist.

The patient was said to be taking a small quantity of nourishment.

Physicians said Lawrence's condition was still too critical to permit an operation.

Major General J. W. West, honorary surgeon to the King, came here from Bournemouth to aid in caring for the injured man who crashed when he swerved his motorcycle to avoid colliding with a bicycle ridden by a boy.

The boy cyclist, William Hargreaves, 15, also was being treated for concussion and shock. His condition was not regarded as serious.

WINSTON BUYS LARGE DIAMOND

Paid More Than $700,000 For Largest Uncut Diamond in World.

DISCOVERED IN 1934.

NEW YORK, May 15. (AP).—Harry Winston, New York diamond merchant, to-day announced his purchase in London of the Jonkers diamond, largest uncut diamond in the world, for a sum "in excess of $700,000."

The stone weighs 726 carats and is approximately the size of a hen's egg.

If a buyer cannot be found for it, the diamond will be cut into several smaller stones, according to Winston.

The Jonkers was unearthed in the South African field Jan. 16, 1934, by a native digger for Jacobus Jonkers, 62-year-old poverty striken Boer prospector who had worked the field for 18 years.

Jonkers, according to Winston, sold his discovery to the Diamond Corporation at a reported price of £75,000.

The St. Paul Fire and Marine Insurance Co., of St. Paul, Minn., has insured the stone for $1,000,000 according to Mr. Winston.

Be Over in Six Weeks if Two Reached Stabilization Agreement.

SAYS NOTED BANKER.

BASLE, Switzerland, May 15 (AP)—Leon Fraser, retiring president of the Bank for International Settlements, to-day said most of the world's currency chaos would be over "in six weeks" if Great Britain and the United States reached an agreement for currency stabilization.

The United States banker, who pleaded for stabilization in his final annual report Monday, claimed that United States Treasury Secretary Morgenthau's speech in Washington this week placed the responsibility for further delay in stabilization on Britain. That is where "it properly belongs," Fraser said.

BRITAIN'S MOVE FOR 1,000 SHIPS SAID CHILDISH

Lord Rothermere Paints German Force Superior—Full of Aggression.

LONG RANGE, HIGH SPEED.

Britain to Continue Peace Efforts in Ethiopian Case Despite Duce's Warning.

LONDON, May 15 (A.P.).—Lord Rothermere, branding the Government's plan to expand the Royal Air Force by 1,000 planes as "childish and useless for defence," told the House of Lords to-day, "I say with full responsibility that Germany at the present moment has 10,000 bombing planes."

The Reich's bombers, the newspaper publisher said, are "of long range and high speed, capable of carrying a ton of high explosives."

Lord Rothermere described Germany as "a growing military power, far superior in strength, far superior for offensive purposes, and full of aggression which may take at any time a hostile attitude in regard to this country."

IGNORING ROME'S WARNING.

LONDON, May 15 (A.P.).— Great Britain will continue her efforts to keep Italy and Ethiopia from drifting toward war despite Premier Benito Mussolini's "hands off" dictum yesterday, well informed quarters said to-day.

It was understood Sir Eric Drummond, the British Ambassador to Rome, was seeking further consultation with Italian authorities although his efforts thus far had not met with success.

The British were apparently confident that the League of Nations Council could be persuaded merely to take note of the situation, deferring any action as long as there was still some chance for initiation of conciliation procedure under the Italo-Ethiopian Treaty.

ITALY WANTS NO INTERFERENCE IN ETHIOPIA

KEEP CLEAR OF ETHIOPIAN CASE POWERS WARNED

Rome Alone Judge of Her Precautionary Measures States Mussolini.

READY FOR ANYTHING.

No Definite Step Taken By European Nations on Situation.

BY STEWART FRENCH

ROME, May 15.—(AP)—Italy faced with confidence today a world which weighed Premier Mussolini's declaration he would brook no interference in the Ethiopian situation.

The 900,000 modernly equipped men he has called to arms can assure Italy's security not only in the colonies but in Europe as well, Il Duce announced in a surprise speech before the senate yesterday.

Every war industry in Italy, he said, has been working full time for months. There has been "a gathering of forces on land and sea and in the sky," he informed the enthusiastically applauding senators.

Mussolini's address, always vigorous and at times ironic, was both a warning against interference in Italy's program in East Africa and a defiance of implied criticism of his policy.

Name Her Own Judge

"Let no one take upon himself the intolerable judgeship of cross-examining us as to the character and volume of our precautionary measures," he said. "No one except Italy can be the judge in such a most delicate matter."

Mussolini indicated leading foreign powers had taken no definite step in connection with the East African situation but it was understood British officials here and in London have carried on informal conversation with Italian representatives.

LAMSON JURY IS DISMISSED

California Debates on Third Trial After Jurors Deadlock 9-3 For Conviction.

WIFE MURDER.

SAN JOSE, Calif., May 15 (A.P.).—The State debated to-day whether to try David A. Lamson, former resident of Red Deer, Alta., for wife murder.

His protracted second trial ended late yesterday when the jury, deadlocked nine to three for conviction, finally was dismissed by Superior Judge Robert R. Syer. Three times previous the seven men and five women had sought to be released from trying to decide whether Lamson beat Allene Thorpe Lamson to death in the bathroom of the campus home May 30, 1933.

Chief Deputy District Attorney John P. Fitzgerald hinted a third trial was likely when he said a majority vote for conviction "would be a strong factor in our determining whether to try Lamson again." But he indicated a definite decision on a new trial or dismissal of the charge would not be made until Friday.

The 32-year-old defendant, who was once sentenced to be hanged but won a new trial on an appeal to the State Supreme Court, expressed bitter regret at the failure of the jurors to acquit him.

CANDIDATES GRATEFUL.

Yes, it was a deluge, literally a flood of vote coupons. Dozens of supporters were kept waiting to take their turn at depositing votes for their favorites at the ballot box. There is no doubt left in the minds of the Travel Club staff that the citizens of the Peterborough district have wholeheartedly entered into the spirit of the Travel Club campaign and are behind their candidates and are determined to see that they ar winners in the final analysis of votes.

Such support, as was evidenced on Saturday, and, in fact through the entire first period, emphatically substantiates this statement. Candidates are grateful for that support and will no doubt tell you, as they find time to voice their thankfulness to their staunch supporters and we prophecy that they will discreetly whisper that "the contest is not over, your support is still needed." PRIMATE URGES SETTLEMENT OF CHURCH ISSUE

Anglican Synod of Diocese of Toronto Opens in St. James' Church.

COMMITTEE REPORTS.

TORONTO, May 15. — Immediate settlement of the Cathedral question was requested by Archbishop Owen, Primate of All Canada, in his charge at the opening session of the Toronto Anglican Synod yesterday afternoon in St. James' Parish Hall.

The report will be presented early on Thursday morning.

Committee's Report.

The report will be presented early on Thursday morning, and if it is adopted by the Synod, St. James' Cathedral will become the pro-Cathedral of the Diocese of Toronto. Synod meeting in 1934 named a committee to confer with the authorities of St. James' Cathedral to arrive at some basis of agreement. It was generally understood at that time that St. James' Cathedral would be established as a procathedral and St. Albans Cathedral be made a parish church.

The result of this agreement, which provides for carrying out the recommendations, is to be submitted to the Synod. It is understood that a resolution has been drafted for application to the Legislature for an Act terminating the present status of the Cathesral of St. Alban the Martyr, and making provision for use of the cathedral building as a parish church, and for such legislation as may be deemed necessary to enable the use of St. James' Cathedral as a procathedral.

Definite Decision Needed.

"It is important for the welfare of the Diocese that this subject should be taken out of the arena of discussion, and that action be taken," said Archbishop Owen. "I say for the sake of the Diocese, because for many years it has been a subject of uncertainty and discussion."

"Also for the sake of St. Alban's Cathedral this subject should be settled now. As I said in my first charge to the Synod two years ago, I am anxious to get the support of the whole diocese behind the Cathedral policy. I do not mean by

Post Girl Police To Catch Speeder

LONDON, May 15 (CP)—Following the employment of "Q" cars by the London traffic police—old cars with an "L" plate denoting "learner" driver—almost the entire corps of policewomen at Scotland Yard have been assigned to them to catch evaders of the speed law.

These false "L" cars are also furnished with a gong which is sounded when the delinquent automobile passes a uniformed policeman, who is ready to offer a summons. The Morning Posts asked how these detective women were to be designated, and answers began to flow in, some of which were Mobile Marys, Watchful Winnies, Trenchard's Trappers, Gangster Gerties, Ding-Dong Belles, Auto Annabellas, Patrolling Patricias and the Gong Girls.

ranging downwards to $3. Sheep sold steadily at from $1 to $3 cwt.

Small job lots were 24c for A-large, 23c for A-medium, 22c for B, and 20c for C in cartons, and 1c less in bulk. There are in sufficient A-1 eggs to form a market.

Cheese brought 10c for No. 1 Ontario current arrivals, with 50 boxes received.

Number 2 grade Florida potatoes dropped 50c at $3 per 100-lb. bag. Number 1 South Carolina new stock is $6 to $6.25 a barrel. New Bermudas as $3.15 to $3.25 for No. 1 and $1.90 to $2 for No. 2.

CHICAGO GRAIN

Bearish market factors finally prevailed in the grain pits yesterday after a struggle at the opening. Corn reacted half a cent from an early advance of about a cent, and wheat, after rising with corn, weakened and closed lower.

Wheat closed slow, ¼-⅝ under Monday's finish, July 91⅛ to 92 cents, and corn was ⅛ to ¾ higher: July, 80⅝ to 80⅞ cents. Oats were ¼ lower to ⅛ higher, July, 36⅜ to 36½ cents. Provisions were 3 cents lower to 5 cents higher.

The main factor in the corn market was word of the heavy rainfall and cold weather, which were reported to have delayed planting operations. The forecast was for continuation of cool weather, with frost in some parts. Local shorts, covering after the recent declines, also helped raise prices.

The advance in wheat prices at the opening was based mainly on corn strength, helped by the rise in silver prices and in wheat at Minneapolis. However, the rush to buy soon was satisfied and prices began to sag. The rainfall regarded as bullish in corn was considered bearish in wheat, which is already in the ground, and at the stage where it needs moisture. A reaction then set in, which uncovered stop-loss orders, giving it further impetus, and corn values were also carried down.

Rye was off ¼ to ½ following Monday's severe declines, again establishing new season lows.

Provisions were dull, but strength in hogs and corn offset the lacking of purchasing power, and they averaged slightly higher.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, May 15. — Rains which relieved the drought in the United States South-west led to lower prices on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange yesterday. Wheat futures closed ⅞c to ⅝c lower, May at 86¼c and July 87⅝c.

The rains led to sharp setbacks at Chicago on Monday, when the local market was closed, and to a ⅝c loss yesterday. This, coupled with net losses of ¼d to ¼d at Liverpool, brought out moderate selling here in a pit bereft of support.

Poor foreign demand for Canada's wheat over the extended week-end was another source of bearishness. Only an estimated 360,000 bushels were sold for export, most of which was destined for shipment from Vancouver. Trading was quiet on the decline.

The official report on French crops, dated May 1, showed the condition of wheat at 72 per cent., compared to 67 per cent. at the same time last year. Eighty per cent. is considered good in France and 60 per cent. fairly good.

Cash and coarse grains were quiet enlivened only by sharp price-breaks in rye in response to a 3c setback in that commodity at Chicago on Monday.

SIXTY ONTARIO HIGHWAY CAMPS CLOSING TO-DAY

Failure of Federal Gov't to State Policy on Portion of Cost Blamed.

15,000 MEN AFFECTED.

TORONTO, May 15.—Sixty road-work camps throughout Ontario, employing in the neighborhood of 15,000 men, will close down to-day, following an order issued yesterday by the Hon. Peter Heenan, Minister of Lands and Forests.

Ottawa Blamed

In making the announcement, the Minister declared that the main reason for his action was the failure of Federal authorities to declare their policy in regard to bearing a portion of the cost of trans-Canada highway construction.

Approximately twenty camps will remain open, these being in connection with trans-Canada highway work, and also several camps on roadways nearing completion. While the Minister withheld details as to the location of camps closing today, it is understood that they are located mainly in Northern and Northeastern Ontario.

The action was taken Mr. Heenan said ,only after careful consideration, and only after the department had waited for a considerable time for a declaration of policy from Ottawa.

"There is a limit to the ability of Ontario to finance such projects," the Minister declared. "Prior to June 19 last the Federal Government was contributing on a 50-50 basis in respect to trans-Canada highway work and on a 40-60 basis in connection with arterial roads. This 40 per cent. contribution was cut off entirely, and we have been

BOY BELIEVED DEAD REVIVED

Thirty Drops of Adrenalin Into Heart Saves 4 Year Old Mitchell Lad.

RUN OVER BY WAGON.

STRATFORD, Ont., May 15.—(CP)—The second Ontario child within eight days to be revived from death by an injection of adrenalin into the heart, Bruce Chessell, four years old, of Mitchell, clung precariously to life today.

The child's heart apparently stopped beating as he was being operated upon at the general hospital last night. A doctor injected 30 drops of adrenalin into his heart. Two minutes later a reaction was observed. Bruce's heart began beating faintly.

The boy, who had been brought to the hospital unconscious and with an internal hemorrhage after having been run over by his father's coal wagon, regained consciousness a short while after the injection of adrenaline and spoke to his mother. His condition today was still serious.

On May 7, Audrey Brown, a five-year-old girl undergoing an operation for a double mastoid at Owen Sound General and Marine Hospital seemed to stop breathing. Heart action suspended. The child apparently was dead five minutes when her physician injected nine drops of adrenalin into her heart as a last resort. She revived and is convalescing at the hospital.

UNITED CHURCH PLANS $25,000 DRIVE FOR FUNDS

Special Thankoffering Needed to Meet Critical Financial Conditions.

$160,000 DEFICIT 1934.

Salaries Totalling $15,000 Withheld From Mission Fields to be Released.

OTTAWA, May 15 (C.P.).—As a tangible expression of gratitude for benefits derived from Church Union and progress made in the past decade, the United Church of Canada will ask its people to contribute to a special thankoffering of $250,000 to help the Church out of its present critical financial condition, it was announced at the meeting of the Ottawa Presbytery.

If the $250,000 was realized, $160,000 of it would go towards the 1934 deficit in the Church's budget; $15,000 would be earmarked to release the amounts that are being withheld from salaries of ministers in mission fields; and the remainder would go towards fortifying the Church's finances against the deficit of the current year.

It Wasn't Burlesque Enough

Before a stern audience of humane commission attaches and city and county officials, a "preview" of a burlesque bull fight took place at a stockyards in Los Angeles. The purpose of the "dress rehearsal" was to convince officials that a program scheduled for a local stadium should be allowed—but they decided against bullfights—burlesque or otherwise. Photo shows Carlos Suarez in a situation, burlesque or otherwise, that doesn't seem so funny.

BANK OVERDRAFT FACES SOCIETY

Children's Aid Society Asks Finance Committee to Make Survey.

"ADOPT A CHILD WEEK."

Faced by an increasing bank loan and an overdraft that appeared in the bank balance this month, the Board of Management of the Children's Aid Society decided at their regular monthly meeting, held yesterday afternoon in the City Council Chamber, to ask the society's Finance Committee (V. Eastwood, Senior, E. B. Fowler and R. H. Parsons), to make a survey of the situation with a view to discovering where the expenditures might be curtailed and income increased.

Approval was given to the desire of the Department in Toronto that an "Adopt a Child Week" should be held throughout the province, the local organization recording its wish to co-operate in any possible manner.

A motion was passed empowering the Purchasing Committee to contract this month for the season's supply of coal at the Shelter.

After hearing a letter received from the Frotenac Paper Box Company of Belleville, offering to supply paper boxes and trays for tag-day use, at the rate of 8½ cents apiece, C. A Salmonsen said he might be able to supply several metal boxes free of charge; a suggestion which was gratefully received by the members.

The report on investigations of the superintendent, John Edgar, showed a total of 85 cases under consideration at the beginning of the month; 2 cases closed during the month; 2 complaints investigated; 2 mental clinics attended; court attendance, 2; children involved during the month, 2.

The society's report showed the total number of cases under care at the beginning of the month, 80; admitted, 1; discharged, 1; boarding homes, 4; adoption on probation, 5; wages homes at the end of the month, 13; free homes, 41; office interviews, 10; children seen in office, 11; new placements, 4; placements from one home to another, 2; children returned to Shelter, 3; legal adoptions completed, 1. Complaint Heard On Delayed Cheques

LINDSAY, May 15.—Alderman Pollock, chairman of Lindsay's Relief Committee, at Monday night's Council meeting, criticized the Ontario Government in connection with a seven weeks' delay in issuing pay cheques to men employed in the road camps. As a consequence the town relief committee has had to give additional support to the families of these men, who would otherwise be starving.

"It is seven weeks since they had a cheque," said Alderman Pollock, "and this is going to cost Lindsay some money and will also cost the Province more money. We have written the Department and have no explanation whatever," he said.

OLD STEAM PUMPER NOW UP FOR SALE

Purchased in 1905, Old "Steamer" Out of Service for Years.

Used only twice in the past thirteen years, the Peterborough Fire Department has a Walrous steam pumper on its hands, and authorities are undecided what to do about it.

The pumper, which could be put in good mechanical repair at a moderate cost could probably be bought at a reasonable figure by some municipality that is seeking fire protection.

Alderman Malcolm McIntyre, chairman of the Fire, Water and Light Committee, and Fire Chief George Gimblett are both in favor of selling the old pumper or otherwise disposing of it by trading it in along with some other old equipment in exchange for a modern 600-gallon motorised pumper unit.

The Chief has recommended that this course be taken in each of his annual reports to council during the past few years.

Originally purchased by the city in 1905 the old "steamer" has been out of service, with exception of two emergency runs outside the city, ever since the Department first started to replace horses with mechanised equipment.

The Department got rid of the last of the horses eight years ago, and the old "steamer" continues to occupy space on the floor of the apparatus room, when it could be doing good service in some small municipality where such a piece of equipment would be sufficient to meet almost any emergency.

Fire Chief Gimblett who completes thirteen years' service with the Department on Thursday of this week, stated that the "steamer" had only been used on two occasions during his experience. It was commissioned for use at Fraserville and more recently was shipped to Campbellford to help combat a serious blaze at the pulp mill there.

On the last occasion that it was used some tubes were burnt out, but it is said they could be replaced at a comparatively moderate cost.

Rush Point

Gordon Newton was the vice-president who arranged Thursday evening's program for league meeting. The topic was ably handled by Mrs. Ernest Curtis. Miss Madeline Menzies read the scripture selection. A musical selection, violin and guitar, was given by Carl Barton and Lloyd Petherick. Miss Corinne McArthur conducted the contest.

Mrs. Earl Pollock spent last week end at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Manly Wannamaker, at Round Lake.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman Wannamaker spent Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Patrick.

Mrs. Frank Keating of Campbellford was at Rush Point on Friday visiting friends.

A three-year-old Holstein heifer, belonging to George Wannamaker, gave birth to a very fine pair of heifer calves last week.

The working of putting in the crops and gardens is well along in this locality, but cool weather and the early dry spell has retarded growth considerably.

The shingle mill at Rush Point has started work.

Misses Birdie and Bernice Menzies spent Saturday at the home of their brother, Archie Menzies.

Mr. and Mrs. William Bubbie of Norwood were in Rush Point on Wednesday afternoon.

Heartfelt sympathy is expressed among the Rush Point neighbors for Mr. and Mrs. George Johnston over the death of their baby on Friday. The family moved recently from Rush Point to a farm on the Trent River, Havelock road.

William Wells, residing on the John Pollock farm at Balfourine Creek, recently purchased a new car.

Several Toronto families who own summer cottages at Round Lake have spent week ends here recently opening up and arranging things for the coming vacation.

Police of Benoni, Africa, recently staged an intensive campaign against crime, filling the jails with burglars, bootleggers, amalaita gangs and native loafers.

WEDNESDAY, MAY 15, 1935

CANADA DOES NOT WANT THIS.

It is not surprising to find almost unanimous condemnation of the suggestion made by C. L. Burton of Toronto in a Regina speech, to the effect that a youth re-establishment corps should be organized in Canada for unemployed between 17 and 22, organized along military lines and divided into companies and brigades, with the members of the corps to wear uniforms and housed in camps.

Public opinion in Canada is undoubtedly against anything that would savor of militarization in connection with relief work.

As a matter of fact one of the chief complaints heard against relief camps for single men, operated by the Federal Government, is that the object is to make soldiers of the young men who are being cared for in this way.

There is no ground for such criticisms, for nothing smacking of military training or discipline is to be found in these camps.

Mr. Burton's plan would of course be something else again, for what he has in mind would certainly result in army training and discipline, a development that would be resented on all sides.

Let us keep military uniforms and methods out of relief operations by all means and in this connection it is well that Ottawa has been prompt in stating that no such plan has ever been contemplated.

Much to be preferred to the Burton proposal, The Examiner believes, was the suggestion made here the other night by Hon. H. H. Stevens, that thousands of unemployed young men should be used in an extensive reforestation scheme. That is a useful and necessary work and would give rich returns for the money invested in such an undertaking.

A HEAVY INCREASE.

While the pick-up in industry is probable partially responsible, the steady increase in the number of industrial accidents in Ontario, as revealed by the reports of the Workmen's Compensation Board, is a challenge both to employers and employees.

The figures show that there were 4,880 accidents in March of this year as against 4,057 in the same month last year, and in April 4,486 accidents as against 3,894 in April 1934.

Fatalities showed a slight decrease in March with 21 fatal accidents, while in the same month a year ago there were 24, but the April figures more than wiped out this improvement, listing 18 persons as losing their lives as compared with 11 in April twelve months ago.

An increase of 1,425 in the number of industrial accidents in two months, accompanied by an increase of four more deaths, is not a record out of which a great deal of satisfaction can be obtained, in fact it indicates the necessity of safety-first methods in Ontario industry.

Outside altogether of the sorrow and suffering caused by these 9,366 accidents in two months, there is the question of financial loss, with compensation costs necessarily mounting.

In March of this year the total awards for compensation and medical aid was $511,469.91 an increase of $167,057.52 over March 1934, while the April costs jumped from $370,124.68 to $395,732.31.

Surely an increase in two months of nearly two hundred thousand dollars in compensation and medical aid for victims of industrial accidents deserves serious consideration.

DAYLIGHT SAVING.

In unanimously deciding to adopt a limited period of daylight saving in Peterborough this summer, the City Council has followed a course that undoubtedly will not please everybody, but that was justified by the principle of the greatest good for the greatest number.

With daylight saving hours put into force by many of the city's industries the routine of many homes would have been shattered for the whole summer had not the council intervened, preventing the experience of last year when there was more or less confusion as the result of factories operating on a daylight saving schedule and other activities being based on standard time.

In addition the fact that some 2,300 citizens petitioned the council to adopt daylight saving showed a strong current of public opinion in favor of the plan, and on that account too the aldermen undoubtedly felt justified in the action taken at Monday night's meeting.

Until daylight saving is adopted on a national basis—and that will not be an event of the immediate future, it is safe to assume in view of the almost unanimous rural opposition to interfering with the clocks—there will always be more or less confusion over this question, but this confusion is perhaps reduced to a minimum in industrial centres like our own when summer time is followed so long as Toronto and Montreal persist in changing their clocks each summer.

Anyway, Peterborough is to have the benefit of summer time from June 8 until the evening of Labor Day, so wise citizens will plan to make the most of that extra hour of daylight that comes after the evening meal.

SAFE PLAYGROUND.

The generous offer of R. C. Braund of three lots on Chamberlen street to be used as a playground for the children of that section of Peterborough, will undoubtedly be appreciated by the whole community and particularly by the youngsters who will benefit from this fine gesture and by their parents.

One of the crying needs in every centre, under modern traffic conditions, is more playgrounds.

The street, the chief recreation area for young Canada a generation ago when the only hazard was slow-moving horse-drawn traffic and when the middle of the road could be used for ball games, lacrosse and other similar games, is no longer a safe place, yet unfortunately it still remains the only available place for thousands of children in the larger cities and to a more limited extent for youngsters in the smaller communities.

Children must play; they need the exercise and the body-building results of vigorous recreation in the open air, and obviously if those in authority do not see that safe play areas are provided in sufficient number to take care of all the boys and girls, a certain percentage of them will be virtually forced to risk life and limb amid the fast-moving motor vehicular traffic on the street.

In most of the smaller cities there are stretches of vacant land that could be turned into playgrounds and it would be an investment sure to earn rich dividends to convert these areas into safe play places.

Mr. Braund has made this possible in one section of the city, but there are others badly in need of similar action.

THE BILLS FOR RELIEF.

Premier Hepburn's flat announcement that the Ontario Government "intends to depart from the practice of paying for relief with borrowed money" is assurance of a return to sound finance in relief administration. There will be new provincial taxes intended to raise at least $15,000,000 and the money will be earmarked for the specific purpose of meeting the distress caused by unemployment. Decision on the form of the tax has not been made—it may take the shape of an "additional" income tax, a turnover tax or a tax on salaries—but in any event the people of the province will know why they are paying it, will be brought to realise that relief costs actual money—that, in the words of Mr. Hepburn, "about half the people are working to keep the other half in idleness."

* * * * *

The funding of bills that represent no enduring asset is a fatally easy way of avoiding present difficulties. But it is essentially unsound, because it saddles upon a generation of taxpayers that receives no benefit from the expenditure charges belonging properly to the taxpayers who ordered the money spent. It is a pity the funding system in relief ever was established in Ontario, either by the Provincial Government or by the municipalities, and on relief debentures already issued we shall be paying for years, but it is something to recognize an error and get back into the straight path.

* * * *

The Journal hopes Mr. Hepburn will reconsider also the privilege the Henry Government gave municipalities to fund relief—at least attach restrictions to the privilege. If the practice is bad for the province it is bad for cities and towns—and it is bad for all of them. It has been made far too easy for a municipality to go in debt for food and clothing, fuel and housing, supplied to unemployed families.

The system discourages civic thrift, leads to carelessness and extravagance in distribution, puts blinkers over the eyes of citizens who fail to grasp the seriousness of the situation because relief payments are deferred. Ottawa funded most of last year's bills, is doing the same thing this year—and would be the better off it had not been permitted to do so. Other municipalities would be in infinitely better shape if funding had not been open to them.

* * * *

The promise of additional taxes makes one shudder. But the saddling of future generations with the cost of present relief for unemployed is now almost inexcusable. "The poor we have always with us"; those who come after us will have their own "poor" to care for. Since somebody else is going to pay much of the bill one wonders if the present generation hitherto has not been too ready to take credit for generous thoughtfulness.

* * * *

Mr. Hepburn spoke on this subject on his return from Crowland, a town in the Welland area, where relief workers have been on strike, and in that connection he issued a very necessary warning. "If there are any more relief disturbances in Ontario of a serious nature," he said, "and damage is done, the leaders are going to jail." It is, obviously, the place for them.

Along the same line was his sharp and timely comment made at the scene of the strike:

> "The taxpayers of this province are becoming the forgotten men. Farmers who get up at five o'clock in the morning are furnishing the milk and food you are getting for nothing. We have reached the state where a large section of society is working to keep others in idleness. I am the last man in the world to stand against men getting food, but I will not condone this 'won't work' attitude."

This province and every other province in Canada have done well by their less fortunate residents. There has been no stinting of money, no niggardly spirit, neither harshness nor lack of sympathy in administration. This being the case—and most recipients of relief agree frankly that it is true—there can be no toleration of disturbance and disorder, and Mr Hepburn does well to make it understood by all that he will stand for no nonsense.—Ottawa Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

And now, whether you like it or not, it is daylight saving that is just around the corner.

Parliamentary recess seems to be developing into a triumphal parade for Hon. H. H Stevens, who is crowding other leading members of both the old parties out of the newspaper headlines.

"Lest We Forget" is a reminder of the courage and self-sacrifice of Canada's soldiers in the 1914-1918 test. It is also a most potent argument against war, and for both reasons its showing in Canada is to be commended.

The pegging of potato prices in Ontario has been abandoned for what remains of the present season. It is not clear whether the marketing scheme will be resorted to again when the new crop is to be disposed of.

President Roosevelt will undoubtedly veto the soldiers' bonus bill. And probably many of those who voted for the measure did so in the expectation that the president would do that very thing.

With road camp staffs cut down, it is to be hoped that those for whom work is no longer available can be absorbed by the farmers of the district.

Huey Long declares himself one hundred per cent. behind Father Coughlin. He won't be Long behind anyone.—Toronto Mail and Empire.

EXPLAINS STATEMENT

To the Editor,

Dear Sir,—It is now some time ago, since John Bower and James Belles desired to know to what extent my family were being assisted by the local Relief Board. They also desired an explanation in regard to a statement, they claim to have been made by me when addressing the Mayor and Aldermen, during the early part of April last.

First of all I would advise Messrs. Bowers and Belles to note that the actual words uttered by me at the time they complain of, and which seems to have formed the basis of controversy, were as follows: "I have no complaint to make about the relief I have received."

This is not as they would intend to make it, a concrete admission of satisfaction with conditions of relief as they affect my family. However, to enable your correspondents to gain a clear conception as to why I made the statement I submit the following facts:

For a considerable time, my family of six, have subsisted at the expense of the public purse. To date the total cost in this connection to the taxpayers is estimated roughly to be between $700 and $800, possibly more, but certainly not less. Here the question may arise as to what service I have rendered the city in return for such a large sum. Frankly my answer would be none. That is due to the fact that my physical condition prevented me from undertaking employment of the type usually offered to the unemployed.

The situation has reduced my family and myself to "pure pauperism" and has denied me the right to complain. Even though the weekly allowance is at present most unsatisfactory, I would ask Messrs. Bowers and Belles or any other member of the local unemployed could they in view of the facts above disclosed reasonably expect me to inform the Mayor and Aldermen point blank that I was totally dissatisfied with what my family was receiving, knowing well that I was giveng nothing in return? If they do then I differ. Hence my reason for requesting light work and my utterance to statements that I was not complaining about the amount of relief received.

The amount of relief has been considered by the Ontario Medical Association to be inadequate, not only for the preservation of life, but for the maintenance of health. The next letter I submit for the "Voice of the People" will contain the schedule of relief as issued some time ago by the O.M.A. together with that which my family receives at the present time from the Relief Board.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for this and other favors of the past.

Yours respectfully,
Charles William Holland.

What's in the Name of Counties, Cities and Towns?

by FRANK H. WILLIAMS

ROSSLAND, BRITISH COLUMBIA

This town was founded about 1894 following the development of Le Roi, War Eagle, Centre Star and other mines producing a high grade of copper ore, which is shipped to the Trail smelter.

Rose Thompson was the first settler in the district, pre-empting the land on which the town rests. He built a small log cabin in the vicinity and because he eked out a bare living trapping, and would have nothing to do with the mining development, the miners ironically referred to the place as "Rose' Land." In time this was contracted to Rosaland and the name has never been changed.

The town was incorporated in 1897.

Your Health

By DR LOGAN CLENDENING

It is easy enough to plan a diet which will reduce weight, but it requires some skill to plan a diet which is safe, balanced and has variety.

The substitution foods—sold in packages as reducers and used by substituting a small amount for breakfast or lunch—are very likely to be unbalanced in that they lack vitamins, minerals and protein. Hence they are unsafe if taken over any long period of time.

The question of variety is a very vital one to the person who is sentenced to stay on a particular diet for three or four weeks or months.

To overcome these objections, Dr. William S. Callens, of Brooklyn, has devised an obesity chart. It lists a large variety of foods and shows in household measures how much there is in a serving. Then, by the use of an income card, one can work out many menus for a definite diet.

Breakfast List

Thus, for instance, we can list for breakfast: (Here are listed about all the possibilities the average person wants for breakfast. By choosing one selection for one day and another for the next, there will be plent oy variety.) 1, 10 per cent fruit; 2, egg; 3, cereal; 4, bread; 5, biscuit; 6, 20 per cent cream; 7, milk; 8, coffee or tea.

Lunch and supper have the same possibilities: (Here is plenty of chance for a choice. As to what are lean meats, or fat meats, 10 per cent vegetables, or 15 per cent fruits, that can be put on a reference card.) 1, lean meat, fish or fowl; 2, fat meat, fish or fowl; 3, 5 per cent vegetable; 4, 10 per cent vegetables; 5, 15 per cent vegetables; 6, 20 per cent vegetables; 7, cheese; 8, bread; 9, 10 per cent fruit; 10, 15 per cent fruit; 11, 20 per cent cream; 12, milk; 13, buttermilk; 14, coffee, tea or clear soup.

Such a reference card (very much abbreviated) is as follows, with allowed amount to a serving:

Five Per Cent Vegetables: Asparagus, five tips; cucumbers, 10 slices; lettuce, 10 leaves; mushrooms, four; cabbage, one cup; cauliflower, three-fourths cup; tomato, one; tomato (canned), one-half cup.

Ten Per Cent Vegetables: Beets, three-fourths cup; peas, one-half cup; carrots, three-fourths cup; onions, six.

Fifteen Per Cent Vegetables: Lima beans, one-third cup; artichokes, 1.

Twenty Per Cent Vegetables: Corn, six tablespoons; potato, one small.

Cereals, Cooked: Farina, one-half cup; oatmeal, one-half cup; shredded wheat, one; puffed rice, two cups.

Fruits Listed

Ten Per Cent Fruits: Orange, one small; grapefruit, one-half; canteloupe, one-half; peach, one; strawberries, three-fourths cup.

Fifteen Per Cent Fruits: Grapes, 18; apple, one small; banana, one; pear, one; cherries, 25.

Lean Meat: Veal, chicken, lamb, steak, bluefish, oyster, lobster, mackerel.

Fat Meat: Lamb chops, roast beef, tongue, goose, pork, salmon, tuna, trout, turkey, sardines.

Bread: One slice, 4 x 4½ inch; biscuit, one.

Now suppose you want a balanced diet of 800 to 1,000 calories. Go back to the breakfast list. You can have any of these choices: Items 1, 5 and 7 and 8; items, 2, 4 and 8; items, 2, 6 and 8; items, 1, 3 and 8.

For lunch or supper you can have these choices: Items, 7, 8 and 14; items, 1, 4, 5, 9 and 14; items 6, 8, 9 and 14; items 5, 8, 9, 11 and 14; items 2, 8, 9 10 and 13.

Stephen R. Marwel, former race horse owner, who died recently in Downpatrick, Irish Free State, left £5000 to his chauffeur, Albert Welch, and only £250 each to his three children.

A Thought

TRANSFORMING THE COMMON TASK

(From The Christian Science Monitor)

There are few things more delightful than the ability to look forward to one's daily work and to enter upon it with zest and spontaneity. The "trivial round, the common task," becomes transformed when performed in this way. Sloth is banished, and any sense of drudgery abolished. Duties which might otherwise seem monotonous or arduous, if not indeed onerous, are lightened when the heart, having learned something of the true nature of service, sings at its work.

The keynote of such transformation lies in an apprehension of the truth about God and man's relationship to Him. As it is seen that God, Spirit, is the author or creator of spiritual perfection only, as must inevitably be the case, it is also seen that the man of His creating must, be, and is, spiritual and perfect; for like can only produce like. What a new and delightful incentive for righteous and useful living comes with such a relevation! How changed becomes one's outlook upon life in general! Not personal aggrandisement or gain, but opportunity for helpful service becomes one's chief concern. Unselfed love has been admitted into thought, and has begun its benevolent reign in our everyday experience. No greater blessing could possibly be ours.

Is the only talent which we seem to possess the ability to perform some simple task well and efficiently today, and to do the next thing that comes to hand and do it thoroughly? Then we should use it. Such use fits us for a wider sphere of action, and at the same time transforms our present experience into something uplifting and ennobling. Mrs. Eddy also writes in her work "Miscellaneous Writings" (p. 146), "Never absent from your post, never off guard, never ill-humored, never unready to work for God,—is obedience; being faithful over a few things"? Such labor constitutes working "as for Thy laws", and ensures its own reward.

A DAY IN CANADIAN HISTORY

By Fred Williams

WHEN PRESBYTERIAN WOMEN UNITED

On this date (May 15) in 1914 an event of high importance in the Presbyterian Church of Canada took place at Toronto, the amalgamation of the Woman's Missionary Society of Montreal, the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society and the Woman's Home Missionary Society into the Women's Missionary Society of the Presbyterian Church in Canada. The Woman's Foreign Missionary Society had been organized at Toronto on March 21, 1876. This had been preceded by the Woman's Missionary Society—Home, French and Foreign—founded at Montreal in 1864.

The Toronto Society was endorsed by the General Assembly in June 1877, and by the end of the first decade there were auxiliaries in every presbyterial in Canada.

But in 1897 a new factor evolved. The rush to the goldfields of the Yukon called for Presbyterian missionaries. Rev. R. M. Dickey and Rev. John Pringle, who had been sent to Skagway and Dawson respectively, reported the need for nurses in the north. It was not, however, until June, 1899, that the first nurses, Miss E. H. Mitchell and Miss Helen Bone, left Toronto for the goldfields, supported by a body of ladies knowns as the Allin Nurses committee. The need grew. There came the ringing appeal of Rev. James Robertson at the General Assembly in 1901, with the result that in 1903 the nurses committees evolved into the Woman's Home Missionary Society. Eleven years passed. As the work grew the need for co-operation became apparent; hence the merger of 1914, of which today is the anniversary.

The pioneer workers in this women's movement planned for and expected great things. Not even the most optimistic of them, however, visualized an organization as strong as the W.M.S. of today, which, depression notwithstanding, is a mighty aid in the work of the church, a friend to settlers in distant or distressed places, and a machine by which, under God's blessing, the light of the Gospel is carried into the dark places of the earth.

ALL OF US

(By Marshall Maslin.)

THAT OLD MOTHER CAT

She's a very old cat and she's had a lot of kittens in her time, and she can't see any more....She bumps into furniture and gets all tangled up in blackberry vines but otherwise she gets around quite well. She doesn't spend all HER time snoozing in the sun or purring on the hearth. She's part of a family and she has to be where the family is.

When the master of the house is away, she makes it her business to meet him down by the garage when he comes home. No matter what time it is—six o'clock in the afternoon or midnight—she gets down those steps, a hundred feet at least, to greet him....And when the family is at dinner that old blind cat climbs up a tall madrone tree and jumps through five feet of air, 50 feet up, to a perch outside a window, expecting to be taken in. She likes their company.

They say a cat is arrogant and aloof and independent. But she isn't. Whenever she's about to have kittens, she comes in and asks the boss to fix up a box to be their cradle. She asks him just as plainly as a cat can ask and he always does it....But the last time she had a batch she hid them away somewhere and didn't show them to him until he spoke to her about them. And then she led him into the cellar and up a ladder to a barrel, where they were safe in the dark.

But the skunks began to prowl around and skunks are most unfriendly to kittens....So that old mother tried to think of a safer place and thought, too, of the family dog. She and the dog are friends. She'd known him ever since he was a puppy and they get along very nicely together....So she took her kittens and put them in a box right beside the dog's house. She knew that the skunks wouldn't dare to come near him or his house and her kittens would be safe there.

Don't tell me that "a cat never thought all that out"....I'm telling you that people who think she didn't think that out don't know much about cats. That old blind cat knows enough to come in out of the rain, and she ought to know the safest place in the house for her kittens.

SMELTERS UP 6 POINT GAIN

Oils and Liquors Hold Gains on Expansion of Industrial Trading.

GENERAL LIST SLOW.

TORONTO, May 15 (C.P.)—Oils and liquors held gain on expansion of trading and Consolidated Smelters jumped about 6 points on the industrial section of the Toronto Exchange to-day. The general list remained hesitant and at the end of the day very little change was noted in the price average. Volume on the whole was better than on Tuesday.

The liquors came to the front on renewal of the report of a possible reduction of the U.S. tax on imported liquors. Walkers Common advanced nearly two points but weakened to show a net gain of about a point. Distillers Seagrams was up 1¼ and Industrial Alcohol "A" ¾. Brewers and Distillers held steady at 70. Canada Malting eased down a fraction.

Imperial Oil at 20 for a fractional advance. British American at 15¼ was up ¼ and International Petroleum chalked up a similar gain. Brazilian, Ford "A" and Nickel were the soft spots in the interlisted group and C.P.R. at 11 was higher by a half point.

SILVERS SHOW FAIR ADVANCE

Base Metal Gains Follow Sharp Advance in Bar Silver Quotation.

LIGHT PROFIT-TAKING.

TORONTO, May 15.—(CP).—Base metals and silver stocks had an afternoon flurry on the spur provided by a sharp advance in the quotation on bar silver and some of the golds took the cue and trailed along but the latter group developed little buoyancy on the whole. Moderate profit-taking shaded the day's tops but over the board gains predominated at the close.

Base Metals Corporation registered a gain of about 10 cents. Sherritt Gordon traded in volume also with the price however improving no better than a cent or two. Hudson Bay and Mining Corporation registered gains of a few cents each.

Eldorado touched the 2.43 mark but the close around 2.32 showed a net gain of about 50 cents. Castle held a gain of a few cents and Bear dropped most of its advance.

In the senior golds steady prices ruled for Lake Shore, Teck Hughes, Dome and Hollinger and Pioneer weakened about 25 cents.

Market Closing On All Exchanges

MONTREAL EXCHANGE

MONTREAL, May 15 (CP)—Stock prices on Montreal Stock Exchange once more turned slightly softer at the close of trading to-day, but the general undertone was steady.

A spectacular development of the afternoon trading was a spurt of 7½ points by Consolidated Mining and Smelting, which shot up to 172 compared to last night's close at 164½.

Canadian Pacific Railway shares showed a late improvement of ¾ at 10¼, and Industrial Alcohol gained ¾ at 9¾. Shawinigan last ¾ at 15 and Hollinger Mines eased 15 cents at 15.85. Nickel sold down ¾ at 28¼.

WALL STREET

NEW YORK, May 15 (A.P.).—The stock market strengthened its position in several departments during late trading to-day.

At the beginning of the final hour early steadiness in oils and metals was well maintained and American Telephone had increased its quoted value nearly 3 points on announcement that the regular quarterly dividend would be paid. Allied Chemical got up 2 and gains of around 1 were shown by Santa Fe, Union Pacific, Standard Oil of New Jersey, American Smelting and Cerro de Pasco. Leading industrials continued hesitant. The late tone was steady to firm.

Sales approximately 1,100,000 shares.

Worshipful Sir Is Latest Cadi Title

The worthy occupant of the magisterial bench here to-day objected to being addressed as "Worshipful Sir."

"You may call me 'Your Worship' if you wish, but don't use 'Worshipful Sir' when addressing me," Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., sharply told an accused person, who appeared before him to-day.

During his lengthy tenure of the magisterial office, His Worship has on many occasions been variously addressed as "Your Honor" and "My Lord," and on one known occasion even as "Your Majesty"—but never before as "Worshipful Sir."

The Magistrate's objection was probably based on the fact it is assumed that the newest title which an accused person has sought to confer upon him savors too strongly of the ritual associated with lodge meetings of fraternal societies.

King's Portrait Unveiled, Gift To Canada House

By Thomas T. Champion
(Canadian Press Staff Writer).

LONDON, May 15 (C.P. Cable).—In the presence of a large gathering of prominent persons, the Duke of Kent to-day unveiled a portrait of His Majesty presented to Canada House.

The painting is a replica of the portrait presented by T. B. F. Jersey of Jersey and Durban, South Africa, to Victoria College, Jersey, in memory of his son killed in the war.

The portrait, life-size, executed by John St. Helir Lander, depicts His Majesty in the uniform of an admiral, wearing the Garter robe and ribbon.

Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, asking the Duke to perform the unveiling, described the painting as a magnificent and generous gift and a kindly portrait. It is hung in the public reading room in order all visitors to Canada House may see it.

PICKLE CROW.

Pickle Crow Gold Mines, the shares of which sold to a new low of $2.12 on the exchange this morning, has been in production now since the latter part of April, although to date no official information has been released as to bullion output. From good sources, the Financial News Bureau understands that there is nothing physically wrong at the property. The company is said to be short of funds until it secures the initial return from the first month's bullion. However, J. E. Hammell, president, is understood to have made a temporary loan to the company of around $100,000 which will be used to meet current obligations pending returns from bullion shipments. Details of milling operations are not available, although the last wireless message from the mine stated that the mill has been gradually increased to 115 tons per day. As is general with every new mill that goes into production, the first returns would be low owing to the fact that the mill circuit has to be filled while there are always a number of difficulties to overcome before the mill is operating smoothly. One reason for the lack of news has been the break up which set in a short time ago just after the new mill commenced operations.

TASHOTA GOLDFIELD

First official returns of mill performance at Tashota Goldfields, under operating management of Minefinders Ltd., is to the effect that the 50-ton cyanide capacity mill is currently treating around 56 tons of ore daily. For the short term period ending May 13th, the mill handled 381 tons of ore for a recovery of 148.39 ounces of gold with mill heads averaging 0.3890 ounces gold per ton and tails .06. The first gold brick will likely be poured about the end May, around one month after the first run of rock was put through the mill on April 23rd. The mine is operated by Minefinders Ltd., which reopened the property a year ago.

GOD'S LAKE

Erection of the power transmission line from the power site on Kanuchuan Rapids to the God's Lake Gold Mines property in Northern Manitoba is completed and telephone communication has been established between these two points, according to H. R. Drummond, Hay, vice president. Work on the sluice cribs, powers house and installation of machinery at the power site which is located about 40 miles from the property, is well advanced. Excavation for the mill foundation is under way, and while it is the intention of the management to have the mill ready to commence operations by Sept. 1st, construction of the mill is said to be well ahead of schedule so that the mill may be expected to start some time in July or early August. Meanwhile, with all underground lateral work suspended the work of sitting the shaft has been proceeding. On May 4th last the shaft had reached a depth of 443.1 and with sinking being carried forward at the rate of six feet per day it is expected that by now a depth of around 535 feet will have been reached.

Fear Quebec Maid Victim Of House Fire

MAPLE DALE STATION, Que., May 15 (C.P.)—An early morning fire in the home of Philippe Fortin is believed to have burned Marie Ange Daudlin, 15-year-old domestic servant, to death in her upper floor bedroom. A search of the smoking ruins several hours after the fire failed to reveal any trace of her body.

Mr. and Mrs. Fortin were awakened by the smell of smoke and ran from the the house. They set up a ladder and rescued their two children but the flames spreading quickly through the wooden house prevented them from rescuing the maid, who had joined their household two days ago. No reply came to their shouts to run from the house.

ONLY COMMUNICANTS MAY SET UP NEW CHURCH IS SYNOD'S RULING

Canon Gould Claims Too Many Anglican Parishes Erected on Flimsy Foundations.

PRIMATE RAPS QUIBBLING.

TORONTO, May 15.—(CP).—Toronto Synod of the Church of England in annual session to-day voted a provision that only communicants of the church may established a new church.

Prior to the vote a suggested amendment by William Tyrrell, layman, that communicant be changed to member prompted interruption by Archdeacon Blagrave of Peterborough.

"A member of the church is a baptized Christian who is a believer and attendant of the Church of England," he said.

Canon Gould said too many parishes have been erected on "flimsy founadtions," and he urged that only communicants be allowed such privilege.

Three Opposed.

Three members of the Synod voted against the word communicant but by a rising vote the remainder stood by the new canon which stipulates a new parish may be created only by a "group of persons, not less than 90, of whom shall be communicants of the church of the full age of 21 years, residing in the diocese."

Debate on minor details of proposed changes in canons brought the suggestion from Archbishop Derwyn T. Owen, primate of all Canada, that the meeting "get on with these changes." He also expressed opposition to "quibbling about words."

A canon dealing with appointment of new clergy aroused some debate, but it was finally agreed to change a clause which in future provides that "if within three months after a vacancy occurs, the Bishop, the Church Warden and lay members of the Synod have not agreed upon a clergyman to be appointed, the Bishop may proceed to make the appointment."

CATHOLIC CLERGY MEET IN COBOURG

Fourth Annual Eucharistic Congress Held in St. Michael's Church.

COBOURG, Ont., May 15.—(CP)—With St. Michael's Roman Catholic Church crowded while hundreds thronged the sidewalks outside, the Eucharistic Congress of Peterborough diocese today opened with solemn pontifical high mass celebrated by Bishop O'Connor of Peterborough.

This is the fourth annual Eucharistic Congress and marks the first time it has been held at Cobourg. Rev. Father McAuley of Enniskmore preached the sermon, explaining the significance of the Eucharistic Congress as being a public proclamation of faith and veneration of the sacrament of the Blessed Eucharist.

At noon today, Archbishop M. O'Brien of Kingston, Bishop O'Connor of Peterborough and Bishop Dugnan of North Bay, and 50 visiting priests from all over Peterborough diocese were guests at a banquet. Conferences for the clergy were held in the afternoon and tonight, Rev. Father Corkery of Peterborough will conduct the closing service of the Congress at St. Michael's Church.

They swept into the city with their entourage last night after a swift automobile trip from Reno, Nevada, where they were married earlier in the day only 24 hours after Barbara won a divorce from Prince Alexis, one of the marrying Georgian Mdivanis.

CAMPBELLFORD CADETS PRAISED FOR GOOD WORK

Capain Folkes of Kingston Presents Medals to Officers.

HOLD SCHOOL PARTY.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 15 (Examiner Staff Correspondence). — Ideal weather conditions drew large crowds to the High School Grounds on Tuesday afternoon, the occasion being Cadet inspection day. After reviewing the troops Captain Folkes of Kingston Military District No. 3, complimented the officers and men on the splendid marching, neatness of dress, and general proficiency in drilling.

Board of Education medals were awarded to officers as follows: Company Commander Don. Owen, Platoon Commanders Arnold Bates, Charles Couch, Arthur Black, and Don. Barnum; Sergeants Raymond Murphy, William Thompson, Gordon McGee, and Paul O'Sullivan; Drummer Malcolm MacKenzie.

The event was featured by a school party from 4 o'clock until 8 p.m., when the young people danced to the strains of Ronald Richardson's Orchestra. A delightful supper was served in the Domestic Science Room. Principal E. H. Greig and his teaching staff had a very busy afternoon, but the 1925 Cadet inspection day will be recorded as one of the highlights in the affairs of Campbellford High School.

WOMAN'S MIND MUCH IMPROVED

has improved over anything previously shown by her. Her memory of immediate events is good and for events long past is "remarkable." She reads English much better than before the operation.

She says she can do more work without fatigue. Her medical observers bear out this fact. She goes to sleep at once and rests soundly. Her temper is better. She worries less than formerly.

No Hesitation.

Her increased concentration, the report states, causes her to insist in talking to a finish what she starts to say despite efforts to change the subject. She never hesitates about executing a decision. But, the report remarks, her decisions are never vicious or anti-social.

Another trait that seems associated with the increased concentration is a marked tendency to walk directly to any destination without looking to right or to left.

Her religious advisers are delighted with her piety, her church attendance, and evident love of religion. But her husband says she has feelings of superiority.

Missionary Night Observed By League

CAMPBELLFORD, May 15 (Examiner Staff Correspondence). — The regular meeting of St. John's League was held on Monday evening with Reta Palliser in the chair. It was missionary night, with Verna Sanders in charge of the following program: Cornet solo, Capt. Houslander ;duet, Capt. and Mrs. Houslander. The topic was a resume of the chapter, "Non-Anglo-Saxons," taken from "Tales and Trails of the Northland." Mrs. Houslander then gave an exhibition of club-swinging. The remainder of the program: Solo, Winnie Gillespie; reading, Mrs. Houslander; cornet solo, Capt. Houslander. The meeting closed with a hymn and the Mizpah benediction.

PRIMATE URGES

that that I expect every one to agree exactly on this edbject, with the findings of the committee, or with me, but I hope that the decision, when reached, will be one that will have the substantial agreement of the great majority of this body, and will be such a decision that a subject of uncertainty and discussion." many years may be removed from our discussions, and cease to be a source of irritation and perplexity. I ask the Synod to so deal with this matter."

The Prayer Book

Speaking in connection with "The Book of Common Prayer," the Archbishop stated that he did not wish to impose rigid rules in these matters, adding: "But I would remind the clergy that while latitude in many directions is allowed, yet we are all bound by our solemn obligations not to take upon ourselves to change or unduly shorten that which has come down to us through the ages as one of our priceless possessions."

"The Book of Common Prayer,' to quote the preface of our Canadian book, is a priceless possession of the Church," said his Grace.

"By its intrinsic merits as a book designed for the reverent and seemly worship of Almight God, as well as by its historic associations, it has endeared itself to generation after generation of devout Christians throughout the world. None would desire or advocate any change therein which would impair or lessen this deep-seated affection.

Question of Changes.

"The attempts sometimes made to 'improve' the order and method of the Prayer Book services by amending, shortening or adding to these services is not conducive, in my opinion, to real improvement in the conduct of the worship of God. In making reference to this I have not any special school of thought in mind, for I find that some members of all schools of thought are inclined to amend, shorten, or otherwise change the order of worship set forth."

The Jubilee.

Mention was made of the King's Silver Jubilee, the Synod members rising to their feet and joining in singing the National Anthem.

During the business period of yesterday afternoon's session of the eighty-third Synod, consideration was given to revision of canons. Discussion of the canon on parishes was interrupted at the hour of adjournment. William Tyrell, lay delegate, drew attention to a clause reading:

"Whenever a group of persons, not less than twenty of whom shall be communicants of the Church, of the full age of 21 years, residing in the diocese, desire the erection of a new parish . . . they shall present a memorial to the Bishop to that effect, stating their reasons and the proposed boundaries of such new parish."

Mr. Tyrell moved an amendment that the word "communicants" be changed to "members of the Church of England." He pointed out the custom through the years of the flexibility in defining the Church of England membership, and that it was not necessary to be confirmed to be a member of the Church of England. If the clause carried without the proposed amendment, he claimed, an opportunity might be lost of establishing a parish in a community, where there were not twenty communicants of the Church of England, to take action, and some other denomination would step in and organize a church.

Further discussion on this matter was held over until to-day's session.

New Canon Adopted.

The Synod adopted a proposed new canon recommending the formation of a committee to be known as the Toronto Diocesan Laymen's Council. The duty of the Council will be to co-ordinate and promote the work of the laymen of the Church throughout the diocese. Sir Henry Drayton, in presenting the canon, stated that the object in forming the Council was to turn the association into a larger organization.

Recommendations regarding position of retired, unattached and superannuated clergymen was adopted by the Synod.

The opening service, held yesterday morning in St. James' Cathedral, consisted of a celebration of Holy Communion, conducted by Archbishop Owen.

LAKEFIELD

A delegation, representing the Lakefield Curling Club, attended St. John's Church on Sunday evening by the invitation of the club chaplain, Rev. W. J. Creighton, M.A., who preached an appropriate sermon.

Mr. A. H. Clark was summoned to Pickering over the week end by the death of his father, W. J. Clark, who has been in failing health for a long time.

Among local citizens who received the King's medal were: Capt. Frank Morin of the "Bob Hall" and Mr. W. H. Casement of the post office. A former citizen, H. J. Sutton of the dredge was also remembered, and Mr. John MacCallum.

BOAT MYSTERY ENDS.

PARRY SOUND, Ont., May 15 (C.P.). — Mystery surrounding the findini of the crewless launch a short distance from Red Rock Light was cleared u when the Sailor Queen arrived at Parry Sound Dock. Word of the finding of the boat brought out the fact it belonged to Raid brothers of Pointe au Baril. They were crossing the au Baril. They were crossing the lake from Meaford with several launches in tow and when the sea became heavy and they were forced to cut the mystery boat loose.

Teacher's Need Is Personality

TORONTO, May 15 (C.P.) — Two hundred teachers seeking employment in Toronto public schools were interviewed on a recent week-end by inspectors.

About 85 were girls. In the last couple of years, possibly due to the difficulty of getting employment in other lines, there has been a notable increase of men in the teaching profession. Most of the teachers who were interviewed have had outside experience.

"Personality is the primary thing," said Dr. C. C. Goldring, superintendent of schools, when asked whether personality or academic qualifications counted most in estimating a teacher.

living in hopes that it would renew this contribution. However, this has been definitely refused.

Impossible Alone

"We cannot continue to finance these projects ourselves," the Minister continued. "Last year we spent about $23,000,000 on relief camp work, and received very little money in return. We had hoped that the Federal authorities would realize their responsibility to the unemployed and restore arterial road contributions and give us definite assurance as to what portion of the trans-Canada highway cost they would bear."

The Minister pointed out that, following a recent visit of Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn and himself to Ottawa, Federal authorities are now considering reimbursing Ontario to the extent of 50 per cent. of the expenditures on trans-Canada highway work.

Community Honors Bride And Groom

MILLBROOK, May 15 (Examiner Correspondence)—A pleasant social evening was enjoyed in the Parish Hall of Trinity Church, at the Marsh, west of the village on Friday when a large number of friends and neighbors gathered to do honor to a bride and groom of the community, Mr. and Mrs. Picton Porter (Violet Patton).

William Todd made a capable chairman, and also read the appreciative address which preceded the presentation of a miscellaneous shower to the guests of honor, who had been called to the platform, the large and nicely-trimmed basket having been carried in by Harold Morton and Walter Fallis. The groom, on behalf of his wife and himself, made suitable reply, and after all had joined in singing, "They are jolly good fellows," the pleasant task of opening the various parcels and reading the enclosed cards, was proceeded with.

The remainder of the evening passed happily with dancing, for which music was provided by J. Patton, the Todd family orchestra, Lillian Crocker, W. Porter, and others, and the service of dainty refreshments before the enjoyable party finally broke up.

Among those signing the address, and forming the committee in charge were Blanche and Walter Fallis, Edna Morton, Harold Morton and others.

Pickerel Season Opens On Thursday

CAMPBELLFORD, May 15 (Examiner Staff Correspondence). — Fishing tackle dealers have all kinds of lures for pickerel on display and many ardent fishermen have already made their purchases to be ready for Thursday, May 16, when the season opens. The fish and game law plainly states that all fishing for pickerel must be done off shore or pier, and the use of a boat is strictly prohibited.

A consignment of Government lunge spawn was deposited in the waters of Crow Bay on Tuesday morning, under the supervision of Fred J. Smith.

FAMOUS FLIER BARELY REACHES

layed to anxious Australians the news of the grim fight to keep the airplane above the water.

Load of Jubilee Mail

Sir Charles took off at 12.20 a.m. carrying a heavy load of mail and freight in a special jubilee flight. He had 34,000 letters and 14,000 pounds of freight.

At 8.51 a.m. local time (5.51 p.m. Tuesday E.S.T.) he reported loss of the propellor and said one of the engines was spluttering.

Another message followed saying: "I am dumping my cargo; unable to keep height. Trying to keep motors full out." It indicated he would try to make the Australian coast. The Southern Cross then was 500 miles from land.

Later came word from 300 miles at sea he was flying back towards Sydney with two motors working. Apparently he had managed to avoid dumping the cargo.

"Tell wives not to worry. Still flying," was the next word from the Southern Cross.

But anxiety grew again with a message at 10.02 a.m. saying "Wind rising, nasty sea." At 10.19 a.m. came the report: "Sea getting worse. Knocking noise in central motor."

At 2.05 p.m. disaster seemed inevitable. Apparently the Southern Cross was fast losing altitude.

"Afraid I'm in sea, old man," Sir Charles messaged. "Centre motor gone now."

Hope waxed again within a few minutes when the famous aviator sent word, "Still flying," and asked for bearings. At 2.30 p.m. the Southern Cross was reported only 60 miles from Sydney.

Safe Landing.

One hour and 10 minutes later the dramatic flight had ended with a safe landing at Ascot, near Sydney.

Rescue plans had been put in motion quickly after the first SOS was received. The cruiser Canberra was prepared for a quick dash to sea. The pilot steamer Captain Cook put out to meet the plane. And the airplane Faith in Australia —once owned by the late Charles T. P. Ulm—took off with lifebelts to save the crew of the Southern Cross, should they be forced down.

A Charmed Life

"It's all right—they can't kill me," Sir Charles shouted joyfully to his wife as he landed the big airplane at Ascot aerodrome this afternoon.

"Anyone but Kingsford-Smith would have crashed," said Capt. P. G. Taylor. Sir Charles, Taylor, and Wireless Operator Stannard all looked most tired, plainly showing the strain of the ordeal they had undergone.

When the propeller smashed to start their troubles, Taylor said, the whole plane shook furiously. Kingsford-Smith immediately cut his switch and stalled the plane to prevent the engines shaking out.

All the cargo except some of the letters was dumped, and the rest were thrown overboard. The struggle to keep the plane in the air lasted from 8.51 a.m., local time until 4.10 p.m., when he landed, to be greeted by a large crowd.

WARSAW VILLAGE TEA ROOM OPENS

Delightful Little Tea Room is Opened by Miss Dorcas Lloyd.

WARSAW, May 14. (Examiner Correspondence).—The Blue Tea Room, in charge of Miss Dorcas Lloyd, opened on Saturday afternoon. The little tea room with its light grey paper, blue and white curtains, blue and white tables and chairs, long mirrors framed in blue was very attractive and hardly large enough to accommodate the evening crowd. Hot dogs, hamburgs, cake, ice-cream, and other lunch articles were of the best. Later Miss Lloyd will serve home-made cakes and pies and will be able to provide lunches at all hours as well as meals. Such a place has been needed for some time. There was no place in the village where a stranger could go for a meal. Even the bankers brought their lunches.

Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Anderson made their semi-annual visit to Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Anderson over the week-end and called upon some old friends.

Mother's Day

Mother's Day was observed in the village churches on Sunday. In the Presbyterian Sunday School Dr. Munro gave an address. In the evening Rev. Mr. Preston spoke on the family as a whole centering in Mother.

Ivan Drain led the United Church Sunday School service and this was followed by a very pleasing progam with Ms. G. G. Taylor singing a solo and Ivan Cyidesdale giving a talk. A chorus by Lena Miller's class, Rev. J. W. Wilkinson spoke. A mother's choir with Mrs. James Hawthorne at the organ sang two suitable selections.

There was no service in the Anglican Church on account of Rev. Mr. Bousfield's illness. Rev. Mr. Walker in the Baptist Church preached on "Motherhood" and Pearl Tedford and Myrtle Armstrong sang.

May 18th the Baptist Church will celebrate its anniversary at 10.00 a.m. and 7.30 p.m. On the following Monday evening there will be an illustrated missionary lecture in the Town Hall.

On Sunday May 26th a men's choir will lead the praise service in the United Church.

WILLIAM WELLMAN GETS APPOINTMENT

Constable For Village of Hastings—Special Council Session.

HASTINGS, May 15.—(Examiner Correspondence).—A special session of the village council was held in the council chamber on Monday night with Reeve Dr. J. H. Hess in the chair. Councillors Kelly, Brooks, Lynch and Fairman present. The assessment roll was thoroughly checked at the session, which lasted until the wee small hours of Tuesday morning.

The local council will have the task of confirming or raising their own assessment at the Court of Revision to be held on May 29th. Mr. J. H. Dufort of Toronto, a cottage owner on Homewood avenue, appealed his own assessment, and on Monday sent in an appeal against Reeve Hess's and Councillors Brooks' Lynch and Fairman's and Assessor G. R. Kerr's properties.

On motion of Kelly and Brooks the Village of Norwood will be charged $20 for the fire engine and $55 for brigade used at the disastrouse fire in Norwood on April 11th.

Moved by Brooks, seconded by Lynch, that the Parks Commission have the Town Hall for their picture show on May 18th at the actual expense.

Moved by Fairman, seconded by Lynch, that the resignation of Constable J. H. Calberry be accepted.

The matter of appointing another constable took up considerable discussion as to whether there could be combined enough municipal jobs to warrant sufficient salary for a man to devote his full time. It was finally decided that at present it could not be done.

Moved by Brooks, seconded by Lynch, that William Wellman be appointed constable at a salary of $18 a month, duties according to by-law, sanitary inspector, weed inspector, collecting dog taxes, poll taxes and enforcing all by-laws. All money to be turned over at time collected or first of every month. The agreement to terminate on two days' notice.

By-law 752 confirming the appointment passed its several readings.

By-law 753 appointing Mr. Wellman constable under the Liquor Control Act passed its several readings.

ROTTEN BOLOGNA CHIEF ITEM ON MENU OF GUNNERS IN 1885

James Snyder, Old Peterborough Boy, Served in Middleton's Column.

WOUNDED AT BATOUCHE.

SASKATOON, May 15.—Food rations served on a menu where the principal dish was "rotten bologna sausage" and a tiresome march across the frozen wastes on the north shore of Lake Superior with the temperature about 20 below zero -- these are the main recollections of one veteran of the Northwest Rebellion, now residing in Saskatoon.

WAS STATIONMASTER

James Snyder, until recently stationmaster for the Canadian National Railways here, served in "A" Battery, Royal Canadian Field Artillery, in General Middleton's column during the rebellion. Besides his distasteful remembrance of the gruelling march and the odious rations, he also bears evidence of a wound he received at the Battle of Batoche. He had part of his left hand shot away by one of the insurgents.

Born in Peterborough, Ontario, 70 years ago, Mr. Snyder showed an early interest in a military career. When 16 years of age he joined as a volunteer with the Durham Field Battery. Four years later he was at artillery training school in Kingston, when the militia was called to quell the Second Riel Rebellion.

Mr. Snyder had a position as full fledged gunner in "A" Battery during the course of the campaign.

GAPS IN RAILWAY

Reticent about his own part in the campaign, he tells how the unit left Kingston on March 2, 1885, and travelled by Canadian Pacific Railway to the far West. There were portions of the newly-built railroad, however, that were not completed and these were along the north shore of Lake Superior.

Four such gaps there were amounting in all to a distance of some 25 miles. The grade had been finished in some places; in others the soldiers were forced to make their way along the tortuous paths that led over the rocky crags and steep cliffs of the lake shore. One particular march was undertaken across the ice of a bay with a hurricane wind blowing across the slippery surface.

JOINED COLUMN

After this unpleasant introduction to the West, Mr. Snyder recounts, the remainder of the journey as far as Qu'Appelle was completed without misadventure. At that point the artillery unit joined the Middleton column for the long march to Fish Creek and Batoche.

Although the column as a regular military detachment was equipped with a transport service, the rations were far from satisfactory.

"We are told that the soldiers in the Great War had at least one hot meal a day," Mr. Snyder observes. "We were lucky to get one hot meal in 48 or even 60 hours. Our main rations were hard tack, bully beef and rotten bologna."

He does not know how the volunteer forces fared for they lacked even a transport service and had to rely almost altogether on the provisions they could secure from settlers.

Mr. Snyder has few comments to make on the warfare. There were skirmishes with the rebels and throughout the campaign his unit lost in all 10 or 12 men.

The casualty lists, however, were not kept on an accurate basis, he discloses.

LOST PART OF HAND

At Batoche, a group of rebels made an onslaught on the left end gun which he was serving. It was while this attack was proceeding that a shot from a rebel only a few paces away shot the little finger and part of the hand away from his left hand. A comrade settled for the insurgent, he tells.

The wound cost him only 48 hours from service. He received treatment in a field hospital and in two days was back in the ranks.

But some years later when he sought to secure a pension for the loss suffered, the authorities had no record of the casualty, the veteran states. It appears that only those who were forced to seek treatment in the base hospitals were listed among the casualties.

BECAME MAJOR

Following the end of the rebellion, the unit returned east and was demobilized at Kingston in September, 1885. Mr. Snyder, however, remained in the artillery another 17 years. In 1886 he secured his stripes as sergeant. Two years later he got his commission as lieutenant. When he retired from the service in 1902 he was major in command of the 14th Field Battery.

After leaving the army Mr. Snyder was occupied with industrial work in the east until 1910 when he came to Saskatoon. The following year he started to work for the Canadian National Railways and continued in their service until April 26 last when he was retired on a pension. He resides at 506 Eighth street.

Magistrate's Court

In disposing of several charges laid on the information of Inspector Fred Marshall and relating to the taking of pickerel out of season under the Provincial Game and Fisheries Act, Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., issued warning that offences of this nature must cease.

After referring to the widespread destruction to fish life caused by the taking of fish in closed seasons and at the time when the fish were spawning, His Worship intimated that he intended to increase the fines if the warnings continued to go unheeded.

Three local men pleaded "guilty" to fishing for yellow pickerel out of season. The first of them whose previous appearances before the Magistrate have been as official court interpreter, was given three days' grace in which to pay a fine of $5.00 and $2.50 costs.

The second defendant to answer to a similar charge was allowed three days in which to pay a fine of $5.00. Court costs were remitted when the defendant pleaded that he was a returned man, and that he had recently spent some time in Christie Street Military Hospital.

"The temptation was too great," was the frank admission made by the third of the offenders when asked if he had anything to say. It was an admission of guilt that cost the defendant a fine of $5 and $2.50 costs.

Appearing on remand in answer to a charge of illegal possession of pickerel, a twenty-year-old youth was placed on suspended sentence for one year.

Two sisters giving their names as Agnes and Margaret Odette, 275 Jarvis street, Toronto, were jointly charged in magistrate's court here to-day with procuring two local young women for immoral purposes. The charges were laid under Section 216 of the Criminal Code, and allege that the offenses were committed in April of this year.

Both the accused women declined to elect or plead to the charges, and were remanded in custody until Wednesday, May 22.

After the charge was read to her by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., Agnes Odette stated: "I decline to elect or plead until I see my lawyer."

"Are you prepared to go on with the preliminary hearing?" the Bench asked the accused.

"No, I am not," the accused replied firmly.

Her sister, who appeared to be less assured and self-possessed also declined to elect and withheld her plea.

Handed over by Toronto city police into custody of the local authorities the women were brought here yesterday. They are alleged to be implicated with "Buck" Winch in the procuring of two local girls, who were taken by the latter to Toronto in April last.

Winch is on remand on a similar charge, in addition to having been committed for trial to a higher court on a further charge of possession of an offensive weapon.

Appearing on remand in answer to a charge of "breaking and entering by night," to which he had previously pleaded guilty, a local young man was to-day sentenced to 6 months determinate and 6 months indeterminate in Ontario Reformatory.

His youthful female accomplice who also appeared on remand on a similar charge, was further remanded for another week, Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., stating that he wished to give her case further consideration.

"Your Worship, I don't know what possessed me to do such a thing. It is the first time I have ever stolen anything," the accused said, in urging leniency for himself.

"Breaking and entering by night is a very serious offence and cannot be treated otherwise," the Bench observed.

Speaking to the case before sentence was imposed, Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., stated, "the accused in company with the girl broke into Fitzpatrick and Geraghty's East City store by night, and stole a quantity of tobacco and a small sum of money.

A young man appeared on an adjourned charge of forgery relating to a cheque for the sum of $10.03 to-day, and was placed on probation for a two-year period. The defendant, who stated that he had made restitution of the monies, was further ordered by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., to pay court costs amounting to $14.45. Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., who agreed to the course taken by the Bench said: "This is the first offence on the part of the accused as far as records show."

A police officer pleaded guilty on behalf of Neil Garvey to a charge of exceeding the 20-mile speed limit within the city on the evening of May 6, and the defendant was fined $10 and $3.25 costs. He was the driver of a car that struck a woman on the railway crossing at Park and Westcott streets.

Stated by Highway Traffic Officer A. E. Hornick to have been racing on the Lakefield road, and to have forced two other cars into the ditch, Allan C. LeMay of Grimsby was fined $10 and $4.25 costs; and Irvin Tully, of Lakefield was ordered to pay a fine of $10 and $3.75 costs.

Officer Tells of Wild Ride on Toronto Streets in Which He Was Injured.

PAIR REMANDED, MAY 20.

TORONTO, May 15 (C.P.)—Henry Saxon, 21, and Orval Hardy, 19, pleaded guilty in court to-day to charges of stealing a motor car and injuring a police officer with intent to maim, and were remanded to May 20 for sentence.

Police Officer Joseph Proctor told of seeing the stolen car driven by Saxon last Feb. 12, and of jumping on the running board with an order to the driver to halt. Instead, he said, the car roared along the street, scraped the side of a street car, grazed a tree, another motor car and narrowly missed hitting a subway abutement. When the car swerved he was thrown against a parked car and suffered serious injuries.

The officer walked with a heavy limp to the witness stand, where he related details of his wild ride and how he had warned the men to stop.

"If you kill me," he shouted at them, "you'll be hanged."

He said Saxon retorted: "Get the h—— off the running board, then."

Proctor also said while the car raced along at 50 miles an hour, Hardy leaned over and attempted to break the window of the door to which the officer was clinging. The accsedu also pointed something at him, said Proctor, who said he thought it was a gun.

GUARDS 8 HOUR DAY REQUESTED

Nixon Answering Guelph States it Would be Complicated Procedure.

AFFECT 52 INSTITUTIONS.

TORONTO, May 15—(CP)—Adoption of an eight-hour day for guards in Ontario prisons and reformatories would be a complicated procedure and an expensive one for municipalities throughout the province, Provincial Secretary H. C. Nixon said today commenting on a resolution passed by the Guelph Trades and Labor Council asking an eight-hour day and 48-hour week for guards in the Ontario reformatory.

Should such a policy be followed at Guelph it would have to be duplicated in the five other reformatories and 47 jails throughout the province Mr. Nixon said. From C. F. Neelands, deputy provincial secretary, it was learned that an eight-hour day at Guelph would necessitate employment of from 20 to 25 additional guards.

Mr. Nixon had discussed an eight-hour day proposal with Guelph labor officials and while the department has considered the proposals there is no immediate action contemplated. The night shift at Guelph is on duty 13 hours and the day shift stays on duty 11 hours. The guards have one day a week off and on another day they work only four hours.

ANGLICAN SYNOD

mittee has it would appear that Roman Catholic authorities now demand a share of the school taxes based upon the respective number of Roman Catholic children and the children of the rest of the community.

The result of the adoption of such a system in many communities would be that persons who are not Roman Catholics would be obliged to contributed to the cost of educating children in a religion other than their own. The proposals are radical. A new principle would be adopted.

"As matters now stand, no Roman Catholic ratepayers are obliged to provide and support Public Schools. . . . The apparent effect of their proposal would be to make it obligatory on all Roman Catholic ratepayers to support Separate Schools and have their children there educated.

"Your committee recognise that special privileges have been granted to Roman Catholic ratepayers and authorities, but is strongly of the view that these special privileges ought not to be increased."

Heavy Burden.

"The Public school system is greatly enlarged," the report continued. "Its costs are correspondingly heavy, too heavy for ratepayers in many districts to easily bear them as evidenced by the large amont of municipal taxes in arrears, a very substantial percentage of such taxes being represented by the school rates. Public school revenues cannot possibly suffer diminution. This the granting of the present Roman Catholic demands would entail.

"Your special committee is of the opinion that their Roman Catholic fellow citizens have been most generously treated and that should the present demands be pressed there will be imminent danger of the creation of bitter and sectarian feelings, all of which is highly to be deprecated."

George Street Y.P.S. Visits Millbrook

Fifty Members of Peterboro Society Enjoy Social Evening.

MILLBROOK, May 15 (Examiner Correspondence) — Approximately fifty of the members of the George Street Church Young People's Society, of Peterborough motored to the village on Monday evening, and were guests of the local Y.P.S. for a social and inspirational gathering.

The evening opened with a recreational period, and sing-song, under the direction of Kenneth Kidd, that effectually broke up any formality, the business of introduction having been happily performed by means of flags, red, white, or blue, pinned on each one as they entered the rooms, the name having been previously written thereon by the two girls who looked after this matter, Barbara Sisco and Marjorie McDowell.

The worship period was an impressive feature of the evening, the injunction for silence and devotion having been issued by Phyllis Kidd who also led in the invocation. Dorothy McDowell read the lesson, after all had sung softly, as a prayer, "Breathe on me, Breath of God." Jean Burnham offered prayer, and the president, Mr. B. B. Dawson, read the worship poem and gave the talk on the theme, "Love, the Principle of Christian Living." This period closed with a story on "Carrying the Divine Fire," by Phyllis Kidd, and a duet, "In the Garden," by Francis Jones and Jean Stinson.

The formal welcome to the visiting young people was made by the local president, Mr. Dawson, who announced that the regular meeting on Monday, May 20, will take the form of an open business session of the executive, when such matters as the organization of a softball team, the annual banquet on June 7, the moving pictures of Cavan and other summer activities, will be discussed.

Guests particularly welcomed were the Presbytery president, Bert Monk, of Bethany; the Rev. J. E. J. Millyard, of Peterborough and the pastor of the hostess society, Rev. A. L. Sisco. The program included piano duets, by A. T. Armstrong and Wilson Ford; a talk on "The Aftermath of Mother's Day," by the Cultural convenor, Francis Jones; which fittingly concluded with the singing of "Home, Sweet Home," by Beatrice and Marjorie McDowell, all joining in the final refrain. Orville Wainman, who won the recent radio contest at Port Hope, and will presently be heard singing over CFRB, contributed a solo, "Stay as sweet as you are," with "Dancing with my Shadow," as the recall, and the accompanists of the evening were Dorothy McDowell, Beatrice Jones and Wilson Ford.

A final recreation period, the service of refreshments and a closing devotional service brought to a conclusion a happy evening of fellowship together for the young people of George Street, and of the community.

Homelike Names Delight Visitor

MONTREAL, May 15 (C.P.)—Among the many features to delight tourists on a visit to Canada are the familiar place-names met with on their travels. Boston, Newark, Florida, Akron and Baltimore, well known in the United States, have namesakes located in Ontario. Paradoxically, Welcome and Go Home are in the same province.

Quebec and the Western provinces put the American visitor at ease with Alameda, Bridgeport, Bronx, Dallas, Denver, Miami, St. Louis, Reno and Forest Hills.

Paradise is in Nova Scotia, while such beauty spots as New Jersey, Nevada, Ohio, Texas, California, Brooklyn, Oakland and Newport are also situated in the Maritimes. Traveller's Rest is a quiet country spot in Prince Edward Island.

On a long trip it is possible to visit Old England, London, Scotland, Ireland, Paris, Holland, Germany, Italy, Genoa, Warsaw, Moscow, Ukrainia, Amsterdam, Stockholm, Venice, Malta, Madrid, Cairo, Wellington, New Zealand, Valparaiso and Porto Rico in a tour across Canada.

SECOND PERIOD OF TRAVEL CLUB

necessity of further adding to that support. Stay with your favorite and boost her to the limit of your resources.

The special prizes are an added incentive to the members to swing into the second period of this popular contest with renewed effort. Four handsome "Aeropack" Ladies' Travelling Bags, just the latest vogue in "Milady's" travelling necessities, are the special prizes being offered for the four Travel Club members turning in the largest amount of money by the evening of May 25th. The money already turned in by any candidate counts for them in these special awards.

Reader—can we impress on you that these special prizes are only a small part of what is in store for the winning candidate? These will just be mementos of the greatest contest that the Peterborough District has ever seen. Were we to try and unfold the rest of the glories that await the successful ladies, the story would be longer than we would care to write. Picture the secret joy of the candidate as, after it is all over, she recalls the pleasant memories of her never-to-be-forgotten New York-Bermuda trip; days of fun and laughter; nights of dreamy moonlight under tropical skies with a feeling of peace and restfulness that will reward her for the strenuous efforts of the campaign. Sunny skies, sparkling water, beautiful scenery, sight-seeing, holidaying, and all the glamorous pleasantries of a dream trip, brought to an actual reality by The Examiner Travel Club campaign.

Ten ladies will actually experience these joys of travel and these fond hopes that they have nurtured in their thoughts, with the probable forlorn realization that they could never come true. Make it come true for them, supporters. No doubt, you have often said to yourselves, since the campaign opened, "Who will the winners be?" Now we'll ask you one. "Who can they be?" And here's the answer. They can only be those ladies who receive the support of their friends. This means YOU.

Save your coupons and see that they either get into the Travel Club Ballot Box or into the hands of your favorite candidate. Each coupon counts one hundred votes for your favorite, but wait—have you stopped to think of how many more hundreds of votes you can give to your favorite with your renewal or with a new subscription? The difference between one vote coupon and one year's subscription is just TWENTY-FIVE THOUSAND, NINE HUNDRED VOTES. Now ask yourself whether you can afford to hold back this support from your favorite. In addition to this number of votes we are bonusing the candidates to the extent of TWO HUNDRED THOUSAND VOTES for every $10.00 turned in up to the end of this week. So as not to break faith with the members in that we positively stated that at no time during the contest would the votes be greater than during the first period, we are awarding these blocks of 200,000 votes for all monies turned in up to the end of this week.

Saturday is the zero hour for the 200,000 vote ballots and remember your support this week means more to your Travel Club member than if held off until next week.

ALL R. C. GROUPS MAY PRESS PLEA ON QUINTUPLETS

Will Petition Ontario Government to Give Babies Back to Parents.

SAYS OTTAWA JOURNAL.

OTTAWA, May 15 (C.P.) — The Ottawa Journal learns an effort to enlist the support of all Roman Catholic social and religious organizations in Ontario and Quebec is being launched to have the Dionne quintuplets returned to their parents.

The Journal says:—

"One spokesman said appeals to the Ontario Government were only starting and 'no stone would be left unturned to obtain results.'

"The natural rights of parents to bring up their own children, be they single, twins, or quintuplets, will be a chief reason in support of representations to be made it was said.

"Associations will be told Mr. and Mrs. Oliva Dionne are in a position to bring up their own children and should they be allowed to do so they will receive the co-operation of relatives, many of whom have gained prominence in ecclesiastical circles.

Professor, First Cousin

"Rev. Father Hector Legros, professor of literature at Ottawa University, a graduate of La Sorbonne University, Paris, France, and recently appointed inspector for the Hull School Board, is a first cousin of Mrs. Dionne.

"Father Josephat Gauvreau, parish priest at Boileau, and Father Felix Labelle of St. Pascal Baylon, are also first cousins, as well as Rev. Brother Olivier, of La Salle Academy, and Rev. Brother Dominique, of Gauvin School, Hull.

"There are two other cousins in the clergy, Father Eugene Legros, brother of Father Hector Legros, and Father Beaudoin, O.M.E., of Mont Joli, Que.

"In addition to these five priests and two members of the order of Christian Brothers, Mrs. Dionne has as first cousins many women who are holding high offices as superiors in institutions administered by religious orders.

"Father Hector Legros declined to express any opinion.

"When questioned about the rumor he planned a visit to Callander, Ont., next Saturday in company with other cousins who are priests, he replied in the affirmative and said he was motoring there. It was learned Father Legros visited Mrs. Dionne a week ago and he returned to Ottawa rather worried over the declining health of Mrs. Dionne. The mother of the quintuplets, it was said, is living in a constant state of sadness.

"Officials of several religious orders, including some of the Ottawa orders, were asked to send nursing sisters to Callander but refused. A refusal was also received from a religious order with headquarters outside of Ottawa diocese, the reason being it would not be a wise thing to have sisters in charge of the hospital while there was so much opposition to present conditions."

SUCCESS

is not brought about by the element of chance.

It can be attained by constructive thinking and right living, for a healthy body will radiate the vitality and magnetism that attract the opportunities which may be used as stepping stones towards the fulfilment of your desires.

The life energy within the body is distributed to all the tissues through the spinal cord and nerves.

Constriction of any nerve fibers along the spine will create a weakness in the parts supplied by those nerves.

Reduction of nerve constrictions by our method of spinal manipulation will help you to enjoy better health and thus aid you in your efforts for happiness and success.

DOCTORS ALASKA BOUND TO STUDY FLU GERMS

PHILADELPHIA, May 15 (A.P.). —A 5,000-mile air-and-water dash in search of a cure for influenza will be started to-morrow by two Philadelphia physicians intent on studying the 'flu' germs which have terrorized Alaskans at Point Barrow for the past three weeks.

An 80-hour schedule—a new record between those two points—has been set up for the trip from Newark, N.J., to Fairbanks, Alaska. It was laid out with the active cooperation of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh.

The physicians, Dr. Horace Pettit and D. Sergeant Pepper, of the University of Pennsylvania's department of bacteriology, expect to carry back with them samples of the germs from which more may be learned about the disease.

HOME VISITING SYSTEM LOWERS RELIEF OUTLAY

Six Weeks' Trial in Brantford Saves City $9,500 a Month.

CROLL ANNOUNCES.

TORONTO, May 15 (C.P.). — Operation in Brantford for the past six weeks of the Ontario Government's home visiting system has reduced the city's relief expenditure at a rate estimated at $9,500 a month, according to a statement to-day by Minister of Welfare David Croll.

At the same time Mr. Croll forecast additional economies through a new zoning system in the city would reduce administrative costs below the level at which they stood prior to inauguration of the system by Government officials.

Since district visitors began investigations in homes of Brantford relief recipients, 520 persons have been removed from the city's relief rolls, the Minister said, because investigation showed they no longer required assistance.

Close Check.

"Some of these cases would never have come to light had it not been for the close check provided by the zone system," he stated, "and in a very large number of other cases sources of income were discovered that did not justify the full allowance that families were receiving."

"The fortunate part of the whole affair," said Mr. Croll, "was that it had not involved any reduction in relief allowances to the great mass of the unemployed—those who honestly need every cent of the assistance they are receiving and who play fair with us.

"In fact, shelter allowances have been increased 25 per cent. and we are still able to show the reduction of $9,500 monthly in relief costs. Further, all employees of the Department are now being paid living wages, instead of working on a part-pay, part-relief basis."

Underwriters Hold Breakfast Meeting

Fifty Peterborough life insurance men gathered at a breakfast meeting of the Life Underwriters' Association here this morning. The meeting, to stimulate enthusiasm in the Life Insurance Week drive now on, was addressed by O. B. Shortly of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company in Toronto.

Mr. Shortly spoke of the insurance man as a singularly fortunate individual in the business world, being dependant almost solely on himself for his successes and failure. He referred to the responsibilities on the shoulder of the insurance man—the responsibilities involved in offering financial advice and in aiding in the solution of death problems. They are serious responsibilities and should be viewed as serious by insurance men Mr. Shortly said.

The speaker claimed that many insurance men have met failure in their endeavours when they sought merely to sell insurance regardless of the needs, rather than fit the insurance to the needs of the individual.

E. L. Sackville, of the Manufacturers' Life Insurance Company, presided over the meeting in the absence of A. R. Piper.

Eel Lights Bulb

NEW YORK, May 5 (C.P.).—The staff of the Aquarium yesterday made an electric eel mad just to turn on a neon lamp bulb. The nearly six-foot long eel will do the stunt for the public beginning to-day.

Every time the fish gets agitated it looses an electric discharge—strong enough to stun other fish which it eats or to light the bulb apparatus. Some eight-foot specimens once burned out a whole series of voltmeters and ammeters with their discharge.

GAS STATION MAN ROBBED

Kingston Operator Robbed After Serving Two Young Men.

$50 IS TAKEN.

KINGSTON, May 15. (CP).—Merle Polk, operator of a gas station at Bath Road, just outside the city limits, was held up at the point of a revolver early to-day and robbed of $50 and a gold watch.

Two young men in a car drove to the station, got three gallons of gasoline and then entered the office, shoving a revolver at Polk and ordering him to stand against the wall. They took what money was in the cash register and also Mr. Polk's watch and then disappeared. Police were notified in Kingston and Napanee and later it was found the car had crashed into a fence half mile north of Napanee on Newburgh Road, but the men had escaped. Approximately 12 policemen have been scouring the country for the men since early morning.

Instead of making a turn in the suburbs of Napanee the car proceeded up a lonely road, crashed through a fence, rolled over several times and was abandoned about 150 feet from the road. The two men fled into the woods.

In the car was found a suit case containing among other articles a suit of clothes similar to the clothes issued to discharged convicts.

The occupants of the car must have received some injuries as all the glass was broken in, the top was crushed and the front axle and wheels badly damaged.

Two members of Confederation Home and School Association, who are leaving Peterborough next week, were honored by their fellow members on Monday evening, when a large number of parents and friends attended the open meeting which followed a short business session. Mrs. W. Harrington and Mrs. J. L. Hughes were each presented with handsome black leather purses and suitably worded addresses, the latter beautifully bound in purple crepe paper and mounted with a spray of yellow roses, thus combining the school colors of purple and yellow. The presentations were made by the president, Mrs. R. King, while the addresses were read by Mrs. E. T. Monk and Mrs. J. Milby, both past presidents of the association. Both recipients replied in appreciative words. Aileen Hughes and Frank Harrington were also remembered, each receiving a box of chocolates. A very interesting and enjoyable program was given by the school pupils, the Rev. J. L. Hughes acting as chairman. Special mention might be made of six pupils from the Third Class, who gave addresses entirely from memory, having prepared them themselves as oral composition tests. The program was as follows: The Lord's Prayer repeated in unison; Chorus by small girls of Miss Johnson's Room; Song by Jackie Storey; Recitation, "A Spring Tonic," by Frank Harrington; Address on Alexander Graham Bell, by Lila Carson; Chorus "Merry Milkmaids," by Third Class girls; Address on "Volcanoes," by Queenie Holden; Address on "Alfred the Great" Stewart MacLaren; President's remarks; Chorus "Love at Home" Fourth Class girls; Address on Florence Nightingale, by Iva Lackie; Chorus, "Cornish May Song," Fouth Class girls; Address on Mozart' by Aileen Hughes, including Mozart's "Minuet," played as a violin selection. Mrs. W. R. Potter played the piano accompaniments for the vocal numbers. The draw for a quilt for which tickets had been sold was held with small Jackie Storey drawing out the winning ticket. This bore the name of Mr. Julien. Mrs. E. Wand past president of the Home and School Council, was present and kindly consented to say a few words. She urged continued and greater interest in the important work of the association and regretted the departure of Mrs. Hughes and Mrs. Harrington. Mrs. T. The chairman, who had previously paid a warm tribute to the popularity and untiring efforts of Mrs. Wand thanked the members and wished them continued success. At the short business meeting presided over by Mrs. R. King the ladies decided to hold a card party on May 31st in the school. The attendance banner was gained by Miss Johnson's room. CORRECT BIDDING AND PROBABLE PLAY

An inquirer states that the hands were bid: West (dealer), 2 clubs; North, 2 spades; South, 3 spades. East led the 10 of diamonds. "How should this hand have been bid and played?"

No system of modern bidding permits an opening bid on a six-card suit unless side strength is held, as the information conveyed is worthless to partner, and only spurs opposing bidding. North never should have bid 2 spades on a four-card suit. He should have made an informatory double, which South should have left in and collected a nice penalty. South should not have supported spades on three small cards. He should have passed or shifted into 2 no trumps. The 10 of diamonds lead was as wrong as could be. You lead from the top of a sequence (the Q in this case). You follow suit from the bottom of a sequence.

Bidding should have gone: North, 1 spade; East (satisfied with the call) shoul dpass; South, 1 no trump (showing no biddable suit, no assisting length in spades and a probable total strength of about two kings); West (hoping to run off six club tricks) should pass; North (having told his whole story and not being long enough in spades to rebid) should pass. Had South shown another suit over spades Nodth could support either red suit, or bid 2 no trumps had partner bid 2 clubs.

Against South's 1 no trump West will lead his ace of clubs, to show great length and strength. Both declarer and dummy will follow suit on the first two leads of clubs. East should first discard his 7 of diamonds, to show what he wants partner to lead, then he should let go his lowest heart, to ask partner not to lead that suit. On the third lead of clubs the dummy may let go its lowest diamond and East probably will let go the 6 of hearts. He must hold four diamonds and four spades for the moment. If West leads his last club honor the declarer will make 2-odd, as his only other losing trick will be to the ace of hearts.

West should not lead a fourth round of clubs, as that will establish a winner of the suit in South's hand, allowing him to win the following tricks: Three spade tricks, two heart tricks, two diamond tricks and one club trick. In case West takes only three club tricks before leading the diamonds for which partner has called, it is probable that only 1 no trump can be made.

ROBERTA'S CHAT

A column conducted by a reader of The Examiner for her other reader friends. Address all mail to Roberta in care of The Examiner.

"Do not despise your situation; in it you must act, suffer, and conquer. From every point of earth, we are equally near to Heaven and the Infinite."
—Amiel.

Dear Friend:

Sometimes we feel we could do so much better, if we were situated differently. If we had a different environment, more influential friends, were more clever, or even better-looking.

Had we more money, a better chance, why, there is no limit to the things we could do.

But, if we cannot use the things we have to good advantage, how then can we fit ourselves for better things?

If we are not satisfied with conditions as they are, we can use every means in our power, to alter them.

Supposing we have come down to bedrock, and are on relief? (and many good people are so situated). Are we then, to let ourselves sink in a mesasma of despair and not try to get out of it?

You ask, how can we better things? We have tried everything.

Even then, we can keep on trying. The wheel of life keeps turning, and the ones who are alert and ready, will be the winners.

As the soldiers in the Great War, had to keep up their morale, so we also, have to keep ours up, in fighting black despair.

Keep knocking at each and every door, and eventually one will open. Don't think I don't know what I'm talking about, for I've been fighting ill-health for years ,and struggling to keep my head above water, for four long years, and now, thank God, there is a faint glimmer of light.

Fortunate are they who have not had to struggle, but to me of course, prayer is the most important thing.

There is a tendency now-a-days, to make out, that God is a law, not a Father. Don't let them fool you. God hears and answers prayers, just as much now, as He did in Bible days.

God has not let us down it is we, who have disappointed Him.

Sometimes we are meant to go through with a certain thing, and there is no way out. Then let us do it, with out courage high, and without whining.

No road is pleasant, without hills and turns, and so it is with life.

Mark you, I'll grant, that it isn't pleasant when we are in the midst of it, but if we have the feeling we are to conquer, what a thrill there is in that. As Robbie Burns said, "What can't be cured, must be endured" and endurance can be the very highest form of courage.

Sometimes, too, we have to suffer, so that we can leave that larger sympathy, for the rest of humanity.

It isn't so much what we suffer as how we bear it. Do we come out defeated? Then the lesson has to be learned all over again, in another form.

All life is a lesson, and those who learn willingly (and that has to be cultivated) come out winners.

So "do not despise your situation," but never overlook an opportunity to better it. "Seek and ye shall find" holds good in the things of daily life, as well as in the scriptures.

Do not despair. Lift up your heart, and the thing to remember is, that there is a law of compensation in life, and for all we suffer, there shall be other things, which will make us glad.

Your friend,
Roberta.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

These clever "upside down" cakes make complete desserts because they include both fine fruit and tender cake in perfect combination. Of course they can't be made from any standard cake recipe because the flour and shortening would make them too crumbly.

PEACH UPSIDE DOWN CAKE

1¼ cups sifted cake flour; 1¼ teaspoons baking powder; ¼ teaspoon salt; ¾ cup granulated sugar; 4 tablespoons butter; ½ cup brown sugar, firmly packed; 4 tablespoons soft butter or other shortening; 1 egg, well beaten; ½ cup milk; 1 teaspoon vanilla; 2 cups sliced peaches (fresh or canned).

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder, salt, and granulated sugar, and sift together three times. Add butter. Combine egg, milk, and vanilla. Add to flour mixture stirring until all flour is dampened; then beat vigorously 1 minute.

Melt 4 tablespoons butter in 8 x 8 x 2 pan or 8-inch skillet, over low flame. Add brown sugar (¼ teaspoon nutmeg may be mixed with brown sugar, if desired); stir until melted. On this arrange peach slices. Turn batter over contents of pan. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 50 minutes, or until done. Loosen cake from sides of pan with spatula or broad blade knife. Serve cake upside down with peaches on top. Garnish with whipped cream.

Canned pineapple, cooked apricots, or sliced apples may be used instead of peaches.

Letters From Mission Read To Parker W.A.

The Elizabeth Parker Auxiliary of Trinity United Church met on Monday evening in the ladies' parlor. A most interesting and helpful program was prepared by Mrs. S. Harrison and her committee, Miss Lois Stewart and Mrs. C. Taylor.

After the devotional part of the meeting in charge of Miss Wilma Skuce and Miss Edith Preston, Mrs. H. Beatty read an editorial from the Missionary Monthly, entitled "What is Money?" Mrs. H. V. Dobson sang "My Task," in a very pleasing manner.

Two letters from Miss Vera Boyd, a nurse in Neemuch, Central India, were read by Mrs. S. Harrison. The first one told of the work in the women's hospital, where Miss Boyd is in charge of the training of the native nurses. These girls, who enter training very young, usually with very little education, and from tiny homes where they have had little training, have no idea of discipline and sanitation and present a real problem for the missionaries who train them. The second letter described Christmas at the mission. The missionaries have discovered a tree which they can keep fresh for days and are able to have a Christmas tree and celebrate as they would at home in spite of the fact that they were living in a tent at that time, and outdoor conditions were so different from what they were accustomed to. These letters were kindly loaned by members of the Living Link Mission Circle who correspond with Miss Boyd.

At the close of the meeting a social hour was enjoyed. The June meeting will take the form of a picnic and Mrs. W. Derry very kindly invited the members to hold it on her grounds.

FAMILY HONORS MRS. A. RADCLIFFE

Three Sisters Among Guests on Event of 65th Birthday Anniversary.

BONARLAW, May 15.—(Examiner Correspondence.)—A very pleasant event took place on May 10, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Adam Radcliffe, on the 11th concession of Rawdon township, it being the occasion of Mrs. Radcliffe's 65th birthday anniversary. Among those present were her sisters, Mrs. Jane Adams of Belleville, Mrs. Herrington from Madoc, and Mrs. Albert Wellman of the 14th concession of Rawdon.

The day was spent in recalling pleasant memories of the older ones. These are the only surviving members of the family of the late William and Nancy Scrimshaw, who came to Rawdon in the year of 1852 and hewed their homes from the forest. In the evening a sumptuous dinner was served.

J. C. Cooper, aged 80, a skipper, who was twice torpedoed during the World war, was married recently at Lowstoft, England, to Miss Hannah Aggas, aged 80, whom he met last summer.

TRENT RIVER, May 15. (Examiner Correspondence)—A special feature of Mother's Day service at Donegal Sunday School was the honor bestowed on five of the oldest mothers of the district. Mrs. James Buck of Detroit was unable to be present and her favorite hymn "All the Way My Saviour Leads Me" was sung, so each of the other four—Mrs. Paul Scott, Mrs. Alex. McGee, Mrs. R. Special music was furnished by the Bongard orchestra of Norwood. Mrs. Claud Bongard played the piano accompaniments. The school orchestra led by Miss Hazel Elliott with the Misses Mildred and Evelyn Stevenson at the piano contributed two numbers. Other musical numbers were a vocal solo by Velma McNeely; chorus by the small children of the Sunday School; a number by the male quartette—Dewart McNeely, Maynard Bongard Jack Stewart and Earl Bongard. Mr. David Stark read the story "Big Business."

The address of the afternoon was delivered most efficiently by Mrs. (Rev.) Clelland of Norwood United Church. Mr. Harry Wildman, superintendent of the Sunday School, had charge of the program.

Income Of Royal Family Nearly $3,000,000 a Year

Britain's royal family, more than ever in the spotlight at the moment owing to the silver jubilee of King George's coronation, is a costly luxury as the layout above portrays. In addition to these annual sums, totaling $2,835,000, which are paid out of the British treasury every year, the Prince of Wales has his own revenues that amount to $300,000, and the king collects some $300,000 yearly in revenues from the Duchy of Lancaster. British people, however, believe the royal family worth that—as being the unifying force that binds the empire. In Queen Victoria's day, however, parliament often balked at new grants of revenues to the royal family.

Lindsay Town Council in "Tight Corner" Due to Rival Factions.

PROTEST LEGAL EXPENSE.

LINDSAY, May 15 (C.P.).—The citizens have members of the Town Council in a tight corner over the approaching beer and wine sale plebiscite, it developed yesterday.

With Col. R. I. Moore, barrister, as plaintiff, a writ was issued and served on W. R. Allely, town clerk, yesterday, seeking to restrain him, as returning officer, from taking a vote on the question of whether or not beer and wine authorities should be issued to standard hotels and clubs.

Monday night Town Council passed a motion prohibiting council as a whole or any member of council from entering into any further legal costs in connection with the plebiscite, scheduled to take place June 28.

It was decided to take the beer and wine vote after a petition signed by 25 per cent. of the taxpayers of Lindsay had been presented to council.

Because of council's motion about legal expense, the town clerk cannot consult the municipal solicitor about the writ.

If council proceeds with the plebiscite, it is threatened with action by those in sympathy with Col. Moore. If the vote is abandoned, the 25 per cent. of the taxpayers who signed the petition asking for it, will have to be answered.

"Lindsay is supposedly going to be the trial horse for Toronto and other places in connection with this liquor vote," Dr. H. Logan, chairman of the finance committee, stated at Monday night's meeting of council.

Kilkenny, Irish Free State, reports that a mission conducted recently by the Redemptorist and Vincentian Fathers effectively stifled communism in the city.

IMPERIAL PRODUCTS

THE SIGN OF A FAIR DEAL

THE Three-Star Imperial oval sign marks a place where you can buy with confidence; where you can be sure of good value and full measure.

It is the symbol of an organization that has steadily improved the quality and consistently reduced the price of petroleum and petroleum products — for gasoline prices today are lower than ever before.

The Three-Star Imperial oval sign stands for a fair deal to all: to you, the consumer, and to the labor engaged in making and marketing Imperial products. The thousands of Imperial Oil workers are well treated. Five thousand of them are part owners of the Company. They are paid good wages. They have sickness and death benefits and old age pensions which mean that in affliction or old age they and their families do not become dependent on funds which must be raised by taxation.

Because they are fairly treated, Imperial Oil employees work loyally, enthusiastically and enterprisingly. That is why, through the years, it has been possible steadily to improve the quality and consistently to lower the price of Imperial gasoline and oils.

RESIDENTS RUSH FOR CITIZENSHIP

Calgary Court Busy as Applicants Hope to Come Under Social Credit Plan.

$25 MONTHLY DIVIDEND.

CALGARY, May 15. (CP).—Unnaturalized residents of Alberta, admitting they were being spurred by prospects of the 'basic dividend' under a social credit government, are rushing for naturalization papers and to-day a second court to hear the applications was opened.

At the present time between 50 and 55 applications are granted every week. Previously about five gained citizenship every two weeks.

There are approximately 350 names on the waiting list posted at the Calgary court house and, it is estimated, about 600 have applied for papers, the step before being called into court to be examined.

Under the Alberta Social Credit League plans for social credit each person more than 21 years old would be granted a basic dividend, expected to be $25 monthly, and social credit speakers have stated this would be increased later to $75.

The impression prevails unnaturalized residents would not be eligible for the dividends.

Maybe She's Not So "Sublime" Now

Lord Revelstoke

The young lady on the (left), known as Angela Joyce, but christened Ivy Dawkins was, according to letter read in London court and alleged to have been written by the young man (above), Lord Revelstoke, "the supremest, superbest, sublimest girl in the world." But the young scion of the famous English banking house of Baring Brothers, London, is not of the same opinion now and Miss Joyce has hailed him into court to defend a breach of promise action. Miss Joyce, a few years ago, won the title of "Miss England" in a beauty contest, went to Hollywood, but doesn't seem to have "clicked" there, as yet.

CAMP CLOSED AT GOODERHAM

Other Camps Are Expected to Close in the Haliburton Area.

500 MEN AFFECTED.

LINDSAY, May 15 (Examiner Correspondence).—The provincial road camp at Gooderham closed last night as a result of instructions received from Queen's Park. The men in this camp were from Hamilton and other Western points. It was announced that the camp at Dongola and Silver Lake employing a large number of Lindsay men, would also close. Government officials stated the camps are being closed because of lack of financial co-operation on the part of the Federal government. The closing of the Dongola camp will greatly increase Lindsay relief problem. This affects some 500 men.

Home and School Association News

THE QUEEN MARY SCHOOL.

The May meeting of the Queen Mary Home and School Association was held at the school on Monday evening.

Mrs. J. E. Middleton, the president, presided and opened the meeting with the singing of "O Canada."

The secretary's and treasurer's reports were read and approved, and some items of business discussed.

The brunch planned to have a membership canvass during this month and many of the members took lists of parents to call to try and increase the attendance at these helpful meetings.

Miss Mary Medd then favored the gathering with two vocal numbers which were pleasing. The representative to the Local Council of Women, Mrs. W. G. Scott, gave a very interesting paper reviewing the past three months' meetings of this group.

Mrs. H. M. Ross, delegate to the annual convention of Ontario Federation of Home and School Associations, held in Toronto recently, gave a splendid review of the three days of this assembly.

It was regretted that a larger number of members were not present.

Be Beautiful

By GLADYS GLAD

"Dear Miss Glad: I reached my sixteenth birthday yesterday, and among other gifts, I received some very lovely perfume. Having just reached the 'young lady' age, however, I have not as yet had much experience with perfumes, and am at a loss to know how to apply them advantageously. I know that, when improperly used, perfume can prove more of a detriment than an asset, and I'd be grateful if you could advise me as to how to apply my perfume so that it enhances my attractiveness. LOLA."

Moderation is half the secret of success in applying perfume, for perfume must be subtle, alluring, and never blatant or over-powering. A fine perfume atomizer is admirable for applying perfume, as eau an atomizer distributes the scent lightly and evenly. However, scents should always be applied directly to the skin, and not to any portion of one's clothing. Materials have scents of their own, and when you apply perfume to a fabric, the resultant odor may be anything but pleasing. Spray your perfume lightly on your wrists, arms, neck and behind your ears. The warmth of the skin will expedite the evaporation of the alcohol, and will bring out more fully the sweet fragrance of the precious flower oils.

"Dear Miss Glad: I've just purchased my new spring ensemble, and it sure is a honey. I'm certainly going to looke like the Queen of Sheba this spring! And it really is you who made it possible, for with my former tubby torso, I'd never have been able to procure such smart styles. I followed the reducing course in your 'New Figure' booklet, however, and lost over 33 pounds. And it certainly made a great deal of difference in my appearance. However, I once read that cuticle remover could be used to remove callouses from the hands. Is that true? RUBY."

Yes, it is true that cuticle remover can be used to take callouses off the hands, and the process is very simple. Dip a cotton-tipped orangewood stick into some good cuticle remover, and touch it to the calloused spot. After a moment, make a second application. Then wash your hands in tepid, soapy water, letting them soak for a few minutes. When drying them, rub the towel briskly over the callosites. You'll find that this will help remove all the deadened tissue, and will leave the spots soft and smooth. After such a treatment, however, use a good hand lotion to counteract any drying effects and to preserve the satin-smoothness of your hands.

EDITOR'S NOTE: To obtain Miss Glad's pamphlets on 'The New Figure' and 'Beauty Culture' write, care of this paper, enclosing a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, and ten cents in coin for each, to cover cost of printing and handling.

District Churches

AT LAKEFIELD

LAKEFIELD, May 15.—(Examiner Correspondence).—In St. Andrew's Presbyterian church a children's choir provided special music at the morning service and excelled themselves in the quality of their performance. In the evening the choir sang two special numbers, which were especially fine. Rev. Mr. Eustance of Montreal was in charge of the service.

BAPTIST CHURCH

In the Baptist church special services both morning and evening marked Mother's Day. Mr. Walter Walker sang a very appropriate solo in splendid voice, "Mother's Prayers Have Followed Me". The sermon in the morning, preached by Rev. W. B. Walker, was taken from the 14th verse of the 31st chapter of Proverbs, "Mother, God's Merchantship."

In the evening the theme was motherhood, mother's love and her high calling, her loyalty, her petition, motherhood and its ideals.

In the Sunday school the Mother's Day program was followed.

UNITED CHURCH

The Lakefield United church was filled to capacity for the following service. The Sunday school was in the church (two hundred and thirteen strong) and Mr. A. B. Burrows, the superintendent, and Mr. Hugh Barrett, the assistant superintendent, assisted the pastor, Rev. W. R. Archer, B.A. Donald and Tommy Milburn sang a duet and Jimmie Webster read the scripture. Rev. W. R. Archer gave an illustrated address to the children. The Young Worshippers League numbered more than sixty. Ten new members were received into the church during the day and in the afternoon five babies and a small boy were baptized.

In the evening the choir gave a song service with six special numbers linked together with short addresses by the pastor, making a suitable and very beautiful programme for the close of Mother's Day.

Tiger Power!

Last year this group of Detroit Tigers were all .300 hitters or better—the main reason Detroit grabbed the American League pennant, they were playing over their heads said the experts—and opening games seemed to bear that out. However Mickey Cochrane is a fighter and after the disastrous start his Tigers began to regain their old-time form. All these lads, including Schoolboy Rowe were members of the 1934 championship squad. Rowe led the team's pitchers in effectiveness last year.

Listaro Remains Favorite For King's Guineas

BIRKOFER HAS BRILLIANT FORM IN PIRATE WIN

Former Leaf Moundsman Pitches Pittsburg to Victory Against Phillies.

ONE NATIONAL GAME.

(By Herbert W. Barker, Associated Press Sports Writer.)

Maybe Big Ralph Birkofer will fill that large hole in Pittsburgh Pirates' southpaw pitching staff after all.

When the Pirates sent Larry French and Freddie Lindstrom to Chicago Cubs for Guy Bush, Jim Weaver and Babe Herman, Manager Pie Traynor evidently was counting heavily upon Birkofer to take charge of all the left-handed pitching the club would need. French, of course, is one of the National League's ranking southpaws, but Birkofer, in his first full season with the Cornairs, won 11 games and lost 12 for a fifth-place outfit in 1934.

For a time this Spring, it looked as though the Pirates had made a bad guess, for Birkofer couldn't get untracked. It was not until yesterday, as a matter of fact, that the young left-hander succeeded in pitching a complete game and in chalking up his first victory.

Birkofer gave the Phillies 11 hits but was so effective in the clinches that it was not until the eighth that a double by Ethan Allen and a single by John Moore saved them from a shut out. The Pirates, in hitting form, shelled the reformed infielder, Bill (Bucky) Walters, and John Pezzullo for 14 hits and won 8-1. Walters, the only pitcher on the Phillies' staff who has pitched a complete game this year, got by the first two innings, but the Cornairs jumped on him for six hits, including doubles by Lloyd Waner, Gus Suhr and Harry Lavagetto, and five runs in the third before Pezzullo could be summoned to the rescue. That, to all intents and purposes, was the end of the ball game.

Sixth Pirate Win

The victory was the Pirates' sixth in 11 games in the East, and left them a game and a half behind the fourth-place St. Louis Cardinals.

This was the only National League game that escaped the Weather Man's jinx.

YANKS' PITCHING EASY FOR TIGERS

Getting good pitching from Alvin Crowder, Detroit Tigers made it two in a row from the New York Yankees 10-4, and climbed to within a single game of the Yankees and Washington Senators, who are tied for fourth position. The champions, hopping on Johnny Broaca for three runs in the first and on Russ Van Atta for three more in the third, two coming in on walks with the bases filled, never were in trouble. Crowder allowed 10 hits where they would do the least damage.

Second place Cleveland got three hit pitching from Mel Harder and beat the Senators 4-2.Hal Trosky's fifth home run with two on in the sixth was the blow that wrecked the Senators and Earl White. The victory put the Indians within a game of Chicago White Sox.

Smart Action At Second Base—But Runner is Safe

The camera-man caught here what may turn out to be one of the best action shots from the 1935 baseball season. At least it shows a real try for a putout when Chicago Cubs met the New York Giant. Billy Herman, Cub second-baseman is making a desperate lunge for the ball as Mel Ott, slugging Giant outfielder, slides into the bag. Ott was safe, Herman unable to reach the pill fast enough as Mel rode in.

PREDICTS DECISIVE KNOCKDOWN IN HIS NEXT FIGHT WITH ROSS

But McLarnin Not Sure He Will Be Prospective 'Knocker-downer.'

CARELESSNESS COSTLY.

NEW YORK, May 15. — (CP) — Jimmy McLarnin had unburdened himself today of this prediction:

"There will be a decisive knockdown in my fight against Barney Ross."

The prediction as to how the duel for the cherubic Vancouver Irishman's welterweight title here May 28 May may go was unique in that mild, modest James Archibald did not name himself as the prospective "knocker-downer."

While enjoying a day of leisure in the quiet of his training camp at Swan Lake, N.Y., yesterday, Jimmy said:

"Familiarity breeds contempt. We've met twice and we are familiar with each other's fighting style. This may result in a bit of carelessness, and after the carelessness who knows."

McLarnin Weighs 146

Manager 'Pop' Foster decreed the day for the personable titleholder becauseof his deep satisfaction with his young charge's condition. McLarnin now weighs 146 and Foster hopes to keep him there until the night he climbs into the Polo Grounds ring against his scrappy opponent from Chicago.

"He's looser and moving better than at any time in his career. I don't think the fight will last 10 rounds," said 'Pop' Foster.

Quite willing to agree with Foster's prophesy as to the likely length of the fight were the handlers of the stylish Rces, who has been sharpening his sights at Ferndale, scarcely 10 miles from the McLarnin tepee. They, of course, predicted their man would score the K.O.

Neither was Phil Rafferty, one of the two sparring partners who faced Barney for a total of four rounds yesterday, a dissenter. As he left the ring he said:

"That Guy Ross had four left hands in there, and the Boxing mission allows only one."

Texas Pros. Defend "Babe" Didrikson

DALLAS, Texas, May 15. (AP). Texas golf professionals rushed today to the defence of Mildred "Babe" Didrikson and her standing as a links amateur, in opposition to the decision of the United States Golf Association.

The concensus of 30-play-for-pay Texans assembled here for their annual championship was that the U.S.G.A. had ruled out the only United States girl who has ever had a real chance to win the British women's championship.

"It's absolutely a disgrace to the U.S.G.A." declared George Aulbach, former British star.

Babe Rejected

NEW YORK, May 15.—(AP).—The United States Golf Association announced today it had advised the Southern Women's Golf Association to reject the entry of Mildred Babe Didrikson, Texas all-around athlete, for the 1935 Southern championship to be played at Louisville starting May 20.

The Golf Association has been conducting an investigation into Miss Didrikson's activities as a professional baseball and basketball player.

Eddie Mayo Helps Bird Teammates With 3 Hits in 5 Times Up.

BISONS BEAT STARS.

(By The Associated Press)

Toronto Maple Leafs found themselves a half-game to the rear of Newark Bears in the International League pennant race to-day because they were unable to take advantage of the league leaders' idleness at Montreal.

With a chance to take over first place, the Leafs were unable to solve Harry Gumbert's pitching and stop Eddie Mayo's hitting, with the result they fell before Baltimore Orioles, 6-3, yesterday.

While Gumbert was holding the winners of the 1934 play-offs to six hits, four of which were made in the first and last innings, striking out eight, Mayo connected with a triple and two doubles in five times at bat to drive in three of Baltimore's runs.

Extra base wallops also give Buffalo Bisons a 4-3 triumph over Syracuse Chiefs after 11 innings. Ray Fitzgerald cracked out a home run in the fourth to score two runs and then after the Chiefs apparently had the game sewed up, Ollie Carnegie came through with a circuit swat in the last of the ninth to knot the score. Buddy Meyers opened the 11th with a triple and rode home with the winning run on McFarland's fly to deep centre.

Boost in Standings

The victories of Baltimore and Buffalo boosted the two clubs into a tie with the idle Rochester Red Wings for fourth place each having a percentage of .500. Although rained out the Royals held third place a game back of Newark and a half-game to the rear of the Leafs.

DOZEN LIKELY SURE STARTERS IN TURF EVENT

Listaro From McLaughlin Stable Remains Top Favorite to Cop Duke.

CLASS OF HORSEFLESH.

By D. E. BURRITT
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

TORONTO, May 15. (CP).—The sturdy little gelding, Listaro, whose popularity began to fade with origin of rumors he was suffering from leg trouble, to-day was backed by all the confidence necessary to make him top favorite for the 76th running of the exclusive King's Plate at Woodbine Park Saturday.

From a nomination list of 41 three-year-olds and up there appeared to be an even dozen possible starters for the historic classic open to Ontario-foaled and trained thoroughbreds.

hough there has been nothing very impressive in the work-outs of Listaro observes looked back on complete victories from his three starts last season, coupled with his appearance this spring in company that admittedly is below the usual King's Plate standards.

The high-strung son of the Romp II out of Listen Dearie, who received his daily exercise at a quiet spot down the back stretch of the Woodbine oval, has never been put to a severe test over the mile and a furlong plate distance. However, in company with Eileen D., also from Parkwood Stables owned by R. S. McLaughlin, Listaro raced over the distance almost in middle track in 1.57 3/5.

With Listaro will be entered under the name of Trainer Harry Giggins, McLaughlin's three-year-old colt Epicurus, in the effort by the powerful Parkwood Staple to retain the plate, first donated by Queen Victoria in 1859.

Besides the McLaughlin entry the field possibly will be composed of W. H. Wright's Tax Free and Worthing; Gay Sympathy and Sally Fuller from the Seagram stables; J. E. Smallman's Rightfoot; T. S. Cochenour's Papal'eo; S. B. Crawford's Goggles; Robert Graham's Beechview and Harry C. Hatch's Chickpea and Donstick whose training efforts have been kept secred.

At Long Branch, on the outskirts of Toronto however, it was learned they slipped over the mile in 1.44 2/5 but their coverage of the full Plate course was not revealed.

Attention of railbirds was focused on the performances of Worthing and Tax Free, a three-year-yearold gelding which has never even started in any race. The pair travelled over a fast track in 1.58 3/5, compared with 1.54 1/5, the record for the King's Plate established by McLaughlin's Horometer last spring.

There has been much speculation over the possibilities of the Hatch entries going to the post, but observers at the track said the candidates had been put through their paces for the plate distance and had given a creditable performance.

Gay Sympathy, the filly from the Seagram stable which held the trophy at various times for 19 years, was considered one of the leading threats to the McLaughlin challenge; while Trainer George Alexandra makes no secret of the fact that he is hoping for a heavy track for Smallman's Rightfoot. Otherwise it is doubtful if Rightfoot will start—and in that case Alexandra, one of the leading money winners on the southern tracks, says there is no doubt about Listaro's victory.

BIG FIFTH TURNS TIDE FOR WINNERS

St. James' Juniors Easy Victims for Fast-stepping George St. Crew.

MURRAY ST. FALLS 18-5.

In the four Church Softball League games played last night some poor and some good playing was shown. George Street juniors and bantams won and lost, the former from St. James at Nicholls Oval, 19-8 and the bantams to Park Street, 12-14, at Queen Mary School. Mark Street seniors won from Trinity at King Edward School, 14-13; St. Paul's juveniles beat Murray Street 18-5 at Queen Mary's School.

Mark Street Seniors Win

Last year's seniors champs were hard pressed to win from a rebuilt Trinity crew. The Mark team were behind most of the way and only a big 5th inning saved them. Nicholls, Trinity's veteran twirler, and H. Hunter were not given the best of support which meant a good sized score. M. Hunter did some nice hitting for Mark Street, with Curry playing nice afield and at bat. Parsons also went well. Sage and McFadden went best for Trinity with Nicholls and Mattice batting well.

Mark Street (14)—Parsons, ss; Ferguson, c; M. Hunter, 1b; Curry, rf; Brady, 3b; Darwin, lf; R. Hunter, p; Sager, 2b, G. Hunter, cf.

Trinity (13)—Nicholls, p; Wolstenholme, 2b; Mattice, c; McBain, 1b; Clark, lf; Sage, cf; K. Gadd, rf; McFadden, ss; Kelly, 3b; M. Gadd, 3b.

Mark Street ... 201 063 0—14
Trinity ..... 013 143 1—13

Umpires: G. Broadley, R. Charlton.

George Street Juniors vs. St. James

St. James had only a shell of their powerful championship team of the last two years to throw against an up and coming George Street team at Nicholls Oval. Their pitching, supplied by Todd and Heal, was not the most effective against George Street's heavy hitters. Gunsolus, of last year's Juvenile champs, had seven strikeouts against the south-enders; he also batted well, getting four hits. Leggett and English each got two hits, both pulling out homers. Ward, Leggett and McClelland were good in the field.

St. James (8)—Heal, 2b, p; Berwick, 3b; Speqcely, lf; Todd, p, 2b; Leggett, c; English, 1b; Lawson, ss; Grose, cf; Murdiff, rf.

George Street (19)—Ward, 3b; Cassie, c; Wright, cf; McClelland, 1b; Burnham, rf; Roberts, 2b; Rutherford, lf; Gunsolus, p; Weese ss.

George Street.. 146 026 x—19

Umpires: N. Bowler, H. Vollans.

St. Paul's 18, Murray Street 5

With their crack pitcher, Moorhead, running up a dozen strikeouts with his fast ball, St. Paul's had a rather easy session with the Baptists. McGregor for Murray Street made it a pitching duel until the last two innings when the Presbyterians picked off 13 runs. Both pitchers batted well. D. Crary and McCartney also went well both ways.

Umpires: J. Morrow, G. McKinnon.

Park Street vs. George Street

Park Street Bantams, who look to be the pick of the bantam section, were behind most of the way but clinched the game in the last inning with 8 runs. Sanderson was very effective in all but three innings for Park Street, with Parnall being hit more frequently. Murrphy, Parnall and Weaver batted well. Tarkington, Weese, and Hamilton were best in the field.

Park Street (14)—Tarkington, c; Sanderson, p; Bucknell, cf, Herb. Campbell, 1b; Weaver, rf; Martin, ss; Hal Campbell, 2b; Miles, 3b; Briscoe, lf.

George Street (12) — Hamilton, ss; Routley, 2b; Parnall, p; Murphy, c; Weese, 3b; Carter, 1b; Smith cf; Woodgate, cf; Dundas, lf; Willshaw, rf.

Shortstopping For N.Y. Yankees

FRANK CROSETTI

Shortstopping for the New York Yankees this year is Frank Crosetti, shown in action above, who has been around with Ruppert's Rifles in a more or less important place for several seasons. Crosetti handles himself well on the field and should keep the short fielding post well filled as McCarthy's Yanks seek to regain some lost glory.

DAY BY DAY

The Central Ontario Senior Baseball league schedule is released today and calls for Johnson Motors (Petes' new moniker) to entertain the Dominion Brewers (Oshawa's Old Time Dukes) in the first game here on Victoria Day, May 24, the Petes travelling to Oshawa on the day following, Saturday. An idea comes from Belleville, that may be put into force here for the opening even though at this late date. An old baseball fan suggests that all old time baseball rooters hold a re-union dinner and maybe just a gathering and attend the opener on the holiday. We call this an excellent idea especially as there are plenty of old boys still around.

• • • • • •

With the release of the C.O.B.I. schedule we are in receipt of the regular bulletin from Secretary Neut Thompson in which he gives a short resume of the schedule, which we are passing on to you: "You will note Kingston is scheduled to play in Peterborough on Saturday, August 3rd, but if Peterborough prefers Monday, August 5th, for this game on Civic Holiday, they may so arrange with Kingston.

• • • • • •

The schedule was a bit difficult to arrange as various dates and days for games were requested. Kingston is scheduled for May 22, June 3 and July 1, but have one Friday game; Belleville have May 24, July 1, and as desired Civic Holiday and two Friday games; Peterborough have May 24, July 1, and if desired, Civic Holiday and one Wednesday. Oshawa requested their first trip to Kingston toward the latter part of June—a double-header in Kingston on July 1 and their last game in Kingston around the latter part of July."

• • • • • •

In reviewing some of the important legislation passed at recent C.O.B.I. executive meetings, Thompson writes: "A new procedure was adopted in regard to the play-offs. The teams finishing in third and second place to engage in a three-game elimination series, with the second place team having choice of dates and grounds. The team winning this season to engage in a five-game series with the team having won first place, with the first place team having choice of dates and grounds. The team winning this series to represent the C.O.B.I. in O.B.A.A. playdowns."

The City and District Gals' softball loop is bound for a big season this year with the receipt of Bailieboro's entry on Tuesday, the league is now rounded out into a four team senior section and five-club intermediate ground. The regular playing schedule will be drawn up at Thursday night's meeting at the usual hangout and before dropping this subject we have been asked to run a note to the effect that any girl who wants to play intermediate ball should attend the meeting held at 409 Water street on May 20, at 8 o'clock.

The Men's city league executive have asked for aid. This year as in other seasons past work has been going forward in putting the Central school grounds in shipshape condition for the opening of the league on Friday night. The diamond is pretty well glutted with some sticks and stones and the executive is calling a neighborhood 'chivaree' for Thursday night in which all the players from the three city teams and all outsiders who are interested in the progress of this pastime are requested to be on hand and help clear up the debris. Everybody's shoulder to the wheel would clear up the lot in a short time, "Many hands make light work," you know.

Here and There: A monster swimming and aquatic meet is being sponsored by the Y.M.C.A. for this Saturday evening. This is by far the biggest meet ever held in this city with representatives from Kingston, Belleville, Oshawa and Orillia taking part, besides the local entries . . . . Lindsay has accepted the invitation from the Rama Indian lacrosse club . . . . Church league games tonight—George St. vs. Murray St. seniors, King Edward park; Mark St. vs. George St. Juveniles, Nicholls Oval; St. James vs. Trinity Juveniles, Queen Mary school; St. John's vs. St. James' bantams, King Edward . . . . The C.G.E. girls' softball team will practise at Bowl (Wednesday) at 6.00 . . . . Again We Challenge Dad:

Buy your Boy a C·C·M· NOW- If he doesnt pass his EXAMS we will take back the bike and refund your money

During 1932, 1933 and 1934 so many dads told us and our dealers that this CHALLENGE had been such a wonderful means of stimulating their boys in their school and home work that we decided to repeat it again this year.

One father said, "After I took you up on your challenge and bought my boy a C.C.M. he just couldn't bear the thought of having to take it back to the dealer if he didn't pass. He buckled right down to his studies and stood higher in his class at midsummer than ever before."

Girls' Bicycles Included in this Offer

A girl enjoys cycling just as much as a boy, and is equally entitled to a reward for good school work.

This Challenge Offer applies to new C.C.M. Bicycles and to the Midsummer Term Exams only. Claims for a refund must be made to the dealer from whom the new C.C.M. Bicycle was purchased within one week of the announcement of the examination results.

The great advantage of buying the bicycle NOW is that your boy will be able to enjoy a full season's use of it, and he is just rarin' to get on and ride.

This year C.C.M. models — boys', girls', adults' — have seamless steel tube frames of aeroplane lightness; the easy-running C.C.M. Triplex Hanger; Hercules Coaster Brake; comfortable suspension saddles; Endrick rims; rustless steel spokes; new, racy Dunlop tires; bright parts Chromium plated over C.C.M. 20-Year Nickel, insuring a brilliance that lasts. At to-day's prices C.C.M. Bicycles are truly wonderful values.

200 GOLFERS TAKE OFF IN FIRST SERIES

Ontario Golf Association Handicap Field Day Held at Ancaster.

ANCASTER, May 15 (CP)—Approximately 200 presented arms at the Hamilton Golf and Country Club here to-day as the preliminary shots in the 135 Canadian Golf campaign were fired under captain of the Ontario Golf Association handicap field day.

With an original entry of well over 100 low handicap shotmakers from all over the province, post entries swelled the total of starters to more than 200 and, despite a start at nine o'clock this morning, it is anicipated finishing players will not leave the first tee until nearly six o'clock this evening.

Because the Canadian amateur and interprovincial matches will be held on this course shortly, many title aspirants are included in to-day's entry, seeking to familiarise themselves with the difficult layout.

Par of 70 will hardly be seriously threatened by many, it is anticipated, because of the necessity of driving every shot to its fullest extent, on direct line, but officials nevertheless are keenly optimistic the event will produce some of the sharpest sniping this event has yet seen.

TAX FREE SHOWS FINE PLATE TRIAL

Wright Colorbearer Steps Mile in 1.42 3-5 and Plate Distance in 1.56 3-5.

TORONTO, May 15. — Tuesday morning saw another pair of real King's Plate threats gallop into the centre of the King's Plate picture. Trainer "Murt" MacIver of the W. H. Wright stable gave the railbirds something to talk about when he sent Worthing and Tax Free the full Plate distance of one mile and one-eighth to equal the best time made so far this season for the Plate distance.

After galloping one circle of the oval MacIver had the Wright colorbearers break from the eighth pole. Here are the fractional times: 26 3-5, .50 1-5, 1.16 2-5, 1.42 3-5, and the full Plate distance in 1.56 3-5. This equals the time made last Sunday by the Parkwood Stable's candidates Epicurus and Eileen D.

This outstanding work by the Wright candidates makes them real serious threats for this year's guineas.

The extensive stable of George M. Hendrie, vice-president of the Ontario Jockey Club, arrived at Woodbine Park Monday. The stable consists of nine, as follows: Rock Dee, Ne Benedictine, Shang Gee, Glanford, Storm Blown, Loussiemouth, Rock Sure, Mace and Boca Chici.

"Whitey" Abel Arrives

Another arrival at Woodbine Park Tuesday was the stable of "Whitey" Abel. This stable consists of seven, which include St. Morits, Just Fun, Marmion, Rustic Rest and his recent claim, Orthoprism.

Stand Pat, good handicap performer in the E. P. Seagram stable, worked three-eighs in .37 flat. Santan, crack two-year-old, the property of the same owner, also worked three-eighs in .37.

A carload of jumpers is expected from Baltimore to-day. The shipment consists of the following owners: Mrs. John Bosley, John Bosley and Major C. L. Drennan.

Another stable that is on the way to Woodbine Park from Baltimore is that of Jim Arthur. Arthur is sending four, namely, Jambalay, Bokie B., Holland and Inly Foolin'.

The steeplechase course will be thrown open to owners of steeplechasers to-day. It is expected that many will take the opportunity of schooling their charges through the field before opening day.

GYPSY GIRL

THE STORY OF AN IMPASSIONED ROMANCE

McDONALD FEATURES

CHAPTER 26

After a while Madame came out alone. Her words tumbled from French into English and back into French, and with the assistance of both languages she could not find the words she wanted to describe the gypsy girl. Apparently she had never seen anyone so beautiful or with such a perfect body, or such shapely legs. And the color of her skin! Madame went into ecstasies. That ochre skin was the shade every woman was trying to get with paint and powder and not succeeding. And her hair—Mon Dieu! Words were useless, less than nothing. and Madame flung up her hands and said, "Wait my good friend, until you see what we are doing to her," and she disappeared again.

Doug stuck his hands in his pockets and waited. He knew Madame and he knew the size of her bills, but even for a good sale he had never heard her rave so before. He grinned to himself, "And dear old Stewart said to me, 'My boy, spare no expense.' What a surprise he has coming!"

In the excitement of the day Consuelo forgot her vow of vengeance. She was the happiest person in New York and she walked on the high hill and did not question why. Music was thrilling through her and she could not keep her feet still.

She and Douglas were like children with a secret between them. They carried mysterious packages into the theater and hid them in her dressing room. After much discussion they let Ann into the secret, after Big Ann had promised not to tell.

It was a big event in more ways than one when Consuelo went to the theater for her first night on Broadway, the street where names are made or forgotten over night. Before she went to her dressing room she glanced through the wings to the dark stage set for the opening number, and a thrill raced through her body. It was no longer an empty stage without meaning to her.

She obeyed instructions that she was not to leave her dressing room until she was called, but she wanted to go and see for herself what the theater was like when it was "alive." She left her door open and the sounds of music and then of clapping came to her. The time stretched out endlessly and it was all she could do to stay in the dressing room and not go running down the stairs.

Douglas came up.

"It won't be long now, baby." He was as excited as she. "It's a great house, full to the brim and standing room sold out. They're out there waiting for the gypsy dancer. Oh, kid, show them how you can dance! Dance as I know you can—but I don't need to tell you. Just dance, baby, dance!"

Her heart was beating fast, temples throbbing.

"I shall!" She caught her breath. "I wish the Dummy was here and Maru and papa and Voda and Petru and even Anica—I wish they were all here to share with me this night, my night!"

The call boy came. It was time now.

Consuelo ran down the steps, with Doug behind her and Ann bringing up the rear.

Hadley, the stage manager stopped her.

"Wait till I tell you, gypsy!" He spoke sharply.

Consuelo paused, hushed, watching. She gripped Doug's hand, her own trembling.

"Steady, baby, you've got a few more minutes to wait. Steady!" His voice was shaky.

The stage was blacked out and the curtain came down. Lights went on dimly. Men moving quickly. People in makeup hurrying back to the dressing rooms. The orchestra was playing.

"It's my dance!" cried the girl in a panicky whisper. "Let me go!"

"Steady, gypsy! Not yet! Remember they play the first bars over, you know. Don't get nervous. Doug's right here." He squeezed her fingers. "Wait till the curtain goes up and then dance, baby—"

"All right, gypsy?" It was Hadley. "You're shaking like a leaf. Scared?"

"No—"

"Not nervous, kid?" Goldberg's voice.

"All right, now, kid. Go on!"

"Dance, baby, I'm counting on you—dance!"

She was off.

A burst of applause greeted her entrance, then silence settled over the audience. Heavy, expectant silence that was a challenge flung in the face of this newcomer.

For an instant the gypsy was bewildered. The lights were blinding. The wings of the stage seemed to be closing in upon her until there was no space left to dance in, until she could scarcely breathe. The music seemed far away, as if a thick mat was holding it off and she began to dance to its strains like an automaton.

She could feel the curious eyes of backstage burning upon her, hostile attitude from the crowded wings reaching out to discredit this that was her very life. Now for the first time her feet were unsteady and her gypsy assurance vanquished. She faltered and the dead silence out front mocked her—no friendly country audience this.

Her mind was a blur of confusion. The high hill was forgotten, the marble palace nonexistent, the only real thing an overwhelming sense of defeat. Then for the space of an instant she caught sight of Louise, Louise watching, curiosity greater than pride, a smug look engraved across her pretty features. That look was enough. It was the spark to set gypsy blood afire. Consuelo heard again the words "dirty gypsy—danced rotten—"

Fright deserted her. In a rushing torrent assurance returned. She became alive. She began to dance as she had never danced before, feet lighter than the thistledown. The music of the orchestra was no longer dulled, but throbbing through her, drawing response from every cell of her body. Now she was the gypsy dancer with no one her peer! Now she was in the marble palace!

She forgot Louise. She forgot the critical eyes upon her. The stage was no longer small, for now it was of marble and the wings had become white columns towering high overhead. The darkness out front was the hill and if she but looked she would see the people, thousands and thousands crowding the hill down as far as the eyes could glimpse. Ah, now, she was dancing to them! Ah, now, was this dream real! Ah, now, this was attainment!

And the stars descended to her eyes and she was like a flame that caught this blase New York audience in a grip of magic and held them fascinated. The inspiration of her dream-seemed to flow from her on tiny streams of silver, enmeshing the silent house in spellbound wonder and it thrilled with her. Never previously had Broadway seen dancing as this wild gypsy danced. Then came the end and truly it was that New York lifted her up in its arms and claimed her as its own with its deafening applause.

Backstage was just as breathless. She had proved herself and they were for her—that is, all but the golden-haired star.

Goldberg was wild with excitement. The kid had turned the trick! Gone over with a bang! He was pushing her back on the stage.

"You've done it! Bow—bow to them and wait for your flowers!"

Thundering ovation! The stage was banked with flowers, ushers lined up, fragrance pouring about her, applause lifting her to the heights. The world at her feet! The marble palace!

For Thursday, May 16

According to the lunar aspects in force on this day there is likely to be a sudden upheaval or rearrangement of the affairs. These may entail an unforseen journey, new business contacts and surroundings. Much in the successful culmination of events depends on the wise use of constructive plans, initiative and will. All may find most happy reactions on the private life, with many social, artistic or romantic activities.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of some sudden disturbance or upheaval in current affairs. All should react happily and profitably on private activies, and social functions may figure conspicuously in launching new plans.

A child born on this day may be active, energetic, with talents in unusual directions. This creative genius may make it restless and erratic but it will be likable and popular in its private life.

PETERBOROUGH IS WELL REPRESENTED

Large Delegation of Local Kiwanis Attend Belleville Charter Night.

BELLEVILLE, May 15.—The Bay of Quinte Country Club near here was last evening the scene of an outstanding dinner meeting held in observance of the Twelfth Charter Night anniversary of Belleville Kiwanis Club. The gathering which exceeded the expectations of the organizers, was attended by District Governor Fred McAllister, London, Ont., and by large delegations from Kingston, Peterborough and Picton.

Introduced by Past President P. C. MacLaurin of Belleville, the District Governor delivered an inspiring address in which he pleaded for a higher devotion to service, increased interest in public affairs, and stimulated effort in the underprivileged child work. He dealt with the past achievements of Kiwanis and urged, "We must rededicate ourselves so that we may climb to new heights of achievement."

Acknowledging the enthusiastic welcome that was accorded to him, District Governor MacLaurin said he was particularly glad to see such a large number of Kiwanians present from Peterborough. That club, he stated, gave to London club one of its outstanding Kiwanians, in the person of Judge Joseph Wearing.

Welcome to the guests was extended by President Clifford Barrager of Belleville, the responses on behalf of the visitors being ably voiced by Professor L. Arkley, president Kingston Club; Ivan T. Lillico, president, Peterborough club; Phil Brown, president, Picton club. Past District Governor "Billy" Mills of Kingston proposed the toast to the host club and congratulated the Belleville Kiwanians on the attainment of their twelfth anniversary.

Among those present from Peterborough were the following: President Ivan T. Lillico; Immediate Past President Archie B. Gates; Al Sharpe, Thomas Mark, Carl S. Browne, Walter Oke, John A. McKone, secretary; Jack Lewis, W. A. Richardson, "Dinny" Fitzgerald, Hedley Shaw, William Moorhead, Rev. J. D. Peterson.

Clean Up Campaign Most Satisfactory

Results of last week's "Clean-Up" reminder, with its suggestion that domestic repair work not only benefits the home owner but also gives some man a job, were generally satisfactory. Sales of paint are reported to have shown an increase, and there was a better demand for materials required in home renovation.

The building trades generally need even the casual work that is created by the repair of dwellings, and every citizen who has work of this kind that should be done, has been urged to call in a builder this season instead of delaying the job until the cost of repairs may be higher.

With no large construction work being undertaken the season has been so far discouraging to the men of the building trades. One of them told The Examiner to-day that he did not know of one new dwelling that was being built here this spring, and he remarked that this suspension of work applied to the entire period of this year up to the present.

Assistance to the building trades extends employment and purchases into many channels, and every helpful impulse carries an effect through retail business and down to the men who cut the timber and prepare the other raw materials for the market.

Fred Dummitt Given Gilmour Gold Job

Contract for the erection of three large frame structures on the Gilmour Gold Syndicate property north of Hastings has been awarded to Fred Dummitt, Peterborough contractor. Mr. Dummitt plans to begin work on the buildings within the next two weeks.

The award of the contract in this city is in accordance with promises of the mine management early this year that Peterborough contractors and supply sources will be allowed to benefit as far as possible in the mine development program. Although only a small number of men will be required in the erection of the buildings, they will be secured in Peterborough, it is understood. The buildings will house power equipment and milling operations and will cost about $2,000.

Most of the machinery required at the mine was moved in before the snow left the ground this spring. It is reported the general development of the property is proceeding rapidly and satisfactorily.

SCOTT'S SCRAPBOOK — By R. J. Scott

MRS. ARMSTRONG HEADS INSTITUTE IN MILLBROOK

Branch Closed the Year With a Balance of $113.23.

ANNUAL MEETING

Women Plan to Pay for Building of Bandstand in the Village.

(Examiner Correspondence)

MILLBROOK, May 15. — Mrs. H. J. Armstrong offered the use of her home for the annual meeting of the Women's Institute, held on Saturday at 3 p.m., with the retiring president, Mrs. T. G. Harkness, in the chair, and a fair attendance of members.

The response to the roll-call was, "Pay Your Fee", and practically all of those present paid their quarter for the current year. The report of the treasurer showed a balance in the bank at the beginning of the year of $130.23; fees $12.50; 2 quilts sold for $6; other sources including dances, euchres, etc., netting $83.95, the total being $206.68; expenditures were $93.45; leaving a balance in the bank of $113.23.

Eleven Meetings

The secretary's report told of 11 regular and one special meeting being held, with total attendance of 207, and average of 28; ten boxes of fruit had been sent to sick members, two quilts sold, and two donated; an open meeting in May with Dr. Reynolds, of Port Hope, and Mr. A. E. Summers as speakers; plants bought and planted at the Cenotaph; the Bailieboro branch entertained on the occasion of the summer meeting; $3.13 paid toward the district scholarship; a delegate sent to the annual convention at Toronto; twenty-seven boxes of Christmas cheer packed and delivered to sick and shut-in folk, and nine cards of greeting also sent. The Agricultural Society had been voted the free use of the piano in the Town Hall until it is out of debt; the convenors of standing committee had provided in turn, for excellent programs throughout the year; and an account in the local bank had been started for one baby whose mother belongs to the branch.

The election of officers resulted in the following slate for 1935-36: President, Mrs. W. H. Armstrong; vice-presidents, Miss E. Grandy and Mrs. T. G. Harkness, the latter's resignation as president, having been regretfully received her health not permitting continuance in the office; secretary, Mrs. George Fallis; treasurer, Mrs. H. J. Armstrong; district director, Mrs. H. A. Earle; auditors, Mrs. Alex Harkness and Miss Burnham; pianist, Mrs. R. J. McKnight; 'Sunshine committee', Mrs. J. W. Hilton and Mrs. W. Brown; delegates to district annual which will be held at Morrish on May 22, beginning at 10 a.m. and lasting all day, dinner being provided: Mrs. Earle, Miss Grandy, Mrs. W. Brown, Mrs. Harkness, Mrs. G. Fallis, Mrs. R. J. McKnight, with the president.

To Build Bandstand

The branch decided to pay for the building of a bandstand for the recently-organized Citizens' Band, under the direction of Martin Chenhall, Junior, or at least to supply the material, the actual work, if possible, to be by volunteer labor, providing the matter of site, and other details, can be satisfactorily arranged.

The secretary was appointed to bring a report of the district annual for the June gathering, this meeting to be at the home of Mrs. T. H. Aiken, on Saturday, June 8, at 3 p.m. Three car-loads expect to attend the annual meeting of the district on May 22, and the request from the W.I. head office in Toronto that each branch contribute one dollar toward the annual provincial convention expenses will be complied with so far as the local society is concerned.

Letter of thanks for fruit sent during illness were read, and the quilt committee reported that the quilt to be entered in the district competition is well under way, with blue ground and star in yellow as the pattern chosen. The executive served refreshments at the close of the meeting, when a pleasant social hour was spent and the usual votes of thanks passed before the members dispersed.

MOTHER'S DAY AT MILLBROOK

Special Services in Grace and St. Andrew's Churches.

FLOWERS FOR THE SICK

MILLBROOK, May 15 (Examiner Correspondence). — Special programs in Grace Presbyterian and St. Andrew's United Churches mark the annual observance of Mother's Day on Sunday, lovely flowers banking the altar in each case, those at St. Andrews having all been donated in loving memory of friends, and afterward the usual custom was followed of sending the fragrant blossoms and plants to shut-in and sick members of the congregation.

Grace Church.

The Sunday School of Grace Presbyterian Church met at 2.30 p.m. in the basement for the marking of class-books and other business, adjourning at three o'clock to meet with the regular congregation in the auditorium. The official program, in printed form, was in everyone's hands and the superintendent, F. J. Deyell, led in the responsive readings and the prayers in unison.

The girls of Mrs. Nathaniel Belch's and Mrs. S. E. Eakins' classes formed the choir, and following the prayer by the minister, Rev. H. R. Williams, B.A., the rite of baptism was performed for the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Miller, the name being John Richard. Mrs. J. R. Thompson sang "Memories of Mother," and the minister spoke on the theme "Mother's Faith," bringing an inspiring message.

The special offering for the day was received and was followed by the thanksgiving prayers and responses, a final hymn and the benediction closing a service that had been of special significance throughout.

St. Andrew's United Church.

The official program, with the theme, "The Great Church Family" was followed when the Sunday School met with the congregation at 10.30 a.m., the superintendent, W. Fred Fallis, leading in the call to worship, the responsive readings and the prayers. Jack Arundel read the New Testament lesson from Luke, and Eleanor Bigelow read a selection exalting motherhood, while Helen Mitchell gave the story, "Big Business," with its lesson particularly for growing boys and girls.

The minister, Rev. A. L. Sisco, talked to the younger scholars on "What Billy Owed," and limited his address to the grown-ups on account of the length to which the service was extended owing to the special features. The theme of the day was developed under the caption of "The Family of God," and briefly outlined by a following of Bible history. A baptismal service brought this solemn rite for twelve children, the parents, and the name bestowed upon the child, including: Mr. and Mrs. A. Yelland (Murray Arthur), Mr. and Mrs. Oswald Martin (Francis Charles), Mr. and Mrs. B. B. Dawson (Roy Clarke, Jessie Caroline, Margaret Joan, Anne Elizabeth), Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Patton (Beverly Francis), Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Challice (Milton Warren), Mr. and Mrs. H. Wright (Elizabeth Joan), Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Richards (Nancy Louise), Mr. Thomas and the late Mrs. Kennedy (Lillian May, Millie Elizabeth).

The choir sang "There's Someone," and the reports for the day showed 21 teachers and officers present, 311 scholars, and offering of $14.00.

Warsaw

Mr. Joseph Tedford presided.

Special Jubilee services were held in all the churches on Sunday. All were well worth any effort to hear and participate in.

Mr. and Mrs. V. B. Coleman were Monday guests of Mr. and Mrs. David Miller.

Mr. Roy Whetter, Kingston, was week-end holiday guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Digweed.

Publicity and Finance will as usual be handled by the president and executive. A large membership committee was returned by acclamation.

Messrs. H. W. Roche, John Howe and R. A. Miller were elected to the property committee. No changes were made in the committee for club rooms, with the exception of the addition of L. G. Hagerman, Sid Cole was added to the horse-shoe committee. Glen Wright, E. Chiles and J. Hooper were elected to the tennis committee. Messrs. H. T. Mathison, L. G. Hagerman and Chas. H. Roberts will look after the bowling greens. Lorne Hooper was added to the softball committee and will probably enter a team in the proposed town league.

New Porch Planned

Plans are under way for a new eight foot porch along the east side of the new club rooms facing onto the bowling green. The hedge has already been transplanted to a position forty feet west of the clubhouse.

This necessitated the removal of one of the tennis courts. If a macadam or concrete surface can be laid during the summer months without too much additional cost the club may consider this work, on the west end court.

Baldwin Seen As Next British Premier

MACDONALD MAY REPLACE SIMON EXPRESS STATES

Sir John, Present Foreign Secretary, Likely to Become Home Secretary.

ELECTION IN FALL?

Observers See Possibility of British House Being Prorogued in August.

LONDON, May 16.—(CP)—The Daily Express today predicted Premier Ramsay MacDonald in a few months would replace Sir John Simon as Foreign Secretary with Stanley Baldwin taking over the premiership. Sir John would become Home Secretary or Lord President of the Council.

LONDON, May 16 (C.P. Cable).—Possibility that the mantle of Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald might fall again on the shoulders of Stanley Baldwin stirred interest in political circles to-day.

Gossip in the lobbies was to the effect a reconstruction of the Cabinet was probable. One report was that it would involve Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald and Mr. Baldwin exchanging places.

Election in Autumn.

Concurrently there was talk of a possible general election in the autumn.

In political quarters attention was directed to the excessive strain the Premiership had placed on Mr. MacDonald, who carries out prodigious reading with troublesome eyesight. Also it was considered normal rearrangements should take place during the long life of any Government. The MacDonald administration has been in office since October, 1931.

Mr. Baldwin, as Leader of the Conservative Party, is no stranger to the Premiership. He held that office for some months in 1923 and again from 1924 until 1929. At present he is Lord President of the Council.

The Whitsuntide recess, which comes early in June, was considered the most likely time for any Cabinet shuffle.

After David Lloyd George, one-time leader of the Liberal party, laid down his new deal platform for Britain in January, there were reports he might be invited to enter the cabinet, but so far this step has not been taken.

Main Obstacle Removed.

The election rumor was regarded as a natural one. With passage of the huge India bill providing the Indian empire with a new and more liberal constitution by the beginning of August virtually assured, the only definite obstacle to an early election has been removed.

Observers predicted the government might prorogue the session in August instead of adjourning it, thus enabling an election to take place during the recess if it wished.

Many supporters of the administration believe an October election would be more favorable to the government than one next spring or later in 1936.

Lawrence In Coma Is Nearing Crisis

WOOL, Dorsetshire, Eng., May 16.—(AP)—Grave anxiety was felt today for Col. T. E. Lawrence as he approached the crisis in the injuries he received in a cycling accident Monday. Lawrence was still unconscious at mid-afternoon 72 hours after the accident. His brother, A. W. Lawrence, hastened to the Bovington Camp military hospital and waited just outside the patient's room.

"I'm afraid the chances for his recovery are very slender," his brother said.

5 HOUSES BURN AS FIRE SWEEPS QUEBEC VILLAGE

Brigades Called From Two Nearby Towns to Save Remainder.

CHIMNEY BLAMED.

GLEN SUTTON, Que., May 16.—(CP)—After battling flames for several hours volunteer firemen succeeded today in quenching a fire that burned five houses and several barns.

High winds swept the flames from one building to another and for a time it was feared this Eastern Townships village would be wiped out.

Occupants quickly vacated the wooden dwellings and no one was injured. Damage was substantial, but was not estimated.

Call For Aid

The city council sent out a call for fire apparatus from Rouses Falls, Vt., and Newport, Vt., as the flames continued to spread. It was believed an overheated chimney started the fire which rapidly spread as most of the buildings in the village are of wooden construction. Fire department at Farnham, Que., St. Johns, Que., and Montreal were asked to be ready to lend aid if needed.

At noon buildings destroyed included the store and home of L. A. Wilson, home of Mrs. M. Esty, home of P. Jacob, of Eugene Larocque, and a blacksmith shop.

PLEA IS MADE FOR TOLERANCE

Bourassa Tells Young Men to Shun Everything Provoking Social Hatred.

LOVE AND CHARITY.

MONTREAL, May 16. (CP).—Strong plea for tolerance among the various races of Canada, has come from Henri Bourassa, veteran independent member of parliament and one of the outstanding figures in French Canadian life, as he concluded a series of three lectures on "Nationalism—Is It a Sin?"

"Young men," Mr. Bourassa said, "shun everything which might provoke racial hatred in you and remember the great law of the New Testament is love and charity."

When Canada came under British rule the position of Catholics was precarious. It improved bit by bit, partly through the influx of Methodists, Presbyterians, Baptists, who did not recognize the authority of the Church of England and who, on occasion, became precious allies of the Catholics. Methodists were the first to be recognized officially by a vote of an assembly composed for the most part of Franc-Canadian Catholics.

MANY PROBLEMS AWAIT BENNETT RETURN FRIDAY

Ban on Nickel, Jap Trade Protest, Argentine Wheat Head List.

PREMIER ENJOYING TRIP.

Caucus No Later Than Wednesday Likely to Decide House Leadership.

OTTAWA, May 16 (C.P.)—Prime Minister R. B. Bennett will arrive back in Ottawa from the King's Jubilee celebrations in London, Saturday morning to find many problems awaiting his return to active administration duties.

Japanese objections to the currency dump charged by Canada against depreciated foreign money constituting a sizeable trade barrier; the world wheat agreement which has again been violated by the Argentine in the matter of export quotas; agitation to prohibit the use of Canadian nickel for munitions manufacture, and the complex political situation that exists in the Dominion, are among the questions which await Mr. Bennett's person attention.

A wireless message was received from the Duchess of York at sea yesterday from the Prime Minister stating he had been enjoying an "excellent voyage" and he would disembark at Quebec Friday and entrain at once for Ottawa.

With respect to nickel, about which a question was raised in the House of Commons in London, the Government contemplates no action in the belief anything Canada could do would have no effect upon the general picture of disarmament. If it came to the point Canada could be shown its nickel exports to any particular were going into war munitions some steps could be taken to prevent it.

The Leadership?

One of the first developments following the return of Mr. Bennett is expected to be settlement of the question of his continuing in the office of Prime Minister and leader of the Conservative Party.

A Government caucus will be called, probably no later than Wednesday of next week and possibly sooner, at which this question will be discussed.

So far as his office in Ottawa has been informed the Prime Minister is in good health and as well as he hoped to be when he started his journey to England. It is the general belief among his associates he will continue to lead the government and party and go to the country in that capacity.

The general length of the building is to be 36 feet, with width extending 22 feet. Specifications call for a brick building with gravel and tar roof. It is expected the contract will be finished by August 1.

He said all his family lived to be more than 100 years old and he didn't think "a little thing like an operation" could kill him. Capt. MOUNDS MARK BURIAL SITE OF LOST RACE

Believe Serpent Mounds Are Graves of Pre-historic Canadians.

HAVE UNEARTHED LITTLE

On the north shore of Rice Lake and some two miles south of the century old village of Keene is one of Canada's historic—or rather pre-historic—sites, known as "Serpent Mounds."

No arresting road signs guide the traveller down the narrowing trail from Keene but with the satisfaction of an explorer they come upon these queer sites. Atop a high hill which goes abruptly from the lake shore is a group of mysterious looking mounds. Some are round, some are oval and one, the largest, is serpent shaped, thus giving to the site the local name of "Serpent Mounds."

Archaeologists say that this is a very ancient burial ground, that these mounds are groups of prehistoric graves. No cold forbidding monument is there but only the gnarled old oaks to keep watch over the eternal sleep of a very ancient people. Only the soft breeze from the lake, an occasional chipmunk,

TRINIDAD GANG BEAT ENGINEER

Strikes Tie Up Two Major Projects Costing Nearly $8,000,000.

WAGES INVOLVED.

PORT OF SPAIN, Trinidad, May 16.—(CP Cable).—Work on two major projects undertaken in Trinidad at an estimated total cost of $8,000,000 was delayed to-day by strikes after angry employees beat an English engineer.

Alleged personal ill-will against the engineer flamed into violence when 25 workers were laid off following the discovery of broken machinery at the scene of a central water supply scheme involving the expenditure of $3,000,000. The employees said they would not return to work until the engineer, not seriously hurt, had been removed from his position.

The other strike handicapped operations on a $5,000,000 project to deepen Port of Spain harbor. This difficulty hinged on a dispute over wages offered to quarry workers. Deciding on a mass protest to the island government, they plan to march to the Legislative Council during to-morrow's session.

CHARGE BOYS GOT DRUNK AT R.C.M.P. LIQUOR DUMP

BATHURST, N.B., May 16. — (CP) — Intoxication of Bathurst youths from illicit liquor dumped here by Royal Canadian Mounted police last December was alleged today with resumption of a Royal Commission inquiry into charges made against the R.C.M.P. by Hon. Dr. P. J. Veniot, M.P. for Gloucester, former Postmaster-General and former Premier of New Brunswick.

C. H. Ramsay appeared for Veniot, who took a hand in examining witnesses today, and C. L. Dougherty appeared for the police.

Tins of alcohol thrown into water of a dump here by R.C.M.P. officers had been fished out by boys and young men, many of whom drank some of the contents, according to evidence.

Four boys ranging in age from 13 to 18, and two mothers, all of Bathurst, testified. The broken cans were salvaged while officer were away getting other loads of seized contraband liquor, the boys said.

ERIC W. CROSS NEW CHAIRMAN

Old Madoc Boy Will Succeed C. R. McKeown on Municipal Board.

SIMCOE LAWYER.

TORONTO, May 16. — Eric W. Cross, Simcoe, Magistrate of Norfolk County, was yesterday appointed Chairman of the Ontario Municipal Board, to succeed Chas. R. McKeown, K.C., who has headed the board since 1927.

Official Announcement.

The retirement and the new appointment were announced simultaneously by Hon. David A. Croll, Minister of Public Welfare and Municipal Affairs.

The new chairman, Mr. Croll pointed out, has been credited by Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn as possessing "the keenest analytical mind among the young lawyers of Ontario." He called attention to the heavy duties and responsibilities which had been placed upon the board by legislation passed at the recent session, and said that in Mr. Cross they had found an ideal man for the task. At 31 years he has already had a brilliant career, with legal and judicial experience.

Born in Hastings County.

Mr. Cross was born in Madoc, in Hastings County, in 1904, the son of Mary Judith Cross, formerly of Simcoe, and the late William Cross, barrister. The late Hon. C. W. Cross, Attorney-General of Alberta, was an uncle. He was educated at Madoc High School, Queen's University, and Osgoode Hall, graduating from Queen's in 1925 as gold medallist in Political Science. Called to the Bar, he began practice at Simcoe in 1926, and last year was appointed Magistrate of Norfolk County and District No 4.

The new chairman became interested in politics early in his career and in the 1931 by-election contested the Norfolk seat in the Legislature left vacant by the death of

John Buchan is Elevated to Peerage

CANADA'S NEW GOVERNOR IS CREATED BARON

Announcement of King's Action is Made From Buckingham Palace.

TAKES DUTIES IN FALL.

Whether Noted Author Will Choose Title of Baron Buchan is Unknown.

LONDON, May 16. — Announcement was made from Buckingham Palace last night that the King had conferred a barony of the United Kingdom upon John Buchan, the eminent author and parliametarian whose appointment as Canada's next Governor-General was announced in March.

Whether he goes to the Dominion late next autumn with his wife and younger children as Baron Buchan, or chooses some other title is still uncertain. It was taken for granted at the time of his appointment that he would be elevated to the peerage before he took up his post as His Majesty's representative across the Atlantic.

Settling Up Affairs.

Canada's new Governor-General, who expressed his genuine pleasure at the prospect of a sojourn in Canada at the time of his appointment, with his wife spent a quiet visit at Windsor Castle while Their Majesties were there for Easter. He has been arranging his affairs at his home, near Oxford, since his appointment, and simultaneous resignation from Parliament.

He was made a Companion of Honor (C.H.) in 1932, an award carrying no title or precedence, but strictly limited in number.

WAR IS PLANNED ON GRASSHOPPER

West With One of Best Crops in View Since 1928 Arms to End Pest.

PRAIRIE-WIDE DRIVE.

WINNIPEG, May 16—(CP)—With fears concerning drought and soil drifting allayed for the present, science today massed its forces to lay low the one unconquered enemy of the farmer—the grasshopper.

Early-spring prospects point to one of the best crop years since 1928.

The one fly in the agricultural ointment is the grasshopper, entomologists, however, believe the five-year reign of the king of farm pests is at an end.

Strip farming and other methods of cultivation have played their part in controlling the invasion. Farm committees have been formed and the three prairie provinces will work as one unit in dispensing poison bait. Trucks will rush the mixture to threatened sectors at the first signs of infestation and officials believe the protective efforts will spell doom to the winged horde and usher in a new farm era.

Its Last Run

ERIE, Pa., May 16.—(CP).—The folks made certain "old 171," Erie's last street car, would end its career in a blaze of glory. As the last trolley car in this city of 115,000 made its final run, somebody heaved a keg of beer and a box of pretzels aboard and obtained the services of an accordion player.

With torpedoes ahead of it all along the tracks and automobiles full of merry makers behind, old 171 ran the route to the barn.

ONTARIO GRAIN

Approximate prices track shipping point—Wheat, 87c to 89c; oats, 35c to 37c; barley, 43c to 45c; corn, 59c to 61c; rye, 53c to 54c; buckwheat, 47c to 49c; malting barley, 65c to 69c.

CHICAGO GRAIN

Recovering from early setbacks of prices the grain markets developed late firmness yesterday, influenced by strength of stocks and by some renewal of inflation talk.

Friends of higher prices said the wheat trade had apparently discounted immediate bearish factors. It was also emphasized that a rally of more than twelve cents a bushel had followed declines on April 10 to about yesterday's low point.

After fluctuating within a range of 1¼ cents, wheat closed firm at the same as Tuesday's finish to ½ cent higher; July, 92½c to 92⅝c; corn, unchanged to ⅝c up; July, 80⅝c to 81c; oats, unchanged to ⅝c off, and provisions varying from 2 cents decline to a rise of 20 cents.

Rallies of grain values began when May wheat established yesterday a new bottom price record for the season.

Corn and oats mainly reflected the course of wheat prices.

Provisions averaged higher, largely responsibe to strength of grains and to closing of spreads against cottonseed oil.

MONTREAL PRODUCE

Wholesale prices of butter, cheese and eggs declined again yesterday on local produce markets.

Butter sold at 20c to 20½c per pound for No. 1 in carlots or less, compared 20½c Tuesday. Receipts were seven boxes. Jobbers quoted 21c on solids and 22c on prints for small retail lots.

Cheese dropped from 10c to 9⅝c to 10c for No. 1 Ontario current arrivals, with receipts of 328 boxes.

Graded eggs in carlots or less declined ½c per dozen to sell at 19c to 19½c for A-large, 18½c for A-medium. 17c for B and 16c for C. Receipts were 1,838 cases. Small lots to retailers dropped 1c per dozen at 20c to 24c for A-large, 22c to 23c for A-medium, 21c to 22c for B, and 19c to 20c for C, in cartons, and 1c lower bought loose.

New potatoes were $2.25 for No. 1 and $2 for No. 2 Bermudas per 50-lb. crates. $3 for No. 2 Floridas as South Carolinas in 100-lb. bags, and $6.25 for No. 1 South Carolinas per barrel. Old potatoes sold for 45c for Prince Edward Islands. 42½c for New Brunswicks and 35c to 40c for Quebc in 80-lb. bags.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, May 16. — Investment buying dwindled to small proportions on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange yesterday as wheat importers continued to purchase cautiously. Wheat prices held steady, however, to close unchanged to ⅛ cent lower.

With selling also light, firmness at Chicago and Buenos Aires imparted a measure of assistance to local futures, but the session generally uninteresting. The price range was limited to ⅜ cent, May closing at 86¾ and July 87⅜ cents.

Apparently encouraged by the recent general rains in North America, wheat importers bought still more sparingly yesterday than during the past week of small foreign sales. Exports were confined to scattered parcels destined for shipment from Vancouver.

Chicago's ½-cent and ¼-cent upturn at Buenos Aires served to offset a ⅝d decline at Liverpool. Argentina's estimated remaining surplus of wheat, 78,000,000 bushels, and Australia's 42,000,000 bushels, both substantially less than at this time last year, had little market effect here.

Cash and coarse grains were dull.

Futures:

Wheat—	Open	High	Low	Close	Prev. Close

July	87⅝	87⅞	87⅛	87⅛	87⅝

CLAIM COUNTRY SHOULD BE GIVEN CIVILIZED RULE

Deprive Abyssinia of Power to Menace Neighbors Il Duce's Press Advocates.

EXPECT BRITISH FAVOR.

Young Germans Rush to Enlist Against Italy in Pending War.

ROME, May 16.—(AP)—Italian newspapers today demanded a new "organization" of Ethiopia, which was taken by diplomatic circles to mean civil or military control by Italy.

Forecast of War?

The authoritative Giornale d'Italia, which most often is chosen to echo Government plans, said Ethiopia's "incapacity to comprehend and assimilate the elementary values of civilization" made it necessary that "there be given Ethiopian territory an organization which will deprive it of the possibility of menacing any more neighboring colonies, above all, Italian interests, which have been attacked."

Yesterday Mussolini told other nations to keep out of the Italo-Ethiopian dispute.

The Giornale d'Italia further said: "To recognize the European value of Italy as a civilized nation and power for equilibrium signifies to recognize also these Italian necessities in East Africa, her rights of defense and of guarantees."

Appeal to Britain.

It is not to be doubted, the newspaper concluded, that "Britain, so abundantly furnished with rich colonial territories and precious mandates, will recognize the just basis of these Italian positions."

Italian newspapers, in despatches from Paris and London, said Mussolini's speech yesterday had a definite effect of "reorientating the opinions of those two governments."

Italy's appointment of her two conciliators in the Ethiopian quarrel, a government spokesman said, will make the meeting of the League Council at Geneva on Monday a mere formality so far as the Italo-Ethiopian question is concerned.

Both countries have named two negotiators.

Eager To Fight

BERLIN, May 16. (CP-Havas). — The Consulate-General of Ethiopia here today was besieged with applications by young Germans anxious to enlist in the Ethiopian Army.

Like several hundred would-be recruits who previously had offered their services, they were told officially that Ethiopia was not engaging European soldiers.

The Reich Broadcasting Department cancelled a series of geographical talks on Ethiopia, which was to have begun soon.

GUELPH TENOR JOHNSON NAMED HEAD OF OPERA

Canadian Will Continue Program of the Late Herbert Witherspoon.

HAILED IN MUSIC WORLD.

New Executive Duties Expected to Curtail Manager's Singing Activities.

NEW YORK, May 16 (C.P.). — Edward Johnson, Canadian who rose from choir boy to the front rank of the world's tenors, assumed the general managership of the Metropolitan Opera Association today.

His appointment to the post vacated two months ago by the resignation of impresario Giulio Gatti-Casazza, then again last Friday by the sudden death of Herbert Witherspoon, was announced last night. It was received by the world of music with applause.

Johnson, native of Guelph, Ont., thus took over the directorship of the Metropolitan Opera Company with which he has been connected since 1931. A progressive, with ideas for popularizing opera by reducing prices and touring the "big city" stars through the countryside, he is expected to infuse new life into its presentation.

Wires Acceptance.

The noted tenor was in Detroit filling an engagement with the Detroit Civic Opera Association when he received word of what he termed "the confidence reposed in me." He wired his acceptance and pledge of "zealous devotion to the main-

THOUSANDS OF VOTES WILL POUR THIS WEEK IN THE TRAVEL CLUB

Friends Are Out Working Hard for Their Candidates.

GRAND OPPORTUNITY

Again, as Saturday draws near, and the close of the special 200,000 extra vote offer is in sight, loyal friends of Travel Club members are getting busy with their votes and subscriptions to keep their district candidates up in the list. In order to clear away the deluge of votes that swamped the Travel Club office last Saturday, all members of the Travel Club organization have been working until well after midnight every night. Another rush is expected this week-end and every effort is being made to get ready for it. The people of our districts appear to have a great liking for excitement.

"Competition," as one of the supporters said the other day, "is what we like out our way. We have made up our minds that Miss —— is going to be one of the Bermuda trip winners, but if she isn't it won't be through the lack of effort in our district." No other prize list could have filled the bill like the New York, Bermuda, tours. The people of this section of Ontario are recognised by railway and steamship companies as ardent travellers. To this fact we attribute part of the instant appeal the Travel Club plan met with, upon its introduction to

CHAIN LETTER RACKET DEAD

Few Dimes Came Back and Interest Died Out Among the Citizens.

IN RACKET TOO LATE

The send-a-dime prosperity chain letter fad has come and gone as far as Peterborough is concerned. Although local mails were swelled to a minor extent last week, Postmaster Charles Lacheur states the normal flow now prevails.

Many local persons succumbed to the attractions of the fad while it reigned and it is safe to assume that a goodly number of local dimes were invested in the so-called prosperity cause. But very few dimes have come back. Those who invested and have received no returns are charging the unwise investment to experience. As one fellow worded it today, it was worth a dime to find out it is really true you get nothing for nothing in this world. That particular person invested 15 cents in postage stamps and sent his dime according to the rules of the game but, so far, has received back nary a dime of the $1,562 he was supposed to get.

The trouble here was that Peterborough got into the racket too late, another opines. The fad was dying before it reached here. Through newspaper publicity of the slick angles of the racket, individuals were losing interest and had become skeptical enough that the effort required in reduplication of the letters daunted them.

While many dimes and stamps were invested to no avail here, some returns are reported, however. A number of local chain letter senders have received dimes totalling more than five dollars but more are to be found who can only report sheepishly the receipt of a half-dozen or so.

Burglars Aided By Woman Scout

LONDON, May 16 (C.P.)—The increasing use by burglars and house-breakers of young women as their scouts for selecting "promising" places in London suburbs for "working" has been occupying the attention of the Scotland Yard authorities, and plans have been formed for dealing with this method of scouting.

Lord Trenchard foreshadowed the new scheme in his annual report, in which he stated that he was making plans for dealing with epidemics of burglary in London suburbs, and of classifying them under two heads—preventable and detectable.

Naturally the police have no intention of disclosing the details of their plans but it is understood that they include a scheme of closer and quicker co-operation between the Criminal Investigation Department and the uniformed branch, and a more general use of wireless.

our readers. While little difficulty was experienced, however, in enlisting popular ladies to take part in the club, the travel plan could not be the success it is proving, were the many friends of these ladies not appreciative of the wonderful tours offered by The Examiner. They realize that such an oportunity presents itself but once in a lifetime, and they know well the happiness they can bring to the lady travellers by casting their votes for them. Many people call at the Travel Club office to pay their subscriptions in favor of the members and in this way they save the club members valuable time that can be spent on other vote calls. In most competitions it is difficult for the workers to approach prospective subscribers for their support, but fortunately our readers have taken a very friendly attitude toward the club and its members and many a pleasant chat is enjoyed by both. Most subscribers have taken the attitude, "I want my daily paper, I know I am going to renew it, so if I can make someone happy with my votes, I will be serving two good purposes." The marvellous travel tours are well worth working for and the girls realize it too. They know that The Examiner will carry out every promise made and that they will spend holidays free from all expenses and that pleasures and beauty await them from the day they set sail till the day they return. Nothing will be left undone to give them the time of their lives while away.

TRUSTEES FIGHT COUNCIL RULE

Oppose Giving Municipal Fathers Greater Control Than They Now Have.

PROTEST GRANT CUT.

KITCHENER, Ont., May 16 (C.P.)—The united voice of the Ontario Urban School Trustees' Association in annual convention here was raised yesterday against any move to give municipal councils greater control over public schools than such schools now possess.

A resolution, one of many which appeared before the delegates, resolving this board strongly condemns any movement designated to remove the budgetary control and responsibility of school boards as constituted by the present law was unanimously endorsed.

Reduction of 1935 grants at a time too late to be provided for the estimates was protested while it was recommended to the incoming executive to take up the matter of increased educational grants with the Provincial Government.

Only one paper was presented, M. Swartz, Kitchener public school trustee, speaking on "Teaching of safety education in the schools."

This was followed by a practical demonstration illustrating the work being done in Kitchener schools. A department of highways official attended the meeting.

Why Lipstick is Used

As a beauty aid

When the blood is rich and red
It is shown by color in the cheeks and lips.
Such color tells of health and vitality and youth.
To be beautiful and charming and attractive
Woman must display good health
And the elasticity and vivacity which goes with it.
Pale lips tell of weak blood and anaemia
And so lipstick is used to restore
At least the appearance of health and youth.
How infinitely better it is to have real health,
The result of rich blood flowing through the body.
For health after all is the real basis
Of charm and attractiveness.
Dr. Chase's Nerve Food actually creates rich blood.
It supplies to nature the priceless ingredients
From which new nerve force and vitality are formed.
It gives you the pep and energy
Which is essential to the enjoyment of life.
Health and beauty and happiness
Result from the use of this great blood and nerve restorative.

THE NEW BRUNSWICK ELECTION.

A provincial election is to be held in New Brunswick on June 27th, and political "experts" and other citizens with no claim to that title are already engaged in trying to predict the result and its significance in regard to the federal campaign.

New Brunswick is one of the two provinces in Canada now governed by a Conservative administration, and there are many who have no hesitation in saying that after next month Prince Edward Island will be the only province in the Dominion under Conservative control.

On the other hand, there are probably as many more who predict that the Government of Hon. Mr. Tilley will successfully meet next month's test, basing their prophecies on the fact that conditions in New Brunswick have on the whole been better than in other sections of the country, and that therefore the opposition will not have hard times as its ally as has been the case in other provinces, while the New Brunswick Government is generally admitted to have been efficient and progressive.

New Brunswickers, too, are not given to such sudden political upsets as distinguish the voters in some other provinces, and as the present Government holds 31 out of 48 seats, there would have to be a sweeping change to bring about the downfall of the Tilley administration.

However, elections are notoriously uncertain, and never more so than in periods of economic distress.

MAYOR SIMPSON'S TOUR.

Mayor James Simpson of Toronto, so we are told, plans to stump Ontario during the coming federal election on behalf of the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation.

We had always thought that being mayor of Canada's second largest city was a full-time job, one that called for the constant attention of the chief magistrate, and certainly the salary that is paid the occupant of the position would seem to justify that opinion.

Mr. Simpson, however, is proving that we were all wrong.

Elected only a few months ago, he has been in circulation around the province pretty steadily ever since, and now he announces that he is going to tour Ontario as an active leader in the C.C.F. cause.

Just how a highly-paid mayor of a big city can justify this political mission is not readily apparent, but after all it is a matter that must be decided between Mr. Simpson and the ratepayers of Toronto, out of whose pockets comes the salary the mayor is paid to look after Toronto's business.

Stumping Ontario in aid of a political party is not an activity that would ordinarily be associated with the duties of a full-time chief magistrate, but if the doughty Mr. Simpson can persuade Toronto citizens that in so doing he is discharging the responsibilities to which he was elected, we outsiders have no reason to complain.

We do not pay his salary, and we do not have to go and listen to him unless we want to, so that his political pilgrimage is after all a Toronto matter.

One thing is certain, however, and that is, that Mayor Simpson must talk, and perhaps the Queen City people would just as soon have him spread his eloquence over the province as confine it all to Toronto audiences, who after all can get too much of a good thing.

THERE MUST BE COMPENSATION.

Details of Premier Hepburn's proposed provincial income tax are still lacking, but that fact has not prevented the press of the province from expressing their opinions as to the Premier's policy.

The general view seems to be that if the municipalities are adequately compensated for the revenue they will lose through the elimination of the municipal income tax in favor of a provincial levy on incomes; the change will be for the better inasmuch as a more equitable application of the tax would be assured.

Most certainly, however, there will have to be some such concession made to the municipalities, many of which cannot afford to lose the revenue they have been obtaining from the income tax.

In this connection it must not be forgotten that the Hepburn Government has in recent months added to the burden of the municipalities by extending the Mothers' Allowance Act to include widows with one child, by increasing the relief rent allowance and by a different method of paying medical relief, and that the change in the Old Age Pensions Act suggested at the last session of the Legislature would, if adopted by the Federal Parliament, also increase the municipal load.

With many municipal taxpayers already finding it almost impossible to discharge their civic responsibilities, municipal governments cannot be expected to view with complacency the loss of their income tax revenue, unless they are given the assurance that the shortage thus created will be made up in some other way.

We are of the opinion that Mr. Hepburn has this situation in mind, and that when the provincial income tax proposal is brought down in the Legislature it will be accompanied by the announcement of corresponding compensation for the municipalities.

SEEDS MORE LASTING THAN FOOD.

The Kitchener News-Record, commenting upon the success of community relief gardens in that city, points out that the land made available to people who are on relief is sown with seeds more lasting than food.

"They are seeds of abiding enterprise and industry that result in a spiritual as well as a material crop," says the Kitchener paper, and no one who has given any attention to the working out of the relief garden scheme in Peterborough would quarrel with that statement.

These garden allotments, cultivated by families on relief, have certainly meant more than a mere storehouse of foodstuffs, for more important by far than this providing of vegetables for the family table has been the effect upon the morale of the relief gardeners.

Many Peterborough men have been operating these gardens for several years, and they have displayed a pride in their work, and an industry that shows unmistakably that the distressing conditions of this depression period have not been successful in crushing their spirit or caused them to fold up in despair.

The quantities of foodstuffs that have been raised —the total would be a surprise to most people—represent, of course, the primary advantage of this garden scheme, but welcome as these suplies undoubtedly are, the satisfaction that comes from earning such additions to the larder by one's own exertion and enterprise is after all the most important prize.

The relief garden plan is an activity that merits general co-operation and support, and the citizens who sponsored the idea and have directed it so successfully have earned community commendation.

MATTRESS LAW OVERDUE.

Replacement, as contemplated by the Ontario Department of Public Welfare, of the mattresses declared unfit for further use by the reliefees in the Toronto zone will no doubt help much in raising the standard of sleeping accommodation in the homes of those unfortunates concerned. But, surprising though it may seem, this kindness of the Welfare Department has in it considerable danger to those people who are in the market for new mattresses through the regular retail channels.

Unless the Department of Health or the welfare division supervises the burning of each of the old sleeping pads that have been declared unfit, the public may eventually have the material in these old mattresses passed on to them in new mattresses, and possibly under the labels of new material guaranteed.

The ordinary routine of disposing of an old mattress is to have the garbage man take it away as rubbish to be deposited in the city dump. Private scavengers will not allow this material to rest long on the dump heaps and eventually junk men sell this material in car-load lots to some bedding firms. In fact, U. S. junk men export this discarded material to Canadian mattress companies under such inoffensive titles as "satinettes," and because Ontario has no law prohibiting the importation or use of used bedding material, the public continues to buy mattresses with a mixture of new and old material, much of the latter having been thrown out as rubbish.

The insidious part of it is that at the price that the department will want to pay for the replacements, they should expect fillings that will be made up principally from mill sweepings and waste, discarded bedding and what-not. This stuff the manufacturers can buy for about $10 a ton.

Of course, the department has stipulated that the mattresses must be 100 per cent. new material. And to the department or anybody else, even experienced mattress workers, the filling will look like new material, because when it has been put through the milling process, the old material cannot be identified. Until the Government sees fit to prohibit the use of second-hand material in the manufacture of mattresses, the public has no way of knowing what sick-bed or junk heap mattresses have not been made over into their nicely covered "new" mattresses.—Kitchener News-Record.

WHEN DICTATORS "PLAN."

A great deal has been heard about Russia's Five-Year Plan. Again and again we have been told how there was a doubling of coal, oil, pig iron, steel and copper production, a more than doubling of other things. When it was pointed out that the official figures showed a simultaneous decline in the consumption of meat, and declines of 31, 40 and 30 per cent. respectively in the consumption of sugar, milk and eggs, the invariable Soviet answer was that this merely meant a tightening of Russian belts until the new factories and plants began turning out a stream of consumers' goods that would raise the living standards of the Russian people above anything they had hitherto dreamed of. It was just a voluntary Lent before feasting.

Well, as the New York Times now points out, the stream of goods have begun moving. Unfortunately, they are not the consumers' goods Moscow has been predicting. They are described proudly by the Soviet Vice Commissar for Defence, in a speech made just recently. The aviation establishment, he announced, has been enlarged 330 per cent. in a year or two; in four years the number of light tanks had increased 700 per cent. and of medium tanks 700 per cent.; heavy artillery had been increased 210 per cent.; army radio installations 1,500 per cent.; submarine tonnage 435 per cent.; coast guard boats 1,000 per cent.; light torpedo craft 370 per cent.

Reading this, one is forced to conclude that the so-called "industrialization" of Russia was really the militarization of Russia; that tightening of Russian belts was less for the former than for the latter. Indeed, the conclusion is confirmed by Stalin himself. In a speech the other day to graduating Red Army cadets, he said: "We had to economise on food, schools and textiles to build up the Russian industrial machine; if th's had not been done we would have been disarmed to our external enemies."

Then there are the Nazis. Their great boast is that they have reduced unemployment from 6,000,000 when Hitler came into power to a present figure of 2,400,000. The figures are probably accurate, but the gain has been made mainly by putting men to work on the remilitarization of Germany. The unemployed are in the munitions plants—and in the new German army.

Clearly the "planning" of dictators is a great thing.—Ottawa Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Britishers everywhere will rejoice at the escape from death of Sir Charles Kingsford-Smith. The Australian is one of the world's greatest flyers, and his loss would have been a calamity.

Government by telegram is being attempted in the United States where pressure is being put on President Roosevelt to sign the bonus bill. The propaganda is sure to fail, however, for Mr. Roosevelt will undoubtedly veto the measure.

Every war industry in Italy has been working full time for months, according to Premier Mussolini. Certainly the dove of peace must be finding it hard to locate a roosting place anywhere.

The closing down of sixty road camps affecting 15,000 men, means municipal relief agencies will be called upon to absorb the workers thus released. Obviously, however, the province could not carry on this work unassisted if it seriously contemplated the balancing of the provincial budget.

Some folks claim that the whole trouble started with a sun-dust storm in Washington.—Detroit Saturday Night.

"WHEN HE WAS YET A GREAT WAY OFF"

A man, you remember, had two sons. And one of them said to him: Let me have my share now of my heritage.

So the father, a kindly man, divided his possessions. And almost immediately the younger son sold what he had and went to a far country and "wasted his substance in riotous living."

Then, penniless, he hired himself to a citizen of that country and was sent into the fields to feed the pigs. ....And at times he was so hungry that he would willing have eaten the slop that was given to the animals....And he remembered that at home even his father's servants had plenty to eat....So he said to himself that he would go home and confess his sins to his father and beg forgiveness and ask to be hired as one of his father's servants.... Asking no more than this.

"And he arose and came to his father. But when he was yet a great way off, his father saw him and had compassion and ran and fell on his neck, and kissed him."

You know the end of the story of the prodigal son....The father brought forth the best robe and put a ring on his son's finger and shoes on his feet, and had the fatted calf killed and roasted, and they all made merry....And, incidentally, had to pacify the elder son, who had stayed at home and worked faithful and wasted none of HIS substance in riotous living.

I have read that New Testament story often, but never until today did I notice one thing....that the father forgave his son WHEN HE WAS YET A GREAT WAY OFF and that he RAN to him. Did not stiffen his neck nor make a granite face; did not say to his son that he must EARN his forgiveness and eat humble pie before he could be taken into the home again. Instead, while the son was YET A LONG WAY OFF the father RAN to him.

No father, no son, no brother, no mother or daughter or sister needs to be forcibly reminded of the beauty of that father's act....I know that those words are haunting reproof to ME of the many times when I have been angry and sullen and have thought of my dignity and my injured feelings—and have NOT been like that most forgiving and understanding father....And I think I shall not soon forget that the time to act what we know we shall eventually, is when the beloved, estranged one is YET A LONG WAY OFF.

Your Health

By DR LOGAN CLENDENING

Mae West's curves have had little influence if my correspondence is any standard, on the general urge to have a slender figure. The ladies are just as averse to a mature, buxom, full rounded figure as before Miss West and her saga of conte droliques came over the mountain.

Nor is anyone any more anxious to work for weight reduction than before. They all crave an easy way. "How can I lose twenty pounds in two weeks?" "Send me a list of reducing foods." "What kind of salts can be used in baths for reduction?" "How can I lose ten pounds off my hips and no place else?"

Misunderstanding

Most of these are either wish-fulfilment hopes or are based on a basic misunderstanding of the fundamental processes involved. Not that reduction in weight is not possible, but there is no royal road to it. Nor is the result even of honest weight reduction going to resemble those visions of the plump, dumpy, matronly lady turning into a sylph-like and ethereal vision of young slenderness. It isn't in the cards. One's weight depends very largely on the constitutional build of one's body. The Hollywood stars are picked because they have a constitutional build which makes them naturally slender. Then they are mostly absurdly young, and youth is the time for slenderness. If she gets overweight, it isn't hard to get the Hollywood star back to normal.

She does it by sensible dieting and exercise. The idea that there is a "reducing" food is one of the main fallacies of the yearner after slenderness. The nearest we can come to calling anything reducing is a food that is "filling" and at the same time low in food value. It can be substituted for two out of the three meals of the day with good results. And the best of these are simple to enumerate—grapefruit, watermelon and bananas.

So don't be misled into buying reducing foods under a fancy name, and at a high price. There are such foods offered. They are sold in packages for from $1.50 to $2. The manufacturers state that if you will eat a heaping teaspoon of the food instead of breakfast and another heaping teaspoon instead of lunch, you will soon have an "enticing" figure.

What They Contain

Well, that's possibly true. The food may consist of soya bean flour and a little salt and coco, or some bran flavored to taste, or powdered oatmeal. Its retail cost, however, would be about 5 cents, and the reducer pays $2 for the package an dthe advertising thereon.

The amount of food in a heaping spoonful of a mixture as described above is about 50 calories. Since most of us eat 400 calories at least at breakfast and luncheon, it is not strange that the use of the product as ordered might reduce. But it is an unbalanced diet, and so is expensive to health as well as pocketbook.

Why not substitute a grapefruit or a dish of milk and banana for breakfast and lunch? The milk and banana diet is simple and inexpensive and balanced—two large, ripe bananas with one glass of whole milk, for breakfast and lunch. At the evening meal a clear soup, a slice of lean meat, tablespoon of a green vegetable, a slice of bread and butter, uncooked fruit, and a cup of black coffee.

Peterborough's Possibilities

By HOMER MOORE

ARTICLE 29

As you go through the County of Hastings or Haliburton County, in your motor car or any other way, this summer, you may see, in its raw state, the stuff you—both men and women—put on your face! What a god-send it is to babies in the heat of summer! We all were babies once! It was put on us then and now grown up, we put it on our face ourselves or have a barber or beautician do it for us. To what do I refer? Talcum powder of course!

But talcum powder comes from "talc" and talc comes out of the earth. Just remember that, when you go to your favorite drug store and see the daintily boxed, gaily labelled, talcum powder. But it isn't that way in the earth, although it is white in color.

There is also black talc, used for polishing the nickel-plated parts of stoves and machinery. The largest amount of talc is the white variety. This is found in many parts of our adjacent territory. It has many uses. As a cosmetic, it is mixed with boracic acid, perfumed and carefully sifted. A large part of "American" talcum powder comes from our own districts even if it has an American name on it. And more American firms would buy the raw material or perhaps erect a factory in Peterborough for it's simple manufacture, if new deposits are found and drawn to the attention of the right people.

Talc is found in "dolomite" of which there are extensive, but as yet undeveloped, deposits in our three counties. There is an operating plant at Madoc. There was another near Bannockburn but it was closed owing to difficulties. What a collection of ghostly buildings that formerly active property, has become!

A Mr. Philips, very kindly unlocked the doors for me to see the talc when the property was active. I looked down the shaft, the sides of which were like white-washed walls. In the buildings were several special machines—the only kind in Canada—so I was favored when given the chance to see them. The interior of these main buildings looked like the inside of a flour mill. We climbed over bags piled high—bags of ground talc—and in through a hole in the wall to the next room—the secret room—where the special machines were!

I was informed that the talc was of different grades. The finest was to be used for cosmetic purposes and another grade was useful to put the fine finish on writing paper and another grade was used in the manufacture of linoleum, and other things. At the time of my visit several years ago, the "talc" was sold for one grade, at fourteen dollars a ton. How much would a ton of talcum powder be worth, if bought by the can? The product of this factory was shipped to the U.S.A. and to Germany. While I viewed this white powder, I wondered at the arrangement of the selling procedure. Here it is, in its raw state, in our own district. It is shipped to the United States in bulk. There they put it in little cans and ship it back to Canada, and our merchants buy it from the wholesalers and in that "round-a-bout" way it gets back to where it first started from! Why couldn't a factory be established in Peterborough city for cosmetic talcum powder when we are within reach of the basic raw material, in our own territory—and ship it to all parts of the United States as well as Canada and have all we need in our own district?

The employees of this talc mill lived in small cabins around the main plant. Passing down a nearby road, it would never be guessed that a few hundred yards away was a place where "talcum powder" came from. It could not be seen from the roads but it was there!

What a thrill I got when Mr. Philips posed for a picture and after finding out who I was, rattled his keys and unlocked those carefully guarded doors! Not long ago, I went there again. It was near dusk. The shadows of trees and buildings were spooky! The roadway in, was in poor condition, trees were blown down, the little cabins windowless, the main factory silent, grim-looking in its whitish powdery coating—like a mantle thrown over it. Everything was still! I called it a ghostly array of buildings. It appeared so as my driver and I got into the car. But the talc is still there. The owner of a farm told me, it extended under his farm also. Now, if the Chicago owners of that talc property do not want to work it, why couldn't it be worked by Peterborough people and product manufactured here? If not that deposit surrounded by its ghostly forsaken buildings—why not some other talc deposit in some other area? I know where there is one—a good one—as the prospector who found it wrote and told me about it!

Now the most of this article has been descriptive, in order to show the uses, the money-making possibilities and the almost unlimited supply of this needed and much in demand, raw material, for manufacture into cosmetics. Why does Peterborough city let this raw material go by, to some American city to be canned?

An immense demand has been created for talcum powder in Canada and the United States. There are millions of babies and many millions of men and women, and they all use talcum powder, not once a day but many times a day year in and year out. It is one of the things that have to be replaced!

A person once asked an American pork baron, what was the best thing to make a fortune with, and the reply was: "Make and sell things that are et up." He was a shade off in his language but he had the right idea. He meant — make and sell things that have to be replaced. Now "talcum powder" is in that class. There is such a wide demand for it, regardless of what fancy name is on the label, that it has to be constantly replaced!

Here then, is one great big opportunity for Peterborough city to use our own raw material and label it as: "Made in Peterborough, Canada."

There is a deposit of talc of fine texture in Grimsthorpe Township in Hastings County, waiting to be used!

A DAY IN CANADIAN HISTORY

By Fred Williams

THE ARCHIVIST OF CANADA

On this date (May 16) in 1904 Arthur G. Doughty was appointed Chief Archivist of the Dominion. Coming to Canada about 1886 he about 10 years later entered the service of the government of Quebec, became private secretary to one of the cabinet ministers then joint librarian of the legislature; and his baptism into Canadian history began. Thence forward he developed into the most enthusiastic of Canadian litterateurs. This young Englishman taught Canadians the true value of their history. Drinking in that atmosphere at Quebec, existent from the beginning of the country, which realises the value of historical documents, he was soon recognized as an expert in research and a protector of our annals; and it was not surprising that, when the office of chief archivist fell vacant at Ottawa, the choice of Sir Wilfrid Laurier fell upon Arthur Doughty, by that time the recipient of academic degrees and "Doctor Doughty."

For over thirty years he was labored at Ottawa to create for Canada an Archives worthy of our country's history. His monument in stone is the Archives Building at Ottawa. Its true monument will ever be the name of Doughty. In the face of much antagonism, due to lack of knowledge of the importance of his work, he converted politicians, journalists, university professors and many of the outside public to the need for conserving our historical treasures. He has made an enormous collection of paintings, engravings maps, drawings, documents, books, old journals relating to every phase of our history. Luckily Sir Wilfrid's interest in the Archives was continued by his successors, Sir Robert Borden, Mr. King, Mr. Meighen and Mr. Bennett, all aiding him in securing from any part of the world manuscripts and books which might otherwise have been lost to us.

Forced by age to retire he is now no longer His Majesty's Keeper of the Records for Canada. He is now just Doctor Arthur G. Doughty, C.M.G., great English-Canadian, archivist emeritus. Perhaps, now that the handicap of office hours and deputations is removed Canada may get from his pen another of those delightful volumes telling of New France and of the early British Canada. He cannot be idle. That's one consolation.

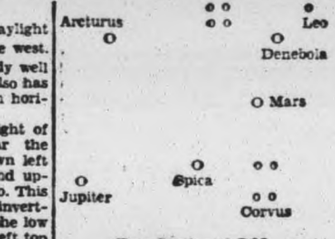
COMA BERENICES.

During this month, when daylight fades Venus is brilliant in the west. The red planet Mars is already well up in the south, and Jupiter also has arisen from the south eastern horizon.

Mars is still close to the right of a star Gamma Virginis, near the middle of a line slanting down left to Spica (Alpha Virginis), and upward right to Denebola in Leo. This line is the right side of a big inverted triangle having Spica for the low corner and Arcturus for the left top corner. Spica is blue-white in color a great sun at the great distance of 360 light years and even so ranks first magnitude, in these respects resembling Rigel of Orion.

A little to the right of Spica and below where Mars is at present, observe the four cornered figure of Corvus, the Crow, because the two stars of its short side at top always point straight to Spica. The stars of Corvus average third magnitude the tiny twins Zeta Corvi.

The term magnitude relates to apparent brightness to us and depends on other things than size. Indeed it is only within the last ten years, with ingenious refinements, that the size of some fifteen stars has been estimated. Even the nearest star Proxima Centauri is at such an enormous distance, over 4 light years, that the direct methods applied to finding the size of planets would fail to measure a star.



Face South at 9 P.M.

We may now locate Coma Berenices above the big triangle. It is between the very end of the big Dipper's handle now overhead, and Denebola, rather nearer the latter. In clear air keen eyes may separate some of the stars in this hazy constellation. It is a surprising sight with glasses preferably with wide view and low power. It has the appearance of some strange symbol in lines and curves of many stars traced on a dark background. It would rank as our most celebrated constellation if it were more visible to the naked eyes.

The name given to it centuries ago means Berenice's tresses of hair, and there is a fanciful legend about a Queen of ancient Egypt to account for it.

What's in the Name of Canadian Cities and Towns?

By FRANK H. WILLIAMS

DUNNVILLE, ONTARIO.

About 110 years ago a man named Samuel Minor settled on Dunnville's present site and this thriving industrial centre was launched on its way. Erection of a dam across the Grand River furnished water power and sundry attractions for business firms, while a land-locked harbor offered splendid shipping facilities.

Oliver Phelps actually made the first attempt at beginning a village when he bought three lots and sold them soon after the dam was finished.

The only explanation for the choice of Dunnville as a name is that it must have been derived from a family named Dunn, which lived in a township across the river, and which always had been known as Dunn Township.

EARLY SILVER RALLY IS CUT IN LATE TRADE

Golds Close Irregularly Lower While Oils Hold Own Position.

TORONTO MINES.

Base Metals Gain in Heavy Buying From Bullish Movement at New York.

TORONTO, May 16 (C.P.).—Base metals caught the buoyant spirit of the New York Board to-day and moved forward on a heavy wave of buying while the rest of the Toronto mining list was rather uncertain in its performance. The silvers had a morning flurry along with the base metals on the strength of higher silver prices in Montreal and London, but the rally flattened out and afternoon trading in the group was slow. The golds closed irregularly lower and the oils did little better than hold their position.

The big coppers assumed the leadership of the base metal group, Noranda and Hudson Bay adding 40 to 75 cents each, and Coast Copper with an advance of about 50 cents. Waite-Amulet closed around 80 for a gain of close to 10 cents, and Falconbridge also added about 10 cents, while minor advances were recorded by Pend Oreille, Big Missouri and Sudbury Basin.

Pickle Crow rebounded about 20 cents and closed around 2.30. Little Long Lac and Prospectors Airways.

Small gains were showing at the close for Castle Silver, Bear and Peuerson-Cobalt. Eldorado closed a few cents down.

HOOVER TURNS GUNS UPON NRA

Charges Scheme Saddling Nation With "Worst Era of Monopolies."

CLOAK FOR CONSPIRACY.

BY W. A. WELLS

(Copyright, 1935, by the A.P.)

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Calif. May 16.—(AP)—An indictment of the N.R.A. as saddling people of the United States with their "worst era of monopolies" was added today to the recurring public comment on national affairs by former president Herbert Hoover.

"Exactly such schemes to avoid competition in business were rejected by my administration because they are born from a desire to escape anti-trust laws," he said in advocating abolishment of the administration recovery setup.

"The one right answer by the House of Representatives to the senate's action extending the life of the N.R.A. is to abolish it entirely," he said. "The codes are retarding recovery. They are a cloak for conspiracy against the public interest. They are and will continue to be a weapon of bureaucracy, a device for intimidation of decent citizens."

He asserted the N.R.A. has been crushed the life out of small businesses and "they are crushing the life out of the very heart of the local community body."

WALL STREET

NEW YORK, May 16.—(AP)—Led by the motors, oils, steels, mines, rails and a wide assortment of specialties, the stock market today gave one of its most bullish exhibitions since last July.

The sharp upturn, which crowded the ticker tape at one time, was attributed partly to a revival of inflationary psychology and partly to growing business and industrial optimism.

Chrysler was a star performer with a gain of more than 3 points. Others, up 1 to 3 or more, included U. S. Steel, U. S. Smelting, Case, Santa Fe, Westinghouse, Anaconda, Kennecott, Union Pacific and Amerada Corp. The late tone was strong. Transfers approximated 2,000,000 shares.

Famous Animal Trainer Clawed To Death

Herman Ziegler, one of the world's foremost wild animal trainers, died at Monterey Park, Calif., as a result of an attack by 18 full-grown lions he was putting through their paces at Gay's lion farm at El Monte, near Los Angeles. A misstep in the lion cage, when he stumbled over a low pedestal and fell, brought the snarling pack of beasts upon him. His mangled form was dragged into a narrow entrance way by the lions, where attendants, using tear gas, managed to extricate him. Layout shows Ziegler and the jungle beasts in the runway where they dragged his mangled body.

SMALL SURPLUS IS EXPECTED BY BOARD

Appreciation Expressed to All Those Who Aided With Y. W. Pageant.

Financial reports indicating that the association will be able to conclude another year with at least a small surplus were presented at the regular meeting of the Y.W.C.A. board of directors this week. Mrs. H. R. H. Kenner presided.

Correspondence in connection with the National Y.W.C.A. Convention to be held in Ottawa in June was discussed and the hope expressed that a large delegation can be sent from this city. Expressions of appreciation were extended to members of the staff and all who aided in the success of the Pageant. Budgets for the different departments of the Y.W.C.A. work in the coming year were read and accepted.

The comp committee reported a generous donation of a camp bed from the A. Wander firm. Following the meeting, the annual camp shower was held in the Green Room.

CANADIAN RESERVE

The last obstacle in the way of a completion of a deal with Castle Tretheway Mines for the financing of the holdings of Proprietary and Canadian Reserve Mines (the old Crown Reserve) was removed yesterday. The Canadian Reserve Gold Mines is to assume the new name of Omega Gold Mines Ltd., the shareholders to receive four shares in the new company for five of the old. All outstand liabilities of both proprietary and Canadian Reserve will be liquidated with the aid of Castle Tretheway and the holdings of both companies brought into production. The funds necessary to bring this about will be repaid to Castle Tretheway out of the net earnings of the subsidized property. Cattle will hold 50 per cent of the capital stock of the new company.

BASE METALS

Business presented to shareholders of Base Metals Mining Corporation at the annual meeting held to-day in Toronto was purely routine in nature, with all reports adopted. The old board of directors was relected.

Young Men Needed In Motor Industry

OSHAWA, Ont., May 16 (C.P.).—"Although we are supposed to be living in hard times, a great increase is noted in the production of automobiles this year, and I believe the motor industry will lead us out of this depression," R. S. McLaughlin, president of General Motors Products of Canada, Ltd., told the members of the Canadian Automotive Engineers' Society here last night. He said far greater developments were in store for the motor industry, and with this in mind it was necessary to have young men.

COMMON STOCK PAYS 30 CENTS

International Nickel Statement Shows Profit of $4,917,627.24.

FOR THREE MONTHS.

A net profit of $4,917,627.24, equal to 30 cents per share on the common stock after allowing for preferred dividend, is reported for the first three months of 1935 in the quarterly statement of The International Nickel Company of Canada, Limited, which was mailed to shareholders yesterday.

This compares with a net profit of $5,040,275.991 in the corresponding quarter of 1934, which was equal to 31 cents per share on the common.

During the first quarter of 1935 cash was increased by about $3,240,000 to a total of $22,031,652.48 on March 31.

As anticipated from the remarks of Robert G. Stanley, president, at the annual meeting of the company on March 26, announcement was made recently that the 5½ per cent. mortgage debenture stock of The Mond Nickel Company, Limited, will be redeemed in its entirety on August 1 at 103 and interest. The amount of this stock outstanding on March 31 was £1,089,908. The dollar cost of retiring the debentures of International Nickel's subsidiary in Great Britain will naturally depend on the exchange rate then prevailing.

In his accompanying letter to shareholders, Mr. Stanley points out that they number "almost exactly ten times the total number of employees required to carry on all of your company's varied activities." Continuing, he said:

"You as a shareholder can render great assistance by becoming familiar with your company's products and their fields of application. In most instances nickel is an unseen factor in the wide range of metallic products serving modern industry. Although you cannot see it you can appreciate its contribution to these products. In helping to spread such appreciation 100,000 shareholders can greatly accelerate the progress your company is making."

CENTRAL SECTION OF TRENT OPENED

Section of Trent Canal Opens Two Weeks Earlier This Year.

The central section of the Trent Valley Canal extending from Lock 8 at Meyersburg to Balsam Lake was opened for the traffic of the season to-day. The opening represents an advance of two weeks over last year's opening date.

The section of the canal from Trenton to Lock 7 at Glen Ross and the section north of this city from Balsam Lake to Lake Simcoe will not be opened until June 1. The severn division was opened during the past couple of days.

Recently June 1 has been the date for the opening of all sections of the canal. It is understood the Department of Railways and Canals ordered the advanced opening of the central section with a view to the greater convenience of the pleasure and commercial users of the waterway.

Hull dropped 25 cents for the only loss of the day. Prices at Chatham, Barrie, Brantford, Peterborough and Stratford ruled unchanged. To-day's prices:

Chatham $8.50, Barrie $8.60, Peterborough $8.50, Brantford $8.75, Stratford $8.85, London $8.75, Hull $8.75.

Lucky Collision

CHICAGO, May 16 (A.P.) — Why rain should fall by hatfuls this spring in the Central States, baked last year by the worst drought in history, puzzle even the experts.

According to W. P. Day, government forecaster at Chicago, a lucky collision of air currents over Canada changed the picture. May, without much warning, suddenly repeated the drought.

"The immediate cause," said Day, "is that the polar air currents and the tropical air current met, this year, farther south. Last year they were so far north that the precipitation which resulted never reached the Middle West."

Find Relics of Great Explorer

BLANTYRE, Scotland, May 16 (C.P.) — Newly discovered Livingstone relics have been on exhibition recently at the Livingstone Memorial Blantyre, Lanarkshire. They consist of the contents of a medicine chest and various other articles from the house in Rothesay Terrace, Edinburgh, where the explorer's daughter, Mrs. Agnes Livingstone Bruce, lived until her death in 1912.

One of the most valuable finds is a small collection of rock specimens from the Victoria Falls.

WALL STREET HIGHEST MARK NEARLY A YEAR

Big Buying Wave Sends Leading Issues Up $1 to $2 Per Share.

UTILITIES LAG.

NEW YORK, May 16 (AP)—The stock market was swept up to the highest level since last July on one of the biggest buying waves in months to-day. Prices of leading issues rose $1 to $2 a share in trading so active the ticker fell a few minutes in arrears for the first time in many weeks. Steels, coppers, oils, chemicals, miscellaneous industrials and rails were prominent in the rise while utilities lagged.

Brokers attributed the buying to a number of factors including recognition in speculative quarters of improved business sentiment, inflationary psychology created by Washington discussions of the possibility of passing the $2,000,000,000 cash bonus bill over President Roosevelt's veto, the remarks of W. W. Aldrich, head of the Chase National Bank on the inflationary aspects of the Banking Bill, and to further pressure of idle funds seeking investment.

"BULL" MOVE CHARACTERIZES TORONTO TRADE

Oils, Liquors, Metals Show Healthy Gains at Close on Heavy Turnover.

OTHERS FOLLOW SUIT.

TORONTO, May 16.— (CP).— Bullish tendencies characterized the Toronto industrial share market to-day, appearing mainly in the Oil, Liquor and Metal stocks and these were well up at the close on heavy turnover. Other groups trailed along and at the close the Steel, Construction, Food and Utility stocks were well represented in the collection of gains.

The market closed around the day's top. Nickel pulled up to 29 for a gain of ¾ and Consolidated Smelters at 175 was up 4. Distillers stocks were off slightly from the top but had gains of fractions up to ⅝. Brazilian, C.P.R. and Ford A also displayed unimpaired strength at the finish, the Motor stock closing with a net gain of better than a point.

The heavy turnover continued to rest with the Oils and leaders of the group closed at their highest prices registered in years, Imperial around 21, International Pete at 38½ and British American at 16.

Toronto Convention Reports Heard Here

The monthly devotional and business meeting of St. John's Women's Auxiliary was held on Tuesday afternoon, with the president, Mrs. G. S. Cameron in the chair. The departments all reported and the two delegates to the recent W.A. Annual Convention in Toronto gave very graphic descriptions of what took place during the week. The two delegates were Mrs. R. Cooper and Mrs. F. Ford, and both were thanked very warmly by the president for their excellent reports. The date was set for the annual closing tea to be held on June 11 on the church grounds, weather permitting; a speaker to be procured in the meantime. Discussion followed and a new membership effort is proposed.

On April 6, 1876, Mrs. Margaret Wray reserved space in a Hartlepool, England, cemetery, and on April 6, 1935, the old cemetery was reopened to fulfill her wish.

Have You, The "Can't Afford It" Habit?

THE use of that phrase does not suggest the inability to buy so much as the desire to practice rigid economy . . . to save . . . to deny yourself needed and necessary commodities.

But Man, oh Man, and you, too, Madam, how better and more effectively can you practice economy and thrift than to buy when prices are at their lowest ebb in years? How more certainly can you insure economy than to replace worn or out-of-date furniture than when new is selling for one-third of what it sold for 15 years ago? Or to stock up on food products when they are 40% less than at any time since the war? Or clothing when $53 to-day will buy you what you paid $100 for in 1912?

What you really cannot afford to do is not buy because you cannot afford to miss to-day's low levels . . . prices that are an actual boon to reduced incomes . . . to the practice of sensible, far-sighted economy.

CANADA'S NEW

Title Undecided

LONDON, Eng., May 16. (C. P. Cable).—The title to be chosen by John Buchan, Canada's next Governor-General, as a Baron, is not likely to be announced until several formalities have been fulfilled. Meantime the eminent author and parliamentarian will continue to be addressed as "Mr. Buchan." Announcement the King had approved conferment of a Barony upon him, was made last night.

An Earldom of Buchan has been in existence since the 15th century, Ronald Erskine—like Buchan, a Scot—succeeded his father as 15th Earl of the line last year.

This however would not preclude the Governor-General-designate following the practice rather favored nowadays by new peers, of adopting their surnames as their titles, in which case he would be Baron Buchan. Nevertheless the semblance of duplicating titles as avoided as far as possible.

Show Taxes To Stay Theatre Owners Told

TORONTO, May 16.—Theatre operators, by their own admission, received no hope when they protested pending amusement levies at Queen's Park yesterday.

"They turned us down flat," they reported after interviewing the Cabinet. Premier Hepburn later confirmed this with the query—"You heard from the theatre men?"

"You can tax amusements, estates and incomes," the Premier explained as he discussed the levy on theatre patrons. Other taxation, he held, put a levy on industry which crippled it when it ran into competition beyond the Province.

Corbin Folding Up

CORBIN, B.C., May 16. (CP). Signs of threatened transition of Corbin into a "ghost town" grew to-day as the town's chief restaurant was closed and arrangements were being completed to close the lunch counter and cigar stand.

A busy town until a strike broke out and Corbin Collieries, Ltd., announced withdrawal from the field, Corbin's population is facing an uncertain future. Several houses have already been boarded up and the families moved to other points in the Crow's Nest Pass.

Built and owned by the mining Company, the town has a population of 650 men, women and children, and with the closing of the mine, which has been sealed off, there is no work in the district for its inhabitants.

Hastings Suffers First Setback 17-6

HASTINGS, May 16. (Examiner Correspondence). — The Kawartha Softball League got away to a flying start on the local diamond on Wednesday when Keene were the visitors. Hastings' start in this league was anything but glorious, Keene taking the opener 17 to 6 before a fair crowd.

Although only outhit by 16 to 15 the locals were guilty of ten errors, the majority of which proved costly. The winners backed up Wood in the pinches, cutting short many a promising rally. Going into the box for the first time this year and without the aid of any practise Whitred pitched good enough ball to deserve a much closer score.

Nine runs in the first frame gave Keene the game, five hits, including a homer by Richardson mixed in with five errors, caused the early downfall.

Wood had six strikeouts to his credit and Whitred one.

The teams:

Keene — Gall, 3rd; Wood, p; Whalen ss; Nelson, rf; Brown, 2nd; Renwick, c; McCarthy, c; Rennie, cf; Richardson, lf.

Hastings—Scriver, c; Whitred, p; Wilson 1st; Thompson, 2nd; Phillips, lf; Bond, ss; Kelley, Sargent, 3rd; Stickles, cf; McKee, rf.

GUELPH TENOR HEAD OF OPERA

tenance of the uninterrupted prestige of the Metropolitan Opera."

Before leaving for New York, he issued a statement indicating he was ready to take up where Witherspoon left off. The big opera festival season would go on as usual, he said, to be followed in May and June with a spring festival of grand opera. At that time it was the intention to present some of the familiar operas in English.

"They are not to be so much translations as adaptations," he explained, "to bring some colloquial interest to the familiar operas."

In taking over the guidance of the "Met.," Johnson is expected to give up most of his singing activities. He created the leading tenor parts in "The King's Henchmen" and "Peter Ibbetson" and has been the Metropolitan's only Pelleas in Debussy's "Pelleas et Melisande." The latter role is one in which he will continue to appear, it is believed.

This raised the possibility while the Opera Company would gain Johnson's executive ability, its followers would all but lose the rich entertainment of his voice.

Picked by McCormack

It was recalled following the death of Enrico Caruso, John McCormack was asked to name the man he believed the rightful successor to recognition as the world's leading tenor. Without hesitation, he named Johnson.

Soon afterward Johnson was asked the same question. "John McCormack, of course," he replied.

Edward Ziegler, with the Metropolitan for almost 20 years, will continue as assistant general manager, the post he filled along with Johnson in the brief Witherspoon regime.

IN 8 AND 20 YEAR ISSUES.

OTTAWA, May 16. — It was announced last night by the Finance Department that the books opened yesterday morning for the $60,000,000 domestic loan closed last night with the amount considerably over-subscribed. It was proposed to allot $20,000,000 of the eight-year bonds and $40,000,000 of the twenty-year. Finance Department officials expressed great satisfaction with the success of the issue.

"The entire issue was sold for cash in a single day," was the comment made at the Department.

Half the loan had been subscribed an hour after the books were opened at 10 o'clock yesterday morning, and the twenty-year and eight-year series bonds were equally popular.

The bonds were offered in two maturities, eight and twenty years, the former selling at 99.50, and bearing interest coupons at the rate of 2¼ per cent., yielding 2.57 per cent., and the latter at 98.50, with interest coupons at 3 per cent., yielding 3.10 per cent. The bonds are dated June 1, and the proceeds will be used for general and current requirements.

Control of Commons Looked For by Labor Party

BRITISH LABOR SHAPING RANKS FOR COME-BACK

Madness to Accept Responsibility Unless in Complete Control Says Executive.

OUT TO WIN POWER.

By GEORGE HAMBLETON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

LONDON, Eng. May 16. (C. P. Cable). — Labor, crushed in the crisis elections of 1931, is preparing for general elections this Autumn. The election may again be deferred — the Government's term can run to 1936—but Labor's national executive is organizing in readiness.

"We are determined to win power if possible," declared W. A. Robinson, chairman of the Labor Party's national executive, in a speech at Sheffield last night. "If, however, we are forced to decide whether Labor should go in again as a minority government, we are pledged not to accept it until a special meeting of the Labor Party is called to settle it. Personally I think it would be sheer madness to again accept government responsibility unless we have full and complete control of the House."

Jubilee Enthusiasm

George Lansbury, Labor leader since the semi-retirement of Arthur Henderson, also speaking at Sheffield, said statements had been made the Government intended to take advantage of the Royal Jubilee enthusiasm "to get a wave of Toryism and send it back to power at the next election." No party, he continued, "ever before thought to drag the monarch in either for or against political views."

He added:

"I cannot believe, and will not believe until the event, that the Government is in any way concerned to try so miserable and despicable a trick as to attempt to exploit the good feeling and love the people have for the King and Queen. The love and respect that has been bestowed upon the King and Queen during the last month have no sort of party significance, and any government or party that attempts to turn that good feeling to political pary advantage will discredit not only itself but everything connected with it."

QUINT GUARDIAN SCORES DIONNE FOR TELEGRAMS

Just Trying to Tire Premier Hepburn and Croll With His Protests.

SAYS JUDGE VALIN.

Denies Photos Taken When Babies Unwell—Father Ignores Board Meeting.

NORTH BAY, Ont., May 16 (CP) —Oliva Dionne, father of the quintuplets, is simply playing games with Premier Mitchell Hepburn of Ontario and Minister of Welfare David Croll when he sends them telegrams protesting against flashlight pictures being taken of his daughters, says the venerable Judge J. A. Valin, chairman of the quantuplets board of guardians.

"He is just trying to tire Premier Hepburn and Mr. Croll," said Judge Valin last night. "It's just a joke he's trying to play."

Mr. Dionne's message to the Premier yesterday was:

"Have not had reply to my letter of May 10. Flash pictures still continue. This exploitation must cease until advised of babies' condition by my doctor."

Judge Valin laughed at the idea the taking of photographs had any ill effect on the children's health.

Babes in Best of Health.

"It's untrue," he said. "They're in the best of health. No photos are taken when the babies are not well."

Judge Valin said Mr. Dionne, who, with Dr. A. R. Dafoe and the Judge, forms the board of guardians, had attended the first meeting of the board but had said nothing. He was invited to the second meeting, vocally and by means of a registered letter, but did not attend.

Referring to Mr. Dionne's messages to Queen's Park, the judge said:

"If the father is doing this in good faith, why doesn't he place his applications before the guardians instead of bothering the minister? Mr. Dionne is one of the guardians and we would be perfectly willing to study any of his suggestions at any time."

Judge Valin said if, when the quintuplets were ill, he had come to the guardians and asked to have his own doctor examine them, he could have obtained permission in twenty minutes. Instead he telegraphed Premier Hepburn.

A TENNIS PAVLOVA

LONDON, Eng. (CP). — Chile's sensational woman tennis player, Anita Lizana, who won the first tournament in which she entered in England, is described by London tennis writers as the "Pavlova of the courts." The Senorita from Chile not only knows how to stroke a tennis ball, she does it like an artist.

Meet George, George And George, Jubilee Triplets

The first triplets born in Hull in many years, the infant sons of Mr. and Mrs. Aurele Roy, are doing nicely in their little incubator room at the Sacred Heart hospital there. The three baby boys were born at home. Mr. Roy, who is an unemployed returned soldier and the father of eight other children, including a set of twins, was worried about how he would be able to give his wife th necessary medical care. Through Mr. Henry Blackburn, prominent Hull industrialist and philanthropist, the mother and the boys were remove to the hospital and the tiny tots placed in incubators. The children weigh 3 pounds and 4 ounces; 3 pounds and 10 ounces, and 4 pounds. Dr. Laverdure, who is attending the case, states that their chances are excellent. Since the triplets were born only a few hours before the 25th anniversary of their majesties, all three boys boys were given the name of George. The christening took place in the incubator room as the babies were not strong enough to be taken to the church. Mother and children are shown above.

FR. COUGHLIN, LONG BOTH FAIL TO MEET WELLS' POLITICAL TEST

Roosevelt Alone Measures Up —Exceptionally Subtle Politician Says Writer.

REDS NOT MENACING U. S.

NEW YORK, May 16. — (AP) — Huey Long fails, Father Coughlin fails, but President Roosevelt passes the political merit tests of H. G. Wells.

"I listened to Father Coughlin", Wells says in an article in Collier's weekly, "and heard him unfold a vague, pretentious demand for a new declaration of independence. Incitement to hostile action against the rich, mingled with demands that the people control their own money.

"The empty poverty of his method, considered in relation to his immense popularity, was a disconcerting symptom."

Senator Long, who Wells visited, the English writer finds different from Father Coughlin.

"He is much more definite in his proposals than the radio priest", Wells writes, "but if anything, cruder . . . He abounds in promises . . . His knowledge is limited, his mental movements swift and undisciplined, but for some time he is likely to remain an important voice in the readjustment of America.

Long vs. Hitler

"Some people imagine a kind of parallel between Long and Hitler but I find little in common. . . . Hitler talks crude Germanism . . . Long talks crude, southern poor-white Americanism. . . . But the German brand of popular poison is profoundly different from the American."

Of Roosevelt, Wells says, "He is a politican but an exceptionally subtle and exalted politican. The role of president . . . is to sublimate, clarify and express the advancing thought of the community. And the president seems to me to be listening. I think he would be glad if something more definite and constructive began to come in."

Neither Communism nor European-type Fascism threatens America, Wells declares.

Masked Man Fires On Duke Devonshire

WATERFORD, Ireland, May 16 (C.P. Cable).—Civil guards are investigating a strange incident in which the duke of Devonshire, former Governor-General of Canada, is reported to have been fired at by a masked men.

The Duke, in Canada from 1916 to 1921, was peacefully fishing in the River Blackwater which flows past his Irish Seat, Lismore Castle, when a masked man sprang from the shrubbery and accosted him.

Asked if the boat in which he was seated belonged to him, the Duke replied it did, and he was promptly "ordered" off the river. The Duke paid no attention and the man departed, but not before firing a revolver shot in the air.

MOTHER THEME W.M.S. MEETING

St. James' Church W. M. S. Holds Most Interesting Meeting.

SPLENDID PROGRAM.

The May meeting of St. James' United Church W. M. S. was held yesterday afternoon at the church with a splendid attendance. The president, Mrs. A. E. Moorhouse, presided and carried out the excellent program prepared by Mrs. Sargent's group. The theme running throughout was "In Honor of Mother".

The hymns and the scripture lesson read by Mrs. A. Cripps were in keeping with the days' theme. Also along the same line, were the readings contributed, "The Spirit of Motherhood", based on 1 Cor. 13: 4-8, by Mrs. T. Meredith. "A Mother's Day Talk" by Mrs. W. D. Sargent and "What Is Home Without A Mother" by Miss M. Deyell.

Prefacing this part of the program, was a brief season of prayer led by Mesdames Sargent, Waterman, Ingham and Cripps. Two representatives of the X.L. Mission Circle brought a Mother's Day message in song. Mrs. R. Kitchen in sweet voice sang "Somebody Cares" while Muriel Moorhouse's fine contribution "On the Jesus Way" was greatly enjoyed.

"Impressions of the Branch Meeting" recently held in Belleville, were given in a humorous and interesting way by one of the delegates, Mrs. M. M. Ingram. "Builders of the Indian Church" is proving an absorbing topic of study this year and this month's chapter as presented by Mrs. Beavis in her capable manner held the close attention of the members.

A hymn and the benediction brought to a conclusion this splendid May meeting of the W.M.S.

Be Beautiful

By GLADYS GLAD

The eighteenth century is the era that is now generally recognized as the dark age of quackery. In those days, men made fortunes selling miraculous beautifiers to gullible women. But as beautiful Norma Shearer will tell you, cosmetics today are not the products of quackery—they are scientifically designed products. No woman need fear that the proper use of a well-known and reliable rouge will harm her. However, Norma claims that women must be cautious about the use of rouge, nevertheless, and it is in the matter of color that she must exercise this caution.

Every woman should study herself carefully before selecting the shade of rouge she intends using, her choice to be governed by the tone of her skin and the shade of her powder. Naturalness is the keynote of make-up today, and rouge should match the natural color in the cheeks as closely as possible. For this reason, the yellowish red rouges are usually best, as they repeat the yellow and red ones present in almost all youthful skins.

Rouge Needs Skill

It is in the application of rouge, particularly, that women require a skillful hand. Your rouge has a great deal to do with influencing the contours of the face. Ordinarily, rouge should be applied so that it corresponds with the natural color in the cheeks. However, if your face is long and thin, you should blend you rouge more heavily on the outside of your cheeks, and should put a faint blur of it on your chin. This will make th the centers of your cheeks seem farther apart, and thus will increase the apparent width of your face. The daby of color on your chin will shorten your face and make it appear more softly rounded. If your face is round and full, you should apply just the opposite principle. Your rouge should be blended in toward your nose, and your chin should be left colorless. This will create the illusion that the centers of your cheeks are closer together, and will thus tend to reduce the apparent width of your face. Always consider your facial contours carefully when applying rouge. For only if you do, will you ever achieve complete artistry in the use of this beautifying cosmetic.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

Falling Hair

Anita: A certain amount of falling hair is natural and healthy, as hairs, too, have their span of life, and then fall. The best remedy is brushing. Give your hair 100 strokes every night before retiring—and keep it up. Use a brush with fairly stiff bristles, so that your scalp feels tingly when you have finished. But do not use too stiff a brush that will scratch the scalp. And keep the brush clean. The hot oil shampoos described in my "Beauty Culture" booklet will be of benefit to your hair.

Inartistic Hands

Nell: Not much you can do about your stubby hands, Nell, except to keep them clean and nicely groomed. They probably are capable hands, so be proud of them.

Large Ears

Pauline: You can arrange your hair to cover your ears. A surgeon might reshape them, but be sure to employ only an expert.

EDITOR'S NOTE: To obtain Miss Glad's pamphlets on 'The New Figure' and 'Beauty Culture,' write, care of this paper, enclosing a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, and ten cents in coin for each, to cover cost of printing and handling.

ST. CATHARINES. — The Niagara Peninsula was visited by a heavy white frost last night, but there was no damage as far as could be learned. The temperature went to a low of 32 degrees.

Blossoms are reported to be in bloom throughout the district and Sunday will undoubtedly see the bloom at its best.

CLASS MEETS CROFT HOME

Thirty Members of St. James' S. S. Class Meet in Home of Mrs. Wm. Croft.

"HONOUR THY MOTHER."

Mrs. William Croft, Romaine street, was hostess last night to thirty members of the King's Own Class of St. James' United Sunday School for their May meeting.

Mrs. A. Rosborough, the president, opened the business period, and conducted this part of the program, the first part consisting of a sing-song of hymns, closing with "Close to Thee," sung softly as a prayer. The theme for the evening was "Honor Thy Mother," with Mrs. Gordon Adams taking the scripture reading from Exodus 20:12.

The life of Susannah Wesley was told in an interesting paper by Mrs. G. H. Pearson.

"Love of Our Mothers" was the appropriate hymn sung to a familiar tune, and was followed by Francis E. Willard's life story as outlined by Mrs. L. Gibson. Another tribute to "Mother," was brought in the beautiful little reading, "His Mother's Son," contributed by Mrs. W. K. Sloane.

One of the pleasing features of business was the acceptance of an invitation for a class picnic to be held on July 10th, at Mrs. M. Matheral's cottage on Curve Lake. Mrs. Al Davies and Mrs. Bert Pitchford were delegated to arrange for transportation.

Mrs. L. V. Wood, who plans the programs for the "King's Own" Class, was again in charge, and after the foregoing devotional part, introduced the games and contests of the evening. These included "A Farmyard Bluff," and a difficult contest, "Women of the Bible."

Delicious refreshments and a delightful social half hour concluded the interesting May program.

The sincere thanks of the class and their guests were tendered by Mesdames Eakins and Stinson, with everyone heartily subscribing, to the hostess, Mrs. Croft, who so kindly lent her home; to Mrs. Wood for her excellent program, and to the Social Committee of which Mrs. G. Adams is the capable convenor.

The King's Own members were invited by the class teacher, Mrs. Moorhouse, to hold the June meeting at the parsonage, 163 Romaine street.

or food-searching king-bird disturbs the solitude.

Have Unearthed Little

Here, 500 years before Columbus reached America, dwelt a race of men and women eking out a livelihood from this same land, this same lake. Who were they? How did they live? And of what did they think? Meagre indeed is the present day knowledge of them. They built great fires, probably for ceremonial or religious purposes, and among the embers they placed their dead. Clay boulders and more clay were heaped on these until the graves became mounds eight to 10 feet above the surrounding surface. They loved ornaments and traded with people from afar because with their dead they placed beads carved from marine shells from the Gulf of Mexico.

Archaeologists have been unable to pry farther into the stories of their lives. They have passed and only to-day is preserved the little group of seven mounds which is their only paragraph in history.

Spanish Aviator Starts For Mexico

SEVILLE, Spain, May 16 (AP) — Juan Ignacio Pombo, 21-year-old Spanish aviator, took off to-day for Villa De Cisneros, Rio De Oro, on the first lap of a flight to Mexico, D.F., and reunion with his sweetheart. His powerful plane departed from Tablada Airdrome at 5.50 a.m., G.M.T., (1.50 a.m. E.D.T.).

Pombo said he expected to complete the first leg, a distance of approximately 1,200 miles, in about eight hours. From Villa de Cisneros he plans to fly to Bathurst, Gambia, and there prepare for his hop across the South Atlantic to Natal, Brazil.

The young flier said the ocean hop of 1800 miles, on which he expected to encounter his greatest difficulties, probably would take him 15 hours.

JANETVILLE CHURCH ANNIVERSARY

Rev. Harcourt of Blackstock Special Preacher at Presbyterian Anniversary.

(Examiner Correspondence)

JANETVILLE, May 16.—A very successful anniversary service was held in the Presbyterian church on Sunday, May 12, when the guest speaker was Rev. Mr. Harcourt of Blackstock. In the afternoon, Mr. Harcourt spoke on the subject "The Battles of Life" and the children's choir sang very sweetly. A unique feature of the evening service was the fact that the pulpit was occupied by three ministers representing three denominations namely, Rev. Mr. Harcourt of the Anglican church, Blackstock, Rev. H. C. Wolfraim of the United Church here and Rev. Victor Walker of the local Presbyterian church.

Rev. Mr. Harcourt chose as his subject "God As Revealed in Jesus Christ". The choir rendered special music. The church was prettily decorated with potted plants and cut flowers and the attendance was unusually large.

Mother's Day

The children's choir sang. The pastor spoke on the interesting subject "The Christian Home." The evening service was withdrawn, owing to anniversary services in the Presbyterian church.

Home and School Association News

MAY'S SCHOOL

A very pleasant evening was spent at May's School on Monday when the ladies of the Home and School Association held their annual supper at which the school trustees and their wives were guests of honor. Later the usual monthly meeting took place with the president, Mrs. Briscoe, in the chair. The meeting opened with the singing of "Blest Be the Tie That Binds", followed by the Lord's Prayer in unison. Exceptionally fine reports were read by the delegates, Mrs. Briscoe and Mrs. Curtis, who attended the Home and School convention held in Toronto. An interesting event of the evening was the draw for a quilt, won by Dorothy Cunningham and drawn by Leslie Sage. The latter also rendered some very fine vocal solos which were enjoyed by all. The evening was brought to a close by the singing of the National Anthem.

NAME ST. JAMES PRO-CATHEDRAL

St. Albans to be Completed With as Little Expense as Possible.

HIGHER TRINITY FEES.

TORONTO, May 16. (CP)—Toronto synod of the Anglican church today approved of St. James church as the pro-cathedral of the diocese.

Provost F. H. Cosgrave of Trinity College said steps would be taken to complete St. Alban's Cathedral "with as little expense as is commensurate with efficiency and architectural correctness."

Canon H. P. Plumptre, rector of St. James' Cathedral, said it was "the happiest moment" of his life. There had been some feeling St. Paul's Cathedral might have been chosen, he added. "But Bishop Renison has been most gracious" in congratulating St. James' upon having been chosen."

Rt. Rev. A. D. A. Dewdney, bishop of Keewatin, who said he was here on a holiday, took the opportunity to thank the Toronto diocese "for the wonderful way in which you responded to the appeal for the restoration fund.

Provost Cosgrave, in the report of Trinity College, stated fees must be increased this year. Bursaries would assist those who are unable to pay.

Canon Plumtre said the condition of St. James' Cathedral was "like a bride adorned for her husband." Debts had been cleared, a new steeple had been erected, the roof was good. "The only thing I wish is that the pews were more comfortable," he said.

"My heart is full of gratitude at the solution of this problem," said Archbishop Owen.

Finance Report

Finance committee presented its report. Allotments had been made totalling $151,800. A loan of $1,000 had been made "to a church in need." A grant of $50 had been made to a clergyman "toward surgical expense." A grant of $75 had been made to assist a clergyman's son to attend Upper Canada College.

Seven students at Trinity and Wycliffe Colleges were assisted by the Theological Students' Fund.

"All of our churches had a decrease in revenue," A. H. Cuttle, finance commissioner, stated. "Yet it is gratifying to know that the contributions to extra parochial objects have shown a decline of only a few dollars."

Sixty-six congregations had paid their allotment in full, an increase of two over last year, Mr. Cuttle said.

A little church in Omemee had paid 123 per cent. over their objective.

Mr. Cuttle deplored the reduction of stipends in rural charges.

A pike caught recently in the River Shannon, Ireland, had swallowed a bookmaker's ticket on the Derby.

Old Dutch in the kitchen's just right,
It keeps everything polished up bright,
Won't scratch, that is sure,
Because it's made pure;
Saves money and makes hard work so light.
—Written by Mrs. W. J. Amer, Brockville, Ont.

Old Dutch cleans quicker without scratching, saves work and money and keeps homes shining with healthful cleanliness. It's different because it is made with pure SEISMOTITE (pronounced Sis'-mo-tite), a scratchless cleaning and polishing material of volcanic origin that is scientifically processed and combined with other fine ingredients to give Old Dutch its unique cleaning action.

Protect your investment in your home by keeping porcelain bathroom equipment, refrigerators, stoves and kitchen utensils bright with Old Dutch. It is entirely free from destructive grit—safe to use on any surface not harmed by water. It's kind to sensitive hands, doesn't clog drains, is odorless and removes odors.

OUR MAIL

Dear Anne,—When I am working many thoughts come into my head, then when I sit down they are all flown as mists with the morning sun. I was reading recently about our wild flowers being wantonly destroyed. When people pull and break in large quantities and then make no use as they cannot of large quantities carried an hour or so with no protection it certainly is wanton destruction. But I fail to see that a person going to a wood or bush or swamp and pulling a few flowers which are carried home and cared for does anything more than thin them out so that they grow more abundantly and a tiny bouquet on a dining table does hearten one so much. I have even sent small boxes of carefully pulled hepatica, violet, adder tongue and some others by mail. Where they grow and seed and keep at it year in and year out they kill themselves out and their decaying roots are food for a new generation of plants.

Were the Samantha and Josiah Allen books before your day? One rarely sees them now, but how I did enjoy them possible because I heard so many stories of the author. But in Samantha and Josiah at Saratoga, Josiah was so indignant because the little train stopped for people to get out and pick ox-eye daisies. If the farmers were lazy enough to let their farms get so filled with the weed he was not going to help pull them. Many is the armful I gathered there myself. At my home here when I was short of other flowers and decorated a few places with them the good man informed me they were trial enough without looking at them while he was eating. I thought it was a very good thing for me to pick the few I saw for here I pulled them by the roots, the flowers were pretty and bright and I burned both roots and flowers when faded. All the same he always watches to bring me in the first little hepaticas he sees, hunts for them, I think many men do and I love the idea. Last year I had a lot of just common petunias, they are far more sweet scented than the big beauties. In the evenings when quite dark I have seen six humming birds fluttering among them. I am having them again for the humming birds. They are such darling little things. When a child my mother found a humming bird caught in a big spider net she got it out but before letting it go gave it a drop of honey nectar and let my brother and I hold it a moment. Then twice I have had them flutter to a flower I had pinned on my dress. Did you ever see their nest? I must not get off on birds, but oh, what joy they give to watch from a window while working.

Best wishes, dear Anne.

Quid Est.

Dear Quid Est:

Yes, dear Quid Est, it is very thoughtless and destructive for people to wantonly destroy the lovely spring flowers that we have in such profusion all through the country. Do you know I was visiting at a home the other day and they had brought some trilliums from the woods and transplanted them in their back yard and there they were blooming so brightly and looking quite at home. Your letter takes me back about three years to a lovely warm Sunday in early May, when driving through the country, I think if I remember correctly it was in the vicinity of Buckhorn we came upon a whole woods full of the loveliest Mayflowers. I shall never forget that sight. We just sat and feasted our eyes. It seemed like a fairyland. The air was laden with the fragrance and the trees shaded them so that their lovely colors seemed so clear and bright, as if trying to lighten the entire woods.

I have only seen about one humming bird in all my life and that was just a glimpse as it flew from a flower about 16 yards from where I was standing. You are very fortunate to have seen so many of them and to have been so near them. They are such rare little pets, aren't they?

Do write again, soon, Quid Est. I so often think of you, your lovely thoughts stay with me and I find myself thinking over your letters many times.

Sincerely,

Anne Wilcox

Household Hints

By MRS. MARY MORTON

Menu Hint

Pork Chops and Peas
Mashed Potatoes
Dandelion Greens or Spinach
Celery or Radishes
Maple Whip Coffee

You may omit the greens from this menu if you consider there are too many dishes, but include some crisp article like radishes or celery, or it may be shredded cabbage.

Today's Recipes

Pork Chops and Peas.—Brown pork chops, enough to serve your family, in a hot skillet. In a baking dish place a layer of peas, sprinkle with flour, salt and pepper, place a layer of chops, then another of peas until material is all used. For a family of four one can of peas is sufficient. Sprinkle the top with flour, salt and pepper and cover with milk. Bake in moderate oven 90 minutes. Serve with mashed potatoes.

Maple Whip—One cup maple syrup, one cup water, two eggs, one-fourth cup sugar, pinch salt, two tablespoons cornstarch, chopped nuts and dates. Let first five ingredients come to boil, using yolks of eggs. Add cornstarch, moistened in cold water. When thickened, remove from fire and cool. Add chopped nuts and dates and lastly fold in egg whites beaten stiff.

FACTS AND FANCIES

Simple Sandwiches

Sometimes the busy housewife has not the time to prepare a great variety of sandwiches for the afternoon and evening party but would like something unusual yet appetizing to everyone.

Grate some cheese and mix it with butter. Add a little mayonnaise and sprinkle with cayenne pepper. Mix well. Cut out squares, cubes and thin slices of bread and toast. Then put your mixture over them.

Another novelty in taste and appearance is drained pimento, sliced. It may be placed on your bread squares with a thin slice of cheese on top. Cover with a little flour and toast first and then cover with the fried spread.

For Stains

For fingers stained from preparing vegetables a solution of exceedingly strong tea should be made. Dip your fingers into this for a short while and then wash with soap and water.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

I just came across an idea for a Children's Party and it sounds very interesting.

• • • • • • •

Animal Crackers Guess is entertaining to play at a circus party. Pass animal crackers to each player. Then ask each one in turn to give a description of himself, that is, of the animal he is supposed to be from the cracker he holds in his hand. He may make three statements and if the others don't guess at the end or that time he tells them.

• • • • • • •

For example, for a tiger the first statement might be, "I am feared by all men." The second might be, "I am usually tawny color with black stripes" and the third will surely give it away, "I am catty."

• • • • • • •

For the giraffe the first statement might be. "I am a native of Africa." Another statement is, "I am the tallest of four-legged animals." A third statement is "Everybody laughs at my neck."

• • • • • • •

To make the game more difficult and to have a large assortment of animals, use library or magazine pictures of animals. The individual library photograph usually has descriptions beneath it that will help the one holding it to make more puzzling statements.

A SONG THAT GRASS SINGS

The violet is much too shy,
The rose too little so;
I think I'll ask the buttercup
If I may be her beau.

When winds go by, I'll nod to her
And she will nod to me,
And I will kiss her on the cheek
As gently as may be.

And when the mower cuts us down,
Together we will pass.
I smiling at the buttercup,
She smiling at the grass.

"BIOGRAPHY OF A BACHELOR GIRL" and "NIGHTS IN HOLLYWOOD"

Ann Harding, seldom seen hereabouts, teams up with Robert Montgomery for the major effort in a double bill, "Biography of a Bachelor Girl." It is a smart and sophisticated story of modern type that has plenty of interest in the characterizations and acting, but a very thin plot that wears just a little threadbare at moments. However, the undeniable skill of the two main actors counts for a lot.

Ann Harding, who 'acts' every minute that she is on the screen, but still gets across in a big way, seems more polished than ever beside Montgomery's 'realness,' which descends almost to lowness at moments. He does not give a very good portrayal of a lover, but he has one scene, the bit where he looks back to his early life and talks about it in a dreaming monotone, that stands out by reason of its extraordinary quality.

The story revolves about the efforts of a magazine editor, Richard Kurt (Robert Montgomery), to obtain the life story of a famous and notorious artist, Marion Forsythe (Ann Harding), and the equally strenuous efforts of an old lover, Leaner Nolan (the priceless Edward Everett Horton, no less) to prevent her. Una Merkel and Edward Arnold have parts in the picture, which has a climax to suit its somewhat meandering outline.

"Nights in Hollywood" features Jimmy Dunn in the role of a hard-pressed director of a moving picture. It uses the popular "show within a show" idea to put over a lot of peppy dancing and singing in which Alice Faye, who is Rudy Vallee's big moment, figures largely.

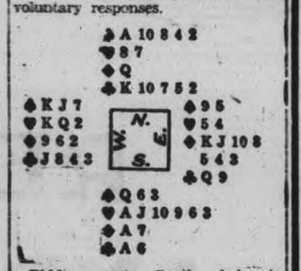
CONTRACT BRIDGE

By E. V. Shepard
"Teacher of Teachers"

SAFETY FIRST

Knowing South's playing ability, his bidding on this hand is beyond my comprehension. Why he should fail to rebid his hearts, containing only two probable losing tricks, is amazing. Instead of doing this South's bid and rebid of no trumps, with two doubleton suits stopped once each, involved tremendous hazards, as he volunteered in his account of the hand. Safety first should be the motto with as powerful a hand and partner's two voluntary responses.



Bidding went: South, 1 heart; North, 1 spade; South, 2 no trumps, to force (South should have forced with 3 hearts); North, 3 clubs; South, 3 no trumps (South could have bid 3 hearts, having failed to rebid his suit before), ending the bidding.

The opening lead was the 3 of clubs, from West's only 4-card suit. The 9 forced declarer's ace. The sole hope of game appeared to lie in establishment of the heart suit, but South played West for a rather easy mark and won by doing so. He led a low heart from his own hand. Of course, West should have won the trick and led his top diamond, as his best hope of defeating the contract. Such play probably would have defeated the contract 4 tricks. West, however, fell for South's strategy and passed the trick, expecting his partner could win the trick, and the 7 held the trick. The 8 was led. When East followed suit it was evident that West held the doubleton K-Q. The declarer's ace picked up the Q, and a single trick was given opponents, but game was assured; 1 spade, 5 hearts, 1 diamond and 2 clubs.

As a matter of fact, South played the only way to give opponents a certain opportunity of defeating the contract. The normal distribution of 5 opposing hearts is 3-2, with one high honor in one hand and the other in the other hand. The correct method of playing the hand is to twice lead hearts from dummy and twice finessing unless the second lead uncovers a high honor lying East. Had East held the 2 hearts, including a high honor, and West the 3 hearts, including the other high honor, the only possible way to go game would have been to win the opening club lead with dummy's K and lead a heart from dummy. Then only one trick could have been lost and game would have been assured. The way the hand was played offered opponents certain chances to badly beat the contract. Any alert player sitting West would have ruined South.

Unless South was willing to play the hand for game at hearts he should have left North play the hand at 4 spades, which would have gone game, and probably have made 5-odd, providing North played as well as South.

ROBERTA'S CHAT

A column conducted by a reader of The Examiner for her other reader friends. Address all mail to Roberta in care of The Examiner.

"The great duty in life is not to give pain; and the most acute reasoner cannot find an excuse for one, who voluntarily wounds the heart of a fellow-creature."
—Fredrika Bremer.

Dear Friend:

Have you a truth-telling friend or acquaintance? I know one who prides herself on being truthful, but the only ones she tells, are hurtful unpleasant ones. If you don't look well, she tells you of it, if you have fallen down in something you attempted to do, she is quite outspoken about it.

If you have chosen a dress you like, she points out, that it will probably fade in the wash.

Your friends don't suit her. Had you done so and so with your cake it would have been much, and on and on ad nauseam (to the point of disgust).

I cannot understand why anyone can take pleasure in saying unpleasant things, when there is so much to admire in every one.

The truth is sometimes necessary, and greatly to be valued, but if you want to find out how many friends you have, just go around telling the plain unvarnished truth.

All of us need, at times, the friend who can shut their eyes to the little mistakes we make. Why should anyone think themselves so very right that they feel competent to go around correcting the rest of us.

The curious thing is that these so-truthful people have so many faults, that they are sticking out all over them. We, of course, are foolish to let anything they say affect us, yet it is a fact, that they can take a lot of the joy out of life, no matter how we brace ourselves, against them.

Some people, can hurt us badly by "faint praise," such as, its alright but—it would have been better this way, or you could have done better the other way.

Personally, I like to make my own mistakes, and correct my own faults.

A little good-natured criticism never hurt anyone, but when you run up against anyone who is forever trying to run your life, a prompt snubbing is the only remedy.

Let them see that you can run your life, without a lot of ill-bred interference. Your own opinion of yourself is as much to be depended on, as any one else's.

Some people have a cruel streak in them, and take pleasure in hurting others, especially if the one being hurt, is not in a position to retaliate.

Others again, get a sense of great importance, through being rude and riding roughshod over others.

Sometimes the selfish person can be really cruel, by depriving another out of their legitimate share of happiness.

So consider well, before you deliberately hurt anyone. "Whatsoever ye would that others would do unto you do ye unto them," is a good rule. Anyone living by that, need never fear hurting anyone. Let us look for the good in each person, hoping they will do the same to us. Life is too short, that we should needlessly hurt on another, so be kind

Your friend,
Roberta.

Tourist Inquiries Heavier This Year

Judging by the number of enquiries he has received and from other indications, James J. Dorris, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, anticipates there will be a large influx of tourist traffic into this district in coming months. Already this year, Mr. Dorris stated, the Chamber has received and answered over one hundred tourist inquiries from places as far distant as Texas and Virginia, with the bulk of enquiries coming from New York, Pennsylvania and Michigan. Many tourists have completed their arrangements and it is stated several summer cottages have been rented for varying periods of time.

Sees Danger of Less Lawful Groups in Power Using Different Methods.

RAPS BAN ON NICKLE.

TORONTO, May 16 (C.P.) — Unless the Canadian Government "cleaned up the mess" shown in the report of the Mass Buying Committee there was a danger of a less lawful group coming to power and adopting a different method of dealing with the evils, Hon. R. J. Manion, Minister of Railways in the Federal Government believes.

Dr. Manion said the Government would shortly bring down legislation implementing the commission report. At the same time business men must also act to put business in order, he told an audience last night.

While the report showed only five per cent of Canadian business men were guilty of exploitation the proposed legislation would be like a police force to prevent them breaking the law and the other 95 per cent., whom he classed as "decent citizens," should realise that, said the minister.

Hits British Proposal

Dr. Manion also criticized a proposal in the British House of Commons to have Canada place an embargo on the export of nickel in order to curb the armament race.

"No man believes more in peace than I do, but I don't know why Canada should be singled out to be the goat in that direction," he said. "If they want to stop manufacture of munitions, let them stop making munitions and not our nickel."

"If anyone believes the Conservative party favors railway amalgamation, he must be stupid," said Dr. Manion. He warned the audience if amalgamation were carried out it would be at the expense of labor.

Recalling the address in favor of railway unification, delivered at Chatham last December by Hon. W. D. Euler of Kitchener, Minister of National Revenue in the government of W. L. Mackenzie King, Dr. Manion said Mr. Euler was the first public man in Canada to come out for amalgamation.

ON A WHISKEY DIET.

BRAMPTON, May 16 (C.P.). — Christopher J. Crozier, Streetsville district farmer, was sentenced to seven days in jail when he appeared on a charge of driving while intoxicated. Dr. S. H. Smith testified Crozier was on a whiskey diet to overcome the inertia of diabetes, and to stimulate him to the point where he need have no fear of the deadly coma that marks the last stages of the disease.

46 ARE RECEIVED ON NORHAM CIRCUIT

Most Impressive Reception Services Held at Norham and Codrington.

NORHAM, May 16. (Special to The Examiner).—At a very impressive reception service held Sunday, May 5th, in the United Church at Norham, where Rev. J. W. Platt is pastor, there were 28 young people received into full membership in the church. This was the result of an intensive effort on the part of the pastor covering a period of three months.

The occasion was marked by the visit of Rev. Manson Doyle, D.D., leader of young people's work in the United Church, who gave an inspiring message to the young people.

A very hearty welcome was tendered to the young people who joined, by the pastor and church leaders, and a souvenir booklet was presented to each of the new members.

At Codrington

A similar service was held at Codrington, on the Norham charge, the same day when 18 young people were received into membership.

On the Monday following a rally of the young people of the Norham charge was held at Norham when over one hundred gathered to hear addresses from Messrs. Cecil Stephens, Orval Kelly and Donald Massey, leaders in young people's work in the district. The main address was delivered by Dr. Manson Doyle, followed by an open forum.

There were visitors present from Campbellford, Smithfield, Warkworth, Castleton and Morganston.

A Romance Of 1952

In Callander, there dwelt a youth
Who lived a lonely life,
When suddenly he formed a plan
To get himself a wife.

He said: "To-morrow, if it's fair,
I'll go see Pa Dionne,
Get his consent—then I shall wed
That lovely maid, Yvonne."

No other girl compares with her—
Large eyes, so deep and starry;
Her voice is tantalizing too;
'Tis she that I would marry.

He dressed himself with greatest care.
And with anticipation
He walked along the road, until
He reached his destination.

When Papa Dionne learned his quest,
He roared in tones of thunder:
"My girl Yvonne is not for you;
I fear you've made a blunder."

So home he went with aching heart
And sad within his soul;
Yet there is hope—my fair Cecile—
I'll just 'phone David Croll.

The answer then came back to him:
"'Twas ever my ambition
To have Cecile make country's laws
And be a politician."

Then for Marie, the fairy elf,
I'll just ask Doc Dafoe;
His verdict differed not a whit—
"A thousand times, No! No!"

Marie shall comfort my old age
As in wheel chair I languish;
The thoughts of parting with her now
Would fill my heart with anguish.

The youth went home—he pondered long;
To wed—he'd an obsession;
At once a gleam of light arose
In midst of his depression.

There's sweet Annette, with lovely voice,
It's great to hear her sing;
I'll simply have to get the nerve
To go and wire—the King.

Reply returned in message brief:
"Young man, you are deranged;
For her in midst of royalty
A marriage is arranged."

Fair Emile he then besought
And asked if she would marry—
"If Hepburn sanctions this," she said,
"There is no need to tarry."

The day was set—the first of June—
With steps that did not falter.
So much in love, he smiling went,
And led her to the altar.

Gifts they received from guardians all.
She was a happy bride;
From Doc Dafoe, a lovely car
On honeymoon to ride.

The last selected guardian,
Most learned Judge Valin,
Upon her showered exquisite jewels,
Pearls and a diamond pin.

From David Croll, an aeroplane,
And from the King a yacht;
While Hepburn deeded them a farm
He recently had bought.

DUST TO BE LAID ON SAULT ROAD

Heenan Promises Action to Bring Lumber Centres Into Production.

RE-LET CONTRACTS.

ESPANOLA, Ont., May 16 (C.P.). —Assurance the Department of Northern Development would cooperate to the fullest extent in ameliorating the dust nuisance on certain portions of the North Bay-Sault Ste. Marie trunk highway by the application of calcium chloride has been given by Hon. Peter Heenan.

Addressing 140 members of the North Bay-Sault Ste. Marie Good-Roads Association last night, the Ontario Minister of Lands and Forests also stressed rehabilitation of the industrial life of lumbering and pulp communities in Northern Ontario by Government action.

General questions pertaining to highway traffic conditions in Northern Ontario were brought to the attention of Mr. Heenan by mayors, reeves and board of trade representatives from various centres, with the result a definite promise was forthcoming 10 miles on each end of the trunk highway would be treated with calcium chloride during the coming season in an effort to allay the dust menace of previous years.

Referring to the vast, unproductive timber concessions held in Northern Ontario Mr. Heenan stated: "This Government will not allow these companies to keep control of these limits and water powers without bringing them back into production. They must give way to those who will. I am glad to say negotiations have reached the stage where I hope to see Espanola and similar towns again employing men with a normal payroll."

U. S. Women Golfers Face Colorful Babe's Challenge

Canzoneri Belongs Greats

One of Few Champions Who Have Staged "Man Who Came Back" Act.

RANKED WITH KETCHEL

Ring historians, writes Warren Brown, some years hence, will be pleased to refer to Tony Canzoneri as the Man Who Came Back.

They will be pleased to do that, since the ring doesn't offer many examples of champions who have regained a title, once they permitted it to slip away.

A quarter of a century ago Stanley Ketchel did it, knocking out Billy Papke, in a return match, after Papke had previously stopped him, to acquire the middleweight championship. But historians are pleased to say that the ring has known but one Stanley Ketchel. As far as that goes, historians should be please to say that the ring has known but one Tony Canzoneri.

• • •

It is difficult for us who are attempting to keep abreast of the modern ring and its—shall we say eccentricities?—to look upon Tony Canzoneri as the Man Who Came Back.

Some of us find it difficult to regard him as one who has ever been away.

When he lambasted Lou Ambers the other night, in a fight to decided who was lightweight champion, Tony Canzoneri didn't do a surprising thing.

Since Sammy Mandell went tank on his heels, there have been just two great lightweights abroad in the land.

Canzoneri was one of them, and then, suddenly, Ross popped up to be the other. It required the delicately balanced perception on the part of fight judges and referees to detect any difference between Ross and Canzoneri. And it seemed obvious to this old commentator on such things that, if Ross and Canzoneri were all the lightweights there were, and you took away Ross, that would leave just Canzoneri. Consequently it seemed obvious that Canzoneri would succeed to what there was left of the title that Ross abandoned. So the only mystery that was attached to the recent scuffle between Canzoneri and Ambers was the misguided betting odds in the championship conflict.

Canzoneri, who was champion from 1930 until 1933, when Ross gained a judges' verdict over him, and then gained another one within three months, has been, for something like ten years, pound for pound, the most pleasing ring worker of his time.

He hasn't won all his fights, it is true, but he has never failed to give full value for any money expended on him, either by way of the boxoffice or the betting ring.

• • •

The compliment can be paid to few warriors, especially in these days of business in the ring.

Canzoneri, from the time he first appeared in a Chicago ring some eight years ago, has been a frequent performer here.

He has yet to make a disappointing showing.

You can't say that of many warriors, can you?

In his ring career, Canzoneri has ranged through the bantam, feather and lightweight classes.

He has held some sort of a title in all three, just as he now holds some sort of a title in the lightweight division.

But the title I prefer to give him is one of having gone always where the fighting is and of having kept the faith with the customers.

When ring history is ended few will have that distinction. Titleholders there will have been, by the score, and by devious routes. But the warriors such as Canzoneri who have always given satisfaction will be scarce, indeed [illegible] on the Last Round[illegible] we. If you th[illegible] to name as Ca[illegible]y hailed

Edmonton Retains International Title

EDMONTON, May 16. (CP).—The record of Edmonton Commercial Grads in Underwood trophy competition was still without blemish to-day.

Holders of the international women's basketball title since 1923, Grads retained the trophy last night by handing the girls from the American Institute of Business at Des Moines Iowa, their third straight defeat to end the scheduled five-game series in quickest possible style. Grads have held the Canadian title since 1922.

Starting off by winning the opening game 60-38 and taking the second 49-41, Grads achieved the straight objective by defeating the United States quintet 58-29 in the third game. They took a lead 14-12 at the end of the first quarter, made it 30-16 at half time, built it to 42-24 at the three-quarter mark and finished the final quarter by outscoring the visitors 14-6 to earn double their opponents' score.

FIX RETAINING WAGE

GREAT ATHLETE SEEKS TO TAKE GOLFING HONORS

Even Though on Blacklist of Association Didrikson Determined to Carry on.

ADDS PLENTY OF COLOR

When a nation's best women mashie wielders gather in August at Interlachen in Minneapolis for the United States women's golf championship, a champion javelin thrower, runner, basketballer, boxer, ball player, jumper and wrestler will be right in there with 'em fighting from gong to gong.

The fighter is Babe Didrikson, a gal from down Texas way of whom you may have heard even in Canada. Her exploits have been worth publicising. Her entry at Minneapolis means that she has made good the boast of several years ago that she would learn to shoot as well as the best woman in the country "and some of the men."

Power First Idea

Babe has travelled a long, hard path since she took up golf. At the start she had much to learn. She went at the game headlong, putting every ounce she could muster into her drives. That seemed to be the important thing—to murder that ball and judging by her success in many other sports she had plenty of power. Since then she has had to make over game for the sake of finesse through the green, which experts who saw her win the recent Texas championship say she has acquired in admirable style.

La Didrikson has the first requisite for any championship, a great competitive spirit. She has been wise enough to find the flaws in her game, to accept the counsel of capable pros, and has licked the weaknesses, one by one. She did it by fighting them one at a time.

Though she always could drive, her game with the irons was weak. Stanley Kertes of Los Angeles and Bob McDonald of Chicago helped her with the details of the short game. Now she can stick at pitch approach up on the green that bites into the grass and stays where its put, and her accuracy with the lofting irons has improved remarkably.

Natural Rhythm

Her timing, rhythm and balance, according to her teachers, are all that could be asked. She has plenty of that naturally, as her fine form in track and field illustrates. In any game she has tried, the Babe has shown this individual athletic grace.

The United States Golf Association has started to look into her athletic career since she announced her wish to mingle athletically with the ladies at Interlachen. Nearly every phase of her activities has been investigated long before now, but it is part of the U.S.G.A. general plan to peer into this and that.

One thing they will find out about the Babe without much trouble. She has the sort of color and gate appeal that help at almost any sort of show. And she'd be about the fightingest national champion the game in United States ever has had.

Much could be said of her long career in sport, where she has scintillated wherever she entered, but Babe is well enough known that sport followers know if she has cast a covetous eye on the U.S. national championship, she will put plenty of color and courage into her bid for the honors.

GOLF FACTS
NOT THEORIES!
By ALEX J. MORRISON

Number 612

The way most golfers grope around for the line to the green, you'd think they had absolutely no sense of direction. Of course most of them have.

The mistake they all make is trying to line up feet or head instead of properly placing their hips. If your hips are in the right position in relation to the desired line of flight you've done half the job toward hitting the ball straight.

Don't count on the position of your feet to keep you straight. Chances are your stance is closed, that is, your feet are placed so that a line across your toes would point to the right of your intended line of play.

You may look in the right direction but, let me repeat, unless your hips are in the right position you can't keep on line.

Soccer Notes

Canada Packers had a large turnout of players and prospective men on Tuesday night. They expect to be fully attired in their new equipment for the league match on Saturday afternoon. The sweaters are maroon and gold stripe parallel, with white pants and stockings to correspond.

Many soccer fans will regret to learn that Alex Mitchell is still confined to hospital with the injury that he received to his hand many weeks ago.

It is a pity that such a superb full back as Asa Downer should be acting in the capacity of referee when he could be fostering the game in some team in the city. No matter where he acts, his presence will be appreciated, but his place, at present, is on the field of play.

It is expected that a new crossbar will be in position on the west-end goal before Saturday. The clubs are meeting the necessary expense. Clifford Castle is endeavoring to clean up the field of stones and wood. He put new boxes in the upright posts.

Sam Agnew, late of the Caledonians, was out at practice last night. Perhaps he has signed for the C. C. F.

Walter Stocker, chairman of the Parks committee, has made a start in the fixing of the dressing accommodation on King Edward park. Why doesn't he remove the hut to the far end of the field where it will not be dangerous to the players?

The Canadian General executive were down on King Edward Park last night reviewing their prospective players and picking out the boys that were promising. Arthur Paggett's so shaped up well at left half; while Jack Menzie, who used to pay for Prince of Wales school, occupied the centre-half position. Another boy, Wilson, of Prince of Wales school, impressed the critics, playing at right half. There were about thirty players out at the practice last night.

SOME SKATING

LONDON (CP)—David Thomson, a 13-year-old schoolboy, placed third in the British roller-skating mile championship here by covering the distance, unpaced, in three minutes, 41.8 seconds. It was "some skating" for a little boy, the experts agreed.

HATCH HORSES MAY NOT RUN KING'S PLATE

Both Chickpen and Donstick Highly Rated Among Dozen Possible Starters.

LISTARO STRONGER.

Wright's Tax Free Shows Good Form—Possible Fast Track For Saturday.

TORONTO, May 16.—(C P)—Nominees for the 76th renewal of the King's Plate next Saturday, were put through easy exercises today while railbirds forecast the number to be entered before the deadline Friday morning.

There still persisted rumors that horses from the stables of Harry C. Hatch would not be seen in action at Woodbine Park this spring which, if true, would mean withdrawal from the nomination list the names of two fillies, Chickpen and Donstick who have been kept in secret training at Long Branch track. Both have impressive records as juveniles and are highly rated among the dozen possible starters for the historic classic.

Each had five starts last season and Chickpen was never out of the money, while Donstick had two firsts and two seconds to her credit. Both have shown the necessary speed over the mile on a fast track but their accomplishments over the mile and a furlong plate course have not been disclosed.

Meanwhile, R. S. McLaughlin's Listaro became even a stronger first choice, though the gelded son of the Romp II—Listen Dearie has shown no outstanding speed during his workouts. The best he is credited with doing is 1.57 3-5 over the eight furlongs on a fast track.

Shows Good Form

Better time was shown by W. H. Wright's little-known Tax Free, a three-year-old gelding who has never had a chance to demonstrate his ability. He never started as a two-year-old, but his training activities have ranked him high along with Seagram's Gay Sympathy. McLaughlin's Epicurus which finished in each of the three positions and once failed to place in his four starts last year, S. B. Crawford's Goggles, and T. S. Cochenour's 5-year-old Papalico who has never won a race since entering King's Plate competition three years ago.

Possible Fast Track

It was a little early to forecast weather conditions but nearly all week there has been a fast track which next Saturday probably would mean elimination of J. E. Smallman's three-year-old Rightfoot, a smart muddler.

Worst Noise-Maker

"PATSY" O'TOOLE

Baseball's loudest rooter is probably leather-lunged "Patsy" O'Toole, who this year transferred his allegiance from Detroit Tigers to Boston Red Sox. For years he was chief noise-maker and Public Nuisance number one at Navin Field. His departure was Detroit's gain and Boston's loss, for his grandstand howls were never really appreciated. Once, in Washington, ushers ordered him away from the vicinity of President Roosevelt's box because his noise had annoyed the United States Citizen No. One.

LEAFS OUST NEWARK BEARS FOR TOP PLACE

Hilcher and Schulmerich Combine to Give Toronto 6-4 Win Over Orioles.

ROYALS TIGHTEN HOLD.

Rochester Redwings Move into Fourth Place by Defeating Albany.

(By the Associated Press)

The fight for the first three places in the International League was tighter than a drum head today. Only half a game separated Toronto Leafs, Newark Bears and Montreal Royals.

In yesterday's games the Leafs pulled half a game ahead of the Bears, the two teams trading topmost positions, while the Royals increased their hold on third place and sneaked up a few percentage points closer to the fight.

Pitcher Whitey Hilcher and Left Fielder Wes Schulmerich combined forces to give the Leafs a 6-4 victory over Baltimore Orioles and assume leadership of the league. Hilcher held the Birds to one hit in the first six innings and then was raked for five more blows and four runs in the last three innings, but Schulmerich had delivered himself of a four base hit in the sixth frame that produced the deciding runs.

Going into the last half of the ninth with the score tied at four all and leading off the batting, Jimmy Ripple clouted his sixth home run of the season and enabled Montreal to nose out the Bears 5-4. Newark used four pitchers and all told they gave up only four hits but Cecil Spittler, the first Bear twirler to take the mound, handed out eight walks in the first four innings.

Albany Senators, occupants of the cellar, took a fresh lease on their berth as they dropped a 5-3 decision to the Rochester Red Wings who moved into fourth place. Although Roy Hansen limited the Red Wings to six hits, his mates in the field were guilty of five errors.

Buffalo Bisons and Syracuse Chiefs neither gained nor lost ground, diving in the ninth to give Buffalo a 10-9 victory in the opening game and Watwood's double in the sixth provided the necessary runs for the Chiefs to win the nightcap 3-2.

McLarnin Mistakes Pop Foster's Call And Lays Sparring Partner Out Cold

NEW YORK, May 16. (CP). "Put that man out," shouted Pop Foster.

Jimmy McLarnin apparently thought his manager alluded to Frankie Williams, amiable negro middleweight who happened to be sparring with him at the moment. For the Vancouver slasher let go an overhand right that landed square on Frankie's chin and the dusky one hit the canvas for a count of eight.

The fact was, Foster referred to a spectator of the Vancouver welterweight champion's Swan Lake training camp yesterday. The veteran manager believed he had spotted a spy from the camp of Barney Ross who title with the Canadian Celt here May 31.

After Ben Shewolis had picked himself up from the dusty road where two state troopers deposited him at Foster's behest, he insisted he was just a suit presser from The Bronx. And, while on the subject of suit, he threatened he would press one against champion Jimmy and his manager, through the courts for wrongful eviction.

Barney Ross was given a day off work. Monday Barney Flax took the Husky to cops Hebrew getting after telling all who would listen Barney is in good enough shape to enter the ring against the champion to-morrow.

MURRAY ST. SENIORS CAPTURE FIRST VICTORY IN 4 STARTS

George St. Juveniles Take 19-7 Decision From Mark St. in Second Church League Game—Trinity Minor Team Falls to St. James 14-8.

Rather a hectic evening last night in Church Softball circles, with plenty of hits, runs and errors. In the wildest Senior game of the season, Murray Street beat George Street, 21-16. George Street Juveniles defeated Mark Street, 19-7, and St. James' Juveniles won from Trinity, 14-8. The former game was played at Nicholls Oval, the latter at Queen Mary School. The Bantam game at King Edward was not settled on the field. St. James and St. John's each got 27 runs with the winning run for the St. James' team in the last of the seventh, maybe being a third out. The executive will have to unravel this one.

Murray Street Seniors, 21; George Street, 16

This game, which saw both teams alternating with the lead, was a hectic affair, with plenty of boots and muffs. The Baptists finally figured as winners in their first game in four starts. The pitchers, Gunsolus and Palmer, were both hit hard. Although none of the players looked good in this weird game, Foster, Weir, and Dart were the best.

Line-ups:

George Street.—Barnard, c; Gunsolus, p; Weir, 1b; Dart, 2b; Shortt, s; Parnall, as; Kingdon, 3b; Burns, lf; Mosley, cf; Wells, rf; McKee, rf.

Murray Street.—Watkins, c; Palmer, p; Clarke, 1b; Baptie, 2b; Wells, 3b; Mann, ss; Foster, lf; Busby, cf; McNabb, rf.

Umpires—W. Purdy, E. Gadd.

George Street Juveniles, 19; Mark Street, 7.

Running in 12 runs in the first inning against Craig, put the game on ice for George Street, who looked good in this performance. Mark St. went better after this shaky start, but Parnall's good pitching held them back. Craig, Scriver, Galley, Hoy, and McKinnon led the hitters. Line-ups:

Mark Street.—Brady, 1b; Craig, p; Clark, 2b; Scriver, c; Agnew, ss; V. Ferguson, 3b; Esson, rf; Cooper, cf; G. Ferguson, lf.

George Street.—Galley, c; Parnall, p; McKinnon, 1b; D. Weese, 2b; Hamilton, 3b; Wildman, ss; B. Hamilton, as; Martin, lf; Hoy, cf; G. Weese, rf; Gilgour, lf.

Mark Street ..... 000 214 0— 7
George Street ...1224 100 x—10

St. James' Juveniles, 14; Trinity, 8

St. James' looked even better than the score indicates in this game, having a big advantage in size and experience. Ward and Ridley were the opposing twirlers with the latter having 10 strikeouts and 4 walks, and Ward 6 strikeouts and 7 walks. The outfielding was bad on both teams. English, Castle, Ridley, Davern and Vallery batted well. An error by the base umpire deprived the Trinity team of at least one run in the last inning.

Line-ups:

St. James'.—Stinson, 3b; Benwood, ss; Wood, 2b; English, 1b; Castle, c; Semmith, cf; Self, rf; Ferguson, lf; Ridley, p.

Trinity.—Deering, 3b; Ayrheart, ss; Smoke, 2b; Brown, rf; Vallery, 1b; Patterson, lf; Ward, p; Fowler, cf; Davern, c.

Umpires—D. Crary; D. Charlton.

Stopped in 7th.

The St. James'-St. John's Bantam game at King Edward Park was stopped in the 7th inning, when the score was 27 all and the spectators took possession of the field. With three runs down in the last half of the seventh, two out, and three on bases, Lawson of St. James' hit the ball over the left fielder's head; the tieing runs came in but Lawson was tagged at home. However, the ball had been stopped by a spectator, ivan pos; or something which gives the league executive another problem.

The game a very free hitting affair, was highly interesting. St. John's had picked off 14 runs in the 5th inning. Howell of the Anglicans getting out all three times in this inning. Jamieson, Grose, Self, Dyer, Land and R. Clarke batted well.

Line-ups:

St. John's.—Howell, 3b; Dyer, c; L. Clark, cf; Lomax, 2b; Morley, 1b; Land, rf; R. Clark, ss; Crouter, p; Forsythe, lf; Castle, lf.

St. James'.—Moorhead, c; Lawson, rf; Leather, as; Hodson, cf; Roberts, 2b; Drysdale, 1b; Jamieson, cf; Grose, p; Dalliday, 3b; Self, p, 2b.

SPORTS
Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two.
DAY BY DAY

Tonight is the night in which softball players and fans celebrate the opening of their pastime for this season. The place is Central School grounds, the time six o'clock sharp with J. J. Duffus, R. M. Glover and W. H. Taylor starting the league off on its run for softball honors. We don't know what positions the three visitors will take but it is likely that 'Rolly' will endeavor to connect with J. J.'s slants while Bill, the donor of the Taylor Cup, emblematic of the league championship will call 'em behind the plate.

• • • • • •

Fashion-Craft's Spring Stylists and Lillico Motor Sales are booked to tangle in the initial duel and although we can't say very much regarding the strength of these two teams at present time it is altogether likely that Dormer and Payne will throw their best on the field for this encounter. The former has Collison, Butcher and Bill Abbott to select from for his first string hurlers while the latter is relying on Elliott and Price.

• • • • • •

A rather unfortunate incident marred last night's games in the Church softball league when Harry Baptie, second baseman for the Murray St. Seniors had his arm broken above the wrist. The accident happened in the third inning while Baptie was attempting a slide into second base. It was rather unfortunate in that, last night's victory was the first for Murray St. in their four starts this season and now they are short one of their star players with Baptie out for the season.

Once hailed as one of Canada's leading sportsmen, J. K. L. Ross is now on what is known as the well-known 'rocks' and only recently his Montreal home which was valued at over a million dollars was sold for $51,000 at an auction sale as the following skit will show: An auctioneer in Montreal sold the home of Commander J.K.L. Ross, noted Canadian sportsman, for $51,000. That may not convey much meaning until it is stated the place was valued at over a million dollars. Mr. Ross had from time to time made improvements on the house to the extent of $500,000. The ground on which the home stands would in normal times be worth $300,000. The auctioneer said so and he was probably telling the truth. Reducing these figures to smaller scale it is found that where $20 had been spent by the owner only $1 and a few cents was realized when the place was sold to close an estate, on account of bankruptcy. That is indeed severe shrinkage.

• • • • • •

That case does not stand alone; not at all. Many times there are reports of fine homes on which thousands or hundreds of thousands have been spent going for a small amount when the auctioneer asks for bids. It is an admitted fact that when a person goes in for a high-priced home he has by that move thinned out the number of prospective customers in case he finds it necessary to make a sale. Montreal is a city where there are wealthy people, and yet the fact that Mr. Ross had a property worth $1,000,000 meant not a thing to them. The few who were interested started bidding slightly over the $40,000 mark. Even in better times the value of such a property would never have been realized at a forced sale. There are too few people who care to assume the load involved in caring for a palatial residence."

According to G. E. Gibbard, Jakeshore district executive member of the O.B.A.A. there is to be a slight change in the qualifications of the intermediate ratings in the parent body this year. Instead of having boots or classes listed as B1 and B2 these are to be known as 'B' and 'C' series, as well as the original 'A' series, in which the Gibbards are classed. To more fully explain the situation, the Gibbards, last year's intermediate 'A' title holders, are still in 'A' category, the Bay of Quinte league, Gananoque, Picton and Belleville, are in group 'B', while such league as Kingston City and Prince Edward county and Trent Valley, Delore, etc., will be known as class 'C', thus eliminating any confusion in relationship to B1 and B2 as was the case last season.

• • • • • •

A meeting of the Central Lakeshore intermediate league will be held at Port Hope on Friday evening at which final business regarding the season's play and a schedule will be drawn up. Representatives from Cobourg, Port Hope and Bowmanville will be present and it is to be hoped that a team, either from Raybestos or C.G.E. also will enter this league.

Lawn Bowling
By Herb Martin

With the Opening of the lawn bowling season just over a week away, we thought that we would give some of our doubtful bowlers an inside view of the activities in connection with our club.

—O—

We Do This Every Year
but it has just occurred to us that we have a whole lot more to say on this than usual and then we want to get this in print so that the boys and girls will have ample time to make their plans.

—O—

Here Is The List
as planned by the games committee:

May 24th—Grand opening mixed tournament.
May 27-28—Pres.-Vice-Pres. competition.
May 30th—Schedule begins.
June 12th—Men's open doubles tournament.
July 1st—Tip Top Tailors' competition.
July 4th—Ladies' tournament.
July 17th—Men's open rinks tournament.
July 31st—Mixed rinks tournament.
Aug. 14th—Mixed rinks tournament.
Aug. 28th—Men's open doubles tournament.

—O—

And Along With All These
we have the regular Friday, Wednesday and Saturday tournaments; the club singles, doubles; the leads' and seconds'; skips' and vice-skips; the playoffs in both the Central Ontario and Provincial competitions besides several others that we have, no doubt, left out.

—O—

Now We Don't Say that the bowling club is the only place in town where one can indulge in their favorite sport—but we do say that we doubt if any sporting organization will give its members as much for their money as the Peterborough Lawn Bowling Club.

FIGHT SPOILS IT

NEW YORK (CP)—They were going to stage a "world series" here this June in which the leading United States college baseball teams would take part. But the idea has collapsed. Primo Carnera and Joe Louis will engage in a heavyweight bout here June 26 and the baseball magnates felt there wouldn't be enough money in the city to make the venture a success.

150 HAPPY BOWLERS GATHER AT ANNUAL FESTIVE BANQUET

Mayor Denne and R. M. Glover Present Prizes to Winning Teams.

DAVE LEETHER, CHAIRMAN.

A happy throng of more than 150 persons crowded the St. Luke's Parish Hall to capacity last night for the annual banquet of the City Carpet Ball Association, at which the various prize-winners were presented with team trophies and individual prizes, which had been won after a strenuous season embracing an 84-game schedule, with a complement of 22 teams, every one of which finished the scheduled games showing the same keen spirit of competition right to the last.

Dave Leether, capable prexy of the association, was chairman, and delegated various prominent citizens to the duties of handing out the prizes. His Worship Mayor Denne made the initial presentation when he handed the Hope Silver Trophy to J. Cridland, skip of the St. John's No. 3 team, who captured the highest honors in the league. This team consisted of J. Cridland, H. Burrows, G. Pryde, G. Gurnett, C. McDermott, and each of the players received cut glass rose bowls. Mayor Denne in his remarks spoke feelingly in recalling memories of his boyhood days, when he attended St. Luke's Sunday School. He declared emphatically that the groundwork laid down by the teachers of the Sunday School was responsible for his success in later life. He congratulated the carpetball players on their hobby, and the enthusiasm shown at the banquet, and also made reference to the fact that the co-operation of the various sporting bodies in the city helped materially in carrying the people through the troublesome depression period.

Win Bleasdell Shield.

R. M. Glover presented the St. George's No. 9 team with the second prize, the Bleasdell Shield, which was presented for annual competition by Dr. Sutton in commemoration of Larry Bleasdell, who lost his life by drowning. W. Harrington accepted the shield, and together with his teammates, T. Hewitt, J. Price, A. Cole, and A. Sims, also received desk lamps as permanent tokens. Mr. Glover spoke briefly, describing his boyhood days as a member of St. Luke's Sunday School. He stated that he had been born near the church and was at one time a member of the Boys' Club. At that time Ashburnham was the leading sport section of the town, with lacrosse, football, baseball, and other lines of athletics being held on the old P.A.A.A. grounds. Athletics in general was recommended by Mr. Glover as a valuable means of assisting citizens through troublesome periods.

Third Place Awards.

W. G. Howden's team from St. John's won the third place awards which was made by Past President W. Wiggins. The personnel of the team is as follows: Arnold Pammett, W. Davis, G. Matthews, and W. G. Howden. These players received electric clocks. Chief Gimblett's K. of P. No. 22 entry copped fourth place in the standing, and each member received a water glass and pitcher set, the presentation being made by Mr. Busby. The players were G. Gimblett, N. Killingbeck, W. Wood, and Bob Hotrum. George Gimblett made the fifth place presentation to Fred Parsons, who skipped the All Saints' team, composed of George Land, F. Worsencroft, and R. Wright. The prizes were salad bowls.

Bert Rumary's team, L.O.L. No. 16 took the prizes for sixth place, glass butter dishes, and H. Stewart made the presentation, with the team as follows: J. Mann, W. Wilson, G. Foster, and S. Cummings. The special prizes donated by W. Moore of Philadelphia for high average in the league was won by Ed. Heap's team representing St. Luke's No. 7, who received silver ash trays. C. Joyes, J. Ebbs, H. Bousfield, and H. Nokes were the other members of the team.

St. George's No. 9 crew, captained by W. Harrington, won an additional prize, taking the Reach Shield and President's Cup in the knockout competition, while W. Driver's entry, L.O.L. No. 16, were the runners-up and were awarded clear glass steins. The players on the latter team were A. Pound, F. Storey, G. Crouter, and O. Lundy. This makes the second consecutive year that a team from the St. George's Church has won the Reach Shield.

Special Presentation.

A pleasing feature of the program was a special presentation from the Carpetball Association to W. Harrington, who leaves on May 24 to take up residence in England. He was presented with a leather tobacco pouch by Chief George Gimblett, who tendered to Mr. and Mrs. Harrison the good wishes of the assembled gathering, and the hope that their sojourn in the Old Country would be a pleasant one. Mr. Harrington expressed his sincere thanks to the audience and his fellow-members of the league, and voiced the pleasure he had felt in the associations he had formed during the playing season.

George Groombridge, efficient secretary of the association, was given a handsome walnut desk, as a token of appreciation from the bowlers for his management of the detailed duties imposed on him. In his absence, Mrs. Groombridge acknowledged the gift with a few words of thanks that drew hearty applause.

The program was interspersed with musical numbers by a trio of musicians, George Nicholls, Walter Farr and C. Rusaw, while Walter Farr and E. J. Hotson sang solos, and then teamed up in a duet that was a splendid effort.

A unanimous vote of thanks tendered by George Gimblett on behalf of the gathering to the St. Luke's Women's Guild for their hospitality in providing such a delightful meal, was accepted by Gordon Maniece, who extended a welcome to the members and the thanks of the pastor, Rev. Mr. Bousfield, to the association for selecting St. Luke's as the location of the banquet.

Follows Jones

ATLANTA, Ga., May 16. — (A.P.). — Curly-haired Charlie Yates, youngster with a slam-bang unorthodox style, is following in the footsteps of his golfing idol—Bobby Jones, master marksman.

Not since Jones sensationally rose to the heights as a kid in short pants has Atlanta produced a golfer with a future as bright as that of Yates.

Yates, a 22-year-old Georgia tech senior, will enter the United States open at Pittsburgh, southern amateur at Richmond, and the intercollegiate at Washington next month, defending his title in the latter event.

In 1916 Jones won his first state championship at the age of 14. Yates annexed the Georgia crown when 17. He was the youngest to triumph since Jones.

Ponies Drop Tussle To Smiths Falls 4-3

KINGSTON, May 16.— (CP).— Kingston Ponies, making their first appearance of the season before a home crowd, were defeated last night in an exhibition baseball game by Smith's Falls, 4 to 3.

The game by Smith's Falls, 4 to 3.

The game marked the return to the Ponies' line-up of "Mickey" Compeau and Vin McQuade, who played for Brockville last year, and both were stars, Compeau pulling some sensational fielding and McQuaide leading the batters with four hits, one a triple. "Bud" Clancy, new hurler of the Ponies, went the route, and pitched clever ball, except in the seventh and ninth innings when he allowed the tying and wining runs. Three singles and a walk forced in the tying run in the seventh while Ryan's single and Elliott's three-bagger scored the winning run in the ninth.

All the Ponies' runs were scored in the fifth on four singles by Scrutton, McQuaide, Smith and Quinn, an error by David and a walk.

A featur of the game was a sensational catch in right field by Stan Scrutton, recruit outfielder of the Ponies, robbing McCrum of a sure hit.

GYPSY GIRL

THE STORY OF AN IMPASSIONED ROMANCE

McDONALD FEADER

JACKSON

CHAPTER 27

Again and again Consuelo bowed and they would not be satisfied. They were shouting, clamoring for more. The house had gone mad. At last the girl ran through the wings and the curtain came down. The orchestra started into the next piece, but the applause only increased. The next number went on, but it was drowned out.

The show was stopped!

The curtain was rung down again.

Goldberg was in a white sweat. He was wringing his hands and moaning.

"Oh, why didn't I give her an encore? Oh, why was I so dumb not to see this thing ahead of me—" He caught the gypsy by the arm. "Go on, kid, do anything—talk to them—you're aknock-out!'

Pushing her on. The curtain up again. The applause only increasing until it was a deafening roar. Now it was quieting. The girl had ceased bowing and had stepped to the front. As she started to speak silence settled over the house, but it was a vibrant silence of approbation, no longer a challenge.

"I have not words to thank you, my friends, but listen and you can hear what my heart says to you—'

Into the silence she began to sing. The words were in Romany and the audience could not understand them. At first her voice trembled with this gladness that was hers that now at last the dream had come true. Then the sound of their clapping echoed in her ears and her voice rose full and strong and swept through the house in its clear melody and she caught up these people on the sweep of her spirit, for this was a wild gypsy song of triumph she sang. When the last word had flowed from her throat she stood with arms outstretched, victor!

For an instant there was silence and then again the sound of their clapping hands and shouting voices. She did not bow this time, but walked off the stage with head held high, arms flung out, the fulfillment of the dream mirrored in her face.

"Back again, kid, bow! They're going wild out there!' Goldberg pushing her.

"No, there is to-morrow night!'

The show was ended. Tongues were loosened. Typewriter keys were clicking. The story of the gypsy's success was going to press. Backstage was crowded. The alley and far out into the street was blocked. People were trying to get past the doorman. There was noise, excitement. Voices babbling, the undertone a medley of praise for the gypsy. She had lighted a flame for them and they were willing moths.

All backstage was ringing with excitement. The hallway was lined with flowers, tribute that overflowed from the arms of the gypsy's dressing room. Their fragrance mingled with cigaret smoke. Goldberg, holding out his chest like a fat frog, was posted in front of her door, chuckling and explaining that she was his "find," and blinking his eyes knowingly and telling the gentlemen of the press all about this gypsy girl and what he planned for her.

Stewart pushed his way through. He was grinning.

"You can't go in," Goldberg whispered. "She's got her door locked. She's got something in her gypsy noodle and that Douglas is behind it and they won't let me in even."

Someone called Stewart. He disappeared. He came back sweating, but still grinning. He said he had to put in a call for the police. When they came, sirens shrieking, they made a lane through the mass of people out in the streets for the members of the show to get out of the theater. As they passed, the crowds shouted for them. They were all part of this triumph.

In the dressing room with the star on the door, Louise L'Ville was pacing back and forth, a lighted cigaret trembling between her lips. Finally she left the room. She called Stewart to her.

"Get me out of here. I'm going home!'

"Yes, my dear, but why home? The dinner—"

"For the gypsy—" Contemptuous words on her lips. "No, thanks! I've had enough for one night. I'm going home."

"I'll have to go."

"You would!"

He took her arm. The police made a way for them down this line of faces. The woman was smiling, accepting their shouts of praise, but her head was light, her feet unsteady and she clung to Stewart's arm. So Louise L'Ville, star of the Follies, went home.

It was almost with a sigh of relief that Stewart went back into the theater alone. He paused and lighted a cigaret and idly went through the wings and gazed out into the house. Dim lights were on; janitors already at work.

He was wondering how this great house had seemed to the gypsy girl who never had danced to such an audience. He remembered her dream. That day she had told him of it he had promised her slippers with "real" high heels. He thought of all the things he had given her since, that he knew of only by the bills which came in and were all part of this business of putting her over and held no personal interest as those slippers had.

He thought of the time she had said, "All of this am I worth and I offer myself to you for nothing if only you will take me to New York." And again on the train, "I will let this man stand beside me—" He had kissed her then for the first and only time and the kiss had stirred him.

But in New York it was different. The gypsy was a gypsy. She had not even danced well until to-night. Now she had gone over. He wondered how this touch of success would change her. He pictured her walking through the crowded alley, black hair flying, wide skirt swishing around her legs, anklets making music, eyes glowing. Perhaps she would want to dance there in the street for them, or perhaps she would give out kisses to those who crowded round her. Ah, now there was the trouble with the gypsy, she was too free with herself.

He realized that backstage was alive again. He heard a shout "She's coming now!" The cigaret in his fingers had already gone out, but he dropped it to the floor and stepped on it automatically before he turned. He started forward like a man who has seen an apparition, for there was the gypsy girl—except she was a gypsy no longer.

He stared like a country bumpkin, for he had never seen anyone so beautiful. She stood poised on the steps, a warm living statue. She wore a white satin gown that was molded to her figure, the simplicity of the lines giving it elegance. Her lustrous hair was parted in the middle and brushed close to her head and brought to the back in a low knot on her neck. From her ears hung diamond earrings and the diamonds were dulled by the sparkle of her eyes. Her throat was bare. Over her arms she held a white ermine and fox wrap and on her feet were dainty white satin slippers that pecked from the folds of the gown.

Stewart drew in his breath. He had no idea that she might look like this. He had never realized that her throat was so perfect, or her skin so fine, or her eyes so mysterious, or the lashes that shaded them so long. He had never dreamed that her feet were so small or the shape of her body so desirable. He had never suspected that she might be anything else than a "gypsy."

She started down the steps again. She saw him now. She saw the look in his eyes and her own laughed at him.

"Now maybe you think a gypsy is good enough?'

THE STARS SAY . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Friday, May 17

A day of excellent opportunities for stabilizing the fortunes and possessions, as well as enhancing personal popularity and attaining bold ambitions is forecast from the lunar and mutual planetary aspects. It is a time for forging ahead in this direction, with those in power, especially in "big business", combines or secret societies ready to give generous co-operation to solid propositions.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a year of great opportunity for reaching high goals. But shun impulsive and rash approach to those whose assistance is desired and be particularly discreet in personal relations.

A child born on this day may be ambitious, efficient and exgactcous in building for itself power and possessions. It may be disposed to be too ardent and indiscreet in its private affiliations.

WESTERN CLUBS HOLD POWER IN BOTH MAJOR BALL LOOPS

Principal Honors in Intersectional Struggle Go to Chicago White Sox and New York Giants and the Detroit Tigers.

The results of the first major league intersectional series of 1935 — necessarily inconclusive because of the large number of postponements while the Eastern clubs of the American League were visiting the West and the National League teams were reversing the order—seems to indicate the balance of power so far lies west of the Alleghenies.

Since the tours began on May 3, the Eastern "home" clubs of the senior circuit were able to win only 17 games and tie one against 29 victories for the invaders, while the Western American League clubs fared even better with 18 victories to 13 defeats. And all this was done in spite of a poor showing by the Reds, who won only two games and lost five and the admitted weakness of the Browns.

The principal honors in the intersectional struggle went to Chicago White Sox and New York Giants, leaders of the two leagues, and Detroit Tigers.

The pale hose, by trimming the Athletics 5-0 yesterday behind the three-hit hurling of Ted Lyons, finished with six victories in eight games. The Giants, after battling to an even break with the Dean brothers of St. Louis before a crowd of 41,110 in the windup, won seven games and lost three in addition to a tie with Cincinnati.

Two home runs by Hughey Critz, off Dizzy Dean plus a flock of Cardinal errors after the second, gave the Giants a 4-1 triumph in yesterday's opener, but Brother Paul pitched St. Louis to a triumph by the same score in the afterpiece with Jim Collins supplying the winning runs by the home run route.

The Tigers took their series with the East by a 5-3 margin despite a whitewashing at the hands of the Yankees yesterday 4-0. Red Ruffing turned the trick, granting only six hits, while young Joe Sullivan was batted freely to end his three-game victory streak.

PLANE BREAKS THREE RECORDS

Tomlinson Breaks Three World and Six U. S. Records in Flight.

FLYING TRANSPORT PLANE.

WASHINGTON, May 16 (AP)—National Aeronautic Association observers said D. W. (Tommy) Tomlinson had smashed three world and six United States transport plane speed records to-day when he passed over Washington on the second lap of the 3,100-mile flight.

The new marks already set—but not yet officially computed by the N.A.A.—are:

World speed record of 1,000 kilometres or 621.5 miles, with 1,000 kilogram, or 4,400-pound payload—speed about 191 miles per hour.

World speed record for 2,000 kilometres, or 1,242.8 miles, with 1,000 kilogram payload—speed about 189 miles per hour.

World speed record for 2,000 kilometres with 500 kilogram payload—speed about 189 miles per hour.

United States speed records without load for 1,000 and 2,000 kilometres of about 191 and 189 miles per hour respectively.

United States speed records with 1,000 kilogram load for 1,000 and 2,000 kilometres.

United States speed records with 500 kilogram load for 1,000 and 2,000 kilometres.

Bound For Europe?

NEW YORK, May 16 (A.P.).—This should not be read aloud because it is only being whispered by United States tennis moguls. But—

If Bryan M. (Bitsy) Grant, Jr., peppery, half-pint Atlantan, makes a good showing in the United States-Mexico Davis Cup series to be played this week-end in Mexico he is virtually certain to go to England on Uncle Sam's cup squad next month. That is assuming the United States conquers Mexico.

The team personnel thus far is Wilmer S. Allison, Sidney B. Wood, Jr., John Van Ryan, J. Donald Budge and C. Gene Mako. Mako, Budge and Grant are the American contingent in Mexico.

Runions Addresses Buttermakers' Club

An address by Agricultural Representative A. D. Runions on the dangers and control of the warble fly menace featured the regular meeting of the Kawartha Buttermakers' Club at the Agricultural Department office here last night. Eighteen members of the club were present, President O. R. Kennedy acting in the chair.

Mr. Runions impressed the group with the immensity of the toll which the warble fly takes annually through destruction of hides. He warned that only active programs of prevention will cut down the annual losses.

C .A. Davies, local inspector of creameries, supervised the regular cream and butter scoring contest. According to a new policy, the results of the contest will not be announced until the next meeting. It was decided that the next meeting would be held in Campbellford on June 13 in conjunction with the Quinte Buttermakers' Club.

Dairy men from Havelock, Keene, Lakefield and Peterborough districts attended last night's meeting.

Roosevelt To Veto Patman Bonus Bill

WASHINGTON, May 16.—(AP)—The White House announced definitely today President Roosevelt will veto the Patman Bonus Bill which calls for immediate payment of the cash bonus to United States war veterans.

It also was emphasized it was the earnest hope of the president the United States congress will support the veto.

Ready To Meet British Stars

ELEANOR YOUNG

Caroline Deacon and Eleanor Young, teammates and both of Vancouver, are all ready for their invasion of England, where they will play in the Wimbledon championship matches. They've been putting in plenty of strenuous practice against men opponents in an effort to strengthen weak points and polish up their game. Miss Deacon believes they will show up well against English women players. Backhand, net play and service have been stressed in an effort to overcome any particular points of brilliance among their opponents, with an all-round strong game, in which they believe English women players do not excel. They sail from Montreal on May 31. Above they are shown on the courts.

Holmes Quintette Wins Cage Honors

Nosing out a 20-17 win over the Kitchen aggregation, Holmes' basketball quintet won the championship of the Y.M.C.A. House League in a fast game at the "Y" last night. The final fixture brought to a close a season of high-class rivalry.

The Holmes basketeers outplayed their opponents in the first half, taking the lead with six field goals for a total of twelve points. The Kitchen men managed only three field counters and two foulshot baskets in the same period. The victors met stiffer opposition in the second half, scoring four field baskets whel the Kitchen men tallied on three field shots and three foul tries. The teams:

Holmes—Gerow, centre; Thomas, Hunt, A. Holmes, forwards; V. Holmes, Wright, Smart, defence.

Kitchel— Ellis, centre; Tranter, Cullen, forwards; Ascott, Gunsolus, defence.

U.S. Pilot Will Try To Break 6 Records

NEW YORK, May 16 (A.P.). — D. W. (Tommy) Tomlinson, transcontinental Western Airways pilot, took off from Floyd Bennett Field, Brooklyn, at 6.59 a.m. (E.D.T.) today on a non-stop 3,100-mile flight over a closed course in an attempt to establish six new speed records.

Flying the Douglas airliner with which he recently established a transcontinental transport plane record of 11 hours and 5 minutes, Tomlinson will follow a trianguler course between Brooklyn, Washington and Norfolk, Va., measuring 621 miles or 1,000 kilometers.

He expects to make five laps at an altitude of 14,000 feet, remaining in the air between 16 and 17 hours.

He was accompanied by Joseph E. Bartles, co-pilot, with him on his previous record-breaking flight.

The six speed records Tomlinson hopes to set are those for commercial planes at 1,000 kilometers with a payload of 1,000 kilograms, and 5,000 kilometers with payloads of 500 and 1,000 kilograms, and with no pay load. The present records are held in France and Spain.

BONES OF 3 GUN VICTIMS FOUND IN SACKS IN BUSH

MIDDLEBURY, Vt., May 16. — (A.P.)—Authorities searched the records of missing persons to-day for some clue to the identity of three persons shot to death and left in sacks in a lonely wood near here.

The bodies, each with two bullet holes in the head, were believed to be those of two women and a man. Only the bones remained, indicating they had lain for months in their canvas sacks.

The bodies were found late yesterday by a Mrs. Dangue and her daughter as they roamed through the woods picking spring flowers.

RUNYAN IS LAUDED BY WALTER HAGEN

Lot Depends on Weather in United States' Open Golf Tourney.

DETROIT, May 16 (A.P.).—Now that Walter Hagen has passed "kindergarten" successfully by qualifying for the United States open golf championship; to be played at Oakmont in June, he's willing to hazard an opinion on who will be "the lad to beat" for the title—"if conditions are right."

Hagen, who shot a 149 to gain a place among five qualifiers from the Detroit district, believes he himself has a "fair" chance to win the crown. He admits he's slowing up a little and has lost his old putting touch, but he's willing to name the player most likely to give every one trouble.

"I think Paul Runyan is the lad to beat if conditions are right," said Sir Walter. "The thing I like about him is that he's careful. He studies every shot a long time and he knows just about what he is going to do. Oakmont is that type of course where a fellow will have all kinds of chances to study shots, too."

Hagen explained that a lot depends on the weather conditions under which the open is played.

Pitcher Ray Starr Bought By Toronto

TORONTO, May 16.— Raymond Starr, tall right-hand pitcher, who led the International League in 1931, as a member of the Rochester Red Wings, with twenty victories and seven defeats, was purchased by Toronto from Minneapolis of the American Association, according to an announcement made at local baseball headquarters.

Starr was with Minneapolis last year, and won sixteen games and lost seventeen. The Millers finished in first place, but lost out in the play-offs to Columbus. In 1932, after spending most of the season with St. Louis Cardinals in relief roles, Starr returned to the Rochester club, and won nine games as against twelve defeats.

HONOR MOTHERS CHURCH DINNER

Mothers and Daughters of Trinity Church Hold Delightful Banquet.

MRS. STINSON SPEAKS

HASTINGS, May 16 (Examiner Correspondence) — The annual Mother and Daughter banquet held under the auspices of the W.M.S. of Trinity Church on Monday evening was an unqualified success. Covers were laid for eighty-five persons and the attendance was most gratifying.

The room was very attractive in a color scheme of mauve and yellow. The tables were lovely with their colored fluted runners on the white cloth, the silver services, silver candles and the many silver baskets containing carnations, daffodils, marigolds and snapdragons.

The banquet supper was in charge of the following committee of young men of the congregation. G. Sine, H. Kelley, G. Fairman, M. Rusaw, C. Oliver, W. W. Knight, G. Bonds and M. Preston.

At the head table were seated Rev. and Mrs. F. W. Newell, Mrs. P. Stinson, the guest speaker, Mrs. A. E. Metcalf, president of the W.M.S. and those who assisted in the program. Gracious words of welcome were extended to all by Mrs. A. E. Metcalf, president who was also toastmistress and who introduced a most pleasing but touching program.

Toast List

Frances Hoard, president of the Mission Band proposed the toast to "Our King." In proposing the toast to "Our Church," Mrs. A. E. Metcalf paid tribute to the different branches of the church, all of which are working for the one aim. In reply Rev. F. W. Newell spoke of the honor due the church which in time of depression is going forward.

Mrs. D. E. Scriver and daughter-in-law, Mrs. J. B. Scriver contributed that beautiful old number "Juanita" with accompaniment by Carrie Donsee.

Loving tribute was paid to "Our Mothers" by the president of the Mission Circle who in a beautifully worded toast, urged the daughters to make everyday "Mother's Day." In closing she recited the poem, "Mother, Oh Mother of Mine."

On behalf of the mothers the toast was responded to by Mrs. F. W. Newell who told of the responsibilities and qualities of an ideal Christian mother.

Mrs. Puffer and daughter Mildred rendered a pleasing piano duet.

In proposing the toast to "Our Daughters," Mrs. H. M. Orr outlined the loving care which was a joy to the mother through the years of the daughter's childhood and girlhood. In reply Marjorie Scriver, secretary-treasurer of the Mission Circle, had prepared a most fitting response.

Ruby Preston sang sweetly accompanied by her mother, Mrs. W. Preston.

Mrs. Grant Sine moved a hearty vote of thanks to the boys who served.

Mrs. J. M. Baker and daughter-in-law, Mrs. Clifford Baker rendered a delightful duet.

Guest Speaker

The guest speaker was Mrs. Frank Stinson, secretary-treasurer of the Oshawa Presbyterial who expressed her pleasure at being present. She outlined the right relationship that should exist between mother and daughter. She urged the daughter to walk in God's clear sunshine and never bring disgrace to the mother who had sacrificed so much for her. Will the daughter remember that she brought joy or will she regret that she brought sorrow or hardship to her mother? The grandest relationship on earth is friendship between mother and daughter but in paying tribute to a mother don't forget father as it takes both to love children. Never talk back, be modern, but old-fashioned and give to mother the homage due her. Be kind to her and don't wait until its too late but make every day "Mother's Day." Write her a letter and show her you love her. She also urged the mother to be loyal to her daughter and if the daughter goes astray, never, oh, never let the mother love fail and give the daughter up.

Mother's Day Service

Special Mother's Day services were held in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church by the Rev. H. Campbell, Ph.D., presiding minister. Two very interesting and helpful sermons for mother were given. The subject of the morning service was "Mother Faith." The evening sermon was taken from 10th verse of the 31st chapter of Proverbs. Beautiful music was rendered by the choir under the direction of W. H. Flatman, organist. In the morning a quartet consisting of Muriel Wilson, Lily Dodd, Marjorie Dodd and Fred Hand sang. In the evening a male quartet consisting of I. Taylor, F. Hand, F. Kennedy, P. Ford sang.

The church was beautifully decorated with lovely plants and spring flowers kindly lent and tastefully arranged by Mrs. C. Plant.

Piles Go Quick
Under Dr. Leonhardt's Internal Method.
Large numbers of sufferers from itching, bleeding, or protruding piles have learned that quick and lasting relief can be accomplished with an internal medicine when salves do not help and what is to escape operation. Bad circulation of the blood in the lower bowel causes piles. The tissues are flabby, the bowel pulls weak—the parts lifeless. To end Piles an internal medicine should be used to stimulate the circulation and help to heal the affected parts.
Dr. Leonhardt was one of the first to discover a real internal Pile remedy. He called his prescription HEMROID, and prescribed it for large numbers of patients with a fine record of success and they feature every Pile sufferer should be able to get HEM-ROID tablets from their own druggist, with money back if not logically satisfied with the help one bottle gives.
So don't fail to write when other ways fail to do so to Dr. Leonhardt & Jury Ltd., Room 1, Drug Store Bldg., 137 Yonge St., Toronto, Ont., for free booklet telling all about piles and how you can be relieved at home. Don't suffer another day. Write today.

LONDON, May 17. — The British government has informed a private negotiator representing the United States here that Great Britain will not consent to stabilize the pound sterling unless the war-debt question is definitely settled and other specific understandings are reached between the two nations, notably a stabilization level slightly below $4.86 to the pound.

It is learned a semi-official representative of President Roosevelt has spent a week conferring secretly on stabilization in London and Paris with high officials of the British and French finance ministries.

STUBBORN FIRE AT C.G.E. PLANT

Loss of $1600 in Carpentry Shop Defied Brigade.

SPREAD TO ROOF.

Damage estimated at $1,600 was done by a fire which broke out in the carpenter shop at the Canadian General Electric Company yesterday afternoon. City and company firemen played four streams of water on the blaze over a period of three hours before it was subdued.

Although the cause of the fire is not definitely known, it is believed to have started in a "wood-hog"—a machine for shredding wood into fine splinters — when one of the cutting blades struck a nail and caused a spark. The flames apparently rushed up the flue from the machine and spread to the roof.

The fire was noticed immediately and the alarm sounded for the C.G.E. volunteer fire brigade under Jean Hurtubise and the Peterborough Fire Department. A full turnout of the city equipment responded. Automatic sprinklers in the building went into action promptly but were of no avail

NICKEL INDUSTRY EXPANDS BEST TIMES OF PEACE

War is Looked Upon as Serious Threat to Successful Development.

ADDED NEW MARKETS.

BIRMINGHAM, England, May 17 (C.P.)—The Canadian Nickel Industry will best expand in an era of peace, Robert C. Stanley, Canadian Nickel industry leader, told a gathering of British industrialists today. The gathering was held to commemorate the 100th anniversary, in effect, of the establishment of the industry in Great Britain.

Though the nickel industry is based upon Canadian ore supplies discovered in 1883, the foundation was laid by experimental British production a century ago of an alloy then known as German silver, now called nickel silver.

"We of the nickel industry, in common with other industries, look upon war as a serious threat to the orderly and successful development of our various enterprises," Mr. Stanley said.

"During the past 25 years the organization which I represent has devoted a great amount of time, energy and money in developing applications for nickel and nickel alloys in the fields of transportation, communication and manufactures. As a result it has established important markets. It expects to increase these markets and, therefore, to add new markets.

Order For 16,000 Boats Is Rejected

An order for 16,000 boats was recently turned away by The Peterborough Canoe Company, chiefly on the grounds that the company has all the orders that it can conveniently handle at the moment.

The refused order was one of the largest ever offered to the company in its lengthy history of progress here—numerically speaking. But it might be added that the proposed contract stipulated toy sail boats, and not the genuine full size canoes and other watercraft for which the company is widely famed.

LIGNITE COAL IS TO BE TESTED

Hon. Paul Leduc Discussing Testing of Ontario Beds With Federal Authorities.

25-TON SHIPMENT.

TORONTO, May 17 (C.P.) — Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn said to-day Minister of Mines Paul Leduc was in Ottawa conferring with Federal Government officials concerning the problem of Ontario's great beds of lignite coal, estimated at [illegible] tons, in the northern part of the province.

The Premier said the Ontario Minister would ask Federal authorities to accept 25 tons of the coal for testing in the National Research Foundation to learn if any valuable product could be recovered.

Should the Ottawa test reveal nothing, the Provincial Government plans to send a smaller quantity to Germany for testing.

Declaring the Federal laboratories had equipment for carrying out the test, Mr. Hepburn said in view of the fact Ontario had already spent more than $200,000 over a period of years investigating lignite the government would not act quickly in the matter.

Since that time, however, new developments in mining and extrac-

Three Great Powers Will Meet in Geneva Next Week.

DRUMMOND CALLED HOME.

LONDON, May 17 (A.P.).—Great Britain, France, and Italy will hold private conversations at Geneva next week, it was stated authoritatively to-day, in an effort to find some way to settle the Italo-Ethiopian quarrel.

Plans for these talks were revealed after Sir John Simon, Foreign Secretary, and other British officials conferred with Sir Eric Drummond, British Ambassador to Rome, whom the Foreign Office hurriedly summoned home after Premier Mussolini's "hands off" Ethiopia speech this week.

The full Cabinet met this morning to discuss, it was understood, plans for expansion of the Royal Air Force. An afternoon meeting was expected to take up the Italo-Ethiopian question.

ITALY'S DISPUTE IS UP TO LEAGUE

Anthony Eden Will Represent Great Britain at Geneva Conference.

CABINET MEETS.

LONDON, May 17 (C.P.-Havas). —Italy's dispute with Ethiopia has reached a point where it must be settled by the League of Nations and not left to the two countries concerned. The Cabinet was reported to have decided at its meeting to-day.

The special session was called to draw up instructions for Anthony Eden, Lord Privy Seal, who leaves here to-morrow to represent Great Britain at the League of Nations Assembly meeting on Monday in Geneva.

British official circles are genuinely apprehensive of the possible effect on the League and on international relations in general of the Italo-Ethiopian dispute. Eden's efforts at Geneva, it was understood, would tend toward settlement as soon as possible of the boundary dispute between the two countries.

Unemployed Transient Pleads Guilty to Entering Summer Cottage.

SECOND MAN SOUGHT.

An unemployed transient, who gave his name as Steve Pollack, 19, and who was stated to have originally come from Brampton, to-day was remanded until Wednesday next, when he hesitantly pleaded "guilty" to two charge of breaking and entering and theft.

The charges related to theft of a canoe load of goods, including a shot gun, rifle, paddles, tent and pole, and an alarm clock, owned by Hannah Carmichael, and stolen from her summer cottage and storehouse in Harvey Township on Thursday.

Crown Attorney V. J. McEnerry, K.C., intimating that another man named Nelson Carroll was also implicated in the charges, stated Provincial Police were hoping to make an early arrest.

He stated that the accused youth sought lodging in the city lock-up here and met Carroll, who took the youth into the northern part of the county, ostensibly on a hunting trip. It was while they were in the north that the two men committed the offences alleged.

Pollack was apprehended by Provincial Constable Cibbs of Lindsay, who is investigating the case along with Constable David Silvester.

BROKE OUT IN KITCHEN.

Fourth Fireman is Seriously Injured—50 Aged Pensioners in Building.

JOLIETTE, Que., May 17. —(CP)—Fire destroyed the convent of the Sister of the Congregation of Notre Dame here early today and three firemen perished as they fought the flames. An aged nun, Sister Ste. Elaine, 75, died of heart failure shortly after the fire broke out in the kitchen of the convent. All the occupants, 53 children, 30 aged pensioners, and 50 religious sisters, escaped the fire, led to safety by the firemen.

THE DEAD:

Sister Ste. Helene de la Croix, 75.
Fireman Louis Charlier, 32.
Fireman Guibert Fleury, 50.
Oscar Ferland, 23, a volunteer fireman.

Fireman Jean Lecuyer, 42, was seriously injured and was removed to hospital in a critical condition.

The convent and normal school, built in 1875, were totally destroyed.

Children Called at 2.30.

"Children, arise for morning prayer. Hurry. You have overslept." With these words at 2.30 Mother Pasquel was able to get her charges to dress and leave the burning Normal School building here in an orderly fashion without any loss of life.

Mother Pasquel was warned by the janitor of the school it was on fire. She proceeded to the third floor of the edifice where 300 pupils were sleeping. The children obeyed the sister's call and recited the Lord's Prayer and one Ave Maria. They were unaware a fire was consuming another wing of the school.

Shepherded by Mother Pasquel and other nuns who had quickly made their appearance, the youngsters marched quietly out of the school to the street.

Started In Kitchen

The outbreak had its origin in the kitchens of the institution and spread rapidly through the building, 300 feet long by 75 feet deep, and rose to the four upper storeys. Nuns started to lead the children and pensioners to safety. Firemen, augmented by a host of volunteers, joined in the rescue work and all

Farm Loan Board Announces 5 Per Cent Rate

$5,000 IS LIMIT FIRST MORTGAGE RHODES SAYS

Farm Loan Board Will Have $80,000,000 Available For Loans.

CONFINED TO FARMERS.

Second Mortgages Will Carry Interest Rate of Six Per Cent.

OTTAWA, May 17. (CP).—Rate of interest on loans extended by the farm loan board to Canadian farmers on first mortgages will be five percent., announcement was made yesterday by Hon. R. N. Rhodes, minister of finance. The same rate will apply in each province. The maximum loan on a first mortgage will be $5,000.

Provision also had been made for second mortgages and the interest rate would probably be six per cent., it was announced. The board will have $80,000,000 available for loans.

Under amendments to the Farm Loan Act made this session, administration is entirely under the control of the farm loan board, appointed by the Dominion Government. At a meeting of this newly-named board yesterday under the chairmanship of Major John Barnett, chief executive officers for the provinces were named. They were ratified yesterday by order-in-Council.

A. B. Thompson, barrister, Penetanguishene, is the officer named for Ontario. New officers take over immediately.

Chief executive officer will have control in his province of operation of the act and loans made under it. The board will be able to make loans in all provinces which passed necessary legislation.

The loans will be confined to farmers—"a person whose principal occupation consists of farming."

"Loans shall only be made," says a statement issued last night by the minister "where the board can hold security by way of first mortgages on farm lands. These loans cannot exceed (except as herein referred to) 50 per cent. of the actual value of the land and the buildings thereon, as appraised by the board, and the maximum loan on this basis shall be $5,000."

The announcement set out the various uses the proceeds of the loan might be put to, such as buying implements, livestock, and improving the farm generally.

CHICAGO WHEAT.

CHICAGO, May 17.— Increased speculative demand ascribed largely to stock market upturns and to revival of inflation talk led to a brisk advance of grain values yesterday.

Wheat jumped 2c a bushel maximum and corn 2½c. Greater relative strength shown by the corn market was chiefly due to planting delays suggesting curtailment of corn acreage together with likelihood of magnified crop hazards later.

Closing quotations were strong at virtually the day's top. Wheat 1½c to 1⅞c above Wednesday's finish. July, 93⅛c to 94c; corn, 1⅞c to 2⅛c up; July, 82⅛c to 82c; oats, ½c to 1¼c advanced and provisions showing a rise of 10c to 22c.

MONTREAL PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, May 7. — Butter prices were slightly higher on Montreal Produce Market yesterday, with prices about ½c higher. Number 1 in cartons or less was 20¼c to 20½c per pound, mostly 20½c, compared with 20c to 20¼c Wednesday. Small lots to retailers brought 21c to 21½c a pound for solids and 22c to 22½c for prints. Receipts were 26 boxes.

The egg market continued easy, graded shipments in cartons or less being quoted at 18c a dozen for A-large, 17c for A-medium, 16½c for B and 16c for C. Arrivals totalled 1,567 cases.

Number 1 current Ontario cheese held unchanged at 9¾c to 10c a pound. Receipts amounted to 20 boxes.

On the potato market Quebecs in 80-lb. bags were again 35c to 40c. New Brunswicks 45c and Prince Edward Islands 48c. New Floridas in 100-lb. bags brought $3 and New Bermudas in 50-lb. crates $2 to $2.25.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, May 17. — Wheat prices on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange kept in step with advancing values in other grain markets yesterday, scoring a net gain of 1c. May closing at 87¼c and July at 88⅝c.

Enhanced values at Liverpool and Chicago engendered modest buying here that offset the lack of demand abroad for Canadian wheat. Only one cargo of high-grade wheat was sold for export yesterday, from a St. Lawrence River port.

Talk of inflation was believed the cause of a 1⅞c advance at Chicago, while Liverpool scored gains of 1⅜d as short-covering entered the market. An improved demand for wheat in the United Kingdom also was a factor in Liverpool's strength.

Selling was light throughout the session here and prices were strong from the start. Trading was fairly active and market sentiment more friendly than for some days. The day's best prices were touched in the closing minutes.

Coarse grains futures were lively, sharp advances being recorded in all commodities. Cash grains continued quiet.

Futures:

Wheat—	Open	High	Low	Close	Prev. Close
May	.86¾	.87¾	.86¼	.87¼	.85¾
July	.87⅞	.88⅝	.87⅛	.88⅝	.87⅛

Cottages Destroyed Scugog River Resort

LINDSAY, May 17 (Special to The Examiner). — Fire of undetermined origin completely destroyed four cottages at Snug Harbor this morning at five o'clock, together with contents. The cottages were owned by John Hutchinson, James Davis, John Hutchinson, and George Brown, all of Lindsay.

Snug Harbor is a resort of about 15 cottages on the Scugog River. It is in the Township of Fenelon, and about seven miles from Lindsay. None of the cottages were occupied. The loss is estimated at $3,000. Very little insurance was carried. The fire was noticed by Arthur Thurston, a farmer. A bucket brigade prevented the flames from spreading to adjoining cottages.

FARMER PAYS FOR TRUCK WITH $441 IN DIMES

ROCHESTER, Minn., May 17.—(CP). Here's a man chain letter writers missed.

Herman Stock, farmer residing at Pine Island near here, walked into a Rochester motor sales company and sat down on the counter three coffee cans full of dimes.

"I want that truck" he said, pointing to a used model with a $500 price tag on it. "Here's the money."

The entire sales force of the company started to work. An hour and 15 minutes later they announced the cans contained 4,410 dimes; $50 completed the deal. Stock said he had saved the dimes over a period of four years.

PEACE MOTION HOTLY DEBATED BY MINISTERS

Resolution on War Splits Clerics in Hamilton United Church Presbytery.

CHAPLAIN SERVICE.

"Chaplain in Last War Most Senseless and Useless of Men" Member Declares.

HAMILTON, May 17.—Following a somewhat heated discussion, the Hamilton Presbytery of the United Church yesterday referred back to the Committee on Social Service and Evangelism a resolution submitted by that body pledging the Presbytery as being "unalterably opposed to war."

Controversy raged chiefly around the closing sentence of the resolution ending as follows: "and we will not bless, sanction, nor participate in any future war."

Rev. F. W. Bralley, who submitted the committee's report, admitted that the anti-war resolution had provoked opposition even in the committee, but said that it had been decided to bring the resolution before the Presbytery in any case. He held that to eliminate the closing sentence would be to take out the teeth of the resolution.

"The teeth are false anyway," interjected Rev. Fred Ellis.

Mr. Bralley said that conscientious objectors had been considered rascals in the last war, but would be a big influence in the next one, and might even be instrumental in staving it off.

"Does this resolution mean that we would be prevented from serving in the chaplain service?" asked Rev. H. S. Dodgson. To me, a part of a minister's job is to serve men wherever they may be found." I am prepared to do my part as a chaplain, but I will not turn my pulpit into a recruiting station. Nor will I go at the first blare of the trumpet."

Wouldn't Be Allowed.

A statement that 10,000 United States ministers opposed to war were prepared to serve as chaplains, but not in uniform, was met with the reply from a delegate that the military authorities would not permit it.

"This discussion is ridiculous," asserted Rev. Fred Ellis. "What use is a chaplain in war? In the last one he was the most senseless and useless of men." This remark caused a storm of protest.

"War is useless; war is hell," Mr. Ellis continued. "So long as people clip coupons from war bonds, so long as people do not hesitate to work for $10 a day on munitions there will be wars. The whole thing is wrong from the ground up. You can pass this resolution if you like, but if war comes you will have to go. If the Government says there is war, there is war, and it has the police and military on its side."

PLANS RETURN FLIGHT OVER ROCKY MOUNTAINS

VANCOUVER, May 17 (CP) — With the first commercial flight across the Rockies completed, Pilot Grant McConachie prepared to-day for a return flight to Calgary with a heavier passenger list than he carried on his Calgary-Vancouver flight.

McConachie, flying a big trimotored airplane, flew from Calgary yesterday with a stop at Grand Forks, half-way point on the 426-mile flight, carrying five passengers. He expects 12 passengers when he makes the return flight, probably May 22.

Snow and rain beset the flier on the Calgary-Vancouver flight, but he brought his plane through safely to land at Sea Island airport at 6 p.m. P.S.T. (10 p.m. E.D.T.) yesterday.

Physical culture classes for unemployed are being started in Scotland.

MILLBROOK

GRACE CHURCH AUXILIARY MEET

Missionary Society is Guest of the Manse in Millbrook.

W.A. HOSTESS TEA

MILLBROOK, May 17.—(Examiner Correspondence).—Mrs. (Rev.) H. R. Williams and her mother, Mrs. Jones, were hostesses at the manse on Wednesday at 3 p.m. for the May meeting of the Women's Missionary Auxiliary of Grace Presbyterian Church, the chair being taken by the president, Mrs. S. E. Eakins, and over twenty members being present.

The main item of the program was the report of the delegate, Miss Annie Johnston, of the provincial W.M.S. convention held recently in Knox Church, Toronto. Miss Johnston brought a most comprehensive account of the convention proceedings, including the reports of the various departments, with suggestions for a practical forward movement along the line of supply work, welcome and welfare, and other sections.

The big attraction at the convention was the presence of Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Johnathan Goforth, for nearly forty-nine years missionaries to China, and Miss Johnston had brought home copious notes of their inspiring messages.

Continue Through Summer.

Business items included the decision to hold the June gathering at the home of Mrs. J. R. Thompson, Mrs. A. Coyle and Mrs. Z. Seaton to be responsible for the program. It was also decided to continue the meetings during July and August, instead of giving them up for the holiday months, the August gathering to take the form of a picnic, or other "get together" session. The resignation of Mrs. William Deyell as treasurer, owing to ill-health, having been regretfully accepted, Miss Johnston was appointed in her place, and reported $12.50 received from the Easter thank-offering. Miss Eileen Hunter sang, "Just Simply Trust," Mrs. Thompson presiding at the piano, and following the benediction, afternoon tea was served, a number of guests coming in for the social hour. The committee in charge of the tea was Mrs. Eakins, Mrs. C. Thorndyke, Mrs. F. J. Deyell, Mrs. R. J. McMahon and Mrs. John R. Thompson. Three dollars was realized from the tea, a small charge being made each month, adding this to the society's funds, and the hostesses were warmly thanked for their hospitality before the guests finally left for home.

W.A. Garden Tea.

The hostess tea, sponsored by the Women's Association, and held in the basement of St. Andrew's Church on Wednesday at 3 p.m., was the initial event of its kind to take place locally, and proved a most enjoyable and successful social occasion.

Two hostesses were made responsible for four tables, providing the dainty tea cloths and other accessories, and attending to the service with the assistance of a number of the senior girls asked to help at the tea hour. Over one hundred guests were present, including a number from Peterborough, Port Hope, Canton, South Monaghan, Pontypool, Bethany, Cavan and Millbrook. The president, Mrs. F. J. Smith, had a general oversight of the proceedings, extending greetings, as well as the other hostesses, as guests arrived from the opening hour, from four to six o'clock being the time stated in the invitations.

The large rooms were attractive with pots of lovely blooms, and on the stage a fernery, filled with blossoming plants, with standards holding other jardiniers of flowers, formed an effective arrangement for the play which featured the program. Pouring tea at the central table, lovely with lace cloth and service entirely of silver, and centred with a silver basket of spring blossoms, were Mrs. J. H. Might and Mrs. (Rev.) A. L. Sisco.

Silver bud vases, holding a single tulip or daffodil, with a bit of green, centred the thirty or more smaller tables, at which guests were seated upon arrival, each hostess looking after those to whom she had issued an invitation, and after the tea, for which a delicious menu was provided, had been served, a brief program was enjoyed.

Piano solos were played by Miss M. L. Collins and Miss E. Hetherington, and the royalty play, "Not Quite Such a Goose," which the Y.P.S. had entered in the Presbytery competition, was repeated by special request. The cast included:

DOUBLED UP WITH RHEUMATISM

Could Not Wash Himself Nor Brush His Hair

So bad was his rheumatism that his friends declared he would never work again. Although he is 70 years old he proved they were wrong. Read what he says:—

"I am seventy years of age. Last Christmas I was completely doubled up with rheumatism. I could not brush my hair nor wash myself. People said I should never work any more. I am working harder than a young man to-day. Thanks, many thanks, to Kruschen Salts. I take them in my tea, and I have recommended them to many. I could not get in or out of bed myself, nor sit up. But see me work now — 12 hours a day sometimes. Kruschen Salts have done it."—G. J.

Rheumatic conditions are the result of an excess of uric acid in the body. Two of the ingredients of Kruschen Salts have the power of dissolving uric acid crystals. Other ingredients assist Nature to expel these dissolved crystals through the natural channel. In addition, there are still other salts in Kruschen which prevent food fermentation in the intestines, and thereby check the further accumulation not only of uric acid, but of other body poisons which undermine the health.

Over thirty dollars was realized from the hostess tea, and of this a small amount will be used to meet some expenses involved.

MOUNT PLEASANT, May 17. — (Examiner Correspondence). — The annual business meeting of the Mount Pleasant branch of Women's Institute was held Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Ira Lowe, with an attendance of twenty. Fourteen members paid their fees.

By final discussion on the making of the quilt to be exhibited at the district annual at Morrish, May 22, it was decided not to make it, owing to the short time and the busy season.

A letter was read by the secretary re Guelph conference for girls to be held on May 8, 9 and 10. Three dollars was voted to give any girl who might find a way of going.

The report of the secretary, Mrs. Hubert Gardiner, showed an excellent year's work. There had been eleven regular meetings in the homes, with one in the Institute Hall. Mrs. W. H. Lowes reported that the books had been audited and found correct.

During the meeting a large box of chocolates was passed, this being the treat provided by the losing side of the roll-call contest for the year, with Mrs. E. McLean as their captain.

Tully, vacated the chair, while Mrs. Ira Lowe took her place and conducted the election of officers for the coming year, which resulted as follows, with Mrs. Norman Pee acting as secretary and Mrs. T. NOT SOUND IN PRINCIPLE.

An interesting point in regard to the increased amusement tax announced by Premier Hepburn has been raised by the Woodstock Sentinel-Review, and that is, that this new taxation has been decided upon, not by the Legislature, but by the Cabinet.

According to the Woodstock paper, the Amusement Tax Act when originally passed delegated certain powers to the Government, and it was provided that "the Lieutenant-Governor in Council may make such regulations as may be deemed advisable, and may increase the tax hereby imposed to an amount not exceeding 25 cents on each admission."

That clause would seem to give the present Government complete authority to increase the existing amusement tax were it not for the fact that in 1927 another section was added to the Amusement Tax Act which set forth that its provisions should not apply "to any person paying not more than 25 cents in all for admission, reserved seat and other charges."

In applying the tax to admission charges of less than 25 cents the Hepburn Government is therefore exceeding its authority until this particular clause is repealed.

However that may be, we are in accord with the Sentinel-Review in its opinion that powers of taxation should be, so far as is possible, confined to the Legislature, and that legislation which delegates taxation authority to the Cabinet should be reduced to a minimum; it is a responsibility that should be controlled by all the representatives of the people, and it would certainly be much more in accord with the principles of democratic government to having taxing power vested in the Legislature, instead of in the Lieutenant-Governor in Council, as it is under a number of provincial acts.

THEY WANT A BONUS.

It should not be surprising perhaps to learn that the potato-growers of Prince Edward Island, dismayed by the loss of their export markets and with a large surplus on their hands, are seeking a bonus from the Dominion Government along the same lines as the assistance given Western wheat-producers.

The movement, fostered by Women's Institutes and agricultural societies, has spread over the three counties of the province and is naturally gaining much support.

Here is a typical resolution passed at a farmers' meeting:

"Resolved, that the potato-growers of Fortune Bridge and vicinity join a movement with the other districts in Prince Edward Island in petitioning the Federal Government to pay a bonus on the island potato crop of 1934. That this bonus be five cents a bushel on and up to 1,200 bushels per grower of $10 per acre up to six acres. In consideration of the fact that the Federal Government has from time to time come to the aid of the other provinces and that no such assistance has ever been given the Prince Edward Island potato-growers, notwithstanding the fact that they have for several years been operating on a losing basis, we feel that we are fairly entitled to consideration in the present crisis."

Obviously this campaign presents difficulties for the Ottawa Government, for to yield to this pressure from Prince Edward Island would undoubtedly result in similar demands from farmers in other sections of Canada, who have their own marketing problems and who would undoubtedly be able to present a strong case in behalf of their claims.

And yet to refuse to give consideration to the plight of the Prince Edward Island potato-growers would not be the easiest thing in the world for a Government which some time this year has to face the voters in a general election.

IT MEANS MORE OVERHEAD.

The Examiner referred the other day to the substantial increase in the number of industrial accidents reported in Ontario in March and April of this year, and to the greater costs made necessary by this increase.

These costs are not confined to the expense of providing compensation and medical aid, although these involve heavy payments, for more industrial accidents mean higher assessment rates under the Workmen's Compensation Act, and industry and business have as a result larger overheads to grapple with.

Fatal accidents last year increased from 888 to 974, an increase of 20 per cent., and non-fatal industrial accidents also jumped.

Just what this means is shown in the table of provisional assessment rates for 1935 made public by the Ontario Workmen's Compensation Board which list 74 changes, all but two of these being increases and in some cases very substantial ones.

For example, the rate per $100 of pay-roll is boosted from $4 to $6 in the case of concrete work in connection with buildings, while for brick work or stone masonry on buildings over four storeys the rate goes up from $4.50 to $6.75, the wrecking of buildings rate jumps from $10 to $15, and the plumbing and heating assessment from $1.60 to $2.40 per $100 of pay-roll.

The rate for employers of men working with explosives is increased from $1 to $5, in the manufacturing of wrought iron pipe or tubing from $1.50 to $2, in painting from $2.75 to $4.10, and in textiles from 60 to 90 cents.

How the rating is arrived at is explained by the board as follows:

"The rating for each separate line of industry cannot be made to depend upon the experience in that particular line alone. This is especially the case where the total amount of the pay-rolls in any line of industry is small. To charge that line of industry with its own cost might place a very excessive burden upon its employers for one year, while perhaps relieving them almost wholly from assessment another year. This would destroy the underlying principle of collective liability or mutual insurance which is the basis of the system.

"Individual distinction between employers even in the same line of industry is made according to their accident experience by a system of merit rating. Where the accident cost falls short of the amount of assessment by a stated percentage a merit rating refund within specified limits is made accordingly."

A NEW SET-UP NEEDED.

There is a great deal of truth in the contention of the Ottawa Journal that it is high time for a general survey of the social services rendered by the province of Ontario and the municipalities, and for a simplification of the plan of administration and an adjustment of costs.

Certainly, as the Ottawa paper points out, that in the three classifications, relief, mothers' allowances and old age pensions, there is duplication of effort and a waste of money.

These services are not mere temporary agencies, for certainly old age pensions and mothers' allowances are here to stay, and it is unfortunately all too clear that no matter how conditions improve expenditures on direct relief will continue to be large for years to come.

Is it good business therefore that there should be three separate boards to handle three services, which by their very nature really constitute a single problem?

Plainly the answer to this question is in the negative.

Therefore at this time when the Provincial Government proposes to take over the income tax, the question of a new set-up to deal with these matters would seem to be well worth consideration.

"Under such a broad scheme as we are discussing these various services would be administered directly by the Minister of Public Welfare, probably through a small board headed by a director reporting to the Minister," says the Journal. "Again, to consider Ottawa as a specimen, there would be located here, no doubt, a resident administrator at the head of an organization in charge of public aid in all its branches —to unemployed persons and their families, to the indigent aged, to widowed mothers. He might have the support of a local advisory board, but if so it would be purely advisory.

"The advantages of such a degree of co-ordination are obvious. A provincial administrator would be detached from all the local influences and propaganda that are bound to make themselves felt in the operations of a body as close to the people—and as close to the representatives of the people—as a civic welfare board. The problem of the mobile unemployed would be solved, because it would not matter to the Government whether a family was maintained in Ottawa or in Toronto, in Perth or Welland.

"Administration would be much simpler in all its phases. One staff of investigators would deal with the various classes of pensioners under provincial law, as well as with those receiving or desiring direct relief, and much present overlapping would be avoided. All of this should save money to the taxpayers."

MR. BENNETT'S FUTURE.

Canadians are pleased to hear that examination by British specialists has revealed Mr. Bennett's heart to be organically sound, though tired from the strain of the last five years.

The Prime Minister is leaving for home to-day, with the advice to get as much rest as possible. Unfortunately, with the renewal of the parliamentary session staring him in the face, it is unlikely that he will have much leisure. His capacity for work is so great and his determination so strong that it is probable he will plunge into his duties with something like old-time vigor as soon as he returns.

As for the coming election campaign, details are still in the lap of the gods. Mr. Bennett may or may not feel equal to the heavy task of leading the party. The whole situation will be gone over with his colleagues as soon as he returns; it is suggested that he may even indicate his choice of successor in case he does not feel able to carry on or if his colleagues think the load should be transferred to other shoulders.

Mr. Bennett's Empire broadcast, almost on the eve of his departure from Britain, sounded like the speech of a man who intends to remain in public life. It was vigorous and it had what many will regard as a distinct party tinge, inasmuch as it stressed the benefits derived by both Canada and Britain from the Imperial Conference trade agreements—agreements for which Mr. Bennett is chiefly responsible. The Canadian Prime Minister called for greater co-operation among nations of the Empire, holding that this is a solution of their economic difficulties.

The Premier's many admirers—and the Star is one of them—hope that his health will be sufficiently good to permit him to remain in active public life for some years to come. A 1935 election campaign without his participation would be robbed of its major interest. No man in this country has a more complete grasp of the whole Dominion situation. One may disagree with some of Mr. Bennett's policies and some of his statements and attitudes, but his great ability is never questioned. His retirement from public life would be a distinct loss to the nation.

While on this subject one might mention the hope still entertained by many members of the ruling party that Mr. Bennett's return to Canada will be followed almost immediately by a reconciliation between himself and Mr. Stevens, the former Minister of Trade and Commerce. It is unfortunate, indeed, that these two powerful figures in the Conservative party are pursuing different paths. Some observers predict that in the event of Mr. Bennett's retirement, Mr. Stevens is bound to be the choice for the Conservative leadership. If anything like this is in the air it would be much easier of accomplishment were the two men able to find ground for a re-union some time in advance of the other event.—Border Cities Star.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Earl Lawson, Conservative organizer, says three things are necessary to win an election, a leader, a policy and votes. Give us enough of the latter, Mr. Lawson, and we'll guarantee to win without the other two.

Mr. Stevens' statement that he intends to run in Kootenay East has cleared the air in Perth, where the Conservatives were hopeful of inducing the former Minister of Trade and Commerce to be their candidate. Mr. Stevens is certainly in demand.

Canada's new domestic loan of $60,000,000 was over-subscribed in a few hours. Evidently there are many people who refuse to believe the country is going to the dogs.

BELIEVE IN HEREDITY

I believe in Heredity. Is seems to me that I must believe in it, that it is as obvious as the law of gravitation....I believe in that intangible, uncastle, indestructible force that comes down through the ages—and that passes from generation to generation when babies are born.

I do not understand it, but I believe in it....Once I didn't. Once I sneered at Heredity. Once I was convinced that Environment—the thing that happens to people AFTER they are born—is more important than all that has gone before. I had read books and I had believed them. I was almost a fanatic on the subject. And I would argue long and loud that Environment is more important, far more useful than Heredity in the shaping of boys and girls into useful men and women.

Perhaps I convinced a few persons. But I know ONE person I failed to convince, although I was more anxious to convince him than everyone else. I wanted HIM to believe that we stand alone here on this wide earth and can make anything of ourselves—and that we owe almost nothing to all those men and women who have gone before....And that stubborn fellow who would not be convinced was Myself. Although I argued and argued, he would not agree. He was stubborn, he would not completely yield, and at last, instead of me convincing him, he convinced ME.

The Old Me convinced the New Me, and now I believe in Heredity more than I do in Environment—and that's not strange because it's what most sensible people have always believed.

We talk a lot about Gadgets, but we put our money on Character. We can invent Gadgets, but we get Character from the old folks.

We get our Characters out of our Heredity which guides all men, all women. In that Heredity is a silent strength that we should trust more than we do. Life may hurt it, deform it, bend it almost to breaking—but it is there, it is always important. Give it half a chance and all the courage and endurance and wisdom of the ages will come forth in the fumbling children of today.. And Environment is important only as it releases the Character that is in us.

Your Health

By DR LOGAN CLENDENING

Every other person you meet has a favorite way of reducing. There are those who drink three glasses of Vichy water one day and three glasses of Kissengen water the next day. There are those who believe in hot baths. There are those who believe in hot baths with salt in them. There are those who believe in rubbing apparatus. Some pin their faith to grapefruit; some to milk and bananas.

The most advanced medical opinion on the subject, however, can be seen from the title of an article in a well-known medical journal, "Obesity Treatment by Diet, Thyroid and Dinitrophenol". One can interpret this to mean that only by diet and the use of one or two of these drugs is reduction in weight possible. Even exercise is left out.

I thoroughly agree with the general thesis. I do not believe that baths, massage, rubbing, or any special food will reduce weight. Exercise alone may keep weight down, but for reduction purposes it often creates enough extra appetite to checkmate its benefits.

Compares Patients

In observing patients comparatively in a large medical clinic whose supervision is not made militaristic, it is possible to observe groups of patients who are on diet alone, another group who are on diet plus thyroid, another group who are on dinitrophenol alone, another group who are on diet plus dinitrophenol and another group who are on diet plus thyroid plus dinitrophenol.

Before summarizing the results, it may be useful to explain that thyroid is the extract from the thyroid gland which increases the general energy exchange of the body, increases the heat of the body and burns up tissue. Dinitrophenol is a drug which was discovered to have the same properties, a few years ago. It was used very enthusiastically in weight reduction for a while, but is attended by many dangers and, in general, today is not used by conservative physicians. It is possible, however, that this neglect is unjustified, and that in careful hands dinitrophenol will be found to be of great benefit in this class of cases. It exerts its influence in the same way as thyroid, by increasing the heat of the body and destroying tissue. The patients perspire excessively and usually run a temperature while taking it.

Result of Observation

The result of observing these different classes of cases shows that diet alone, in practically every instance, will result in the reduction of about 15 pounds in three months. This is on the average, one out of every four patients lost 20 to 60 pounds in the same period.

When a patient had lost a certain amount on diet, and by continuing with the diet no longer lost any weight, thyroid could be added and a further loss of 10 to 15 pounds would result.

The same thing is true of the use of dinitrophenol. Thyroid, used alone without any attention to diet, is irregular in its effects. Patients put upon diet and thyroid together showed no greater additional weight loss than by diet alone. Those who were put on dinitrophenol alone, without any restriction of diet, showe no regular loss of weight; some even gained. This is explained by the fact that the tissue loss caused by the use of dinitrophenol increased the appetite to such an extent that the weight remained stationary.

What's in the Name of Canadian Cities and Towns?

By FRANK H. WILLIAMS

CAMROSE, ALBERTA

Little or no originality was shown by the early citizens of Camrose in choosing a name for the place.

Originated in 1905 through the laying of the C.P.R. through this district, the residents apparently had no pioneer settler they desired to honor, while no heritage had been left by the Indians. No physical characteristics of the place offered suggestions, so the bewildered committee turned to the British postal guide for inspiration.

One of the first names to come under their observation was Camrose, the name of a town in Pembrokeshire, Wales, and it was adopted without hesitation.

NEW BRUNSWICK SCHOOL BILL

On this date (May 17) in 1871 a school bill was introduced into the New Brunswick Legislature which threatened at one time to create as much trouble as did the Manitiba bill abolishing separate schools 20 years later. The bill, which was introduced by Hon. G. E. King, then premier but later a judge of the Supreme Court of Canada, provided that all the schools in the province "Shall be free and non-sectarian" and supported by assessment.

The Roman Catholic minority at once protested. Its representative in the Legislature fought the measure bitterly, and when it had been passed appealed to Ottawa for its disallowance. John Costigan, afterwards a member of Sir John A. Macdonald's (and other) cabinets, introduced a resolution in the House of Commons demanding federal veto of the measure. Bitter debates followed and at one time there was so grave a danger of a political crisis that Hon. Leonard Tilley then minister of finance, tendered his resignation rather than either embarrass the government or risk political eclipse in his province, doing this as a "matter of self-preservation."

The crisis however, was escaped, Sir John taking that stand that as the matter was one wholly within the jurisdiction of the province it was impossible for the Dominion government to interfere. The Roman Catholics carried their appeal to Downing street, but the British government declined to intervene in a matter which was wholly provincial and so that act was not interfered with.

Its enforcement was not permitted to pass without trouble. Rioting took place at Caraquet and other places on the north shore, but eventually the Roman Catholics made the best of the situation, making up their mind that the time would come when their political would have so grown as to compel modification of the school act. Nobody then would have predicted a condition such as has come now when the Roman Catholic population of New Brunswick is nearly half of the total and the French language has been recognized in the provincial legislature. The fecundity of the French Catholic population has solved the school problem in New Brunswick.

Bird's Nest Reveals String Of Beads

MARMORA, May 17.—(Examiner Correspondence.) — On Monday morning a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dermot Bedore, who reside near Malone, accidentally knocked down a bird's nest which was near the pig pen. On picking up the nest she was surprised to find a complete string of prayer beads in it. The beads did not belong to any of the family and they have no idea where the bird could have picked them up.

BAILIEBORO

FROSTS DAMAGE EARLY BARLEY

Apple Trees Are Affected By Splitting Bark, the Result of 1934 Frosts.

LITTLE GROWTH

BAILIEBORO, May 17 (Examiner Correspondence).—It is feared that the frosts which were noticeable in the district on Tuesday and Wednesday night have done considerable damage to the crops of grain, hay and fruit trees. Indications of damage wrought by frost could be noticed especially on the barley crops and clover.

The prospects for a a good fruit crop this season are very bright in the district. Although the frosts might damage the bloom of the early variety of apple trees which are now almost ready to come into bloom, it is generally considered that to date the damage done is not serious.

In many fruit orchards apple trees have developed serious splits in the bark and wood of the trees, possibly brought on from the severe frosts of the winter of 1934, and only showing up this Spring. In some instances young apple trees have been left totally ruined by a check which extends far into the base of the tree.

Seeding Completed

The season crop is now practically all in the soil, but to date the growth has been extremely slow and the soil dry and cold.

Throughout the seeding season the cool weather has made it easier on horses and in the majority of cases farm horses are in fair flesh and have weathered the hard season in splendid condition.

The majority of farmers still have a quantity of fodder in their barns and are planning on holding their milch cows and horses in the stable until the pasture is better and the weather warmer.

The greater percentage of young cattle have been placed on pasture where it it is generally considered that they do better at this season of the year than they do in the stables, enabling them to get away to a good start on the first green grass.

Sheep raisers in the community report success with their flock of Spring lambs, with a smaller loss than for some years.

CHIBOUGAMAU PROSPECTORS.

Chibougamau Prospectors, — A certain amount of work has been carried out on all ground in which Chibougamau Prospectors, Limited, is interested, states Julius M. Cohen, president, in submitting the annual report under date of May 17. The permanent work on the Barbeau Lake and Bear Bay groups of Cons. Chibougamau Goodfields in which Chibougamau Prospectors holds 600,000 shares, was confined solely to surface prospecting and assessment work.

These shares will be distributed as soon as possible as March 1, 1936.

An intensive development program is being carried out on the Cedar Lake properties where a new mining outfit has been installed. The shaft has now reached a depth of 400 feet. Cons. Smelters has options on the control of the company. Surface exploration on the Northern Chibougamau Mines property located east and south-west of the Bourbeau Lake holdings of Noranda Mines, has indicated favorable gold values over good widths.

RAPID GAINS BASE METALS TORONTO LIST

Higher Prices For Copper, Lead and Zinc Adds Fuel to Advance.

GOLDS LOSE GROUND.

TORONTO, May 17. — (CP).— Base Metals went up like a house afire to-day, fueled by higher prices for Copper, Lead and Zinc, while Silvers registered modest gains and the Golds lost ground. Dividend declaration of $1 with bonus for the quarter from Lake Shore brought in heavy trading in that issue on a price rise of about $1, while Wright Hargreaves and Teck Hughes held steady and other issues of the group sold lower.

The British Columbia gold leaders, Pioneer and Bralorne, were definitely weak, the former selling off to 6.10 for a loss of 30 cents, and Pioneer off 45 cents to $11. Hollinger dropped about 35 cents to 15.65.

Sherritt in the base metals touched $1 before selling off slightly to show a net gain of around 10 cents, Sudbury Basin pulled up a few cents to 1.53, and gains of about 25 cents each were recorded for Noranda and Hudson Bay.

The silvers were off a little during the morning but revived in the afternoon to close on top.

NICKEL CLOSES UNDER THE MARK

But Consolidated Smelters Holds the Big End of 8-point Rise.

UTILITIES STEADY.

TORONTO, May 17.—(CP)—Profit-taking on the week's advance came into the Toronto Industrial Market in the last hour today and prices underwent some shrinkage from the day's tops. The oils took losses up to more than a point, International Petroleum working back to 37¾ and in the metals, Nickel closed just under its former close, having lost its entire gain but Consolidated Smelters held the big end of a 8-point rise. Utilities, beverages and constructions were up at the close.

Smelter's rise to better than 180 set a new top since the spring of 1931. Heavy advances occurred in Dominion tar issues and there were minor gains for Building Products and Canada Dredge. In the steels, Page Hersey, United Steel, Steel of Canada, National Steel Car and General Steel Wares closed higher.

In brewery and distillery group higher prices were registered.

Consolidated Bakeries featured the foods, selling up to 16 for a gain of more than a point. It slipped a little before the close. Packers and Loblaw also had small gains.

TWILIGHT SLEEP CURES INSANITY

Can Speak Occasionally But Mostly Drowsy Even For That.

CURES MILD TYPES.

WASHINGTON, May 17 (AP) — Twilight sleep for men as well as women, curing mild insanity of both sexes, was reported to the American Psychiatric Association to-day.

Several successful cases were described, including one that might be called "stock markitis," a man caught in the 1929 crash, who not only broke down mentally but was in physical pain.

This form of sleep, which he called "twilight narcosis," was described by A. L. Skoog, M.D., of Kansas City. He gives the patients a form of sodium amytal, which puts them into a condition resembling drugged sleepiness.

They can speak occasionally, but are mostly too drowsy even for that. This condition lasts for hours during which the physician talks to them. His words are the only treatment.

The businessman who cracked up after 1929 was worried, slept poorly, was unable to work, had pains in the back and other places, shriveling of some parts of his body, and spells of fear.

Examinations showed no disease. He was put to sleep twice, 12 days apart. Both times his physician talked, telling him he could hope for full recovery, that he had no internal disorders, that he was not shriveled, and that his brain was normal.

A few weeks of rest followed and the man recovered. He became healthy and returned to business.

UNITED KINGDOM BACON

OTTAWA.—The United Kingdom market for imported bacon remained unchanged this week, according to a cable received to-day by the Department of Agriculture. Canadian bacon sold at 80 to 84 shillings. All other classes remained at last week's quotations.

Canadian bacon was also unchanged.

Germans Perfect New Speed Boats

BERLIN, May 17. (AP).—A new, compact speed boat manned by only five marines and carrying four torpedoes has been perfected by German naval engineers, foreign military experts here said to-day. It was asserted 430 of these miniature naval weapons have already been built.

The speed boat, said to be capable of speed up to 60 knots, needs only one man to operate it. Each member of the rest of the crew takes charge of one torpedo.

PLUMBERS SEEK STANDARD WAGE

Industry in Toronto District Area Invoke New Ontario Law.

AGREEMENT EXPECTED.

TORONTO, May 7 (C.P.).—With the expectation of reaching an agreement to-day with respect to standard of wages and working hours in the plumbing trade in Toronto and district under the new Industrial Standards Act, about 150 plumbers adjourned for lunch after an all-morning conference presided over by Louis Fine, industrial standards officer, and J. E. Marsh, Deputy Minister of Labor.

This was the first official conference under the legislation which Hon. A. W. Roebuck, Attorney-General and Minister of Labor, guided through the last session of the Legislature.

The Act provided where a sufficient number of employers or employees desired a conference to reach wage and working hours agreements, such a meeting would be presided over by the Department of Labor and the agreements reached would be given the force of law.

Employers and employees of the plumbing trade in Toronto and a 10-mile suburban area, comprising the Toronto zone, were present at to-day's gathering.

After the conference, Mr. Fine said he believed an agreement would be reached at the afternoon session.

Market Closing On All Exchanges

WALL STREET CLOSE.

NEW YORK, May 17.—(AP) — Profit taking brought considerable irregularity in to-day's stock market, although the Steels, Utilities and Mines resisted selling throughout. The trading volume, under that of yesterday, was still ahead of recent sessions.

Gainers of fractions to a point or more included U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, American Telephone, Western Union, U. S. Smelting, Alaska Juneau, Anaconda and Westinghouse. Declines of 1 to around 2 were recorded by Allied Chemical, International Business Machines, Corn Products and Union Pacific. The Oils were steady. The late tone was mixed. Transfers approximated 1,700,000 shares.

MONTREAL, May 17 (C.P.). — MONTREAL EXCHANGE.

Profit-taking forced prices a little lower at the close of Montreal Stock Exchange to-day, but the general tone was firm.

An exception was Bank of Canada shares, which went to a new high mark of 65, up five points. Smelters closed at 177½, up 2¼ points, after climbing as high as 180½. Steel of Canada closed at 46¾, up ¾. Dominion Bridge, Nichel, Montreal Power, Shawinigan and one or two others were off fractionally.

Gasoline Prices Cut As Dealers Disagree

STRATFORD, Ont., May 17 (C.P.). — A gasoline price war loomed to-day as service station operators moved to meet a price of 24 cents a gallon announced by one company station manager yesterday. In reducing the price to 24 cents the station operator announced he was doing so because operators of the city had failed to live up to an agreement made some time ago that the price of gasoline in Stratford should be 26½ cents a gallon.

To-day a few stations were charging 26½ cents a gallon, others were charging 25 cents, and at least one station was selling for 24 cents.

Run Nickel Mines As Public Utility

BRAMPTON, Ont., May 17 (C.P.). —Should the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation be placed in power at the coming Dominion election, Nickel Mines will be taken over as a public utility, Frank Regan, Toronto lawyer and C.C.F. candidate, told a gathering at Cheltenham. If the Liberal and Conservative parties had united to place a ban on export of Canadian Nickel, he said, "the world would not now be faced with a race for armaments that threatens to engulf civilization."

LAWYERS CLASH ON TEMPERANCE ACT'S STATUS

Constitutionality of Measure in Peel, Huron, Perth Challenged By Province's Counsel.

ROWELL REBUKED.

OTTAWA, May 17 (CP)—Lawyers clashed sharply before the Supreme Court of Canada as argument began on the reference as to the status of the Canada Temperance Act in the Ontario counties of Peel, Huron and Perth. The constitutionality of the act, passed in 1873, was challenged by counsel for the Province of Ontario and the Moderation League and the raising of this question drew sharp objections from counsel for the Dominion Government and the Temperance Federation.

Hon. N. W. Rowell, K.C., representing the Temperance Federation, stirred up controversy when he moved to have the court strike out large parts of the written factum presented by the Moderation League and smaller parts of that presented by the Attorney-General of Ontario.

Review Inaccurate

He objected to allegations of fact being laid before the court in consideration of a purely legal question. The Moderation League factum contained long statements of fact bearing on the pros and cons of prohibition legislation and the effects of liquor while the Ontario factum contained a historial review which, he contended, was slightly inaccurate.

The whole reference related to questions of fact, said Aime Geoffrion, K.C., representing the Moderation League. He said the league felt it should set out pertinent facts on which the court might base its decision. They were advanced not as evidence but as argument. Mr. Geoffrion said he would contend the whole act was unconstitutional and no longer in force. It had been held valid as an emergency measure by the Privy Council but the emergency no longer existed and the act could not be supported.

Objection to the raising of the constitutional question was taken by P. M. Anderson representing the Attorney-General of Canada. He said the reference to the court was simply for the purpose of securing an interpretation of section 175 of the act and the constitutionality of the measure was not pertinent.

The Key Point

The question was whether the act was now in force in three counties, said Joseph Sedgwick, K.C., for the Attorney-General of Ontario. If it was unconstitutional it was not in force anywhere and could not be in force in those counties. The question, therefore, was a vital one.

If the court were asked an abstract question that would be the case, said Sir Lyman Duff, Chief Justice. But it was not the point in the present reference. The court had to examine the order-in-council and go according to the intention of the government.

Mr. Sedgwick drew a mild rebuke from the Chief Justice when he suggested it was an impertinence for counsel for the Temperance Federation to object to submissions of the Attorney-General of Ontario. He had no complaint as to objections from counsel for the Attorney-General of Canada, representing another sovereign government.

"Such language should never be used by one counsel about another," said the Chief Justice. "Let's say no more about it." He said Mr. Rowell was appearing pursuant to an order of the court and had a perfect right to make what submissions he chose.

Quebec Backing Ontario

Mr. Geoffrion remarked he represented the Province of Quebec as well as the Moderation League and that Quebec was supporting the Province of Ontario.

The argument is continuing.

Questions the court is asked to answer are whether the present liquor law of Ontario is more restrictive than the Canada Temperance Act, if not whether the act is in force in the three counties by virtue of long-standing votes and, if it is not in force, what steps need be taken to bring it into force.

Relief Strike Pickets Dispersed By Police

EDMONTON, May 17.—(CP).—Wielding riot clubs after orders to disperse had been ignored, city police broke up a crowd of 200 relief strike pickets, 40 of whom were women, in front of the city stables early to-day.

One policeman, Constable John Kelly, was slightly injured when he was struck by a large stone thrown by a striker in flight from the police charge. Several pickets are nursing minor bruises. Three men were arrested.

EVIL COMPANIONSHIP.

ORANGE, N.J., May 16.—(AP).—A minister whose most recent sermon was on "evil companionship" came to a morgue to-day and identified the body of his eldest son and namesake killed by a policeman after he had robbed a Glen Ridge home.

"He was a good boy," said Rev. William H. McAllister, of Jersey Shore, Pa. "But he must have run afoul of bad company." Two years ago the youth left home following a quarrel with his father.

Obdurate Prisoner Sent Back To Jail

STRATFORD, Ont., May 17 (CP). —Disinclination on the part of Fred Anderson of Shakespeare to promise future good behavior will cost him at least another week in jail. Anderson, arrested a week ago, charged with assaulting Ira Capling, of Shakespeare, was convicted by Magistrate J. A. Makins to-day and given suspended sentence on condition he furnished his own bond of $100 for his future good behavior. Anderson said he didn't have the money. The Magistrate said it was not necessary to have the cash, as long as he was willing to give his undertaking. Anderson demurred and was remanded to jail for another week.

Alleged Communists Committed For Trial

AMOS, Que., May 17.—(CP). — Five Alleged communists from Montreal were to-day committed for trial before the September Court of King's Bench by Magistrate J. A. Metayer in Enquete Court on charges of having sent threatening letters to Mr. Justice Romeo Langlais of the Superior Court, Quebec. The five accused are: Joseph Campbell, Janie Demetrion, Louis Cremois, Egnat Gecheff and Joseph Johnson.

Mr. Justice Langlais presided last December at the trial of 20 alleged communists found guilty of taking part in an unlawful assembly and of rioting. They were sentenced to penitentiary terms.

Fenelon Falls Plans War On Tagless Dogs

LINDSAY, Ont., May 17 (CP) — Dog fanciers of Fenelon Falls are up in arms following the action of the village council in setting June 1 as the date of the execution for every dog found within the confines of the village without the adornment of a 1935 license. This notice has raised the ire of many of the village canine fanciers particularly since it follows a by-law passed by the council setting the dog tax at $4 for the first male dog and $6 for each additional male owned by one person. In the case of females the fee is set at $8 and $12.

Stormy scenes are anticipated on June 1. Chief of Police David Gordon claims there are so many dogs in the village a dog wagon and 20 policemen would be required to round them up.

STUBBORN FIRE AT C.G.E. PLANT

against the flames in the room structure. Under the direction of Chief George Gimblett, the city firemen went to work with three hose lines, while the volunteer brigade plied one water line and a chemical line.

As the building in which the fire broke out stands separate from the other buildings of the plant on the north-west section of the grounds, the danger of a serious spread of the fire was not great. A nearby structure housing lumber stores was threatened by flying embers but prospective action of the firemen warded off the threat.

The firemen were prompt in throwing covers over machinery, stock and other contents of the carpentry shop, but were unable to prevent all damage to the contents. Many valuable wood patterns were warped by water. The $1,600 loss estimate includes about $700 for damage to contents. The entire los is covered by insurance.

No interruption in the company's production schedules will result from the fire, company officials said to-day.

OLD PROPHECY WAS FULFILLED BY ALLENBY, '17

John Perry of Winnipeg Addresses Local Branch of British Israel Federation.

CLAY TABLETS.

Waters of Nile Flowed Into Gaza—Delivered a Man of Humility.

When General Allenby marched into the city of Jerusalem on that notable day in 1917 which fulfilled the ancient prophecy that the city should be delivered in 2520 years after its capture in 604 B.C. by the Babylonian kings, Shalmanaser and his son Sennacherib, he fulfilled to the letter an ancient Mohammedan prophecy which said that it should be delivered when the waters of the Nile flowed into Gaza, and when its deliverer, a man of humility, should bear the name of a prophet.

The waters of the Nile did in truth flow into Gaza, piped there by the engineers who went with Allenby, who, in humble remembrance of the One who rode into Jerusalem on the back of an ass, walked, rather than rode, into the Holy City, and whose name, as translated in the Arabic tongue, El Enby, means, in the same tongue, "a Prophet."

Another strange fulfilment of a more ancient prophecy was registered on that wonderful occasion. The Prophet Isaiah, in a vision which he could not decipher, saw the city of Jerusalem delivered finally by the aid of birds which flew over it. On the day before Allenby's entrance, mighty aeroplanes, by his orders, circled for hours about the city, in order to give the Turks an idea of what might transpire should they refuse to carry out the order to evacuate.

These and many other interesting things were told to the members of the local branch of the British Israel Federation who gathered in goodly numbers at the Paragon Hall last night to listen to the first of a series of three talks by Prof. John Perry of Winnipeg, president of the Manitoba branch of the British-Israel Federation, who opened the series last night by a discourse entitled "The Last Days." This was documented by remarkable evidence from great museum records and historical data, and was illuminated by lantern slides, the main slide being a replica of a most interesting chart of History and Prophecy, prepared by Mr. Perry, and showing the course of the tribes of Judah from Abraham's day to the present time.

Clay Tablets

Two extremely illuminating slides were reproductions of photographs of ancient records of Babylonian exploits. One pictured a huge clay tablet which told in cuneiform writing of the capture of the ten tribes, the "Men of Omri," by Shalmanaser and Sennacherib, while the other reproduced the inscriptions carved on a mountainside by order of Darius, setting forth in the Assyrian, Persian and Sumerian tongues the defeat of these same people, afterwards known as Kimri, Sacae (forerunners of the Saxons), and still later, in the writings of the great historians, Herodotus, Justin and Gibbons, under the names of Goths, Jutes, Ang, es, Briths and Danes.

One of the most interesting facets of this story of British-Israel belief is the recording of the escape of the Prophet Jeremiah and the Israelitish princess, Tamar-Tephi, from the Babylonian captivity, to flee in a boat and be wrecked on the west coast of Ireland, where, when rescued, the princess married King Eochaid, a descendant of another of the House of Israel, Zarah, and the ruling house of the fabled Tuatha de Danaan, and so become the ancestors of the ancient Irish, Scottish and British kings.

And, in their flight, the prophet and the princess took with them the sacred stone that had gone with the children of Israel in the Ark of the Covenant, that had formed the foundation stone of Solomon's Temple, and, before that, was one of a number of stones in a pylon erected by Jacob to mark the place of his prophetic dream. That stone remained in Ireland for a long time, then was taken to Scotland and became the ancient stone of Scone, and now reposes in the Coronation Chair in Westminster Abbey.

Mr. Perry dealt extensively with the carrying out of the promises made by Jehovah to Abraham; that Abraham should be the father of many nations; that Israel should become a great and mighty nation, and a company of nations; that it should on land and sea possess all strategic places, and that the throne of David should never lack a man to possess it. In the fulfillment of these promises, God said also that disobedience on the part of His people (not favored by Him especially, but chosen rather to be the instrument for the carrying out of His designs), should see the partition of that nation and its people. And, in the wandering in the wilderness and through countless centuries thereafter, the disobedient children were punished, but the time of fulfillment was, nevertheless, unforgotten. From 1800 to 1844, declared the speaker, the great steps took place in the furtherance of the British-Israel race just as 1917 saw a further carrying out of the ancient prophecies with regard to the Holy City and Palestine.

To-night, in the Paragon Hall at 8.15, Mr. Perry will give the second address in this series, entitled "The Present World Crisis," and on Sunday night, at 8.30, after church services are finished, he will speak in the parish hall of All Saints' Church on the subject, "The Lord's Near Return."

The president of the local branch, Major Allan MacNab, was in the chair for last night's meeting and introduced the speaker.

Hamilton's Food Must Be Real Good

HAMILTON, Ont., May 17.—(C.P.)—Controller Nora-Frances Henderson thinks Hamilton has something to boast about in the quality of its relief diets for unemployed. She told members of City Council three Hamilton women scored victories in a 31-mile walking marathon at Cincinnati, Ohio, and all three had been training "on a welfare diet."

"They not only won the race," she added, "but broke the record by one hour and nine minutes," she said.

$5,000 IS LIMIT FIRST MORTGAGE

rate of five per cent. in all parts of Canada, the announcement said: "Because of the hazards of farming or the greater cost of making mortgage loans in some parts of the country, the rates charged by private lenders on farm mortgage loans vary throughout the Dominion, but in developing this national plan for lending on farm mortgages, it was felt a uniform rate would have to be established, and it was decided therefor to fix a reasonable average rate, taking all parts of the country into consideration.

"First mortgage loans are repayable upon such terms and within such periods not in excess of 25 years as the board may prescribe, provided that all loans repayable over a period in excess of five years shall be repayable in equal, annual or semi-annual instalments of principal and interest.

"A second mortgage may be taken by the board only when the board has a first mortgage on the farm property.

"Second mortgages may be taken where 50 per cent. of the actual value of the land and buildings will not be sufficient to discharge the indebtedness of the farmer to provide for all his reasonable and necessary requirements. In such cases the board may advance up to two-thirds instead of one-half the appraised value of the land and buildings, in which case a second mortgage will be taken for the excess over 50 per cent. of the appraised value the total amount to be advanced, however, in respect of first and second mortgages, not to exceed $5,000.

Second Mortage Requirements

"In the case of a second mortgage, the board will require chattel security in those provinces where chattel security may be taken by the board, and will require the repayment of the second mortgage in a shorter period than the first mortgage, and the interest rate on the second mortgage will probably be one percent. higher. . . .

"The farm loan board, at the present date, has advanced farm mortgage loans outstanding in the amount of approximately $10,000,000. Under the amendments, the Dominion Government has undertaken to purchase or guarantee the bonds of the Canadian farm loan board up to an amount of $90,000,000 in the aggregate. Consequently, the board will have available for new loans the sum of $80,000,000.

"The purpose of the Farm Loan Act amendments of this session is to provide farm mortgage credit at reasonable rates and to remove the farmer, unable to meet his liabilities as they come due, from a default position. In many instances it will happen that the amount which the board can advance, having regard to the appraised value of the land, will not be sufficient to discharge the obligations of the farmer. The board will naturally be interested in advancing money by way of first mortgage or first and second mortgages only when the result will be the consolidating of the indebtedness of the farmer.

"If by means of advances made in this way the farmer cannot have his debts consolidated and recast, then the farmer who cannot meet his debts as they come due should take advantage of the provisions of the Farmers' Creditors Arrangement Act, passed in 1934, which was passed for the same purpose, namely, that of removing the farmer from his position of default, and readjusting and rearranging his indebtedness."

COLOR FILM IS SHOWN BY ROY TO ENTHUSIASTS

Color Films Are Produced by the New Kodachrome Process.

RESULT ASTONISHING

An experimental reel of Kodachrome miniature film, with which he took natural color moving pictures of local interest were given a private showing by Fred L. Roy in Roy Studios yesterday.

The general opinion of those who saw the pictures made by the newly developed process was that they are a revelation.

"I am not claiming these are the first color films produced in Canada," Mr. Roy told The Examiner, "but I am stating positively that they are among the first films ever produced by the Kodachrome process which was announced by The Eastman Kodak Company early this month."

"From the very beginning of photography, experimenters have tried to make photographs in color instead of in monochrome, and numberless processes have been put forward for that purpose. The ideal process would be one in which the color picture would be as easy to take and as certain in result as the monochrome picture is, but until now no color process has approached that ideal."

"The new Kodachrome process, so far as the photographer is concerned not merely approaches that ideal but realizes it."

Orders Are Placed

So delighted are local amateur "movie" photographers with the results which Mr. Roy has obtained that it is stated, many of them have placed orders for the new films with intention of duplicating his success.

Several shots taken by Mr. Roy from the summit of Armour Hill represented to full extent Peterborough in all the glory of early spring. The coloring was perfectly reproduced on the screen with interesting shots of the Normal School, Anson House, and the Quaker Oats power dam in all their colorful detail.

The film, which is 100-feet in length also includes some interesting studio studies of Miss Gladys Costello; Fire Chief George Gimblett, complete in trim blue uniform and with his official crimson car; Dr. S. Y. Walsh's tulip beds (which were the first to bloom in Peterborough this year); Johnson's service station; the beautiful residence of Herbert S. Martin and Leslie Turner; Queen Mary School with the children trooping out at recess; and little "Sonny" Roy and his wire-haired terrier.

Color Studies

There are also some charming color studies of flowers and interior decorative schemes, as well as other snaps of the Conger Lehigh Service Station and the Goose Pond and Park Hill road bridge.

Mr. Roy further exhibited some interesting moving pictures in monochrome of the local contingent of Boy Scouts, Wolf Cubs, Girl Guides and Brownies, which were photographed by himself on Saturday morning last when they were marching to the C.N.R. station to entrain for Toronto on the occasion of the visit to that city of Lord and Lady Baden Powell.

were carried safely from the building.

The shock and excitement proved too much for the aged Sister Ste. Elaine, and she collapsed and died while the fire was at its height.

The firemen fought a losing fight with the flames and Chartier, Fleury and Furlong were cut off by the flames and perished. Lecuyer was dragged unconscious from the blazing building by his comrades.

The firemen telephoned immediately to Montreal for aid and two gasoline pumping engines were despatched to Joliette, arriving at dawn to help the local firefighters.

As noon approached Joliette and Montreal firemen combined were still pouring streams of water on the blazing building which was apparently doomed to total destruction.

Nun Collapsed.

Sister Ste. Helene collapsed and died in a nearby building where she and the other survivors of the fire had sought refuge.

Firemen Fleury, Chartrand and Lecuyer, aided by Volunteer Oscar Perland, were trapped by a falling wall. Shouts of warning were too late, and they were unable to get out from under the tumbling mass of brick, stone and blazing wood. Other firemen rushed into the pall of dust and dragged out Lecuyer, but the others were dead.

It was the worst fire in the history of this town, 45 miles northeast of Montreal.

Cow Injured When Chased By Collie

WARSAW, May 17 (Examiner Correspondent) — A dog's mistaken devotion to duty recently resulted in such serious injury to a 3-year-old heifer that Thomas Clements, the owner is in fear of losing the animal.

The heifer was pastured in Theodore Douglas' grass lot, when Elias Thompson's collie dog which has been trained to keep stray cattle away from his master's gate mistakenly believed it to be his duty to chase the cow from the pasture.

Chased from the pasture the heifer returned, but when being driven away a second time tripped over the wire fence and turned somersault, tearing out her horn as she did so. No other external injury can be found, but it is thought the animal suffered internal injury and that she will have to be destroyed.

Pickerel Season Opens At Hastings

HASTINGS, May 17 (Examiner Correspondence). — The 1935 pickerel season got away to a good start on Thursday. Shortly after the stroke of midnight on Wednesday anglers were plentiful on the bridge and dam, and on Thursday night it was a problem to find a spot to drop your line in. While not many large ones were caught, there were a number of from three to five pounders hooked. Toronto fishermen were quite plentiful.

FORD Pioneers Again in Announcing

A NEW PROTECTIVE PLAN FOR USED CAR BUYERS

YOUR USED CAR PURCHASE IS NOW SAFEGUARDED BY ALL FORD DEALERS IN CANADA

FORD pioneering is a byword. Ford pioneered efficient automobile transportation at a cost which millions could afford. Ford laboratories refined the V-8 principle, and pioneered V-8 engine performance and economy in the low-priced field—making the finest and most economical Ford car ever built.

What the New Used Car Plan Does

Now we pioneer with a plan which will protect and benefit buyers of used automobiles. We call it the FORD DEALER 3-5 PLAN. The plan enables you to buy used cars of all makes and models in a wide range of prices from your FORD DEALER — fully protected by a money-back guarantee or exchange privilege, depending on the price you care to pay.

Why You Should See the Ford Dealers First

In this advertisement we reproduce the 3-5 Plan Diamond Labels. They are exclusive to Ford Dealers. Used cars for sale under the terms of this plan have a Diamond Label on the windshield. Due to the great popularity and increased sales of the 1935 Ford V-8, Ford Dealers have taken in a great number of excellent used cars of various makes and models. Ford Dealers operate under factory supervision in handling used cars. You can depend on the Ford Dealer to give you good value at a fair price.

How the 3-5 Plan Protects Your Purchase

Suppose you select a car priced at $300 or more. After driving it, if you are not entirely satisfied, the Ford Dealer from whom you purchased will refund your money without question any time within three days of the date the car is delivered to you. Or suppose you choose a car priced under $300. You may decide later that you prefer a different make or body type. The Ford Dealer from whom you bought will gladly exchange it for another used car of the same price or he will apply it as partial payment on a higher priced used car or a new car, provided the request for exchange is made within five days from the date the car is delivered to you.

No matter how much or how little you pay, you have the protection of the Ford Dealer's good name. You can be sure he will treat you right. At his used car lot or premises, see the fine Diamond Values offered. There's one you'll want.

You don't have to know used cars if you buy from a Ford Dealer. Either of these Diamonds on the windshield is your protection. Look for it.

BRITAIN WANTS

ing with Sir Frederick Leith-Ross, economic adviser to the British government.

Sir Frederick, it is understood, told Prof. White the British government cannot envisage stabilization so long as certain prior conditions have not been met by the United States government.

Great Britain, he said, wants definite settlement of the war debt question to precede any stabilization understanding. He added no settlement could be reached so long as the United States continued to drain half the world's gold production and simultaneously conserve a favorable trade balance.

May Resume Parleys

Sir Austen Chamberlain's address yesterday may be considered a reply both to the stabilization speech of Henry Morgenthau, Jr., secretary of the United States treasury, and the private soundings of Prof. White. It is believed in financial circles here stabilization negotiations may be resumed if Washington gives London to understand the pound could be fixed in relation to the dollar, at a point a little below $4.86.

It is understood that the fixation of this parity might lead to a sort of "gentleman's agreement" or de facto stabilization, to be followed by a formal accord after experience had proved the value, or lack of value, of this parity. The period of this de facto stabilization might be long, it is admitted, because the British are frankly reluctant to fix the pound in face of their reported conviction that the gold-bloc nations will necessarily devaluate.

Until the break-up of the gold-bloc, British treasury officials are reported inclined to be reluctant event to fix a temporary parity.

LIBERAL PARTY RESCUED HYDRO ROEBUCK SAYS

Government's Action in Power Issue is Acclaimed at Port Elgin.

CASE OF JUSTICE.

PORT ELGIN, May 17.—Reviewing legislation enacted by the Hepburn Administration, Hon. Arthur W. Roebuck, Attorney-General of the Province, reiterated the Government's intention to air restoration of prosperity and rapped out at critics of the Government's attitude on Hydro and other matters.

Roebuck Wildly Cheered

Before a throng of more than 700 cheering Liberals in Port Elgin Casino, the Attorney-General appealed for support of Mackenzie King at the coming Federal election.

"Support Mackenzie King to open up avenues of trade and get things going again," he urged. "It is not a case of politics as much as a case of self-preservation."

He took to task the privately owned Central Bank, and declared a Government-owned bank is needed. "This coming Dominion election has got beyond politics, and now it's absolutely essential to turn out the gang now in office at Ottawa."

Referring to the Provincial theatre of affairs, Mr. Roebuck reviewed legislation passed at the recent House session. Dismissal of many public office-holders he upheld as an economy measure. Reduction of expenses and resultant reduction of taxation will aid in the restoration of prosperity. Improvements in the magisterial system were also noted by the speaker, whose reaffirmation of Governmental policy met with loud acclaim from those present.

Reviews Hydro Affairs

Much of Mr. Roebuck's address was devoted to a review of Hydro conditions. It is based on Liberal principals. "Hydro is the child of the Liberal Party, and it is indeed fortunate that the Liberals have taken office and come to rescue Hydro from the ruin facing it" he asserted.

The betrayal of Hydro, as he termed it, was traced step by step from 1926 to the present, revealing in the final analysis purchase of 731,000,000 unwanted and unneeded horsepower from Quebec power barons. Never was any of this power required, and yet to pay for it the people were taxed nearly $1,000,000 yearly.

Asking the audience what it would have done with the contracts made by previous Governments, the Attorney-General heard a roar from the crowd: "The same as you did."

Critics who spoke of the sanctity of contracts, especially those who contracted for the power, thought little of sanctity in making the contracts without the knowledge or consent of 300 municipalities, Mr. Roebuck declared. "It is not a case of generosity, but of justice. Shall we do an injustice to the municipalities to do more than justice to the power barons?" he queried.

Many people think political parties are allied with powerful financial interests, continued Mr. Roebuck. "Well, the Liberals are not the tools of powerful interests, and you can credit that to Mitchell F. Hepburn," he declared, amid a roar of approval from the gathering.

CHORAL CONCERT THIS EVENING

Program Will Be Provided in the Collegiate Auditorium.

SEARLES TRIO.

This evening in the Collegiate Auditorium, St. Peter's Cathedral Choral Society will introduce itself to the musically interested citizens of Peterborough in a program of religious and standard secular choral music which has been chosen with a view of pleasing diversified musical tastes. Since this singing organization is of only recent establishment and has yet to prove its musical worth before an audience, in justice to the choir itself, and as an assurance to the public, it can be said most truthfully that their solo and choral work is of an exceptionally high order for an amateur organization. In their repertory are included the following well-known choral numbers (exclusive of the religious group): "The Bells of Notre Dame," a beautifully descriptive composition of the great Cathedral bells of Notre Dame from the clear silver-toned trebles of the smaller bells to the deep vibrant boom of the great bourdon; the ever popular novelty number, "Old King Cole," and his fiddlers three, with their nonsensical fiddle-diddle, fiddle-diddle, fiddle-diddle-dee. The 'Blue Danube' brings to a close a very fine choral program.

To those who have not heard in recital the Searles Instrumental Trio of violin, 'cello and piano, an opportunity will be afforded to hear these three gifted musicians in three contributing groups of three numbers each. They will play excerpts from the works of Brahms, Beethoven, Mendelssohn, etc. The personnel of this trio is R. C. Searles, violin; Tom Smith, cello; Mrs. R. C. Searles, piano. Soloists for the evening are Miss Stella Brady, Miss Geraldine Collins, Mrs. L. Picard, Messrs. Harold Coulson, Arthur Phillips and Thomas Williams.

COURT BLOCKS BUTLER'S STORY

Not Allowed to Tell What He Saw When Society Matron Entertained by Flicks.

ASKING $100,000.

NEW YORK, May 17 (AP)—Miss Margot Flick's relations with a Boston society matron were the object of questioning yesterday as Miss Flick testified in defence against her former butler's $100,000 slander suit against her. The society matron's name was Mrs. Louis Shaw.

"Do you recall when you entertained her in the drawing room, before the fireplace?" counsel for William Graham, the suing butler, asked Miss Flick.

"I always entertained her in the drawing room," she replied.

"You were accustomed to show affection to Mrs. Shaw, were you not?"

"I was very fond of her."

"Well now, will you tell this jury that you waive any privilege to permit this former butler of yours to tell what he saw on the occasion that he served you before the fireplace in the drawing room of your home?"

Counsel for the Flicks objected and was sustained.

Graham is suing the Flicks on the ground he lost his bride and his professional reputation when the Flicks discharged him with the accusation he had entered Miss Flick's bedroom without knocking while she was in sleeping pajamas.

RICHARD HALL LIMITED

WOMAN EXPERT ON LIVESTOCK AND ON CROPS

Mrs. E. C. Hinds at 75 Still Actively Engaged at Newspaper Desk.

HONORED BY COLLEGE

Estimated Western Wheat Crops for Years for Winnipeg Paper.

WINNIPEG, Man., May 17. — A third of a century of service to western grain and livestock producers received official recognition here to-day when the University of Manitoba conferred upon Miss E. Cora Hind, commercial and agricultural editor of the Winnipeg Free Press, the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws.

Bestowal of the cap and gown upon the 73-year-old newspaper woman was made by John W. Dafoe, editor-in-chief of the Free Press, in his capacity of chancellor of the university, and came as a fitting climax to their association of 34 years on the same newspaper, during which time Miss Hind came to be recognized as one of the ablest crop experts and livestock judges on the continent.

A resident of the west for 53 years, Miss Hind lived and worked in Winnipeg for 19 years before she achieved a burning ambition to become a writer. During those two decades she attained the distinction of being the first girl typist in Winnipeg, presenting the first typewritten brief to the Winnipeg law courts, organized the first public stenographer's office in the western capital and had been consistently refused an opportunity to enter newspaper work by W. F. Luxton, then owner and editor of the Winnipeg Free Press.

Refuted Pessimistic Report

When John W. Dafoe assumed editorship of the paper Miss Hind was given her opportunity and began work as market and agricultural reporter. This was in 1901, and three years later she tackled a complex western problem which laid the foundation for her future greatness as a crop estimator.

In 1904 black rust first made its appearance in Western Canada wheat fields. Canadian farmers knew practically nothing of this terrible blight. No one knew what to do. American crop experts said the crop would not thresh more than 35,000,000 bushels.

From then until 1933, when the Free Press discontinued the crop forecasts, her progress reports on the condition of the western wheat crop, published periodically during the growing season, were eagerly awaited by grain centres all over the world, while her estimate of the size of the crop soon came to be regarded as the most accurate released by any agency.

In 1905 she was 400,000 bushels out in an 85-million bushel crop; in 1907 she was 250,000 bushels out in a 70,000,000 crop, while in 1909 she was 600,000 bushels wrong in a crop which threshed 118,000,000 bushels.

Received Many Honors

Honors have been showered on her by grain and livestock associations who have benefitted largely by her labors. Years ago she was accorded an honorary diploma in agriculture from the Manitoba Agricultural College, now a part of the University of Manitoba; the Canadian Society of Technical Agriculturists made her an honorary member of that distinguished body; the Calgary Exhibition and Stampede Board presented her with a beaded deerskin coat, the work of Fisher River Indians; the Winnipeg Grain Exchange granted her a ticket for the trading floor; the Western Canada Livestock Union contributed a beautifully illuminated address accompanied by a purse containing $1,300 in gold, while the Manitoba Sheep Breeders' Association, not to be outdone by their livestock rivals, presented her with a pen of twenty-five ewes.

At 73, when most women are content to sit quietly and let the world go by, Miss Hind still is in active charge of her department and four associates, and wears lightly the combined honor of being the only woman agricultural editor on the continent, the only woman crop expert in the world, the oldest working newspaper woman in Canada and one of the nation's outstanding feminie representatives.

Tom Johnston of Harwood played a selection on the violin and Mr. Hill, also of Cobourg, sang a comic song, "Does It Matter", as well as a reading. The gentlemen present from Plainville were as follows: Messrs. Wilbur Cole, president; Robert Buttars, John West, Tom Buttars, Malcolm Buttar, James Buttar, Fred Bowman, Stuart Bowman, Clifford Manley, Frank Westington, Fred Latzer, Gerald Latzer, Ewart King and Harold Harpenves.

POLICY-HOLDERS ARE BONDHOLDERS

Main Lenders of Money to Governments and Municipalities.

The main lenders of mony to governments and municipalities in Canada are the 3,500,000 Canadian men and women who own policies in life insurance companies operating in the Dominion. Being thrifty people, concerned for the welfare of themselves and their families, they have placed their savings in life insurance companies, in their turn, have invested these savings, to their policyholders' advantage, in Dominion, Provincial and municipal bonds and debentures, in first mortgages on carefully selected city, town and farm properties, in loans to policyholders, etc.

The major part of these savings is invested in government bonds and debentures. There is not a province, not a municipality, that has not been benefitted from life insurance funds. If the case of Ontario, for example, life insurance companies hold for their policyholders $120 millions of Province of Ontario bonds, 99 millions of Ontario municipal bonds, $13 millions of Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario bonds, and $4 millions of other Ontario-guaranteed securities —a total of no less than $236 million dollars.

Twenty per cent of the $1,297 millions of debenture obligations of Canada's 4,280 municipalities are held by the policyholders of life insurance companies. The total of these holdings is no less than $275 millions.

Any default in interest on these bonds and debentures directly affects the interests of one-third of the population of Canada—hits at the savings of 3,500,000 men and women who are the backbone of the nation. In the main they are the bondholders. It is their savings, to the extent of hundreds of millions of dollars, that have helped to build up Canada.

They have given the farmer money to build homes and barns, to buy seed, purchase implements and live stock, to harvest the crops. They have stimulated business for the corner store and the country merchant. They have given employment to urban workers in cities, towns and villages all across Canada. They have extended transportation facilities by rail and water, built highways, paved streets, erected schools, constructed water, sewage and other public utilities, provided money for all kinds of necessary federal, provincial and municipal undertakings. What life insurance policyholders' millions have meant in sustaining national life, in relieving the strain upon relief funds, can never be over-estimated.

Construction of over 50 buildings in Bogota, Colombia, was held up for several days recently by a building trades strike.

MRS. A. J. SCHWARTZ

So you can be sure her experience is true, Mrs. Schwartz, 685 Samuelson St., Galt, Ont., tells in an affidavit made before a lawyer, how Fruit-a-tives stopped her headaches. Mrs. Schwartz states, "Backaches and headaches bothered me for a long time. I did not seem to get better at all until I used Fruit-a-tives. Then my headaches and backaches came less and less until in a few weeks they had disappeared entirely. In fact Fruit-a-tives made me feel like a new woman altogether."

Fruit-a-tives are the discovery of a prominent Canadian physician. Scientifically prepared—Fruit-a-tives are natural, containing extracts of apples, oranges, figs and prunes, combined with certain herbs and medicinal ingredients in such a way as to give best results. If the "criticism" of God's Holy Word by the Anglican clergy is not more accurate than their criticism of the written request of Catholic ratepayers to get their money back, contained in the Toronto Anglican Synodical prayer to be taken back to the Church whence they sprang, we poor Protestants will all be in hell before the year is out.

GERMAN NUN IS GIVEN 5 YEARS

Also Fined 140,000 Marks For Violating Foreign Exchange Restrictions.

50 OTHERS TO FACE TRIAL.

BERLIN, May 17. (AP).—Sister Werners, secretary of the Vincentine Order of Catholic Nuns at Cologne, to-day was sentenced to five years in prison for violating of Germany's rigid exchange restrictions.

Judge Herman Jordan, presiding, also fined the nun 140,000 marks and decreed that she lose citizenship rights during the next five years. If she cannot pay the fine, she must spend an additional 14 months in prison.

To circumvent The Reich for the 250,000 marks she admitted smuggling out of the country, an equal amount will be collected from the Vincenz Order.

Sister Werners, first of more than 50 nuns to face trial for exchange violations, told the court she was familiar with the laws governing foreign exchange.

Smuggling was easy for her, however, she explained, since no one searched her when she crossed the frontier.

The funds she smuggled out allegedly went first to the order's branch in Belgium and thence to the Netherlands where they were changed into florins. One-third was used to amortize an American loan said to have been secured at St. Louis, Mo., the state attorney charged, while he other two-thirds were invested.

Practice Of Cobourg Lawyer Is Suspended

TORONTO, May 17.—(CP).—William John McCallum of Toronto is struck from the roll of baristers and solicitors of Ontario, and Thomas Field Hall, of Cobourg, is suspended from practice as a barrister and solicitor for six months from May 16, by orders that D'Arcy Hinds, Registrar of the Supreme Court of Ontario, has made upon the application of the benchers of the Law Society of Upper Canada.

The official announcement of the Law Society says its discipline committee found McCallum and Hall were guilty of professional misconduct and conduct unbecoming a barister and solicitor.

Nearly 3500 truck loads of strawberries will be sent from Hampshire, England, to market this year.

Obituary

MRS. MARY LOWRIE

Mrs. Mary W. Y. Lowrie, wife of John Lowrie and a former resident of Peterborough, died of a heart ailment at her home in Thompsonville, Conn., on April 23. Although she had been failing for some time, her last illness was only one week.

She was born in Glasgow, Scotland, 62 years ago, and went to Thompsonville twelve years ago from Peterborough. She was a member of the First Presbytrian Church there and of Ionic Chapter, O.E.S., and was well-known in the community. Besides her husband she leaves a son, John Lowrie, Jr., of Newburgh, N.Y., and two daughters, Miss Jean Lowrie and Mrs. Harry Lear, both in Thompsonville.

Interment was made in the Enfield Street Cemetery at Thompsonville.

MRS. ELLEN WYATT

Ellen Jane Wyatt, daughter of one of Peterborough's earliest established families and relict of the late Joseph L. Wyatt, succumbed to a long illness at her home, 490 Driscoll Terrace, early this morning. She was 73 years of age.

Mrs. Wyatt was born in the Driscoll Terrace residence next door to her late home, and spent her entire life in this city. She was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Storey. During the greater period of her life, she was an active member of St. Luke's Anglican Church.

Six sons and two daughters survive. They are Howard, Gordon and D'Eyncourt, of this city, Harry of Windsor, Edmund of Moose Jaw, Wilbert of New York City, and Mrs. P. Mowry and Mrs. William Wiltshire of Peterborough.

The funeral will be held Monday at 2 p.m. from the late residence to Little Lake Cemetery, Rev. G. J. Bousefield officiating.

PATRICK CAHILL

Many years a resident of Peterborough, Patrick Cahill passed away in Toronto on Saturday, May 11. The funeral was held this Wednesday with interment in St. Michael's Cemetery.

Mr. Cahill was born in Ireland and came to Canada when a young man. For thirty years he was employed in the Canadian General Electric Company here and removed to Toronto five years ago. He was 75 years of age.

His wife predeceased him twenty-five years ago. Surviving are two daughters, Hilda and Marcella in Buffalo, and two sons, John of this city, and Patrick of Buffalo.

HELEN ROGER AUXILIARY MEETS IN MORTON HOME

The May meeting of the Helen Roger Auxiliary of Knox Church was held on Monday evening at the home of Miss Mary Morton, Chamberlain street. The devotional period, which was in charge of Miss Alma Gerrard, opened with the playing of quiet music, and the call to worship, followed by the singing of Hymne 262. Sentence prayers were offered by a number of members and concluded with a prayer by the president, Mrs. Howard Clegg. A solo entitled "Tell Me His Name Again" was very effectively sung by Mrs. Lewis.

A most interesting paper on the concluding chapters of the Study Book, "Builders of the Indian Church was prepared by Mrs. D. Gourlay, and was most ably read by Miss Mary Morton. A story of India was read by Mrs. Arthur Pitchford which gave a picture of the work of the United Church in Central India, which was followed by a Prayer for India read by the president, Mrs. Clegg.

The singing of Hymn 249 and Benediction closed the meeting. A social half hour followed.

New Chain Letter

HASBROUCK HEIGHTS, N.J. May 17 (C.P.).—And now its the "municipal" chain letter.

An anonymous taxpayer's proposed to the city fathers the suggestion they start a "municipal" chain letter, the proceeds from which would be used to liquidate the bonded indebtedness of the community. The suggestion called for a letter of $1 or $5 denomination to be sent to all municipalities in the country.

MOTHER'S DAY, PROGRAM THEME

Women's Missionary Meeting of George St. Holds May Meeting.

LARGE ATTENDANCE.

The regular May meeting of the W.M.S. of George Street United Church was held in the Board room yesterday afternoon with a large attendance. The President, Mrs. W. H. Morton, occupied the chair.

The theme of the program was Mother's Day and the different numbers on the program were in keeping with this thought.

Mrs. W. McMillian's group had charge of the devotional period and consisted of the Scripture lesson read by Mrs. Rowe followed by prayer by Mrs. McMillian and a reading by Miss Boyd entitled, "Mother Finds a Way". A beautiful solo, "Faith of Our Mothers" was rendered by Mrs. Renshaw accompanied by Mrs. J. E. Millyard. Mrs. W. J. Routley gave a reading "Home and Mother" followed by a much appreciated duet by Mrs. Lewis and Mrs. Girven. Mrs. E. E. Harvey gave a very interesting resume of several chapters of the study book.

The secretary's report was given by Mrs. W. J. Routly, owing to the absence of Miss E. Might and a satisfactory account of the finances by Mrs. H. Dulmage.

Mrs. H. Dulmage and Mrs. Routley were appointed as delegates from the society to form a committee for arranging for the annual congregational picnic to be held in June.

It had been previously decided to take up a collection from the groups, instead of holding the Mother and Daughter's banquet this year. The results totalled over fifty-eight dollars.

Short reports by the secretaries of different departments were submitted and the meeting closed by singing a hymn and prayer.

London will provide facilities for "family" bathing at public pools.

Be Beautiful

By GLADYS GLAD

When King Solomon, who was renowned for his great wisdom, stated that there is nothing new under the sun, he certainly knew what he was talking about. Take those new artificial fingernails that Paris is now sponsoring, for instance. Most women have the idea that they are exclusively an invention of this modern era, but take it from me, they aren't. Way back in the days of the Pharaohs, Egyptian princesses wore thin sheaths of gold over their fingernails, in order to make their finger tips more alluring. And these gold sheaths were very much like the artificial fingernails that the modern lassy sports.

As lovely Claire Trevor of cinema fame can tell you, artificial fingernails really are becoming very popular today. Claire herself possesses very beautifuly shaped nails naturally, and so she really hasn't any need for artificial ones. But she does like to wear artificial nails occasionally for evening wear, especially the burnished metal type. These nails, she claims, are too bizarre for daytime wear. But they give a very pleasing effect when worn at formal functions, for they give the finger tips a sort of "jeweled" appearance.

Artificial fingernails are now of two different types. The first type is made of some pliable composition, and is attached to each nail with a little special glue preparation that comes with the nails. A bit of soaking is all that is required to remove these nails from your own, and you may do this nightly, if you desire. These artificial nails are tinted in several pastel shades to match or harmonize with gowns, and also come in standard and more conservative shades.

The second type of artificial fingernails is more bizarre, but more perfect. These nails are made of light, thin metal, and are made from plaster casts, so that they fit the fingertips perfectly. They are held in place by tiny, invisible clasps, and are easily attached and detached. These nails can be enameled any shade you desire, and can also be had in solid silver of gold. Both mentioned types of artificial fingernails can usually be procured in any of the better class beauty shops, cosmetics shops and the bigger department stores.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

Here is a good substitute for whipped cream: Into a deep bowl drop one unbeaten egg white, half a cup powdered sugar, three-fourths granulated sugar and one cup well drained crushed pineapple. Stir with slitted spoon 20 minutes. It will look done in half that time but will stand up much better if beaten the full time. Can be used as any whipped cream can.

Half a cup of crushed peanut brittle will give a variety to a tapioca custard, if you like the flavor.

Do you know that: the juice of one lemon mixed with salt and rubbed on a garment will remove a scorch made by to hot an iron. Hold the material over steam while the mixture is on.

• • • • • • •

Make you own "sundae" by pouring maple syrup or maple flavored corn syrup over the ice cream, adding chopped nuts.

• • • • • • •

When stretching curtains that have fringe on the bottom, brush fringe with soft whisk instead of ironing. This gives a much better effect, as it does not flatten the fringe.

When measuring butter or lard for pastries, dip the cup, spoon or measuring utensil into very hot water before using. If you do this you will not have to dig the fat out; it will slip out easily.

To clean those gilt picture frames around the house which may have become grimy with the winter's soot use a mixture of half alcohol and half household ammonia. Apply this with a camel's hair brush and remove after a few minutes with clear water, also applied with a soft brush. If any water remains, shake it off.

TRY THIS FOR DESSERT: RHUBARB SHORTCAKE

Two tablespoons butter, one cup sugar, two tablespoons flour, one-half teaspoon nutmeg, dash salt, three cups diced rhubarb, one-half cup cold water. Melt butter, stir into sugar mixed with flour, nutmeg and salt. Add rhubarb and water. Turn into a well-greased casserole or baking dish. Cover with the following pastry. PASTRY—One and one-half cups flour, three teaspoons baking powder, dash salt, three tablespoons fat, one-half cup water. Sift flour, measure and sift with baking powder and salt. Work in fat with the finger tips or pastry blender. Add water to make a soft dough. Roll out on a lightly floured board. Cut in squares, place over rhubarb, allowing space between two pieces of pastry for steam to escape. Bake in a hot oven, 425 degrees Fahrenheit, from 25 to 35 minutes, until crust is browned and rhubarb tender. Turn upside down and rhubarb will serve as a sauce over the pastry.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By E. V. Shepard

SEEKING TOP SCORE

To do a player's best, both in rubber games and in duplicate contests, he must familiarise himself with the fundamental differences between the two kinds of bridge. The following hand will serve to illustrate several important points.

We saw yesterday, South can make a small slam at clubs, but no more. In rubber bridge a small slam at clubs, with safety, should satisfy the player, but in a duplicate game rubber points are not played. Each hand is a distinct contest. Match points are scored. Suppose there are seven tables in the game, with 7 different scores made by North and South. One match point is awarded a pair for each other pair's score which they exceed. Top score will be 6 points, for 6 pairs beaten. The second score will be 5 match points for 5 pairs defeated and so on. The pair making bottom score will be given 0. Total match points awarded will be 6 plus 5 plus 4 plus 3 plus 2 plus 1—21 total.

Suppose two pairs tie for top score, each will be awarded 5½ match points (the sum of 6 and 5, divided by 2.). The total match points with 7 tables always must be 21. Suppose that one pair made 6-No Trumps, another 6-Spades and that four pairs tied with 6-Clubs. The first would receive 6 points, the second would receive 5 points, the four who tied would receive 2½ points, while the seventh pair would receive 0. The today match points awarded would total 21.

South can make 6-odd at no trumps, against any opening lead. There are 4 spade tricks, 1 heart trick, 1 diamond trick and 6 club tricks just playing top cards. He can pick up his twelfth trick by giving opponents a single heart or a single diamond trick, and thereby win 2 tricks in the red suit chosen.

North can make 6-Spades against an opening lead of spades, clubs or diamonds, but an opening heart lead probably will defeat the contract a single trick, by giving the defenders a trump and a heart trick. The table below shows what scores a 7-table game might yield.

Table 1, bid and make 6-No Trumps, scoring 6 match points.

Table 2, bid and make 6-Spades, scoring 5 match points.

Table 3, bid and make 6-Clubs, scoring 3 match points.

Table 4, bid and make 6-Clubs, scoring 2 match points.

Table 5, bid and make 6-Clubs, scoring 2 match points.

Table 6, bid and make 5-Clubs, scoring 1 match point.

Table 7, go down on 6-Spades, scoring 0 match point.

Totals, 21.

Menu Hints

Ham and Beet Greens With Eggs
Orange Salad
Layer Cookies Tea

Here is an economical menu for you. The last of your ham is used up, and combined with greens. You might try it with other kinds of greens if you cannot get beet greens this early in the season. The layer cookie is new to me and interesting.

Today's Recipes

Ham and Beet Greens With Eggs —Three cups left-over ham, chopped; three and one-half cups cooked beet greens, one cup cooked chopped potatoes, one-half green pepper, minced; one-half onion, minced; two tablespoons ham drippings, one-half cup diced celery, one-fourth teaspoon pepper, one-half teaspoon salt, seven eggs. Melt the drippings and saute the green pepper, onion and celery. Mix with the chopped ham, beet greens and potatoes, add seasonings. Add a little hot water is too dry. Shape into individual patties, about one inch thick. Saute in dripping until thoroughly heated and slightly browned. Serve with poached egg on each patty.

Layer Cookies—Three cups flour, two teaspoons baking powder, one-half cup sugar. Sift the above ingredients twice. Divide in half. To one-half add one cup vegetable shortening or lard. Blend well. To the other half add two egg yolks, mix and add enough water to make a soft dough that is not sticky. Place first mixture on second on a well-floured board. Pat out a little, fold over. Do this four times. Roll out about one-fourth inch thick. Beat the two egg whites until stiff. Spread on rolled dough. Sprinkle with sugar and ground nuts mixed together. Cut into diamonds or squares. Bake in a slow oven 325 degrees, till light brown.

Important Trifles

Colored linens frequently have lint on them when ironed. To prevent this wash well by themselves and rinse through through three waters. Roll in Turkish towel for an hour and a half; straighten out and dry. Press on wrong side with moderately warm iron. This advice is especially good for colored handkerchiefs.

To remove fresh petrolatum stains, sponge with turpentine. If stains are old, rub with turpentine and roll for one hour, then sponge with more turpentine. Boiling water "sets" the stain.

CHEAP SOAP-CHIPS WASTE YOUR MONEY

SHORT ON REAL SOAP— — HARD RUBBING, HARSH ALKALIES RUIN CLOTHES

LOOK—CAREFULLY—AT THE CLOTHES in your wash. Is the fresh white turning gray? Are colors growing faded, washed-out? Do collars and cuffs show the wear of hard rubbing? It's a warning—cheap chips don't do a real washing job!

Why not? . . . Because there's not enough real soap in cheaply made soap-chips. Flat, weak suds won't dissolve dirt. You have to rub . . . and RUB. You wear the threads thin. Threads break . . . and the material cracks out!

Cheap chips ruin clothes

And strong bleaching alkalies fade the color . . . weaken the material. Clothes go to the rag-bag long before their time! Honest wear-on-the-back won't ruin clothes nearly so quickly as harsh washing with cheap chips.

Is it wise to risk all your costly washables to cheap soap-chips? Thousands of women answer "No." Experience teaches that the few pennies saved on soap can't equal the dollars and dollars wasted in ruined clothes!

Chipso keeps clothes new

Try Chipso—and you'll never give up Chipso's washing-ease! You'll never give up the clear, bright colors—the snowy-white of your Chipso-washed clothes.

Chipso is soapier. Its rich suds soak dirt loose in 15 minutes—no hard rubbing. And Chipso has no harsh bleaching effect. Clothes washed regularly with Chipso wear months longer.

A few weeks' washing with cheap soap-chips and suddenly—your clothes seem prepared to split and tear! It's the work of strong bleaching alkalies—the wear of hard rubbing! What a difference good, safe Chipso makes—not only in the wear of your clothes, but in their looks. For Chipso protects the new life of the material—keeps colors fresh. Chipso is safe for even your finest things.

Consider these 3 POINTS for REAL ECONOMY

1. Chipso is SOAPIER . . . gives wonderful suds for loosening dirt . . . goes farther.
2. Chipso is made of SOUND A materials . . . free from lumps, dirt and bad odor.
3. Chipso SAVES CLOTHES —which are far more costly than any soap.

CHIPSO makes clothes wear longer

"We'll take Chipso's Easier Washdays and Longer-Wearing Clothes"

"Quick washing in Chipso suds keeps our colored clothes good for years," says Mrs. Rae Bryant. "My blue bedspread is three years old and not the least faded. Chipso suds get all the dirt without fading."

Whitest wash ever

"Chipso makes suds 3 inches deep in my washer—gives me the whitest wash I ever had," says Mrs. P. P. Foertsch. "Chipso-washed clothes smell sweet."

Kindness to hands shows Chipso is safer soap

"Just a little Chipso makes wonderful suds," says Mrs. W. J. Robitow. "And they get dishes clean in a jiffy. Yet Chipso does not dry my hands or make them red."

ROBERTA'S CHAT

A column conducted by a reader of The Examiner for her other reader friends. Address all mail to Roberta in care of The Examiner.

"I'm sick of gruel, and the dietetics,
I'm sick of pills, and sicker of emetics,
I'm sick of pulse's tardiness or quickness,
I'm sick of blood, its thinness or its thickness,
In short within a word
I'm sick of sickness."
—Hood.

Dear Friend:

Have you ever been like the verse above? How long and tedious the days can be, how wearisome the nights. Many times I've agreed with the writer of the song, who said "Oh Lord you made the night too long."

Too sick to eat, to read or talk, how the hours, especially at night, crawl by on leaden feet.

The feeling of helplessness, of not being able to do anything but bear it, makes it worse. The four bare walls of a hospital room, of having everything done for me, when I wanted to do it myself. Of steady, insistent pain, and the nauseating feeling at the slightest movement, can you wonder that I hate sickness?

The temperatures, the bathing, the medicines, the hypos, even the thought of them makes me shiver, because I've endured them so often.

One thing I liked was the ether or chloroform, for then it meant oblivion for a time.

But I paid even for that, as there was the dreadful returning sickness to put up with afterward. The trying to reasure others that I was fine, when I felt like death.

The long periods of loneliness, and the depression, which accompanied it.

The siren of the ambulance splitting the night in two, the swift rustling of the nurses uniform, the pacing of feet in the corridor, the whispered conversation, and me lying there taking no part in it all, when I am so active when well.

Somewhere the cry of a woman in pain, and the fretful wailing of a baby.

The high narrow hospital beds, and the feeling, that, if you weren't careful, you would go over the side.

The impersonal talk of the nurses, and the heaven-sent goodness of the one who nursed me, for I've had such lovely nurses, in all seven hospitals I've been in.

In one of them we had a quartet, who sang and played hymns for half an hour, and it was beautiful. Then another group of six took it up, amateur singers and players, and it was ghastly. On and on they sang and played for 2 mortal hours, till most of us were at the shrieking point, not knowing we could have stopped it with a word.

They tell me, it isn't so lovely in the wards, as you can talk to the other patients, but I, of course, always had to be so blessed sick, that I had to have a private room.

Did I any private? I take it back, because you never knew when that door would open. If you thought the steps were coming your way, they went on. If you felt sure they were going on, in they came.

I do not like cut flowers now, as I've seen too many of them die, with the odor of fading, either one

What I remember most, was the gentle kindness of my doctors, the courtesy, and understanding of them. They knew I hated bed, and did not keep me one day longer there, than was necessary. Yet I've spent a good part of my life on a hospital bed.

The way my doctors tried to mistake the pain, the courage they instilled in me, has left a high respect for them in my memory.

If any one of you think that a hospital is a good place for a rest, just try it for one week.

Would you like to hear more about funny things that happen there? Let me know.

Your friend,
Roberta.

LAW IS RULED OUT.

PHILADELPHIA, May 17.—(AP).—Mr. and Mrs. William Miller escaped a ducking at the hands of the law because they were born 100 years too late.

Arrested under a 150-year-old statute on complaint of 40 neighbors that they were "profound nuisances and common cards," the couple faced immersion from a "ducking stool."

But Judge Howard A. Davis ruled the law no longer in effect.

CHAMPION—South African Golf Champion Sidney Brews and Mrs. Brews arrive in New York. He will try American courses.

85,000 Fans Will See Battle

Expected $100,000 Will be Taken in at Gates for Cleveland Game.

ADVANCE HITS $50,000

MORE THAN 85,000 people will in all probability establish a new record for baseball crowds, July 8, when picked teams of National and American league all-stars play in Cleveland's stadium on the lake front. They will pay approximately $100,000, nearly all of which will go to the ball players themselves, being placed in the treasury of their national benefit association. Expenses will be light, according to Billy Evans, former American League umpire, now general manager of the Cleveland Indians, who is supervising the ticket sale. The city of Cleveland is to receive $1 as rental for the stadium.

Before May 10 with the game nearly two months away, advance sale of tickets has reached $50,000, indicating tremendous interest in the game. Capacity of the stadium is 2,000, but at the rate of advance sales, it was indicated thousands would have to take standing room only. Last year's gate for the game, which was played at New York's Polo Grounds, was $32,000, with attendance of 48,-363 persons. The game at Cleveland is the third all-star game between players of the two major leagues, the American leaguers winning the first two contests. Last year's margin was 9 to 7, the American leaguers outhitting the Nationals 14 to 8. A six-run inning against Warneke and Mungo spelled defeat for the Nationals.

MANAGERS this year will be Frankie Frisch of the world champion St. Louis Cardinals, and Mickey Cochrane of the Tigers. It is established as precedent for leaders of the pennant winners of the previous season to head the all-star outfits. Babe Ruth probably will appear this year for the last time in the all-star game. In the last year's game he scored a run but went hitless in two times at bat. Many of last year's players will get the call again.

Bird Favors Listaro To Win King's Plate

LEAFS YIELD TOP POSITION TO THE BEARS

Leafs Drop 5-4 Decision to Baltimore Birds Through Errors.

NEWARK WINS 6-4.

(By The Associated Press).

Loose handling of the ball abruptly terminated Toronto's tenure of the leadership in the International League.

Largely as the result of four errors they were back in second place to-day, yielding the top position to the Newark Bears.

The Leafs dropped a 5 to 4 decision to the Baltimore Orioles. Three errors in the first inning paved the way for two Baltimore runs, and Catcher Johnny Peacock dropped the ball when he had Spencer cut off at the plate in the last frame, and that error gave the Birds their winning margin.

Trailing 5 to 2 in the last half of the ninth, Toronto got on to Sheriff Fred Blake's previously tight delivery and raked him for four hits and two runs before he yielded the mound to Harry Gumbert. With the bases loaded, Gumbert retired Jimmy Shevlin for the final out and saved the game for his side.

Newark Wins 6-4.

Just as the Leafs lost the lead owing to errors, the Bears gained it due to faulty manipulating of the ball by the Montreal Royals. The Bears won 6 to 4 in 10 innings.

Nolen Richardson rapped a single to produce the winning run, and Chad Kimsey walked in the extra tally. The Royals gave away three runs on errors in the early innings. The win was not without expense for Newark for the Bears' starting pitcher, Ted Kleinhans, was forced to retire in the ninth with a torn leg muscle.

First In Four Games.

The Albany Senators won their first victory in four games at the expense of the Rochester Red Wings whose two-run rally in the ninth fell one tally short of tying the count as they lost 8 to 7. Prather and Hafey of Albany drove for the circuit, while Gene Moore of the Red Wings also belted a homer.

Buffalo and Syracuse were idle.

TIGERS BEAT SENATORS.

In the American League, where two games were carded, the Yankees took a firmer hold on fourth by handing the second-pace Indians their first shutout of the season 10-0 and the Tigers advanced to a fifth-place tie with Washington by trimming the Senators 7-2.

Manager Joe McCarthy, recovering from an influenza attack which forced him to miss the Yanks' western tour, got back on the bench in time to see Vito Tamulis, rookie southpaw, scatter seven hits nicely to administer the whitewashing and the New Yorkers land on Willis Hudlin and two successors with a concentrated 15-hit attack.

Six Washington errors played the big part in the Senators' downfall as the Tigers came through with timely blows while Tommy Bridges pitched a six-hit game and had a shutout up to the final inning. Only the last two Detroit runs were scored without the aid of Senator misplays.

McLAUGHLIN'S GELDING CAN HOLD HER OWN WITH THE BEST

Bird Believes Most of Competition Will Come From Epicurus and Eileen D.

HATCH CHARGES READY.

(By D. E. Burritt, Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

TORONTO, May 17 (C.P.).—Anyone who follows the ways of thoroughbreds in Ontario will tell you the 76th running of the King's Plate at Woodbine Park on Saturday afternoon is going to be a wide-open affair even though R. S. McLaughlin's three-year-old Listaro already ranks as heavy favorite.

But to take the opinion of Tom Bird whose booming voice has been calling to railbirds the results of workouts by King's Plate candidates since about 1894, there will be only one place to place your money. And that's right on the nose of McLaughlin's temperamental gelding.

Bird, who has been clocking candidates for more than 40 years, admits there's going to be some competition for Listaro, but he thinks most of that will come from his stablemates, Epicurus and Eileen D. the brown filly who has held her own with the best company during the early trials.

Hatch Charges Ready.

Mystery surrounding the performances of Harry Hatch's Chickpen and Donstick has aroused keen interest in this pair of fillies, and rumors had it that they covered the mile and a furlong plate distance in 1.53, a full second and 1-5 better than the record established by McLaughlin's Horometer last spring. But there was no confirmation of the time. Trainer Billy Bringloe had nothing to say other than his charges were ready.

Eileen D. raced over the route in a full second less than Listaro during the trials, and the gelding so far has nothing impressive behind him other than his record as a two-year-old. But Trainer Harry Giddings with his usual reticence says: "The best way to find out is watch them in the race."

Gains Heavy Support.

A maiden, Tax Free, from the stable of W. H. Wright of Barrie, also has gained heavy support after the bay clipped off the nine furlongs in 1.56 3E-5 without being pressed. Tax Free has never had a start before.

Despite the usual belief that fillies are never at their best in the spring, Gay Sympathy from the stable of Edward Seagram is one of the high choice, along with her stablemate, Sally Fuller.

Papalico, T. E. Cochneur's five-year-old, making its third effort in the classic, will carry top weight of 126 pounds.

WINS PAYNE STAKES

ZACHARY BESTS WAITE HOYT IN PITCHING DUEL

2-0 Victory Over Pirates Places Dodgers One Game Behind Giants.

ONE NATIONAL GAME.

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

Look down the list of Brooklyn pitchers and among the most dependable of the crew you'll find Jonathan Thompson Zachary, who has been known as 'Old' Tom for so long some fans can hardly believe he ever was a youngster.

Making his first appearance in the majors with the Athletics back in 1918, Zachary has played with six clubs in the two circuits, pitched in three world series and been cast adrift so often he's quite accustomed to having his name on the waiver list. The Yankees cut him loose back in 1930 and he wound up in the National League at Boston. The Braves shunted him to Brooklyn last season and after winning five games and losing six for the Dodgers, he's started the 1935 campaign with a record that plenty of youngsters might envy.

Blanks Pirates 2-0

In his last three appearances, 'Old' Tom has allowed just two runs in 31 innings. He dropped a 1-0 decision to Pittsburgh and Cy Blanton on a home run, trimmed the Reds 6-1 and finally shut out the Pirates yesterday, 2-0 in a 13-inning mound duel with Waite Hoyt, who has an equally long record.

Hoyt apparently had the better of the argument up to the last inning of the overtime duel that opened the Bucs' home stand against the east. He escaped serious trouble while Zachary had to pitch his way out of a first-inning jam and allowed only nine hits over the long route.

The triumph in the only game on the National League schedule left the Dodgers just one game behind the league-leading New York Giants.

GOLF FACTS NOT THEORIES!
By ALEX J. MORRISON

C. E. Burton of Ansonia, Conn., writes, asking about short approaches.

I saw a number of players recently struggling with these shots. They were not making sufficient allowances for the roughness of the turf around the greens at this time of the year. After the green-keepers have rolled the ground in front of the putting surface you'll not have so much trouble getting your ball to stop near the hole.

If it's your swing that you're having trouble with, I'd suggest that you take a bunch of practice balls and hit them toward a target. Use about the same swing that you would with your long putts.

Take the clubhead back along the ground and let it swing right through the ball without lifting your head.

Knox Seniors Defeat Mark St. 18-5 While All Saints Juniors Win From Trinity 26-19—Muray St. Juveniles Down St. Lukes 15-9.

Three games were played last night, all being won by lopsided scores. Knox Seniors beat Mark Street, 18-5 at King Edward School. All Saints Juniors won from Trinity, 26-19 and Murray Street Juveniles defeated St. Luke's 15-9. The junior game was at Queen Mary School, with the Juvenile tussle played at Nicholls Oval.

All Saints' Bantams pulled a strange one. Leading their section they failed to field a full team against Park street and defaulted the game and lead in that group to the latter team.

Knox Seniors 18, Mark Street 5

Mark Street, last year's champions, seem to have fallen on evil days. Knox climbed to the top of the senior heap by beating them 18-5. The Knox team played nice ball behind the effective pitching of A. Wedlock, and batted the offerings of A. and M. Hunter hard. Archibald, Allen, Smythe and Morrison led the assault. M. Hunter and Curry were the best hitters of the East City crew, with Ferguson getting himself four walks. Masters and Archibald played well defensively for Knox with M. Hunter fielding well and Curry making several circus catches for Mark Street. The line-ups:

Mark Street—Parsons, ss; Ferguson, c; M. Hunter, 1b, p; Curry, rf; Bradly, 3b; Dawson, lf; R. Hunter, p, 1b; Sager, 2b; G. Hunter, lf.

Knox—A. Wedlock, p; Morrison, 2b; Archibald, ss; McDonald, cf; Allen, 3b; Smythe, rf; Masters, c; W. Wedlock, 1b; Charlton, lf.

Mark Street ... 120 101 0— 5
Knox ..... 035 140 x—18

Umpires: G. Palmer, D. Lewis.

All Saints Junior 26, Trinity 19

The game started badly for Trinity, the Anglicans getting 18 runs in the first two innings off E. Huffman, they had less luck against Freeman. Trinity also were hitting the pill and made a good large score off Seabrooke and Webb. Seabrook, Beauclerc and Rusaw led the hitters for All Saints, with Webb and Smith fielding well. Gates, Edmondson and Cranfield were Trinitys' main stickers, with the whole team showing improved fielding. The lineups:

INDIANS HAVE NO FEARS FOR CHICAGO SOX

Johnson Believes Pennant Race Will Not Really Start Until Mid-summer.

TIGERS THE TEAM TO BEAT.

(By Edward J. Neil).

NEW YORK, May 17 (A.P.). — Walter Johnson, the big train of other days, now chugging philosophically in the Cleveland dug-out, has a strange and interesting picture of the American League race in his mind.

"It looks like we're all going to fool around about two-thirds of the season without it meaning a thing," he said. "Then in the last third we'll all really start playing for the pennant."

Big Barney brought his Cleveland Indians into town solidly entrenched in second place and not much disturbed over the fact that the Chicago White Sox, to the surprise of all, have set all the early pace.

"They just don't figure to last," said Barney, "though I'm pulling for them to stay right up there. For one thing, I like Jimmy Dykes and, for another, the more he beats good clubs, the less we have to beat them."

"We beat 'em soundly the one try we had at 'em.

"They tell me Silent John Whitehead is a real pitcher, and will stand up all year, but I'm doubtful of Ray Radcliff and George Washington in the outfield. They hit.

"And Jack Hayes hitting up around .600. A good ball player, yes, but not that good."

The White Sox definitely don't worry the old philosopher. On the other hand, Mickey Cochrane's Tigers do.

"They're starting to come," he said. "They're the team we've all got to beat in the end."

Wins Long Motor-Boat Race In 8th Try

Competing for the eighth time in the annual Albany-to-New York outboard motor-boat marathon, Fred Jacoby, Jr., finished in front at last. The 35-year-old scenic artist drove his craft over the 129.75 miles of water in 3.26.27, considerably slower than the winning time last year. Although 76 pilots faced the starting gun only 17 finished, rough water adverse winds and a strong upstream tide taking their toll. Jacoby is shown as he finished (ABOVE), along with a view of the start.

SPORTS DAY BY DAY

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two.

Central School Grounds holds the limelight of local sportdom to-night (Friday) as the site where Fashion-Craft and Lillico's Motormen tangle in the opening game of the Men's City Softball League. J. J. Duffus, R. M. Glover, and W. H. Taylor will take part in the opening ceremonies, while the managers of the opposing squads have their respective teams in fit form and raring to go. Our apologies to the readers of this column who hiked up to the school grounds in mistake last night. Any person with an idle calendar kicking around (one with days of the week marked on it) please send it to us.

According to the sports columnist of the Belleville Intelligencer the Napanee-Gilberds-Petes exhibition fixtures before the opening of the regular C.O.B.I. schedule are all off. This writer was in Napanee recently and quizzed the officials, who said spring training games with the Petes insofar as they are concerned, were over. "A couple of seasons ago, the Peterborough gang outlegged us to their town for a pre-season game when we were not in shape. They gave us a real lambasting, so naturally we have been observing that old adage, 'Once bit twice shy' ever since," stated Mr. Gatow.

• • • • • • •

The Belleville writer goes on to speak high words of praise for the Peterborough and Kingston managers for their foresight in arranging exhibition games with outside teams, and almost in the same breath takes some healthy verbal cuts at the Quinte club for their failure to do this. In that we must agree with him, as one exhibition tussle with outside talent is worth a week of daily practising.

Although the Kingston Ponies lost to Smith's Falls in their appearance this season before the home fans, some of the Limestone players did more than their share of work in order to gain a victory. The work of Mickey Compeau at shortstop was outstanding. He roamed all over the field to make the plays and some of them bordered on the sensational. One of the greatest plays of the game, however, was made by Stan Scrutton, who relieved Webber in right field in the ninth and proceeded to make a circus catch in robbing McCrum of a sure three-bagger.

This city is to have a junior entry in the minor lakeshore league under the managership of Herbie Ralph and sponsored by the local Rotary Club. The team will be known as the Rotarians and expect to open their season here on Saturday, May 25, with either Oshawa or Cobourg. This league is one of the strongest in the Province, and the Petes are quite confident of making a good showing against better than average competition. Continuing with minor ball, the following is the roster for the East City Maple Leafs: Catchers Corkery and McCormick; pitchers, Armstrong, Clark, and O'Connor; 1b, Hines; 2b, Maher; 3b, Prete; ss, Rochnetta; rf, Heffernan; lf, Deyne; cf, O'Connor; subs., Ralph, O'Connell, Spencer.

Orillia Power Plant To Be Opened July 1

ORILLIA, May 17. (CP).—Formal opening of Orillia's new power plant at Minden is expected to take place July 1, officials stated yesterday. The dam is practically completed. The foundation of the power house has been laid, and the work of pouring the walls is now under way. The Dominion Construction Corporation will probably have its work completed within the time limit, which originally was May 31, but which has been extended for two weeks.

Work on the pole line is well advanced, and H. Coswell gives assurance that the line will be ready to carry current as soon as the plant is ready to deliver it.

Every effort will be made to hold the official opening on July 1, as F. Gover, Secretary-treasurer of the Commission, will leave for England shortly after this date.

PREDICTS ROWE AS TORY LEADER

Chosen as Conservative Candidate to Contest Dufferin-Simcoe.

FEARLESS LEADER.

WINGHAM, May 17.—Earl Rowe, M.P. for North Dufferin and Simcoe, would be leader of the Ontario Conservative Party within a year, George Spotion, M.P., told the North Huron nominating convention yesterday.

Unanimously chosen to contest this riding for the Conservative Party in the Federal election, Mr. Spotion spoke in high praise of Mr. Rowe, who was a supporting speaker at the convention. He accepted the nomination and promised to see that every person in the riding over 21 years of age got a vote.

Describing Prime Minister Bennett as a fearless leader, Mr. Spotion said: "It has been said that he is a Mussolini, an autocrat. I say he is not, that he is a boss—and Heaven help any business without a boss, for this is a time when we need strong leadership." Canada under Bennett, he said, was leading the world out of depression.

Loves Her Dog Better Than Daring Aviator

MADRID, May 17 (A.P.).—Juan Ignacio Pombo, youthful Spanish aviator flying to Mexico by stages to greet his childhood sweetheart, was reported from Ifni, Morocco, today to have taken off for Cape Juby, Rio de Oro.

Sandstorms and heavy winds forced the 21-year-old flier to halt at Ifni yesterday while he was en route from Seville to Bathurst, Gambia, on the first lap of his romantic adventure.

Elena Rivero, Pombo's childhood friend, who he said he hopes to make his bride when he reached the Mexican capital, denied they were engaged, and said she had even refused his request he be permitted to carry he. little dog, Pipo, with him as a mascot.

"Why, that is impossible. I love that dog better than you," she said she told Pombo.

HAMILTON, Ont., May 17.—(CP).—Mayor Wilton is receiving as many as 50 letters a day in response to his announcement he would give a prize of $10 to the citizen making the best suggestion on how to run the city. FUTURE DEPENDS ON BAMBINO'S SHOWING DURING WESTERN TRIP

Ruth Not Through

BOSTON, May 17.—(AP).—Judge Emil Fuchs, president of Boston Braves, confronted yesterday with published reports Babe Ruth, former home run king, would quit major league baseball soon, said he thought "everything hinges on the western trip." He said he would hate to think of Ruth leaving the game when "low in temperament."

Judge Fuchs termed Ruth "a person of moods" and added he believed the Bambino would finish the year if he returned to his old form on the current western swing around the circuit.

Ruth May Join Voluntary Retired List Unless Cold Gets Better.

TWO HOMERS TO DATE.

(By Bob Cavagnaro.)

NEW YORK, May 17 (A.P.). — Babe Ruth's future in baseball took the shape of a huge question mark again to-day.

In one breath the big fellow, now 41 years old, somewhat angrily denied published reports that he was "all washed up," and intended to quit as a player on completion of the Boston Braves' swing through the West, starting to-day in St. Louis.

Then he lent credence to the report by saying he might put himself on the voluntary retired list soon if he were unable to shake off a cold which he said had been cramping his style.

"There's not a word of truth in the New York story," Ruth roared as he checked in a St. Louis hotel. "I will say, however, that I have not been myself by a whole lot so far this spring and, unless I am able to shake the present cold that has severely handicapped me for several weeks, there is a possibility I will ask to be put on the voluntary retired list."

The reports and Ruth's admission that he may retire caused no eyebrow lifting, however, on the part of experts and Emil Fuchs, president of the Braves.

Since the start of the season, the Babe has slowed up to a walk in the field. He has taken part in 15 of the Redskins' 20 games, and has only two home runs to his credit, as part of an embarrassingly low batting average. National League twirlers are whispering that the erstwhile big slugger can't hit a low ball effectively any more.

President Fuchs believes Ruth's future depends on the Bambino's showing on the Western trip.

BRITAIN PLANS OWN OIL FIELDS

Develop Oil in Her Own Realm is Latest Plan of Great Britain.

TO ISSUE LICENSES.

LONDON, May 17.—(AP)—Great Britain announced plans to develop oil fields in her own realm with the hope of freeing herself from dependence upon American and Russian sources for the supplies she needs.

The project envisages a widespread oil prospecting campaign to be set in motion June 17 when the Mines Department starts issuing licenses.

According to the plans, Great Britain will be mapped out into 'oil areas,' and licenses issued for plots of from eight to 200 square miles for fees ranging from $20 (approximately $95) up.

Both British and foreign individuals and companies will be eligible to receive licenses but whatever oil is found must be sold in Great Britain until the home market reaches its consumption limit.

Many experts believe great untapped oil lakes lie beneath Great Britain's terrain.

REMANDED FOR TRIAL

TORONTO, May 17.—(CP).—George and Robert Prince, arrested at Saint John, N.B., appeared before Judge Daniel O'Connell yesterday on charge involving the hijacking of a tobacco-laden truck on the Kingston highway near Napanee last October.

The brothers pleaded guilty to charges of receiving and retaining stolen good but pleaded not guilty to charges of armed robbery and kidnapping the driver.

They elected trial by jury and were remanded until the next Assizes.

GYPSY GIRL

THE STORY OF AN IMPASSIONED ROMANCE

CHAPTER 28

Stewart did not have time to answer. Consuelo was caught up in the mad excitement, for the crowd had sighted her. As she went down the alley it was all the police could do to keep the people back from her. The girl shouted words of gratitude to them. Her cheeks were flushed and her eyes were shining with happiness, but there was a wistfulness under the happiness that none of her own were here to see her this night, no welcome word of Romany praise to come to her, no gypsy shout of admiration—no gypsy man to take her in his strong arms and kiss her lips—no gypsy man— And she walked like another person. Her feet stepped lightly, for there was no sound of clinking bracelets or the tinkling of bangles or the ring of anklets making tell-tale music while she walked.

She paused before she got into the limousine and raised her arms to them.

"My friends, my white friends, I thank you— ' There were tears trembling on her eyelashes.

The night was like a dream. The reception and supper had an unreal touch as if to-morrow she would awake and be back in the hotel still thinking of the high hill as a thing a long way off.

There were times during the evening when she held tight to Doug's hand and the reassuring pressure of his fingers was good. This first party given in her honor was a bit terrifying; this first night of triumph a bit appalling. Never in her wildest imaginings had she pictured this kind of success—always it had been a vague, elusive thing where she stood alone in the marble palace.

"Gypsy girl, you are not with us. Are you thinking of the gypsy camp and that man you did not marry? ' Stewart asked.

"No—no—I am not thinking of the gypsy camp. Tell me, white man, am I still a gypsy? '

He caught her hands.

"To me, you're still gypsy girl—to New York you're going to be the Gypsy Dancer of Broadway. Will that make any difference to you? '

"Still a gypsy—still a gypsy." She repeated the words in Romany and the sound was good on her lips. "With all of these white clothes on I have been feeling timid like a gorgio and not like the Gypsy Consuelo."

"You're beautiful, do you know that? '

"I am good enough for you now? '

"Yes, a thousand times, yes. Gypsy girl, I'm mad about you. You're the loveliest thing I've ever seen."

"You have left me alone like a dog—"

"That will be different now."

"How different? Have my white clothes made you change your mind? Do not forget that inside I am the same." She put her hand over her heart. "This has not changed. It is gypsy blood that beats in my heart and no other."

"I like that gypsy blood. I drink to your love for me, gypsy girl. Drink with me."

She fingered the glass before her.

"You are very sure of yourself, aren't you, my friend? ' She did not give him time to answer. "I will drink with you, yes, but this that you call hard liquor is not as strong as the beer we have in the camp. The champagne you drink is not as sparkling as the water that flows in the creeks. Tell me, my white friend, is all that the gorgio has to offer me less than that which I have had? '

"Is to-night less? ' His voice was slightly irritated. "The people in the little country towns you've danced in could not compare with this audience that watched you to-night. There was the best of New York there—beauty, brains, and wealth—what more could you ask? '

"Now you are lying! They must be poorer than my country friends you speak of so lightly. These dogs! To-night I stood on the stage bowing to them and not one, not one silver dollar rolled to my feet! '

He laughed and called her his innocent darling. He explained that in New York they did nothing so crude as to throw money on the stage; that silver dollars would come rolling from Goldberg; that to-morrow she would be given a new contract and that it would mean hundreds of dollars—more than she had ever had.

She was still scornful.

"Now again you are wrong. Silver dollars! I have not seen more than a handful. Your money do you not hold in your hands but carry on a piece of paper which you write something on. I have seen Douglas do it—or I have seen him sign things in the stores—but, money, no! In the gypsy camp a dollar was a dollar and a piece of gold a piece of gold and that was what it would buy. That Goldberg said he was giving me a hundred dollars a week while I have been here, but he is a fat liar—I have not held more than five dollars in my hand at any time. When I had finished dancing at a country fair I was rich. Why, my hands could not hold the money and the pocket in my skirt hung heavy with silver coins." She paused and raised her eyes to his. "When Marcu had a gift for me he did not send Voda. Or when the Dummy gave me the shawl he did not have Petru put it about my shoulders. You are a stranger to me, white man."

"I will be a stranger no longer."

The gypsy camp moved south. Outwardly there was no change, but inwardly some part of its heart had been torn away. They remembered that her laugh had been the loudest; that her song had been the sweetest; that her temper had been the hottest; her lips the reddest; and her dancing—well, no gypsy could ever equal the whirl of her body and the click of her fingers and the beat of her feet on the ground. They recounted the times she had danced, and with awe in their eyes, told again and again how they had left the fighting men to watch her nimble feet and could not say why it was that she had drawn them so.

Of the deserted bridegroom and the empty wedding tent they did not speak, only shook their heads dumbly and could not understand. Their hearts were warm for Marcu, but they did not offer words of sympathy, for Marcu's black eyes were dangerous and he carried his knife lightly in his belt. Once little Gita had seen him standing alone in the night and he was beating his chest with his fists and the tears were streaming down his cheeks. Gita, frightened, ran away quickly, for it is evil to see a man unmasked in his passion. The gypsies shook their heads and whispered that Consuelo had better not come back, that surely he would kill her; that only his fingers upon her throat crushing out her life could wipe away this insult that she had flung upon him.

But the Dummy could smile when he thought of her and his thoughts lived with her, for now he was painting the side of the van with a laughing dancing girl. When he had finished it was almost as if a spectre walked in the camp, so much like the girl was this that he had painted. Hours he spent in gazing at his work and strange to say he was content. There was no wife of Marcu to haunt him, only the gay figure he had painted. Always she would look down on him from the side of the van, for he vowed to himself to keep the paint alive as was the image of the girl in his heart.

He longed for her, missed the hours they had spent together. It was as if a part of his life had been taken away. But deep within him he knew one thing and so he was content. It mattered little where she had gone or where she was, she had said to him, kiss and forgive—and—she was not the wife of Marcu. So he smiled at the picture, his soul in communion with it. Dead lips, dead ears—eh, but he was content.

Each moment that he worked, and he was always busy, he worked for her, feeling her presence. There were times when he would look up, so near did she seem to him. His lips would lose the smile. The place beside him was empty, but so were Marcu's arms and the smile returned.

A rather critical state of affairs is presaged from the prevailing planetary positions on this day. While things may not be in jeopardy, yet much depends on clever management and in co-operation with the aid and friendly offices of those in place of power and prestige. These should be tactfully sought, with new contracts and employment in the offing. In private affairs be circumspect.

Those whose birthday it is are on the verge of a year in which much depends on the proper management of affairs. Especially in employment and in regard to new contracts is tact needed. In private affairs, preserve utmost restraint and discretion.

Magistrate's Court

A couple who have resided at various addresses in this city today were jointly charged in magistrate's court here with bigamy and were remanded without election or plea until Wednesday next.

The charge against Murney Martin alleges that he went through a bigamous form of marriage with Muriel Clayton of Toronto on December 10, 1932, being at that time already a married man.

The female prisoner was charged in the name of Muriel Martin, the allegation against her being that she was bigamously married to Isiah Woodcock, whom she knew to be already married, on April 25, 1931.

A further charge also alleges that she committed bigamy by marrying Murney Martin at Toronto on December 10, 1932.

A charge of vagrancy was also read over to Murney Martin. He pleaded "not guilty" and requested a remand.

SYNOD URGES UPHOLDING OF SABBATH DAY

"Sunday Observance Regarded as Convenience Rather Than as Duty."

Ven. R. C. Blagrave Speaks.

Synod Asks Legislation to Restrict Sunday Sale Gas and Oil.

TORONTO, May 17. — Stern admonitions to Christian people to observe the Sabbath were given by the Archbishop of Toronto and the Toronto Synod yesterday when both Archbishop and members of the Synod declared there was too great a tendency for people to regard observance of Sunday as a matter of convenience rather than as a duty and obligation.

In this connection the Synod decided to ask for legislation to restrict the sale of gasoline and oil on Sunday to four hours for each vendor, and to draw the attention of the Pharmacy Council to existing legislation restricting drug store sales on Sunday.

In the discussion D. H. Church, Orillia, declared he couldn't understand a recent request of the Y.M. C.A. for permission to play tennis on Sunday, and flatly told members of the Synod "you have no right" to play golf on Sunday.

Dr. Blagrave Replies.

An objection of Harry Hunt to the Synod's interference with business, in the operation of gasoline stations, brought a stern repsy from Ven. R. C. Blagrave, of Peterborough.

"It is far too late in the day for anyone to say that the Synod has no right to interfere with business in these days," he declared. "We are speaking for a great many employees in our congregations who are tied up from early morning till late at night in work on Sunday of which too much is entirely unnecessary."

In his objection Mr. Hunt asked if the Synod were not attempting the impossible. There were more cars on the streets on Sunday than on any other day in the week, and if these cars had to be operated they had to be serviced. One man might want gasoline at 7 a.m. and another at 3 p.m. How could service stations meet the need if they were open only four hours.

"I think rather than interfere with business we should try to improve conditions spiritually," he said.

Four-Hour Rotation.

Prof. E. A. Dale, chairman of the Social Service Committee which had brought in this resolution, explained that the idea was to rotate the four hours so that in every district there would be service from some station or other all the time. Magistrate Jones, a member of the committee, had interviewed service station managers, and had found the majority agreeable, he said.

"If we don't want service station employees to work on Sunday, we should see to it that we don't ask them to wash our cars on Sunday," said D. H. Church, Orillia. "We ourselves, we Christian men, are responsible for the breakdown of the Sabbath. I was surprised the other day to hear that the Y.M.C.A. has asked permission to play tennis on Sunday. I cannot understand such a request from a Christian body.

Sunday Golf.

"Perhaps some of you play golf on Sunday afternoons. You have no right to do so. It is God's own day. Remember the Sabbath Day, and keep it holy. Those are your orders."

"It is my opinion that we ought to be more insistent in the Church of England in stating our duties to the Ten Commandments," said Principal E. B. McElheran. "I hear people speaking of Sunday as if it were all a matter of opinion, of what they want to do. It is our duty to go to church on Sunday and to keep the Fourth Commandment."

To a suggestion of Rev. G. S. Despard that the Synod should investigate heavy trucking of unnecessary freight on Sunday, Ven. R. C. Blagrave reminded the Synod that it should "not be negligent" in its support of the Lord's Day Alliance.

Two things for which the Synod as a body of churchmen is fighting, said the Archbishop, are a day of rest for all workers and the principle that Sabbath observance is a duty of every member of the church, "a solemn duty to God, the Church, and the Community."

"Let us make that very clear," he said. "We have had far too much of that impression abroad that going to church on Sunday is a matter of convenience or inconvenience. Let us bring it home that it is a solemn duty."

It was decided to publish for general distribution pamphlets incorporating the "Christian Use of Sunday" statement adopted by the Upper House of the Convocation of Canterbury.

SCOTT'S SCRAPBOOK . . By R. J. Scott

PUMPING UNIT NOW REQUIRED

Utilities Commission to Inspect Ottawa's Centrifugal Unit.

IMPROVE LIGHTING

Ross L. Dobbin, general manager of Peterborough Utilities Commission was authorized to go to Ottawa to inspect a centrifugal pumping unit—the first of its kind to have been manufactured in Canada by the Dominion Engineering Company, at a meeting of the Utilities Commission yesterday afternoon.

The Commission is contemplating the purchase of a centrifugal pump for use at the waterworks at an approximate cost of $12,000.00, and in urging the need of early installation of the pump Mr. Dobbin commented that the water levels throughout this district are the lowest in his experience.

Street Lighting

A communication was read by Secretary S. R. Armstrong from the City Council urging the need of improved street lighting on Ware, Haggart and Romaine streets. It was directed by the Commission that the improvements be made upon receipt of an order from the chairman of the Fire, Water and Light Committee of the City Council. Mr. Dobbin estimated the cost would be between $300 and $300.

The Commission instructed the secretary to acknowledge receipt of a communication from the H.E.P.C., and to ask authority for a proposed expenditure of $5,000.00 for a new capacitor which is needed to correct the power factor on the local system.

At the time the old street railway was abandoned, Mr. Dobbin told The Examiner there was a machine in the substation which provided current for the street railway and at the same time corrected the power factor. When the railway was scrapped Peterborough sold the machine to the Hydro, on the understanding that the Utilities Commission was not to be penalized until the end of 1934 for power factor below 90 per cent.

Agreement Is Up

"Our agreement is up," Mr. Dobbin remarked, "and we are now subject to payment of a penalty because of the fact that our power factor is below 90 per cent. The machine which it is proposed to purchase will correct that condition and will prevent us from being subject to payment of the penalty imposed by the Hydro Commission."

Harry L. Beal, manager of the Gas Department presented a statement showing that his department had made a net profit for the month of April of $107.00 as compared with a net loss of $429.63 in the same period last year. For the first four months of this year, the statement showed a loss of $1,836.63 as compared with a loss in the corresponding period of the previous year of $3,503.69.

Gordon Matthews, chairman of the Commission commented favorably on the fact that the operating statement showed an improvement of $1,700.00 to date this year, as compared with last year.

Norwood

Messrs. James and John Morrow, also Mrs. Sharpe (nee Ellen Morrow), of Moosejew, Sask., called on friends in Norwood Wednesday.

Messrs. Alex. Kempt, Chas. Gunstone, Walter Bitten and Manyard Bongard were in Belleville on Wednesday night, attending a league lawn bowling meeting for the purpose of arranging the play-off schedule.

One hundred and seven was the attendance at the Donegal Sunday School on Mother's Day. Four old ladies, namely, Mrs. Robert Leeper, Sr., Mrs. Paul Scott, Mrs. Alex. McGee and Mrs. John T. Wildman, were presented and were each presented with a beautiful bouquet of flowers.

While working at a saw in the cheese box factory on Peterborough Street, Mr. Pat Thorby had the misfortune to have the end of his little finger and the nails on the next two cut off. Dr. N. F. Sutton attended the wounds.

LAKEFIELD.

Mrs. Yale gave the Temperance report; musical numbers included a pleasing solo by Eva Herdren, a mixed quartette by Mesdames MacMillan and Hambiln and Rev. W. R. Archer, B.A., and G. W. Payne. H. J. Brown contributed a reading and the meeting closed with a very amusing contest which was won by the Blue Side.

A.Y.P.A.

Five tables of Whist were played on Monday night at the A.Y.P.A. Prizes were won by Mrs. Chappell and Bernard Johnston and the consolation prizes by Mrs. Armstrong and Mr. Chappell.

Norwood Couple Is Honored By Friends

NORWOOD, May 17, (Examiner Correspondence).—Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Sedgwick were surprised on Wednesday evening by a number of friends and neighbours to bid them farewell.

Mr. Sedgwick has been with Mr. W. A. Richardson in the fire and life insurance business for a number of years but is now severing his connection and moving to Peterborough where he has secured a position with the Weston Bread Company.

The removal of Mr. Sedgwick is regretted by the citizens of the village as he has always been interested in public affairs and will be greatly missed.

Mr. and Mrs. Sedgwick were presented with an electric toaster. The finely worded address was read by Mr. R. Tedford and the presentation made by Miss Laura Cuthbertson.

Pope To Invite Churches To Return To Catholic Fold

VATICAN CITY.—Vatican prelates said to-day Pope Pius would invite all churches which had separated from the Roman Catholic faith to return to the "one fold of the one shepherd" in an appeal to be made to-morrow on the occasion of the canonization of the British martyrs, the Blessed Thomas More and the Blessed John Fisher. The usual secrecy was maintained with regard to the Pope's address which will be in Latin, but Vatican circles said it would be considerably longer than the usual Papal speech on such occasions.

Strength Will Be Tested Then Course Decided Upon; Premier Has 'Tired' Heart

If Unable to Do Job as Should Be Done He is Ready to Quit.

TRYING AN EXPERIMENT.

Feels Physically Fit as Far as He is Able to Judge.

OTTAWA, May 18—(CP)—Premier R. B. Bennett came back to Ottawa at noon today from the King's silver jubilee. Long before the train pulled in crowds began to collect at the station. Representatives of the Governor-General and embassies from foreign countries joined with the cabinet ministers in welcoming the Prime Minister home.

Smiling and apparently recovered in health, Mr. Bennett stepped briskly from his private car and warmly shook hands with Sir George Perley, and other members of his cabinet. The numerous friends surrounded him, gave rounds of cheers and accompanied him through the station. He went directly to his suite, accompanied by his ministers.

Resume Seat Monday

On Monday Mr. Bennett will resume his place in the House of Commons and shortly thereafter will consult with his colleagues to ascertain whether or not it is advisable for him to continue in office and go through a general election campaign or resign himself to a period of rest and recuperation advised by two prominent London heart specialists.

"If I am unable to do the job the way I think it should be done, I don't want to attempt it," Mr. Bennett declared on his arrival in Quebec last night. But he described himself physically fit so far as he could judge and was fortified by the assurance of two London specialists his heart was organically sound. The same specialists, however, told the prime minister he had a "tired" heart and he should have rest.

"I must feel my way," Mr. Bennett said, "to ascertain what I can do. Whether or not I can keep up the pace of the last five years remains to be seen. I do not know what I can do until I try."

15 VACANCIES IN THE SENATE

Largest Number Since Upper Chamber Formed After Confederation.

BIG TORY MAJORITY.

OTTAWA, May 18. — (CP).—Death to-day of Senator John Lewis in Toronto brings the number of vacancies in the Senate up to 15, largest number since the Upper Chamber was formed after Confederation. The Senate will re-assemble, following the recess, Tuesday.

In 1921, the size of the Senate was increased from 96 to 96 members. There were also eight vacancies at that time so when Parliament opened the following year 14 new Senators were introduced. A change of government had taken place and 13 had been appointed by Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen and one by Rt. Hon. Mackenzie King.

Standing of the Senate now is 49 Conservatives, 32 Liberals, 15 vacancies. By provinces the vacancies are: Ontario three, Manitoba one, Quebec four, New Brunswick three, and Nova Scotia four.

LACK OF MONEY CLOSING CAMPS WITHIN A WEEK

Road Workers Dismissed at Nogie's Creek Camp in Harvey.

OPERATIONS ENDING.

The four road camps beyond Buckhorn and Apsley are fading out of the local labor picture within the next few days.

The camp at Nogie's Creek north of Buckhorn was closed today, and on Wednesday next work terminates at the neighboring Bennett's Landing and also in the two camps northeast of Apsley.

Nearly 250 men are affected, an average of sixty to a camp, are affected by the decision of the Ontario Department of Northern Development.

J. S. Selkirk told The Examiner today that he understood sixty camps throughout the province are closing their doors. A further report regarding the settlers' camps will be announced early next week.

J. J. Duffus this afternoon said he had made three trips to Toronto this week interviewing the Department with respect to the prospects of continuing work in the northern townships of Peterborough county.

Government Has No Money

"The work has been suspended for the simple reason that the Ontario government hasn't the money to keep the camps operating," Mr. Duffus said. "Premier Hepburn de-

WORK COMMENDED.

Medals and Cups Are Presented Following the Inspection.

Commendation of the inspecting officer was earned by the Peterborough Collegiate and Vocational School cadet corps as it went on parade for its annual review before a large crowd of spectators in Confederation Square yesterday afternoon. Captain C. Foulkes of Kingston, district cadet officer and general staff officer for Military District No. 3, carried out the inspection.

"All your work was quite commendable," Captain Foulkes commented in a short address to the scores as they stood drawn up in a hollow square at the conclusion of their manoeuvres and demonstrations. He singled out for particular mention the drill of the company as a unit, the individual platoon drills and the demonstration of the First Aid Corps. "I hope you are getting some benefit out of this training. I think the showing you have made to-day indicates that you are."

"I am very pleased to find that every boy has his buttons polished and his shoes shined. A man is often judged by his personal appearance. If your cadet training can even teach you that it is worth while."

No. 3 Platoon

Captain Foulkes named No. 3 platoon under Cadet Lieut. J. Morrow as the platoon which made the best showing during the afternoon. The platoon was given custody of the 57th Regiment Chapter Shield for the coming year. Mrs. Gordon Hall making the presentation. Mrs. W. R. Morris of the Board of Education made a presentation of fourteen individual silver cups to the various corps officers as tokens for their services during the season. H. G. Lawrence's Condition Reported Very Grave

WOOL, Dorsetshire, May 18. — (A.P.).—The condition of Col. T. E. Lawrence, injured five days ago in a motorcycle accident, took a sudden turn for the worse to-night and was described in an official bulletin as being "very grave."

A bulletin issued at 6.30 p.m. (2.30 p.m. E.D.T.), reads:

"The condition of Mr. T. E. Shaw (the name under which Lawrence has gone of recent years) has taken a sudden change. The position is now very grave."

Eden's Political Life Depends On Parley

LONDON, May 18.—(C. P. Cable) —In an editorial appearing today on the Italo-Ethiopian dispute, and on Capt. Anthony Eden's forthcoming labors in this regard at Geneva, the News-Chronicle observes:

"It is hardly too much to say Capt. Eden carries his political life in his hands. The dispute between Italy and Ethiopia, with which as British representative he will have to deal, is one full of difficulties. A false step at this critical moment in the fight for international security might bring decisive discredit not merely to himself but to the league.

"If he remains resolved at Geneva to put his statesmanship to the test, he need not fear for the result nor the verdict of his countrymen. He has the common people of Britain solidly behind him."

Group Of School Children Being Taught Atheism And Communism In Kitchener

KITCHENER, Ont., May 18. —(CP).—Interviews with 14 primary children alleged to have admitted membership, have convinced Public School Inspector H. J. Pruetter, a local Communist organization has set up a "Young Pioneer Club" in which youngsters are taught atheism and doctrines of Communism.

"Sufficient evidence has been adduced to be able to state quite definitely atheism is being taught to these children," the inspector says in a report to his board. "They state quite frankly they are told there is no God and the Bible is false."

Evidence also shows these children are taught they owe neither loyalty nor respect to law or British institutions, Mr. Pruetter said.

"They are taught they owe allegiance to no one but their leaders. There is more than a casual association with Russian Communism in this club," his report says.

"Children are taught that Lenin and Stalin are Gods."

The Inspector said attempts had been made to cast a veil of secrecy about the club. Chilren appeared to have been counselled against divulging information.

Glowing Tribute Paid Memory Of John Lewis

HON. JOHN LEWIS

Up Until Thursday Senator Lewis Had Been in Best of Health.

NOTED WRITER.

TORONTO, May 18. (CP).—Senator John Lewis of Toronto died here to-day. He was in his 78th year.

Senior Lewis engaged for many years in newspaper work, was stricken with pleural pneumonia two days ago and died at his home on Silver Birch avenue this morning.

In Best of Health

Up until Thursday he had been in the best of health and since returning from the Parliament at the recess in April, had continued his usual contributions to the Manchester Guardian and the Advertiser of London, Ont., with which he had been associated some time.

Arrangements for the funeral services have not been completed.

Hon. John Lewis was born in Toronto Jan. 17, 1858, the son of

OTTAWA, May 18 (C.P.).—Tribute to the memory of the late Senator John Lewis, who died today in Toronto, was paid by Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, leader of the Liberal Party.

"I am deeply pained to learn of the death of Senator John Lewis," said Mr. King. "For 40 years I enjoyed with him a close and intimate friendship. It began during my undergraduate days at the University of Toronto and more particularly in 1896, at which time I was on the reportorial staff of the Toronto Globe and Mr. Lewis was one of its editors.

"In more recent years we were closely associated in the work of the Liberal Party and in public affairs both in and out of Parliament."

"As is also known," said Mr. King, "Senator Lewis was the author of a biographical sketch of myself, which was published in 1925 and which, with his co-operation, was recently revised and extended.

Sound Writer.

"Throughout a long life of disinterested public service, Senator Lewis gave to the highest interests of both Canada and the Liberal Party, of which he was a foremost member, true and wise guidance. On one occasion I heard the late Sir John Willison say that he knew no abler or sounder editorial writer than John Lewis. By all who are familiar with Mr. Lewis' writings, I believe that Sir John Willison's words will be regarded as a true estimate. There were few, if any men in Canada better informed on the questions of the day and on foreign affairs than Senator Lewis. In his writings he was always moderate, conciliatory and persuasive. These qualities went far in enabling him to shape a judicious public opinion.

True Liberal.

"In his convictions, sympathies and outlook, Senator Lewis was a true Liberal. There was no cause which merited earnest advocacy which failed to receive support from his pen.

"His modesty and self-effacement in all that he did caused Senator Lewis to be less conspicuous than many of our public men. His influence was perhaps all the greater because of the quiet manner in which it was exerted. It will continue so long as power remains in the written word."

Eight Forced To Flee From Apartments

LONDON, Ont., May 18.—(CP).—Explosion of chemical used for disinfectant was blamed by firemen for a blaze that swept through two upper folors of an office and apartment building here early to-day. No estimate of the damage could be made immediately.

Eight persons were forced to flee from their apartments in night attire while another was carried by firemen down a ladder as the flames raced through the corridors of the third story to the floor above. The upper floors, used as a lodge and club rooms were gutted while the first and main floors suffered damage from smoke and water.

More than 12 offices and business quarters were damaged.

Listaro, the heavily backed favorite from the stable of R. S. McLaughlin, was out of contention on the home stretch.

C—Parkwood Stable entry.

D—E. P. Seagram entry.

Quoted at Odds 2 to 1

Despite the support given the Hatch entry, McLaughlin's Trio of Listaro, Epicurus and Eileen D., were quoted at odds of 2 to 1 but dropped on the second reading to 3 to 5 mainly because of the heavy backing placed behind the favorite. Seagram's entry was quoted in the second reading at 4 to 1, to 5 to 2, with W. H. Wright's Tax Free, entered with Worthing, went up from 8 to 1 to 10 to 1.

Months of preparation ended as the 12 Ontario-foaled three-year-olds and up were given their final grooming before being sent to the post.

Over 20,000 Present

More than 20,000 people crowded in Woodbine Park to witness the running of the King's Plate, accepted as the official opening of the Canadian racing season. Cool winds and a hot sun of the last six days left the track in its fastest condition but from early indications there did not appear to be the class in the Plate capable of breaking the present record of 154 1-5, though there has been much mystery shrouding the secret performances of Harry Hatch's pair of fillies, Chickpen and Donstick.

Shifting of the betting to this pair from R. S. McLaughlin's top favorite, Listaro, was blamed on rumors that the gelded son of The Romp 2nd—Listen Dearie was not in the best of condition.

STABILIZATION OVERSHADOWED BY DIFFICULTIES

War Debt Issue Must First Be Solved London Experts Say.

RETURN TO GOLD?

Nasty Revaluation is Most Unlikely in Great Britain.

Prospects of stabilization overshadowed the world monetary scene to-day. But financial experts were quick to contend there were many difficulties in the path.

In London it was unofficially said no stabilization could take place until the war debts issue with the United States had been satisfactorily settled and agreement had been reached with the States as to the level at which the pound should be stabilized in relation to the dollar.

In Paris, Finance Minister Louis Germain-Martin emphatically denied reports France planned devaluation of the franc. But a flight of capital from Paris of growing proportions and a consequent weakening of the franc yesterday caused alarm in business circles.

Study Economic Questions.

In Washington it was denied that Dr. Harry White had been empowered by the Treasury Department to discuss stabilization prospects with the British or other governments. He was said to have been directed to study economic and monetary questions abroad, however.

Newspaper comment in London mentioned the recent speech by Henry Morgenthau, secretary of the United States Treasury, in which he said that country was not prepared to make the first move for stabilization.

The Financial Times said: "It is now generally assumed, at least in the United States, that Morgenthau's recent broadcast was addressed mainly to London.

"If that is the case, Morgenthau has not had long to wait for his answer. The whole tenor of Chamberlain's speech shows clearly both that the ultimate objective of British monetary policy is a return to gold and that hasty revaluation would be in the highest degree unlikely."

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, May 18.— Auspicious crop prospects, apparently pointing to a 1935 United States wheat yield above normal, did much yesterday to send grain prices downhill.

Seeding of spring wheat in the United States' northwest was reported as practically complete, and the outlook for the new crop the best in several years. Beneficial rains over domestic hard winter wheat territory southwest added to bearish sentiment, and for at least the time being there was a seeming complete eclipse of inflation as a grain market stimulus.

Wheat closed heavy at the day's bottom price level, 2¼c to 2½c under Thursday's finish. July 91⅝c to 91¾c, corn, ¾c to 1⅝c down, July 81⅛c to 81¼c; oats ⅝c to 1¼c down and provisions unchanged to 10c decline.

GRAIN.

[illegible]18. — In the absence of a brisk foreign demand for Canada's wheat, prices on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange yesterday were forced to follow the declines in other important grain markets, wiping out Thursday's advance.

Values closed ⅝c to ¾c lower, May 86⅝c and July 87⅜c, the session's lowest levels, with a distinctly bearish note replacing the bullish tone of Thursday that had sent prices one cent higher. The trading volume was not large.

Modest export buying, with yesterday's foreign sales so small no figure was placed upon the business, was insufficient to cope with the light selling that entered the pit.

The reported need of good rains in the Argentine, where seeding of new crops is being retarded, or decreased Southern Hemisphere wheat shipments, had no market effect.

Coarse grains dipped sharply, led by rye, which closed more than a cent lower. Cash grains continued dull.

MONTREAL PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, May 18.—Butter prices continued to advance on the Montreal produce market yesterday after Thursday's movement to higher levels, following several weeks of downturns. No. 1, in carlots or less, rose ¼c at 20½c to 20¾c, compared with 20¼c to 20½c Thursday. Small lots to retailers went for 21½c to 22c for solids and 22½c to 23c for prints. Receipts were 56 boxes.

Egg market prices held unchanged with graded shipments in carlots or less at 19c a dozen for A-large, 17c for A-medium, 16½c for B and 16c for C. Retailers quoted 23c a dozen for A-large, 21c for A-medium, 20c for B and 19c for C, in cartons, and a cent less when bought loose. Receipts totalled 1,690 boxes.

Prices were fractionally easier on the cheese market, No. 1 current Ontario cheese dropping to 9½c to 9¾c a pound. Arrivals totalled 1,587 cases.

On the potato market prices held unchanged with Quebec in 80-pound bags again selling at 35c to 40c; New Brunswicks 42c and Prince Edward Islands 41c. New Floridas in 100-pound bags continued at $3 and New Bermudas in 50-pound crates at $2 to $2.25.

WEEKLY GRAIN REVIEW

WINNIPEG, May 18.—(CP)—Improved prospects for Canada's new crop went hand-in-hand with lower prices for the old on Winnipeg grain exchange this week. Failure of foreign demand for wheat to materialize led to dwindling pit volume.

Wheat prices declined one to ¾ cent, May to 87¾ and July 87⅞. Generous rains in all parts of the prairies made for improved conditions with the best prospects since 1928 of a good crop.

It appeared today unless a sudden spurt in exports develops in the remaining 10 weeks of the crop year, the carryover July 31 would be considerably larger than earlier estimated, though probably less than last year's 288,000,000-bushel holdover. Drought in North Africa, however, where France annually buys much of her hard wheats, was expected to open up a market in France for Canadian wheat.

MILLBROOK, May 18. — Millbrook Cadet Corps, No. 403, made its usual excellent showing at the annual inspection, held on the school grounds on Friday, at 11 a.m., the Inspecting Officer being Captain C. Foulkes, of Military District No. 3, and the Corps turning out forty-seven strong for the occasion.

A new feature this year, and one that proved a decided help for the marching, was the Bugle Band, under the leadership of Martin Chenhall, Junior, and composed largely of ex-Cadets. Captain Foulkes, and Cadet Instructor, Lieut. B. B. Dawson, took the salute at the inspecting base as the Cadets under Cadet Captain Owen McCarthy, and Cadet Lieutenant Reg. McKnight, marched smartly past, and went through the drill and various manoeuvres with precision and skill, the four sections being under the command of Corporals Harold McCamus, A. T. FAVOR BRUCE AIRHEART

Four Mentioned for Ballot at Marmora Convention, May 29.

Appointment of delegates for the convention of the Conservatives of the federal riding of Hastings-Peterborough at Marmora Wednesday, May 29, is reported to be completed in most of the polling subdivisions.

Gossip on both sides of the county border indicate that Dr. A. T. Embury, M.P. of Bancroft is likely to face strong competition when he seeks a renewal of the mandate the party entrusted to him when the new riding was formed.

Doug Gunter of Bancroft, a former Warden of Hastings county, Dr. S. Eagleson of Madoc and Bruce Airheart of Marmora another ex-Warden are being mentioned as probable opponents of Dr. Embury when the convention reaches the stage of nominations.

Mention "Bob" Elliott

From several sources it has been learned the friends of R. A. "Bob" Elliott of Deloro have been urging him to let his name go before the delegates, but that Mr. Elliott has definitely declined a responsibility which would seriously interfere with his position at Deloro Smelting and Refining plant. If he won the riding, and his friends believe there would be no doubt about his success, the long session of Parliament would virtually demand his resignation from the company with a loss of income and opportunity involving a sacrifice which executives of the Association would not ask of him.

The Golden Text

Matthew 28: 19—"Go ye therefore, and make disciples of all the nations, baptizing them into the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Ghost."

Sabbath Message For The Shut-Ins

Written for The Examiner by REV. EDWARD B. JAMES.

DO YOU THINK?

The High Priest said unto Him: "I adjure Thee by the living God that Thou tell us whether Thou be the Christ, the Son of God?" Jesus said unto him: "Thou hast said."—St. Matthew 26:63.

PROBABLY many of you have heard the statement either over the radio or through the press: "It is the teaching of Jesus that matters. Do not bother your head over the creeds and other outworn dogmas of bygone days, but follow the teaching of Jesus, be gentle, help the poor, care for the sick. In a word, be a Good Samaritan and thus you will be fulfilling the teaching of Jesus and following in His footsteps. This is the important thing." To a great many people such a statement makes a tremendous appeal, largely because they have seen many who have prided themselves on their belief in the traditional creeds and yet they are hard, selfish, bitter and uncharitable in their behavior towards others.

Yet when you come to think of it the "teaching of Jesus" is a half truth. A very important half, no doubt, but the other equally important part of the truth is, "The teaching about Jesus." Who is He? For after all this is the important thing to know. "What manner of man is this that even the winds and the waves obey Him?" asked the wondering Apostles after the storm on the lake.

The young Carpenter of Nazareth is standing before the highest ecclesiastical court of His nation, the Sanhedrim. The High Priest puts Him on oath, administers to Him the most solemn oath: "I adjure Thee by the living God." The prisoner accepts the oath, and because of the high position of His judge, official head of His nation, He answers the plain question: "Tell us whether Thou be the Christ, the Son of God?" "Thou hast said," is the reply. Then the High Priest rent his clothes, according to ancient practice, and said: "He hath spoken blasphemy." The whole court with one accord condemned Him to be worthy of death. Why? Because He claimed to be the Son of God.

It is one of the extraordinary results of a careful study of the Gospels that our Lord in the days of His ministry rarely gave a plain answer to a plain question. Why? Because He desired men to think.

A group of men from John the Baptist came to Him with the great and vital question from the mouth of the imprisoned forerunner: "Art Thou He that should come or do we look for another?" Does He say, "Yes"? "Go and show John the things which ye do hear and see." He must think and arrive at the answer.

He gathers a small band of men to be His Apostles, "that they might be with Him." Primarily that they might discover His secret.

Why did He not openly and plainly tell them? They had their own ideas of what the Christ, the anointed of God, should be like. He was to be the Redeemer of Israel. The haunting, thrilling hope of freedom from the Roman yoke and an earthly kingdom. That is plain all through the Gospel stories. Even towards the end of His ministry we have the demand of the mother of Zebedee's children that her two sons, James and John, should sit one on the right hand and the other on the left in His Kingdom. And the astonishing part of it is that He is on His last journey to Jerusalem, on His way to the Cross.

At the end of two years' teaching and association with Him the Lord Jesus asks them the all-important question, "Whom say ye that I am?" Simon Peter answers, "Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God." He has made the great discovery about Him. No wonder the Lord in tones of deep emotion utters the blessing, "Blessed art thou, Simon Bar Jona, for flesh and blood hath not revealed it unto thee, but my Father which is in Heaven." Simon Peter does not yet understand the full meaning of this confession, that he, a Jew, would give Divine honors to Jesus of Nazareth and worship Him as God. That is coming later after much thought and tribulation of mind. He is on the way. He is touching the fringe of the truth. He is not yet able to bear the wider knowledge, but he is slowly, gradually giving to Jesus of Nazareth the value of God.

It is very remarkable to remember that only on two occasions does our Lord reveal Himself plainly and clearly. To the Samaritan woman, "I that speak unto thee am He." To the man born blind, whose sight He has restored, "Thou hast both seen Him and He it is that talketh with thee."

To the plain, simple hearted man or woman He is willing to reveal Himself. He knows their limitations and His invitation is, "Come unto Me all ye that labor and are heavy laden and I will give rest unto your souls.

At the same time this does not relieve us from thinking and striving to grasp the mystery and wonder of the truth that God became Man and that in Christ Jesus we have the revelation of what God is like. "He that hath seen Me hath seen the Father."

The primitive church passed through much tribulation, men and women laid down their lives, dying horrible deaths because they believed the "Teaching about Jesus," that Jesus is the Son of God.

Let us conclude with the words of a great teacher of the Christian faith: "Eternal Jesus, it is Thyself who has thus bidden us either to despise or worship Thee. Thou wouldst have us despise Thee as our fellow-man, if we will not worship Thee as our God. Disputing Thy divinity we could no longer clearly recognise Thy human perfection. Of a truth Thou art the King of Glory, O Christ. Thou art the Everlasting Son of the Father."

Jesus, my Lord, I Thee adore,
O make me love Thee more and more.

CATHEDRAL MUSINGS

A WITTY Frenchman once said that "God created man in His own image, and man returned the compliment." On the face of it, the mot was more witty than truthful, but a little reflection will show that it was more truthful than witty For man, at least while he remains in his present stage of development on this earth, cannot do more than create in his own heart a more or less true idea of God, and it is that conception that he worships and holds up as his ideal. That is why we as Rosicrucians use the term, "God of our hearts," for we recognise that while one man's conception differs from that of another, yet each is true as far as the individual is concerned.

But what is our idea of God? Let us stop and think. Is our idea of the Supreme the highest and noblest we can conceive, or have we little or no conception at all? I ask in all seriousness. Put it another way. Do we worship God in terms of the highest we know of multiplied by infinity, or are our hearts and minds so cruel and intolerant that our conception of God is that of a harsh tyrant, a cruel and injust taskmaster? For, depend upon it, in our ideas we reflect ourselves, and a loving heart can never envisage aught but a loving God. Are we so filled with love that our image of God approaches the supreme conception of the All-Father as given by the Master. If not, how then can we call ourselves His followers?

It is of little value to dispute about outward forms, the "letter" of things, of still less to be intolerant of the beliefs of others. If we do the works we shall know the doctrine, and for all practical purposes the "works" mean losing the self in the love of God and the love of one's neighbor.—Frater IX., Rosicrucian Order, San Jose, Calif.

THE LORD'S NEAR RETURN

"Ancient and modern beliefs in immortality. When will the Lord return? "Ye know not what hour your Lord doth come"—but, "when ye shall see all these things"—"it is near—even at the doors." Pyramid structure and symbolism, Prophecy and Scriptures, history and current events produce twelve distinct and converging lines of evidence indicating the imminence of our Lord's return." The above is the subject of an illustrated lecture to be given by—

Our Prayer

LORD, search our hearts and take away
All unjust thoughts, all motives wrong,
And as we live from days to day.
Make us more worthy of a song.

And fill our hearts with gratitude.
And fill our minds with love sincere,
And give us strength for daily task.
And give us more of faith for fear

And give us hearts that can forgive,
Help us resist temptation's snare.
Help us to sacrifice, and give
Our lives to Thee, our cross to bear.

And make us faithful, humble, kind,
So we may live and do and dare,
To stand for right, and give us hope
For peace serene—this is our prayer. —M. M.

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By the Rev. Alvin E. Bell and Alfred J. Buescher

Scriptures—Matt. 3:13-17; 28:19, 20; Acts 2:38, 41; Acts 8:26-39; Rom. 6:1-14.

When Jesus came to John the Baptist to be baptized of him in the Jordan river, John felt that Jesus did not need baptism. But Jesus insisted upon it. Thus he identified himself with sinful humanity, although he had no sin.

At his ascension Jesus commissioned his disciples to go into all the world to "make disciples of all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son and of the Holy Spirit," promising them his presence and power to the end of time.

On the day of Pentecost Peter preached to the people in Jerusalem about Christ and many repented and believed. When they asked what they should do to be saved, he said, "Repent and be baptized." Three thousand were baptized in one day.

As an Ethiopian high official was returning from Jerusalem through the desert Philip came upon him reading the scriptures and preached to him of Christ as his Saviour. The man was converted and Philip baptized him and left him. (GOLDEN TEXT—Matt. 28.19.)

THE OTHER SIDE OF IT.

The chain stores of Canada have been under heavy fire for some time, particularly from Hon. H. H. Stevens, and for the most part the barrage of criticism has been taken in silence.

However, there is something to be said on the other side of the question, and a letter on "Chain Stores: Their Function" which appeared in the Toronto Globe deals interestingly with the situation as the chain store men see it.

The writer vigorously denies the assertion that chain stores ruthlessly depress the prices of primary producers and of manufacturers.

"It is a mistake for sellers to believe that chain store people like low prices," he says. "The mistake should be obvious when you consider that their profits are in cents, not commodities—and that falling prices and lower purchasing power mean fewer cents or fractions of cents, profit per sale and profit per commodity."

This correspondent declares that the function of a chain store is to buy goods at the prevailing market prices and to pass these to consumers at the lowest charge for service of distribution.

"The great progress which food chains made in this country from 1930 to 1932," he claims, "was due to their ability to perform an essential service more efficiently than it could be performed by other methods of retailing. And if and when some other method of distribution is devised which will still further shorten the bridge between producer and consumer, the chain store will decline in importance."

As for Government regulation, the writer says that the reason chain store people are opposed to regimentation, to price-fixing, etc., is because they are as practical men the difficulty of successful regulation.

NOT AN EASY PROBLEM.

There is a great deal of loose talking these days about prohibiting the export of Canadian nickel to Germany.

As a matter of fact, this country could prevent our nickel from reaching Germany and being used for military purposes if it wanted to, but it would entail the virtual ruining of a great Canadian industry, inasmuch as it would involve the prohibiting of nickel exports altogether, and even then, when other sources of supply are considered, it is by no means certain that Canadian self-sacrifice of the kind advocated would go much to stop the armament race.

Of course, most of those people who are saying that we should not export nickel to Germany mean just that: in other words, they are suggesting that while we should not ship this metal to the Germans, it would be all right to go on selling it to other countries.

The weakness in that argument, of course, is that while we continue to export our nickel to some country outside of Germany, we have not the slightest assurance that that country will not re-export it to the very nation from which we are endeavoring to keep this much-desired metal.

There is reason to believe, indeed, that most of the nickel that has been reaching Germany was not shipped direct, but was re-exported from some other country to which Canada originally sold it, and unless we are prepared to go to the extreme length of putting an embargo upon the exporting of nickel from Canada—a step that would be a decidedly costly one for an industry that means much to this country—the forbidding of exports direct to the Germans would be merely a noble gesture that so far as worth-while results are concerned would be meaningless.

CANADA'S MUNICIPAL DEFAULTS.

Some interesting information in regard to the municipal debt situation is gleaned from the current issue of Business Week, which reveals the fact that in spite of the doubtful publicity caused by Vancouver's threat of repudiation, Canada's municipalities are not doing too badly.

Listed in the Dominion are 4,280 municipal governments, which have outstanding about $1,297,600,000 in debenture obligations, of which 89 per cent. is held in Canada, 24 per cent. in the United States and 7 per cent. in the United Kingdom.

Prior to 1932, municipal default in Canada was a very rare phenomenon, but in the last three years $141 millions of debenture debt or 11 per cent of the total has been defaulted by 170 municipalities.

By way of comparison, it should be noted that municipal defaults in the United States during the summer of 1933 were estimated at 7 per cent. of the total indebtedness.

According to Business Week, the Maritime Provinces have been free from municipal defaults so far, and the situation is well in hand in Quebec province. Mainly the defaults have been in Ontario and the Western Provinces.

Just how these municipal debentures are held forms an interesting compilation by Thomas H. Bradshaw, who sets for the holdings as follows: Trust companies, $325 millions; life insurance companies, $275 millions; municipal sinking funds, $200 millions; benefit societies, etc., $100 millions; banks, $90 millions; religious and other endowment funds, $60 millions; pension funds and compensation funds, $50 millions; and individual private executors, etc., $200 millions.

ALL THOSE DIONNES.

We may be pardoned, perhaps, if we express a growing weariness with the whole business of the celebrated Dionnes, even a slight degree of impatience.

We have seen pictures of the quintuplets dressed and undressed, in bed and bath, in almost every conceivable posture. Their persons hold no secrets from us.

We have been told at length about their stomachaches, their teeth, their eyes and noses, their incomparable beauty, their joint and several poundage, and we agree that all this is important, is news—in moderation, that is. We know what they eat and drink and wear, and almost any time now we shall be greeted by the announcement that they are talking. are being interviewed by the indefatigable press, are uttering profound thoughts on the gravest subjects.

We are deluged also with pitiable stories on the terrific mental hardship of the Dionne parents. They give—or somebody gives for them—indignant statements which reporters writing at space rates despatch by telegraph in high seal, and the press dutifully puts them on its front page. These pieces reduce us almost to tears and we can't bear it much longer. Most parents, we think, in the predicament of Mr. and Mrs. Dionne, would welcome precisely such state control as is being exercised in the case of the Callander marvels. But the Dionne parents are made of sterner stuff, they want their babies back, and they send sarcastic letters to the Government, send telegrams to the Premier, try desperately to convince the people that they are victims of incredible official cruelty.

It is just possible we speak for more than ourselves when we say we should like some little relief from the Dionnes, major and minor. They are fine people, and the five babies are fine babies, but if we don't see a picture of any of them in the next three days, nor read even one story about them, we shall not feel that we are being deprived of vital news.

Because, after all, five babies are just five babies, with or without teeth, and a couple of indignant parents are just two other people, and a lot of us have babies of our own, while all of us have our own troubles. We are content to know that the quintuplets are thriving under the beneficent rule of their guardian the King and their medical adviser, Dr. Dafoe. It is nice to know that they are not going to be put in sideshows, at least while they are infants; nice to know that if all goes well they will have a comfortable fortune when the King surrenders his trust seventeen years hence. But actually we could get along without daily reports on their infantile gurgles, and rapidly we are approaching the state where we would rather look at a picture of a U. S. senator than at these five young ladies in even the most unconventional pose.—Ottawa Journal.

A HARD QUESTION TO ANSWER.

The Kingston Whig-Standard announces that in future it will publish the names and addresses of all those who appear in magistrate's court or any other court. It also serves notice that it will be useless for a person to appeal to the paper asking to have a name omitted from any case. When it comes to the making of hard and fast rules the Kingston paper has probably adopted the only course open which will free it of the charge of favoritism.

We think the majority of editors will admit frankly that the use of names in court cases is a matter which they have never been able to settle to their own satisfaction. The person on the outside might believe it was a matter of indifference to people in newspaper offices as to what went in the paper, but that view is wrong.

Let us illustrate or explain: A young man of 19 to 20 comes into the office about eleven in the morning. He had been out the night before and trouble followed. Perhaps he was drunk for the first time, and then he became disorderly. The police may have come upon the case in such a way that they could do nothing else than place him under arrest. He comes up in court and he is guilty. This young man has never been in trouble before; he is thoroughly ashamed of himself, and it is written all over him when he calls at the newspaper office to see if there is any chance of keeping his shame and disgrace from being published abroad. We are not drawing on the imagination in citing this case. Any other newspaper in the country can furnish similar evidence. The young man's father may be dead, but his mother is living and he has sisters working in offices or stores in the city. He is mightily concerned not only for his own standing in the community but also on account of his mother and sisters. He stands there and says he has had his lesson, and he asks that his name be not printed. He wants another chance to make good. We leave it with the reader to answer the question: "What would you do?" We believe the answer would be that the young man should have the chance for which he asks. We know for a fact there are newspaper men who have not got it in them to refuse such a request. If they refused the day would be spoiled for them.

Very good, but the leaving out of that name is only the starting point of the entire problem. A few days later another applicant arrives and he is not so young. It may be he has been up on a charge of driving a car while drunk, and we do not know of any reason why such a thing should be left out of a paper. It is one of the things which cannot be done. But there has been different treatment given to two people, and both were in magistrate's court. This paper is candid enough when it says it has never seen a rule made regarding names in court cases which was entirely satisfactory. The Kingston paper has turned to the "print them all" policy, and we are certain the day will come even under that rule when the editor will wonder whether it works just the way it should.—Stratford Beacon-Herald.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Canadian Sports Week opens to-day. Remember its slogan, "It pays to play," which is just a modern way of saying that all work and no play makes Jack a dull boy.

As the Ottawa Journal points out, the eminent divine who advocated a union government "to include all shades of public opinion," may not have realized it, but what he was proposing wouldn't be a ministry; it would be a public meeting.

The peculiar feature about the reports of Mr. Meighen and the leadership of the Conservative party is that they all seem to come from Liberal sources. We have not heard any Conservatives proposing the return of the former Premier.

Mr. Bennett comes back to Canada to face many problems—or perhaps to announce that the task of facing them is to be delegated to someone else.

Canadians were delighted to hear of the success of Edward Johnson, the Guelph boy who triumphed as a world famous tenor, in having been appointed general manager of the Metropolitan Grand Opera Company.

Crown Attorney W. S. Haney, of Lambton County has created something of a record by inviting Attorney-General Roebuck to use his axe. Hitherto no such invitation has been necessary.

Canada's foreign trade jumped by $8,638,754 in April, as did the national revenue. These are gains that afford considerable ground for satisfaction, indicating as they do better conditions in industry and business.

NEWS OF OUR OWN VILLAGE

Your scribe is glad to announce that all the town hall furniture and other utensils belonging to the berg is free of all legal encumbrances, so to speak, this week and the slogan is business as usual or better than that, if possible.

Harry Stevens, former local boy, was a pleasant visitor in our midst last week end and in the talk to a good many of the villagers in the High School Hall Sat. nite took a pound or two outa the unduly rich. Harry certainly had his audience eating out of his hand, your scribe would say.

The village council took a official tour round the berg Mon. nite and decided that in the main this is a right smart little metropolis. However, a few spots that needed fixing come to light during the trip and the lads intend to put them right.

Loud cheering from our neighbours in Douro, Otonabee, Smith, N. Monaghan, etc., is caused by the fact the village fathers has decided to run this berg this summer on daylite saving time, some June 8th. Well, they aint nothing we can do about it, folks, protest we in passing.

If Harry Stevens don't stop making the kinda speeches he made here Sat. nite, Hon Burnham up and declared this week, he's going to stump the country against Dick Bennett's ex-minister. And as they aint no likelihood of Harry stopping it looks like Ham will soon hafta get his suitcase packed.

This has been life insurance week in the village and the local underwriters has had so many pep talks they sleep now with their fountain pens in their pyjama pockets and a few blank policies under their pillows. It's all good for business, lads, say we in passing.

The village ball team will open the season here next Fri. p.m. with the Brewers from Oshawa, west of here, as the opposition and the 1st game should be a classy affair, we hasten to point out for the benefit of the neighbors.

THE WAY TO CUT GLASS

Did you ever see a professional glass-cutter at work?

It looks so easy, the way he does it....It looks so easy, anybody could do it....It looks so easy, try it yourself when you get home.

Somebody's broken a window in your home. You decide to fix it yourself, to save money, to show you can do it....You take the measure of the opening and go down to the glass man's shop, tell him you want a piece of glass that size.

He gets a sheet of glass, nicks it at the right places, places it on his table, draws his cutter swiftly, almost carelessly down the glass, presses his thumb firmly against it, and—click! there's your pane of glass for you, cut right down the line.

But now YOU try it! You buy a glasscutter of your own. You take a piece of glass and measure it.... You draw the cutter very carefully down the line. But you're not quite sure that you have cut the surface; so you pull the cutter over it again, just to make certain. Then, with close attention, pressing very firmly, you try to break it along the line....Does it work? It does NOT. Your straight line is a wandering curve. Your piece of glass is wasted. All your care has gone for nothing.

What's wrong? Well, for one thing, YOU are wrong. You don't understand glass. You don't know how to cut it. You made one mistake when you used the cutter twice on that line. You made another when you used slow pressure on the glass, instead of sudden pressure, when you tried to break it.

The glass-cutter wasn't being careless, debonaire, showy. He was cutting glass as it MUST be cut. He was treating it in the only way it CAN be treated....And if you want to know something else, he was treating glass in just the way a happy human being treats life. Not timid about it. Not nervous. Not fidgety. Not as if it were something frail and breakable, but as if it were something tough, enduring, and solid....The way glass is in the hands of a wise workman, the way life is in the hands of men and women who know how to use it.

Peterborough's Possibilities

By HOMER MOORE

ARTICLE 30

The hamlets, villages, towns and city might well be compared or likened to the members of a family, with the city being the big brother. The little fellows are near the treasures but the city of Peterborough—the big brother as it were—being the strongest and wealthiest, must gather in the treasures for the benefit of all concerned! And the little members of that family have been struggling for many years among and with, some of the most valuable natural resources on earth, while the big brother—the city of Peterborough—was so very busy with "so-called" more important things, there was scarcely a thought paid to the treasures near the little fellows!

Now however, the big brother—the city of Peterborough—is waking up to the fact that the formerly thought-to-be more important activities were not the most important, and has decided to pay more attention to the northern area—the area of greater value!

Peterborough city is awake! The short-sightedness of the past is changing to a more perfect vision! Some of us see the immense manufacturing possibilities for Peterborough city when those vast natural resources are brought into our city. Reading and talking about it will not do a particle of good to us unless we ACT. The city that acts constructively is the city that will WIN. There are other cities and towns within reach of these deposits and they may have men of push who will beat us to it if we fail to take advantage of our opertunity.

In the history of America there are examples of towns which grew to large cities through the push and inventive ability of a few citizens who were alive to the possibilities of brains and natural resources, combined. So Peterborough city in order to hold the enviable position now occupied must take advantage of that nearness of those raw materials and bring them here to be manufactured into innumerable usable articles!

I believe chromium is in some of the rocks within reach of our city and if it is widely distributed in those rocky areas, it would mean an additional source of wealth when its relationship to other forms of wealth is fully realized!

There are acres of feldspars! What could we do with that material here in Peterborough? It could be either shipped from here to American factories or it could be manufactured in Peterborough city. The difference would be, the difference in value of raw material and manufactured material!

You men of Peterborough who want to get into the class of manufacturers—see what you can do with the feldspar deposits in these areas. County lines are no barrier—go after it! A man told me that he owned a deposit of feldspar several miles north of Lake Superior that American industrialists were trying to buy. Now, if such an out-of-the-way deposit was desirable, how much more desirable should those within easy reach of Peterborough city, be?

There are deposits of feldspar in Peterborough County and adjacent territory. Feldspar is ground and used in the manufacture of porcelain and glass. The feldspar found in Finland has been used to make tables, one such being in the British Museum. If Finnish feldspar could be used for that purpose, why not Canadian feldspar?

The feldspar deposits are of various grades, some being used for bottle and window glass, some as foundry facing and as an abrasive. Low grade material is used in making artificial stone and for chicken grits. The highest grade is used in the manufacture of electrical porcelain and "false teeth." Statistics show that about eighty-five per cent of the feldspar produced in North America is used in the Ceramic industry. Feldspar under certain conditions changes into almost pure Kaolin.

A potentially valuable industry of large floor space and consequent opportunity for labor, could be a decided benefit to the city of Peterborough if the feldspars were brought here to be manufactured into the many needed products used in Canada, some of which are now imported. Why import when we have the basic material? If men can be found who understand how to utilize these feldspars and brought here as expert workmen, there should be a wonderful chance here for manufacturing along these lines until a vast trade both domestic and foreign, could be built up—and as the inventive ability was applied, new uses and new products would result, thus creating larger demand, more sales, extension of buildings, more employees and more benefit everywhere!

Feldspar comes from pegmatite dikes which abound in the rocky areas not far from Peterborough city, and being in those areas should, for a certainty, be utilized industrially in our city.

"Peterborough's Possibilities" are great in this respect. American firms own feldspar quarries in Hastings County and if considered so important as a source of raw material for these foreign industrialist to build up the United States, commercially, isn't it about time more Canadian industrialists got busy on that feldspar and erected factories in the nearest city—the city of Peterborough?

A government booklet says that "feldspar is the most important economic minerale in the pegmatite dikes of Hastings County."

It was the most important once, but deposits of other valuables are also there!

ON THIS DATE

A DAY IN CANADIAN HISTORY

By Rod Williams

A RAILWAY SEMI-CENTENNIAL

On this date (May 18) in 1885 the last spike on the north shore (Lake Superior) section of the Canadian Pacific Railway as driven at Jackfish, and the first link in the transportation chain which was to make the Dominion really one from sea to sea was forged.

Historians of the C.P.R. lay much stress upon the driving of the last spike by Donald A. Smith at Craigellachie, B.C., on November 5 following, but they ignored the equally important event on the shore of Lake Superior which made it possible for trains to run from Montreal through to Winnipeg.

It was Colonel W. R. Oswald, stockbroker and commanding officer of the Montreal Garrison Artillery, who drove that last spike. The M.G.A., which had left Montreal on the 11th, were luckier than the other troops which went west to suppress the rebellion in Saskatchewan. By the driving of this spike their train was enabled to go right through to Winnipeg and they were relieved of the terrible marches and rides in sub-zero weather which the other troops had had to undergo. They had arrived at Jackfish on Saturday the 16th and were told that they would be held there until the Monday morning so that the last few rails could be laid. Camp was pitched, a singsong held that night, a divine service on the Sunday and early Monday morning the colonel went up the track on a hand car, drove the historic spike and came back to order the regiment to entrain.

Thus was the first section of the C.P.R. completed and the first train from Montreal to Winnipeg sped on its way, very slowly at first, but it got there, and made history, which most people have forgotten.

Your Health

By DR LOGAN CLENDENING

"The entire program of what we may designate as the new public health movement is focused about the child."

So wrote one of its foremost advocates a few years ago. Certainly it should be so. In spite of the fact that a great many people are worrying about the prolongation of life by annual health examinations and so-called prevention of heart disease, our duty is to the young and vigorous, those who are carrying on the work of the world.

The hopes of mankind for a future race, more virile, less susceptible to infection, better developed, and better balanced to meet both the pleasure and strains of life, depend in great measure upon the circumstances of the earliest formative years of childhood. But even to a greater degree, they depend upon the circumstances which surround the child before birth.

And much of this depends upon the inteligence and the education of the prospective mother during the period before the child is born. This is not to say that she must know so much that she can feel independent of the attending physician. But that instead of blindly following instructions, disregarding them because she does not understand their importance, she will co-operate with some knowledge of what it is all about. This should include the prospective father, as a matter of fact, so that all three—mother, father and physician—will try to help each other and work together in mutual confidence and understanding.

The prospective mother will know about the details of diet, exercise, sleep, rest and strain as they apply to her. She will know what she should call to the physcian's attention. She will be reassured by knowledge, not frightened. She will be delivered from the harassing, terrifying false beliefs and superstitions that are constantly thrust before her by ill-advised, thoughtless relations and friends of her own sex.

Most of the things that the prospective mother hears about the general situation are lies.

This, in spite of the fact that they may be told to her by otherwise kind-hearted and supposedly friendly old ladies who have a great air of authority. What prospective father has not come home from work to find his wife dissolved in tears after one of the recitals from Eve's comforters?

The movies are about as guilty as anybody. If the League for Decency has completed its work, there might be room for a league for preventing the showing on the screen of the prospective father being summoned post haste to the hospital to find his pale wife being carried through the halls on a cart to the operating room for an emergency. Why should that ALWAYS have to happen to harassed young married couples in the movies? Do the movies want to scare the wits out of the poor young things in the audience, for whom going to the movies is about the only diversion there is? Couldn't they ever show one of the ninety and nine cases where everything is perfectly normal, and as a mother of five said to me the other day, it's about as much effort as a strenuous game of tennis?

It is to that idea that the series this week is dedicated.

SOCIAL CONTROL

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Sir:

In its review of the Price Spread Probe the Financial Post says in a special article:

"Deliberate social control, that is the keynote of the Price Spread Report. But it is the deliberate social control by politically appointed governmental bodies."

This is the first step in a system of government control of everything including labor. The difference between Socialism and Fascism is that Socialism includes ownership whereas Fascism leaves ownership where it is but takes direct supervision and control. While Socialism is being adopted here by the C.C.F. it has been abandoned in Russia which now has a "trust" for each department of production and distribution all under government direction. There is no remedy for unemployment but shorter hours and we might as well come to it as give up our liberties in this way.

What's in the Name of Canadian Cities and Towns?

by FRANK H. WILLIAMS

DAYSLAND, ALBERTA

This enterprising town, situated in the centre of a rich agricultural area, had its origin in 1905 when the C.P.R. projected a rail line through this district.

Among the first settlers was a man named R. W. Day, who hailed originally from Kingston, Ont. Day had been engaged for some years in the agricultural implement business in Winnipeg and when this section was opened up he moved in here, engaging in the sale of lands. He was admirably adapted to this line of endeavor and sold 180,000 acres in the district for colonizing purposes.

The village was incorporated about 1908 and the name Dayland, which had been coined from his name and his vocation, was given the place.

MACPHAIL HEARING WEDNESDAY

OTTAWA, May 17.—(CP)—It was announced yesterday the inquiry to be conducted by Judge R. J. Daly into charges made by Miss Agnes MacPhail, M.P., to the effect Inspector J. D. Dawson used abusive language in referring to her in the hearing of a prisoner at Kingston Penitentiary, will open in Ottawa next Wednesday.

While no place has yet been designated for the probe it will likely take place in the parliament buildings.

A Thought

She said: "I'll do the dishes",
Although she was so small,
And I was very busy
House cleaning in the hall.

I heard a crash—then quiet,
And to the kitchen sped;
I looked at babe and pondered,
For this is what she said:

"Don't mind. I'm sorry, mother,
I'll buy you dishes—now.
I broke the cups and saucers,
I'll break the plates now too."

VETERANS NEED HELP AT FIFTY

Ex-Service Men Ask Lower Age Limit For Government Allowance.

RESOLUTION PASSED.

Reduction from 60 to 50 years of the age at which veterans of the Great War may receive the allowance provided by the federal government to those who are no longer able to provide for themselves is sought in a resolution passed at a meeting of the Ex-Service's Men's Club last night.

The text of the resolution follows: "Whereas it is becoming more apparent that ex-service men, as a result of their service overseas are becoming prematurely aged, and as a result of the present economic depression this condition has become more accentuated; and whereas employers of labor look askance at employing persons over 40 years of age, which makes it more difficult for ex-service men to secure employment in view of his service in the Great War of 1914-1918 and his disabilities visible and invisible; therefore be it resolved that we, the members of the Peterborough Ex-Service Men's Social and General Welfare Club, do petition the Federal Government, before the dissolution of the present Parliament, to enact legislation to amend the War Veterans' Allowance Act by reducing the age limit from 60 to 50 years; and that the said amendment be made immediately effective; and further that a copy of this resolution be sent to the Prime Minister, to E. A. Peck, M.P., and to the president of the Dominion Command, and all branches of the Canadian Legion, B.E.S.L. for support and co-operation."

The allowance for an ex-service man and his wife is $40 a month.

LACK OF MONEY CLOSING CAMPS

clared during the election campaign his intention of balancing the budget and putting Ontario's finances on a sound basis. If sufficient funds were available now the camps would be kept open, and the only alternative would be to borrow money for this purpose, leaving its payment to a future generation.

I was told that the government has done everything it could to obtain assistance from the Dominion government, but has failed to get any help from Ottawa. Without the Dominion's assistance the province is unable to bear the whole load of providing employment in the road camps. I think that is a fair statement of the facts."

Emperor Abolishes Slavery In Ethiopia

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia, May 18 (AP)—Emperor Haile Selassia today issued a decree abolishing serfdom throughout Ethiopia and equalizing the system of land taxation.

An announcement said the masses acclaimed the steps and added the abolition of unequal land taxation would advance Ethiopia 1,000 years in civilization.

Ethiopia for centuries was one of the most profitable centres of the African slave trade and while other countries gradually abolished the traffic, the institution remained in that country even after its admission to the League of Nations. In recent years slavery there has taken the form of forced labor and "debt peonage."

CANADIAN CLASSIC RUN AT WOODBINE

The crowd which thronged the lawns of the park was the greatest in years and exceeded that of last spring when McLaughlin's dashing Hoopster swept to an outstanding victory.

The little gelding Samoan owned by Edward Seagram who is seeking victory in the King's Plate with Gay Sympathy and Sally Fuller, gained first victory of the day in the first race, a four-furlong dash open to two-year-old maidens.

J. E. Smallman, whose nominees of Rightfoot and Endante in the King's Plate were not entered when the weather indicated a light track, sent a heavy favorite to the post in Prince Drake for the second race. Rolling down the stretch, however, Prince Drake was overtaken by C. W. Bowyn's Meebee, followed in turn by Mrs. A. J. Abel's Orthoprism. Smallman's colt had a hard time pressing in fourth place behind L. Ronald's The Miner.

Repeated in Third

Seagram repeated in the third race, the Trial Plate Handicap, with his four-year-old colt Stand Pat. The chestnut son of John P. Grier-Law Degree held a strong position from the start at the six furlong pole and developed a four-length lead down the home stretch without any persuasion from Jockey Harry Lindberg.

Quickly, Smallman's five-year-old mare, failed in a brave effort to overcome the heavy handicap on the stretch and held only a slight lead over Miss Mona. Stand Pat was only two-fifths second behind the track record of 1.11 2-5.

WORLD CRISIS IS INDICATED IN THE PYRAMID

P. J. Perry Addresses British-Israel Federation in Paragon Hall.

WONDER OF WORLD

"The Present World Crisis" was the subject of the address given in the Paragon Hall last evening by P. J. Perry, of Winnipeg, president of the Province of Manitoba branch of the British-Isreal World Federation.

Mr. Perry is in the city for several days, giving a series of three lectures on subjects of interest to members of the British-Israel Federation, and his discourses are marked by a manifestly thorough grasp of the matters whereof he speaks.

The final address will be given tomorrow (Sunday) evening at half-past eight o'clock in All Saints' parish hall, when the subject will be "The Lord's Near Return."

Introducing the subject of his address, "The Present World Crisis," Mr. Perry gave a glossary of the amazing geometrical, mathematical and astronomical data which was intentionally built into the structure of the great Pyramid of Gizeh. This great pyramid, distinctly different from all other pyramids of Egypt, was never built for or used as a tomb, neither does it contain, as do all other pyramids, tombs and ancient structures, any hieroglyphic writing or wall decorations. Standing as the greatest solid structure ever erected by man it still remains as one of the seven wonders of the world; but its internal passages and small chambers are, apparently, uninteresting to the average visitor. Nevertheless, although no written word or painted sign is used it has been discovered and verified by the greatest scientists of to-day, that the Great Pyramid, by a definite chronological scale, built into the structure and defined by astronomical readings of astonishing accuracy, conveys from the dim and distant past an amazing message to the civilization of to-day.

Although built long before any portion of the Bible was written, the Pyramid, by its chronological scale, defines to year, day and hour, historical events which occur from 2000 to 5000 years after the pyramid structure was completed. Not only does the pyramid thereby indicate divine inspiration of its builders but, by indicating the terminal dates of great Biblical prophecies, the inspiration of the Bible and the prophecies is confirmed by this massive structure which stands, "For a sign and a witness unto the Lord of Hosts in the Land of Egypt."—Isa. 19).

The commencing date of the present World Crisis is accurately indicated in the pyramid, as also is the terminal date of the present depression or tribulation, which also marks the commencement of a new world order.

SEASON OPENS FOR BELL CUP

Horticultural Society's Competition For Improvement to Properties.

ON SOCIETY'S DRIVE.

The Horticultural Society wishes to draw the attention of those living anywhere on this route to the cup given by Joseph S. Bell for the most improved property each season. This does not mean the best garden or surroundings, but any improvement made since last season which, in the opinion of the judges, helps to beautify the Drive, and incidentally the city as a whole.

A little careful planning or altering some corner or spot not previously used which could be done at a very little outlay in cash may win the cup. This competition is open to any person living along the route whether a member of the society or not, who does not employ any help outside his own family after June 1st. Entries should be made as soon as possible to the secretary, Mr. W. G. P. Benton, 782 Water street. If possible a picture of the property should be sent, if possible, showing it before the improvement was begun. The Bell Cup is on display in The Examiner's window.—Peterborough Horticultural Society, per Frank Biddle.
